Only 3,000 Bomb Shelters Constructed in Canada for 4,000,000 Householders

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP)—Now that the Emergency Measures Organization has had seven years to prime Canada's civil defences, and the federal government has contributed $150,000,000 to the cause, where would we stand if nuclear war were unleashed?

Well, those within the immediate area of an exploding hydrogen bomb would be wiped out, and no amount of organization or money is likely to change that. However, defence experts feel any massive nuclear attack on Canada is highly unlikely.

Bigger dangers for Canada as a whole are radioactive fall out and the problem of maintaining communications and control in the event of normal administrations being shattered or scattered.

So far Canadians have shown little apparent concern over fall-out. Since 1957 there have been continual suggestions and ideas that the 4,000,000 odd householders in the country construct basement shelters, but there are still only an estimated 3,000 of them. And officials say the figure would be much lower if the Berlin and Cuban crises had not spurred them on.

OTTAWA SETS PATTERN

The government itself has not built shelters in most of the houses it owns, and during a recent meeting of the Commons defence committee, Industry Minister Drury, whose responsibilities include EMO, agreed with a suggestion that the international situation does not warrant the cost of providing shelters in these homes.

And, he added, "unless the government sets the example it is unlikely that the public will take the lead."

So EMO has set its sights on public education. A survey a few years ago established that more than 500 of the federal government's 4,900 buildings provided adequate protection against fall - out, and another 2,000 could be quickly altered to meet specifications. All government buildings constructed since 1961 have protective areas.

Mines and subways have been surveyed as possible shelters. A province-wide study of Alberta was completed this summer by the federal works department, which looked at hospitals, provincial and municipal buildings, along with churches, schools and some private structures. This survey is expected to establish techniques for a similar national study.

WARNING SYSTEM SET

The ultimate aim is to have designated shelter areas for all Canadians.

Meanwhile, EMO has completed a nation-wide warning system that will tell all Canadians of an impending attack. But, unlike a few years ago, there is no thought now of large - scale evacuations from cities.

"What at the moment is contemplated," says Mr. Drury, "is a voluntary individual decision in relation to evacuation without any specific indication where people might or should go." The population would be warned of danger areas to avoid, and out-of-town reception areas would be set up for persons who had nowhere else to go.

Thousands of pamphlets have been prepared by EMO to tell Canadians exactly what to do in the event of an attack, and whenever a major international crisis the organization can scarcely cope with the demand for them. When tensions ease, the flood of letters is reduced to a trickle.

Public apathy is the biggest problem facing EMO, says Gordon Grant, the organization's co - ordinator in Nova Scotia.

"People don't realize things can happen . . . They say to 'nothing can happen to us. We're safe'."

J. R. Millar, provincial administrator of civil defence in Manitoba, says there is more interest in natural disasters than in war. "We've found we can sell people more on preparedness for natural disasters than for war—and that's what we're doing."

PLAN FOR EMERGENCY

EMO officials in Ottawa say the organization is geared for all types of disasters, and while the public may show more interest in natural disasters, over-all planning has to be built around the worst.

With this in mind, the organization has co-ordinated a formidable emergency administration that would whip into action the moment the country came under attack. The system is almost as complex as government itself.

From a national co-ordination centre in Ottawa, the emergency structure is broken down into provinces, then into 36 zones, and then into some 2,500 municipal units — more are coming in all the time — and each level has its own plans and responsibilities in a national emergency.

If communications were shattered, each province would become a separate region with one person, probably the provincial premier, taking over full control of federal - responsibilities there. Emergency headquarters have been established in most provinces, where a federal commissioner would work with provincial officials, as trained personnel went about the task of picking up the pieces.

The army, with particular emphasis on the militia, has been trained in re - entering stricken cities, and since 1954 the Canadian Civil Defence College at Arnprior, Ont., has trained some 20,000 persons for roles in nuclear disasters.

RADIO-TV-READY

An emergency communications system, being constructed by the army, is almost complete from coast to coast, and radio and television stations have an emergency broadcasting system ready to operate. Plans have been prepared for the control of all transportation and communications facilities. Reception centres and medical centres have been designated, and food and clothing are stockpiled at points across the country.

The federal health department has its own plans to cope with a nuclear - attack emergency program. The works department has the responsibility for such things as emergency housing programs. The labor department would move in with its National Emergency Manpower Authority. The fisheries and agriculture departments would survive the production of non-contaminated food.

Meanwhile the emergency supply planning branch of the defence production department has a unit organizing standby groups of businessmen in cities and towns to take over the supply of food, clothing, fuel and equipment in the event of a nuclear strike.

There are about 2,500 of these men across Canada, all drawn from responsible positions in their community, who receive several hours' training each month. They would have no official status until the War Measures Act was proclaimed, but the agency serves no role in natural disasters.

SHUN PUBLICITY

G. E. Woodside, acting director of the branch, says the local members are appointed in co - operation with provincial and municipal governments. Most have asked that no publicity be given to their appointments, "and we are respecting their wishes."

"Most of them have been picked because of their knowledge of some facet of the distribution and supply system. They would handle rationing and price controls.

A survey of all stored foodstuffs, above the retail level, has been completed, and although the figures are subject to change rapidly, Mr. Woodside says the branch does know the relative amounts of supplies and where they likely are located. Other studies have been made of petroleum products, drugs, building materials and processing facilities.

The program was organized in the same zone structure as EMO, and provincial co-ordinators would be able to marshal the necessary supplies as soon as one area of a province was struck.

All the responsibilities of the federal - provincial and government departments are co-ordinated into an over-all plan by EMO.

VOLUNTEERS ENROLLED

Meanwhile, within each province the regional EMO units are building their networks of emergency services that range from tiny village organizations in Prince Edward Island to massive administrations in cities such as Montreal and Toronto. Provinces are usually broken down into zones—there is one in P.E.I. and seven in Ontario—and within these are individual municipal units — 28 in P.E.I. and 755 in Ontario.

Local units have enrolled thousands of volunteers for training in emergency measures as efforts are made to develop a solid core of trained personnel who would know exactly what to do in an emergency.

In Alberta, for instance, 29,000 persons have attended civil defence courses since 1950, as nearly 100 of the province's 309 municipalities have completed their basic survival plans."

Like other provincial administrators, Welfare Minister L. C. Halmrast of Alberta says the public's interest fluctuates with the international climate. "I believe our people have a right to expect to be led and not followed by their government in matters of national defence."

The provincial civil defence school at Brandon, Man., is the only one apart from the Arnprior college, and the monthly courses are always filled with up to 40 persons. The province has 16 full-time civil defence workers, and about 16,000 others who donate part of their time.

In Nova Scotia, about 500 civil defence volunteers hold weekly meetings and another 1,500 have enrolled in various courses. The province has also 300 part-time workers in the 1962-63 fiscal year.

In Quebec, there are some 150 full-time employees, 2,000 on a part-time basis, and 10,000 trained volunteers. Fernand Caron, the assistant co-ordinator for civil protection in the province, said most emphasis is placed on natural disasters. "We insist strongly on this aspect. As much attention is given protection in natural disasters as in cases of war."

British Columbia has 46,500 volunteers ready for an emergency, together with 8,500 municipal employees, such as firemen, who are trained to help in any situation. A total of $905,566 was spent on civil defence in the province in 1962-63, with the federal government contributing $567,796.

The training of volunteers varies from first - aid nursing courses to lectures on radiological contamination by local problems. At North Battleford, Sask., EMO volunteers have helped authorities maintain order on the last two Hallowe'ens.

The federal government contributes 50 per cent to 75 per cent of the cost of organizing civil defence activities in the provinces, although the share is lower in particular cases, such as the buying of equipment. Much of the equipment can be used by the provinces for natural disasters.

The 1962 forest fires in Newfoundland put the civil defence organization to the test when 6,000 persons were evacuated from threatened communities and maintained for up to 40 days.

Unlike other provinces, Newfoundland relies on government employees instead of volunteers. Major D. M. Owen, director of emergency planning in the province, said the public is apathetic toward civil defence but the provincial scheme is not dependent on the public.

Canada has 18 cities considered by officials to be prime targets—St. John's, N.B., Halifax, Saint John, N.B., Quebec, Montreal, Ottawa, Toronto, Hamilton, Niagara Falls, London, Windsor, Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and Victoria.

Officials of several other cities seem known to have been slightly miffed that they didn't represent prime targets.

Britain Buying Cheese From Ont., Quebec

TORONTO (CP) — Britain, with an unusually high demand for cheddar cheese this year, will buy 27,000,000 pounds from Ontario and another 5,000,000 pounds from Quebec.

Although it will be about normal for Ontario exporters, it will be the largest cheese export to Britain for Quebec in the last 15 years, the federal agriculture department says.

Hector Allen of Campbellford, Ont., president of the Ontario Cheese Producers Marketing Board, said the Ontario to British market this year is about the same as last year.

Domestic demand for Ontario cheese is high, leaving no more than the 27,000,000 pounds for export, another board spokesman said.

Last spring, the Ontario board agreed to sell cheese to British importers at 36½ cents a pound.

Johnson's Top Aide Resigns

WASHINGTON (AP) —Walter W. Jenkins, a top assistant to President Johnson for 30 years, was arrested at the Washington YMCA on morals charges in 1959 and again last week, police records show. The White House has announced his resignation.

A Texan who was a U.S Army major in the Second World War, Jenkins, 46, and father of six, has been associated with the president since Johnson was a U.S. congressman.

His resignation was announced in New York where the president was campaigning Wednesday night for the Nov. 3 U.S. election.

Records of the metropolitan police morals division show Jenkins was arrested five years ago on a charge of "disorderly conduct (pervert)" and on Oct 7 this year on a charge of being "disorderly (indecent gestures)." He forfeited cash collateral in both cases.

The Jenkins development may carry political implications as the presidential election campaign heads into its stretch run.

DECLINE COMMENT

Aides travelling with Senator Barry Goldwater, the Republican candidate for president, declined to comment immediately. In Washington, Clifton White, chairman of the Citizens Committee for Goldwater - Miller, said in a statement "the effects upon America both nationally and internationally can only be surmised at this time."

Jenkins' resignation and appointment of Bill D. Moyers, another White House aide, to take his place were announced by George Reedy, White House press secretary, at a press conference in New York.

The announcement that Jenkins had resigned was made a few hours after he was sent to hospital in Washington with what was described as "exhaustion fatigue."

In the District of Columbia (Washington), the charge of disorderly conduct is a broad category that covers many offences. Forfeiture of collateral usually closes such cases as far as the police are concerned.

An FBI spokesman declined comment when asked whether Jenkins' 1959 arrest was noted during the security check that is customarily made of White House personnel.

An $18,500-a-year administration assistant to Johnson when he was vice - president, Jenkins was appointed to the White House staff late last year, soon after Johnson succeeded the assassinated John F. Kennedy as president. Jenkins' White House salary was estimated at $22,500 to $25,000.

NAME CROPS UP

This year Jenkins' name cropped up several times in the Senate rules committee's investigation into the questioned affairs of Bobby Baker, resigned secretary of the Senate Democrats.

Republicans demanded that Jenkins be called to testify on allegations that at his suggestion Don B. Reynolds, a local insurance man, purchased advertising time on the Johnson family's Austin, Tex., television

CARRYING COALS TO NEWCASTLE? — Britain's Labor Party leader Harold Wilson chats with blacker faced coal miner Harry Pennington and his mates at coal mine at Huyton, near Liverpool. Wilson, swinging into the last day of campaigning in his constituency, of which Huyton is a part, will become prime minister if some 28,000,000 Britons who are expected to vote in the national elections today decide to oust Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservatives.

Britons Vote Under Leaden Skies With Few Feeling Sure of Results

Most of the press appeared stumped. Some polls gave Labor a narrow edge. The outcome was in the hands of 35,894,000 eligible voters — 490,000 more than in the 1959 ballot.

Both Prime Minister Douglas-Home, 61 - year - old Scottish noble, and the 48-year-old Wilson, a former economics lecturer, predicted victory. Liberal Leader Jo Grimond, 51, virtually conceded he had no chance against the political giants but held hopes his tiny party may wield the balance of power in the next House.

Voting was reported brisk. Three hours after the polls opened the big cities reported indications of a very heavy vote despite the rainy weather.

The weather was expected to play an important part in the election. A clear day is said to favor the Labor party, which finds it more difficult to get its supporters to the polls.

The great rush of voting was expected in the evening with most people voting on their way home from work.

One person who was not voting today was Douglas-Home. He failed to register in time after he relinquished his peer age last year to become prime minister. Peers cannot vote.

Bookmakers early today offered odds of 3 to 1 on Labor and 2 to 1 against the Conservatives.

The standing at dissolution of Parliament was: Conservatives and associated 350; Labor 256; Liberals 7; others, including the Speaker, 3; vacancies 14; total 630.

A former Conservauve, the Speaker is running as a non-party candidate. This is the first time a Speaker is being challenged by official candidates in a British campaign.

Crucial issues affecting Britain's future stature in world affairs are at stake. But the centre of the 630-seat fight is being waged in some 70 key constituencies held by hairline vote margins where domestic bread - and - butter problems dominate voter concern.

It is on the outcome of these constituencies that the election battle hinges.

Sir Alec has charged a government under Wilson would eliminate Britain's independent nuclear deterrent power. Wilson has countered that this power is neither independent nor deterring.

He wants to replace 13 years of Tory rule with a "new British" that will bring more efficiency to industry, including plans to nationalize steel and bring building land under closer government supervision.

Polls opened at 7 a.m. and close at 9 p.m. Vote analysts are relying heavily on electronic computers to bring in fast predictions. First results are expected one hour after polls close in 628 of the 630 constituencies. Included will be decisions in the big urban ridings where marginal seats are located.

Traditionally, Labor gets most of its strength from the big industrial centres. Vote counting in rural and remote constituencies will resume at 9 a.m. Friday.

In all likelihood, a general verdict of the outcome may come in about three hours after polls close. But if there is real uncertainty, the outcome will depend on complete returns which may not be available until Friday afternoon.

A total of 1,737 candidates including 36 Communists and 90 women, have entered the battle.

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment in Canada at mid-September dipped to an estimated 218,000, a decline of 29,000 from the previous month and 25,000 lower than in mid-September of 1963.

A joint report today by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics and the Labor department placed the latest unemployment rate at 3.1 per cent of the national labor force, lowest mid-September figure since the boom year of 1956. Seasonally adjusted, the rate was 4.5 per cent.

One month earlier the unemployment rate was 3.4 per cent and a year earlier it stood at 3.7.

Total employment was 6,754,000, a drop of 203,000 from August. This was a higher-than-average decline for the month as a record influx of students into summer employment led to a sharp withdrawal at the reopening of schools.

All told, an estimated 272,000 persons of student age left the labor force between August and September. This was partly offset by the addition of 69,000 persons 25 years of age and over, mostly women.

In the Atlantic region 3.4 per cent of the labor force was seeking work, compared to 4.6 per cent in August. On the other end of the scale, the Prairie region's unemployed rate was down to 1.6 per cent from 1.9.

Quebec had 4.3 per cent of its labor force out of work, Ontario 2.2 per cent and British Columbia 3.9.

The DBS and labor department estimates are based on a sample survey of 35,000 households during the week ended Sept. 19.

	Sept. Aug.	Sept.
Labor force	6,972	7,204	6,815
Employed	6,754	6,957	6,585
Unemployed	218	247	230

One significant feature of the year - to - year unemployment drop was that it occurred almost entirely among men.

All regions had higher employment figures than in September of last year with British Columbia and Ontario posting the biggest gains. The job total rose 4.7 per cent in B.C. and 3.3 per cent in Ontario.

Tornadoes Follow Up Hurricane

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Hurricane Isbell whirled out into the Atlantic today after spinning off a tornado whipped path of the leading edge of the small but vicious storm, demolishing house trailers, un-roofing homes and other buildings in several communities.

The hurricane went out to sea after passing just north of Palm Beach, leaving the city largely without electricity and its streets littered with debris.

But Isbell brought nothing to Florida to compare with the devastation she left behind in Cuba, where four died, hundreds of homes were destroyed, thousands of persons evacuated from flooded lowlands and crops ruined.

The worst of the tornadoes whirled out of the Atlantic and ripped through Boynton Beach, a Florida coastal city of 14,000, destroying about 20 house trailers and injuring at least 22 persons.

Seventeen persons were hurt at Eau Gallie when a tornado demolished a dozen house trailers, lifted the roof off a church and blew a house across a road.

About 600 persons were reported driven from their homes by floodwaters in Davie near

OTTAWA (CP) — A Liberal backbencher and a New Democratic Party member Wednesday called for federal and provincial action to establish minimum national labor standards to help wipe out "pockets of poverty" within Canada.

Herbert Gray (L — Essex West) and Andrew Brewin (NDP — Toronto Greenwood) stressed the need for further action as they endorsed the government's national labor code, which was given approval in principle by the Commons.

The bill, expected to be examined in clause - by - clause study next week, sets a minimum $1.25 hourly standard for more than 800,000 workers under federal jurisdiction. The government hopes it will influence the provinces to raise their minimum standards.

But Mr. Brewin told Labor Minister MacEachen he should not be sure the bill his department drafted will have this effect.

"It is absolutely essential that in Canada we establish certain minimum standards of labor legislation across Canada as a whole," Mr. Brewin said.

Mr. Gray said the government bill will influence the rest of the country but "nevertheless we cannot put aside the possibility of some provincial government activities even though this might mean the granting of new rights." He said the responsibility to the federal government in certain areas of action.

The Commons today is to consider Finance Minister Gordon's legislation aimed at preventing foreign take-overs of Canadian financial institutions.

Mr. Brewin, noting the labor legislation covers only a 10th of Canadian workers, said varying labor standards from province to province may encourage "poor" conditions in some provinces with ineffective standards to bid for industry to locate within their borders.

He said minimum national standards would help alleviate "pockets of poverty" within the country.

Mr. Gray rapped the Ontario government for adopting a "reactional approach" to minimum wage legislation with $1.25 an hour in some areas and less in others.

He said it was unfortunate that at the same time it had not adopted a regional approach to providing tax incentives to encourage industry to establish in slow-growth areas.

The bill sets the minimum hourly wage at $1.25 for a 40-hour week plus an eight-hour overtime maximum at time and a half unless labor department permission is obtained for further overtime, seven statutory holidays and two weeks paid vacation.

Winding up debate on second reading, MacEachen defended the bill's provision of seven statutory holidays. He provide eight would affect nearly half the workers covered by the bill, the latter existing this should not be done in "minimum" legislation.

Premiers Also Approve New Tax Structure

An Event of Historic Significance Says P. M.

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — In one of the most productive days of federal - provincial negotiations, Prime Minister Pearson and the 10 provincial premiers Wednesday found an acceptable formula for bringing home the constitution.

"An event of historic significance," said Mr. Pearson about the acceptance of a formula for amending the constitution in Canada. "A day of great achievement," said Premier Lesage of Quebec.

The conference also agreed on terms for an all-embracing tax structure policy which Premier Roberts of Ontario described as "a real breakthrough in federal-provincial relations." Premier Manning of Alberta was "quite happy" with both accomplishments.

With these two big items off the agenda, the conference was expected to end early today. Originally, it was thought it might continue to Friday. Today's discussions were to involve anything the premiers might raise under "other business."

After intermittent attempts for 37 years, Ottawa and the provinces achieved unanimous agreement on a formula under which the British North America Act can be brought to Canada and amended without getting final approval from Westminster. All changes in the act now must be approved by the Canadian Parliament before becoming law.

Before bringing the act under the final jurisdiction of the Canadian Parliament, it was agreed that a formula should be established that would ensure the protection of provincial rights in any subsequent amendments in Canada.

FORMULA UNCHANGED

Basically, the formula is the same as drawn up in 1961 by E. Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister.

Some of the key provisions:

1. All 10 provinces must give their consent before the federal Parliament can amend any section of the constitution dealing with basic provincial jurisdiction. This includes language, education, provincial legislative powers to make laws, and property and civil rights.

2. Sections of the constitution concerning only some provinces can be changed with the consent of those provinces concerned.

3. General amendments can be made with the approval of two-thirds of the provinces, provided those seven provinces represent at least 50 per cent of Canadian population.

Where the new formula departs from the one proposed by Mr. Fulton is in connection with the section of the act which gives the federal government sole control over constitutional amendments involving areas of federal jurisdiction.

Under the new formula this section will disappear, and all amendments will require the varying degrees of provincial approval as set out in the formula.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Police, checking an informer's tip on a plot to take life of President Johnson turned up guns and Nazi flags Tuesday night. But authorities said after a series of probing they believe the owners are innocent of any plan to harm him.

Sheriff Johnnie Mitchell said two men questioned were to be turned over to federal authorities for investigation regarding the firearms.

Mitchell said he is searching for a former mental patient he did not name.

Those questioned were Julius Schmidt, 29, an ex-convict of Corpus Christi, and Jerry Bird, 27, of Odem, Tex.

Sheriff Mitchell said: "I don't believe Schmidt knew he was to be contacted. I don't think he knew anything about any assassination attempt."

He said Bird was questioned because he had two rifles, neither of which would shoot.

Mitchell told this story:

The informant quoted the former mental patient "as saying he wanted to do away with the president and he needed a fully automatic weapon—a machine gun or a rifle."

The informant said the ex-patient said he believed Schmidt owned such a weapon.

Question Owners of Arsenal

Doubt LBJ Assassination Planned

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP)—Police, checking an informer's tip to a threat to the life of President Johnson turned up guns and Nazi flags Tuesday night. But authorities said after a night of probing they believe the owners are innocent of any plot to harm him.

Sheriff Johnnie Mitchell said two men questioned were to be turned over to federal authorities for investigation regarding the firearms.

Mitchell said he is searching for a former mental patient he did not name.

Those questioned were Julius Schmidt, 29, an ex-convict of Corpus Christi, and Jerry Bird, 27, of Calallen, Tex.

Sheriff Mitchell said: "I don't believe Schmidt knew he was to be contacted. I don't think he knew anything about any assassination attempt."

He said Bird was questioned because he had two rifles, neither of which would shoot.

Mitchell told this story:

The informant quoted the former mental patient "as saying he wanted to do away with the president and he needed a fully automatic weapon—a machine gun or a rifle."

The informant said the ex-patient said he believed Schmidt owned such a weapon.

Contractors Work on Nov. 1 Completion Date for School

General contractors Miron Wiggers of Trenton are working for a November 1st completion date for the new $1½ Mackenzie Bowell public school on Leland Drive in West Belleville.

Public school board members at their October meeting this week heard a report from the school architect that efforts were being made toward, the Nov. 1st date.

Public Schools superintendent L. A. Kells told the meeting that attendance at the end of September was 4,038 as compared with 4,283 at the same date last year. The teaching staff now numbers 161 full time teachers with four teaching in a part time capacity, compared with 151 full time and five part time teachers last year.

SLOW LEARNERS

Belleville Public Schools now have five classrooms for slow-learning children located in four school buildings, up from one each class last year. Four such classes were in operation two years ago, but problems of integration with the secondary school's and disagreement with special class inspectors led to temporary discontinuance of three classes. The move to set up such special classes is now complete and an extension to other schools is under consideration for the next school year.

Superintendent L. A. Kells, at the meeting attended by a full meeting of the Directors of the Ontario School Inspectors Association in Toronto, October 2nd, Mr. Kells will also attend the sessions of the Ontario Association of Directors and Superintendents of Schools, Toronto Board of Education Education Centre — November 2 and 3; a dinner meeting with the Minister of Education, at the 13th, and the sessions of the Ontario Association for Curriculum Development, Toronto, November 5, 6 and 7.

WILL APPLY

On behalf of Principal D. G. Lockyer, B.Ed., the Board will make application to the Department of National Defence that Mr. Lockyer be accepted for an instructional post overseas, on loan for a period of two years.

During the past week, representatives from two other Ontario school systems visited the Administrative offices of the Belleville Board and viewed some of the school operations. Six visitors were from Richmond Hill to secure information about our senior public school program, and a delegation from Nepean township spent a day viewing the administrative set-up.

SITE SECURED

At the same meeting, the Board approved support of a fire insurance survey to be conducted by the Ontario School Trustees' Council inquiring into rates in the province on school buildings.

A small allocation from the Board to the Department of Education in Toronto was unable to report success in securing provincial grant on improvements to the Avondale School building. The amount to be secured is approximate half of the total cost of $4,200.

Red Feather Report

United Appeal Trend Is Up Workers Told at Meeting

The trend is up in Belleville United Appeal collections. A special meeting of Appeal workers yesterday revealed that, more than $30,000 has been donated to the Appeal already this year, and that more donations in all groups are higher than last year.

Three local employee groups have given more than $3,000 each, the C.N.R. with a total of $4,500 so far, the Ontario Hydro office with a total of $3,100 and Northern Electric employees with a total of about $3,100. Employees of three more local firms have given $1,000 each, and one of these firms has not yet finished its canvass. Canada Wire employees beat their target by $200, for a total donation of $1,300. Mead Johnson went over the top with their campaign, a total of $1,300 and Wilson Carlile Products employees have given $1,900 so far with the campaign not yet complete.

Highest average donations reported so far are in Wilcox Concrete products (salesmen) department, where donations averaged about $12 per employee. Lowest average is in the Corby Distillery, where about 225 employees have given only about $75 so far. Of all the groups reported only Stephens-Adamson has not yet matched or beaten last year's donation and the campaign continues at Stephens-Adamson.

Corporate gifts have been received so far from five of the 15 largest industrial employers in the city, and the gifts are up an average of 23 per cent from last year. Canadian Canadian National Railways and the Ontario Hydro, being Crown-owned cannot make corporate donations. Among other firms in town, Bishop Steels and something of a record — this year's gift is exactly five times the amount the firm gave last year.

The campaign is in the home stretch now, and campaign officials are calling on all canvassers to report their collections. Deadline for the movement each year is Saturday afternoon. A complete accounting of all money collected by the United Appeal to date will be available Monday.

Mr. Joyce congratulated the association on its recommendation in retaining first or second position during the past several months for the high level of activity in M.L.S. sales volume for cities of equal population centres as Canada.

Mr. McKinney and Mr. Joyce had recently attended the Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards annual convention held in Halifax as delegates of the Belleville Board and in a report of the conference was given by Mr. Ed McKinney. Mrs. Dorcas Archer, president, made a report on the proposed exhibition and sale of work to be held at the Plaza in mid-November. All arrangements have been made regarding the use of available store and for the expenditure of the necessary funds.

At the previous meeting it was suggested that monthly meetings be held and the second Wednesday of each month was approved and available by the Rec Centre. Mrs. Summers advised the group that the film "Discovering Textures' which had been shown to those attending the seminar of the Community Program at Ridgetown last summer, and would be of interest to members of the Arts and Crafts would be shown at the November meeting.

Mrs. Gardner told the meeting of the contacts made for consignment sales of work at a gift shop on the Lake of the Mountain and a gallery in Thorncliffe Park in Toronto. Anyone interested could have further information at the November meeting.

Cardboard Cartons for 'Dry' Garbage Okayed by Council

The use of cardboard cartons for "dry" garbage up to a weight of 50 pounds was okayed by city council this week in a by-law amendment before the new garbage collection by-law received its final reading.

The garbage by-law amendment was introduced by Alderman Ross Ketcheson who said if covered cans were required under terms of the by-law a large number of householders and merchants would be inconvenienced.

Mayor J. R. Ellis claimed Ald. Carbe's amendment was facetious and that the term cardboard screen opened too wide a door.

He said there have been numerous complaints about the appearances of Front Street on garbage collection days and said the only way to overcome the complaints is to have a by-law with firm specifications.

Alderman Enos David said there should be a requirement for garbage collectors to replace cans where they were picked up, but Ald. J. J. Carbe pointed out that the more "frills" in the contract, the more garbage collectors will cost.

And Ald. Doug Boyle had a complaint of a personal nature.

He said that he had purchased a brand new garbage can, complete with lid and just to make it more distinctive had his name painted on.

"I was proud of that can," he said, "but somebody stole it."

Canadian Club Enjoys Film Of Unusual Nature Scenes

By RETA LAWRENCE

A record number of members of the Canadian Club of Belleville and District met at Queen Elizabeth School on Wednesday to enjoy an evening of beauty and entertainment provided by Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bird, well famed naturalists and photographers.

Mr. Bird, as narrator, brought life and story to a color film, "Canadian Trails," and as the evening progressed the audience came to a man, (and to a woman), believe, as stated by "nimrods," ready to load up the cameras and grovel on hands and knees or lie flat on their stomachs in a blind, to capture on film the beauty and constant wonders of Nature.

The locale of the film was the Canadian Rockies, unequalled anywhere by any other spot on earth. Mr. Bird contends that our own bounty of amusing and interesting wildlife is not appreciating as that of any spot in the world, although he expressed admiration for the Canadians are more in demand in the United States and Great Britain than they are in Canada. "We tend to find films on nature from other countries more satisfying because we have not taken the time to really see our own," he said.

LOOK TWICE

"It behooves us as Canadians, to bring our children to appreciate conservation. We need conservation in Canada. If they are taught to look twice at a bird they will not have the urge to throw a rock."

Mr. and Mrs. Bird travelled by pack train or any other suitable conveyance, through the wilds, and sometimes spent as long as one hundred hours with two cameras, equipped with telescopic lenses, in order to create a sequence which may run 45 seconds on the screen. It is their aim to produce pictures which will be amusing and interesting. Children revel in the word "study" as in "nature study," but, should they be fortunate enough to see Mr. and Mrs. Bird's films, they will find Nature presented to them through the eyes of Mr. Bird and the camera, that even the all wild creatures would be unaware of.

After acquainting, his audience with the living habits of woodchucks, porcupines, bears, badgers, beavers, Rocky Mountain sheep and goats, bull moose, and myriad families of birds, Mr. Bird urged that his listeners each procure a magnifying glass and just "look."

Besides the unbelievable beauty of form and color, many animals and birds are of untold value to farmers because of their destruction of pests.

Each bird photographed is handled, if possible, and should a dead banded bird be found it should be reported to the Canadian Conservation Board in Ottawa.

At the conclusion of the picture the audience was invited to ask questions and this proved to be a spirited session, leaving no doubt that many letters in response will soon be replaced by cameras, to the relative satisfaction of the hunter, and, for lack of a better word, his "quarry."

Mr. J. G. Demera presided at the meeting and introduced the guest speakers. Appreciation was expressed by Mr. G. Maybee.

Poet Laureate Writes Poem on Queen's Return

LONDON (AP)—John Masefield, Britain's 86-year-old poet laureate, published the first new poem today entitled On Our Sovereign Lady's Return to commemorate Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada and her unpleasant reception in Quebec.

Printed in The Times it reads:

"Remembering last November,
her, unafraid,
"Lest ill befall, is an unusual case.
"Whatever sorrow cloud a sovereign grace,
"Her safety leaves a mother nation cheered.
"Hearts that endure for Britain are endeared."

The words "last November" obviously refer to the assassination of President Kennedy.

Egan Creek Road Network Will Open up Large Area

By E. Marius, Dept. of Lands and Forests, Tweed

TWEED — During June of this year construction began on the Egan Creek Operating Block road network located south-east of Bancroft in Dungannon and Mayo Townships, Hastings County. This system of roads initially will provide access to approximately 10,000 acres of productive forest land. Actually it is the first step in the development of an intensive program of multiple resources management for the area.

The principal impetus for this road program was the existing and potential timber values of the block. Conservative estimates indicate a volume of six million f.b.m. of sawlogs predominately white and red pine, and 20,000 cords of pulpwood available in the next 20 years. The extensive access road system will not only provide the means for efficient planning of timber harvesting operations but will also enable the organization, planning and execution of all necessary silvicultural work involved in the establishment, tending and improvement of the next timber crop.

Similarly the harvesting and management of the fish and wildlife resources will be facilitated with the completion of high quality access to the area. Many excellent speckled trout lakes will be made available for anglers. Relatively inaccessible hunting areas soon will be further enjoyment and success.

All recreational activities compatible with the previously mentioned uses will be available to the public at large.

CONTROL USE

Further main road construction is planned to continue on to Mephisto and Cashel Lakes to provide all these benefits to the public from an even larger area.

The eventual provision of road access to Mephisto and Cashel Lakes in Cashel Township will greatly enhance the attractiveness of these lakes for summer resort purposes. The many other small lakes made accessible by the road network will be reserved for public use and, accordingly, no summer resort subdivisions will be planned for them.

Finally, all values will be made easier to protect from fire when the road network is completed, thus assuring their perpetuation.

SAUSAGE LEADERS

KULMBACH, Germany (AP) — Acknowledging an absence of exact figures, the West German Institute for Meat Research believes that, as reputed, Germans eat more sausage per capita than any other nationality. It is certain, however, that the more than 600 kinds of sausage produced in Germany lead the world in variety. It lists the runnersup as Poland, Hungary and Russia.

Location Site To Be Studied At Meeting

TRENTON — Tonight, starting at 8 p.m., Murray Township residents will meet in the town hall at Wooler to be brought up to date on the progress in connection with the township's proposed Centennial Project. Council voted recently to earmark the construction of a new municipal office building for the project. Total cost $30,000. With Ontario Municipal Board approval of the project, township clerk, Angus Gunter has now made application to the federal-provincial centennial grant committee for a $10,000 grant towards the cost. Last year, and this, council put aside $4,500 out of current funds. The remaining $15,500 will be raised through the sale of debentures, which Reeve Douglas McMaster said yesterday preliminary arrangements for this had been arranged.

Still undecided, and to be discussed at tonight's meeting is the location of the building. A last year's council resolution calls for the office to be built near the township equipment sheds in a rural location. Recently, pressure has been brought to bear from several quarters to have the office built in Wooler, the "hub" of the township in the eyes of many.

WILL HOLD COURSE

A Hunter Safety Course will be held in the town hall, over the police station on the evenings of Oct. 19 and Oct. 26.

Persons wishing to obtain a hunting licence for the first time, must attend both evenings of the course and pass examinations at the end of the instruction.

In the past, many "old-timers" have attended the courses, in order to brush up on safety rules.

130 Appeals Made Against Assessments

TRENTON — Yesterday was the last day for taxpayers in the town to appeal their assessments and assessment commissioner Allan Smith said today around 130 appeals had been received in his office.

The appeals run from insulting letters to well thought out details.

The court of revision sitting in November will consider each and every appeal on its individual merits Councillor Howard Todd is this year's chairman of the court of revision.

The Theatre Bar Corner, at Division and Dundas Streets, Trenton, is taking on a new look these days. The road has been widened from 20 feet to 40 feet, and will be paved next week. Yesterday, town workmen laid a sidewalk alongside the theatre.

Will Punish All Offenders Says Board

TRENTON — Trustees of the Trenton Separate School Board meeting in Trenton this week expressed their concern about the vandalism and wilful damage being carried out at St. Mary's Separate School on Campbell Street in East Trenton.

Last summer $400 worth of plate glass and lighting fixtures were broken. The juvenile offenders were brought to court and their parents ordered to pay restitution.

This week the trustees made it clear that they would leave no stone unturned to bring older juveniles to justice should the vandalism occur again and follow up whatever court action was taken by prosecuting the parents for restitution if they failed to obey the order of the court.

Meanwhile the trustees recommended to parents that their offsprings be advised of the seriousness of damaging school property.

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council here has approved a by-law prohibiting the sale or use of firecrackers in the city. Roman candles and sparklers are not included.

TRENTON — Last night's Trenton school board meeting was, as some of the board members remarked themselves, reminiscent of a commercial "debate" currently being aired over radio, wherein the debaters argue endlessly the comparative merits of two types of heating.

A natural gas company didn't do itself any favors of course, when it declined to acquiesce to a board request and send in a combined bill to the board for heating in various schools where gas is used.

And in spite of arguments to the contrary, the board voted to install an oil heating system in the new addition to North Trenton Public School. The oil boiler costs $3,400 as opposed to the cost of a gas boiler, $3,700. Oil costs in the long run may be greater, as in the case of the gas company, maintenance is free . . . however, this may not be company policy forever, one board member said.

And still on the subject of the North Trenton addition, the architects, Barnett-Reader and Creighon have been trying to figure out ways to bring the cost of the two rooms and an auditorium down from Miron-Wiggers contract price of $95,400 to $90,000. By substituting another public address system for the planned PA system, $1,800 could be saved and $770.46 saved by deleting one row of lights in the playroom. Another thought is to lower the contingency fund of $1,000 by $800. Mr. James Bowman and his committee will examine the suggestions.

At the further suggestion of the architect, the board last night appointed the contractor purchasing agent. This will take care of the provincial sales tax, as most materials for the use of school construction is exempt from this tax.

Back on the subject of heating for the schools, the board will co-operate with the Trenton Public Utilities Commission to the extent that plans for a contemplated new public school in northeast Trenton will be made available so that the PUC can quote on electric heating. However, board members feel there is very little, if any, chance they might consider this type of heating as it would call for an entirely different type of insulation than present plans call for.

V. P. Carswell, supervising principal for public schools, added to his report presented in written form to the board, that a number of students had been discovered smoking on school grounds and suspended for a day. Also, Richard Colman, a student at Prince Charles School, was injured yesterday in a soccer match at the school. No rough play was involved, said Mr. Carswell, it was just a "happenstance."

High school principal John Garrett told the board night school enrollment had fallen from the 1963 figure of 250 to 488 and said he thought a higher registration fee might account for this.

The board found no objection to high school students selling chocolate bars to help finance this year's publication of "The Spotlight."

Mr. Garrett said he did not approve of a suggestion that upwards of 50 girl students use the school gym for night parties for their planned for Air Cadet unit. He has no objection to an afternoon parade, weekly. Girl cadets are not recruited officially by the RCAF or the Air Cadet League of Canada, but the RCAF Association, 413 Trenton Wing, has considering sponsoring the body.

The century old former farm house, on Dundas Street West, Trenton, occupied for many years by the late Senator William A. Fraser and his wife, is to be raised. Three apartment houses will be built on the land, if council accedes to the recommendation of the planning board and re-zones the land to permit for multiple-housing construction.

Is There a Quebec Terror?

Richard Jackson, Ottawa newspaperman and The Ontario Intelligencer's correspondent in the nation's capital, says Quebec City residents were bullied into ignoring the visit of the Queen.

They were, he says, afraid to cheer or to display flags because they expected such demonstrations of loyalty to Her Majesty would bring reprisals from separatists.

The rest of Canada will have difficulty in accepting this explanation. Mr. Jackson, himself, is the first to admit this. What happened, he says, "all but defies understanding." Perhaps he is wrong. We hope he is—even though this means that the cool reception given the Queen fairly accurately reflects the attitude of the majority of French-Canadians living in the capital of La Belle Province.

Much though the rest of Canada may deplore such an attitude, it could understand it. In the heat of controversy, innocent bystanders often get singed. If French-Canadian nationalism has reached a pitch where its advocates feel they must display coolness towards the Queen, because they consider her a symbol of the constitution under which Canada has been governed for a hundred years, that is to be regretted. But it can be endured.

What would be intolerable would be the presence of a small, but vicious group which held the majority of French-Canadians in the grip of terror and made them afraid to voice their true feelings. This is what Mr. Jackson believes happened in Quebec City during the Queen's visit. If he is right, the future looks dark. It would be unthinkable for the remainder of Canada to surrender control of Quebec to such a minority. Yet to fight it would almost certainly mean risking the alienation of the majority which, such as it may dislike being bullied, would still almost certainly resent the intervention of Canadians of other racial extractions than French.

The Queen has visited her realm of Canada and has, thanks be, departed safely for home. Thus our worst fears have proven groundless—and to give the Quebec separatists their due there is no concrete evidence they would have done her any physical harm if they could.

But to offset our thanks at this outcome we have the possibility that the picture drawn by Mr. Jackson is accurate and that we have in Quebec not merely a secessionist movement but a small but determined group of fanatics which will stop at nothing to get its own way.

The division of Canada into two states would be disastrous. For one of these states to be forced to leave confederation by terrorists would be an outrage against all our traditions and all their forefathers, both French and English, fought for during the years of union of the two races.

Why Not 'Nigger?'

Stephen Lewis, NDP member for Scarborough West, has sharply criticised the Ontario Department of Education for allowing the word "nigger" to be used in a Grade 11 English composition lesson.

Mr. Lewis says that the lesson shows "shocking insensitivity."

"Nigger," says the Century Dictionary and Encyclopedic Lexicon of the English Language, "is not, as generally supposed, a 'corruption' of negro, but is regularly developed from the earlier form neger, which is derived from the French from the Spanish-Portuguese negro, from which the English negro is taken directly. Nigger is more English in form than negro and was formerly and to some extent still is used without opprobrious intent."

The passing years have probably lessened the sting with which the word "nigger" is now used without an undertone of contempt in much of the English-speaking world. This is to be deplored, but we are by no means certain the remedy for this situation lies in banning the use of the word. We would prefer to see it rehabilitated, along with a number of other words which, unlike nigger, may have originated as terms of contempt, but do not now necessarily imply any such feeling. Dago, wop, Polack, Limey and bohunk are all in this category. We know a Catholic who regularly referred to himself and others of his faith as "Micks," thereby removing any sting which that nickname may have carried. This, it seems to us, is a much better remedy than any attempt to outlaw the use of any word.

"There seems to be no doubt in Her Majesty's mind."

Many a pumpkin pie could be made from two prize specimens reported to have been grown near Sudbury. One weighs 62 pounds and the other 58 pounds.

Seven hundred tons of pumpkin in one huge pile spreads over quite an area, but that is the amount of potential pumpkin pie which is stated to be in one large pile at the Baxter canning plant in Bloomfield. The pumpkins are being stored outside in preparation for processing.

Officials of the company stated this year the pumpkin crop was somewhat above normal and since the conclusion of the tomato pack, employees have been hard at work at the pumpkin pack. The pumpkins are first washed thoroughly in vats of hot water, then they are sliced, cleaned and cooked before going into the cans.

Ottawa Offbeat
Liberal Backbenchers Rebel, Fight Quebec Favoritism

By RICHARD JACKSON
From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — It has been slow in starting, and even slower in building.

But now, opposition within the Liberal Commons caucus to the Government's often-frightening readiness to make concessions to Quebec is beginning to come out into the open.

That some of the Liberals are getting fired up enough to rebel against what they no longer hesitate to charge is their own Government's dangerous "softness" on Quebec is more than you can say for a lot of Conservatives, apart from their one do-or-die stand on the flag.

And it is infinitely more than can ever be said for the New Democrats, excepting, of course their maverick from the Lakehead, the free-wheeling outspoken Douglas Fisher.

Even after the break away of Real Caouette's crazy Creditistes, still dependent on the support of his few remaining Quebec MPs, Social Credit Leader Thompson has remained discreetly silent.

While Caouette, Gilles Gregoire and company have been pushing and pushing and pushing for a continued aggrandisement of Quebec as a province, or even a state apart, and the creeping diminution of Canada as a confederation.

THIRD REBELLION

Perhaps the understandably reluctant Conservatives - they need Quebec votes, too, if they are ever to return to power in strength — couldn't really have helped.

This, because as Opposition is in the business of opposing, and had they fought this slow surrender to Quebec as perhaps they should, it might have been discounted only in the customary line of Parliamentary duty.

To be effective, real, make-it-count opposition to the Government's policy on Quebec had to come from within the Government's own ranks.

And, at agonizingly long last, it has started coming.

The pity is that they are so few — with Quebec accounting for 47 of the 109 Liberal seats in the Commons, or 37 percent of the Government's voting strength in the House.

But it is not the first, nor even the second time that this band of Backbenchers has spoken out and made Prime Minister Pearson and the Cabinet listen.

The first time was when, after the disaster of the lamented "Sixty Blazing Days of Dynamite Decision," they demanded — and were promised — a little advance notice of such political capers so that they might counsel against that kind of Parliamentary gimmickry.

The second was when they rapped Health Minister Judy LaMarsh for involving herself and her Canada Pension Plan — to their collective detriment — in a losing fight with Ontario Premier John Robarts in the provincial election.

GROWING STRONGER

Practice has made them bolder in the technique of political action, and success has made them infinitely stronger.

So when, in a body, they spoke out at a recent caucus about the Government being perilously soft on Quebec, nobody — not the prime minister, nor any of the Cabinet — could stop them.

For an hour they held the floor in angry warning that continuing appeasement of Quebec was damaging the Government and the Party in the rest of the country.

Specifically they charged that the administration was trading off its Federal authority to the power-greedy nationalists in Quebec as the price of political peace in French Canada — and in the paring down process stripping itself of the financial ability to influence the national economy.

Specifically, alarmed objection was taken to the arrangements by which the rich capital funds of the Canada Pension Plan may be administered by the provinces for provincial purposes.

Now, the rebels have some solid reason to hope that they may be able to compel the prime minister to eliminate the "soft" to at least "firm" if not exactly "hard" in his diplomatic negotiations with Quebec, in the confidence that insists — and seemingly had convinced him — that it was different and even special enough to "opt out" of much of the working Canadian Federal-Provincial partnership.

What Press Thinks of Reception Given Queen in Quebec City

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Following are excerpts from editorials in representative Canadian newspapers on the Queen's visit to Canada:

• • •

Winnipeg Tribune: "True patriotism does not exclude understanding of the patriotism of others. The democratic regime rests on the conscious adherence of its citizens. The role of the constitutional monarchy is to personify the democratic state, to sanction legitimate authority, to assure the legality of means and to guarantee the exercise of the popular will."

This statement was made by Queen Elizabeth in her address to the members of the Quebec legislature, which we noted as an antidote to the utterances of those who appear to decire the destruction of the institutions which we have inherited from the past. . . .

• • •

Fredericton Gleaner: The shame of Canada's greeting to its Queen is over but the sting of its memory will remain. The Queen's advisers were brought with an air of unprecedented misjudgment for subjecting Her Majesty to the insults and indignities she suffered in Quebec. . . . What is the result? Canada's name is besmirched in the press of the world. The Queen has been insulted. The relations between Quebec and the rest of Canada have suffered a further setback. . . .

• • •

Montreal Star: It is important to remember and to emphasize the welcome and joy of the visit. The kind of world in which we live, febrile and fluctuating, gets short shrift and is pushed and buffeted by the forms of instantaneous communication we have brought to ourselves and which, on occasion, threaten to become our masters. Yet, beneath it all, the orderly forms of constitutional government remain, a fact which the Queen's presence among us lends emphasis. . . .

• • •

Quebec City Chronicle-Telegraph: The Queen has come and gone. She was subject to no harm, no humiliation and no insults. On the contrary, the reception she received here was scorned and derided. . . . Looking back, the extraordinary security precautions appear to have been exaggerated. . . . If the RCMP and Quebec Provincial Police behaved with sensibility, the answer cannot be said of municipal police. In place far from the scene of the royal visitors, city police went about their business . . . with an astonishing display of aggressiveness. . . .

• • •

Montreal Gazette: Few days in the Queen's life will leave a deeper impression than this . . . It came bloody, but unbowed, except the sporadic flutters of a few troublemakers, the echo and aftermath of fears caused by a motley fringe. Yet everyone felt the anxiety brooding over the city. The Queen was she who had to live in the very centre of it all. But she faced it with a courage which was all the more touching because it was so very much expected. . . .

• • •

Montreal - Matin: The Queen was . . . spoke of the changes made in the Canadian constitution . . . These are wise words. Every Canadian, every Government is not darkened by passion sampled this speech and struck a right note. But unfortunately it was somewhat lost in the crash of truculence and the cries of the separatists. And that's a great pity.

• • •

Montreal La Devoir: The crowd at Quebec City was cool and hardly enthusiastic. Indifference or hostility, some will say. Fear and a sense of reserve under the circumstances, others will say. None knows exactly. But the editorials of some foreign newspapers are not wrong in interpreting Saturday's events as proof of the great illness which is affecting the Canadian Confederation. Public opinion will retain, considering this world-wide echo and the memory of a badly thought out decision, of an unpardonable strategic error committed by some political leaders, among them Premier Jean Lesage of Quebec. . . .

• • •

Quebec City Le Soleil: The visit of the Queen to Quebec City went off without any demonstrations hostile to her. "soft" to the reception she received was manifestly less enthusiastic than those given previous royal visitors to the old capital. This last visit came at a time of national tension—a fact borne out by the atmosphere prevailing in our city during the two days of the visit. But we must feel happy that the alarmist predictions, spread around abundantly in Canada and abroad these last few months, were not realised.

• • •

Quebec City L'Action: With finesse and dignity, Queen Elizabeth II met the most piercing problems of the hour. She not only said a word, but a just word. It is regrettable that at the moment she was speaking of the legislature, aside, at various places, some police were putting their hands grosso to mon, tee them their heads, trying to restrain demonstrations that had absolutely nothing to do with revendication. The agents of order suddenly became the agents of disorder, so it with such ardor that they were absolutely deaf even to reporters . . . The affirmation of the Queen comes back to us: "My ardent desire is that no one among my people's be submitted to constraint. . . .

• • •

Ottawa Citizen: The royal visit to Quebec City revealed how small, after all, is the separatist movement in Quebec. The demonstrators were mainly students, and their numbers were relatively few. Had it not been for the panicky action by the Quebec municipal police on Saturday night, the visit would have gone off peaceably.

• • •

Ottawa Journal: There are 19,000,000 people in Canada, 5,500,000 of them in Quebec. In spite of the demonstrations in Quebec City the RCMP estimate there was a grand total of between 400 and 500 people involved. That is, the sum of French - Canadian demonstrators on opposition to the Royal Visit, collecting their "worst" from all over the province, was an odd lot of perhaps 50 hecklers who played upon the histories of Canada's political revolution in university students, and who capitalized on the "fun" of getting into a scene with still younger people are finding attractive the world over just now. So there was not even in Quebec 450 youngsters and 50 bad mannered and probably ill-intentioned onlookers sought to give a bad name to the remaining 5,499,500 people of Quebec. It is perhaps a time of understanding. . . .

• • •

Windsor Star: The shocking insults to Queen Elizabeth II in Quebec City this past weekend should leave all Canadians with a sense of reality. No longer can the separatists of Quebec be brushed aside as a few and forgotten . . . Canada is now faced with a divided country. It is as bare in Canadian history that will go down as marking a turning point in the road Canada will move toward unity or Canada will start a split at the seams and become a divided group of tiny areas. . . .

• • •

Toronto Globe and Mail: In days ahead, the people of Canada will learn to what extent the political climate in Quebec in recent days has been changed by the events surrounding the visit of Queen Elizabeth II. And changed it will be, for we have found out things about ourselves which we did not know before. . . .

• • •

Toronto Telegram: (The Queen) moved for a few brief hours through the vivid atmosphere of fear in Quebec. It was not her fear, for she objected to the precautions. She bore herself with apparent courage. The fear, the cowardice was in the hearts of the Quebec people. These are hard words. They fit a hard reality. . . . The people of Quebec were afraid to express loyalty to an institution that has guarded French culture in Canada for nearly 100 years. . . .

• • •

Vancouver Sun: The Queen appealed to the best in us by her noble speech in Quebec's legislative chamber . . . She showed a grasp of Canada's problems and potentialities that we shame some of us to envy. However stirring Her Majesty's words and actions, it cannot be said that her visit was a success, Canada's reputation abroad is not improved and her domestic situation no closer to reconciliation. . . .

• • •

Welland Evening Tribune: It cannot be stressed too strongly that the great majority of the people of Quebec would want a Royal Visit to be treated with respect and decency. The minority of demonstrating dissidents gained headlines, it's true, but rather than advancing their aspirations, they probably succeeded only in demonstrating the resolve of many Canadians to protect and preserve traditions. . . . The most commendable solution comes from French and English speaking amity.

Calgary Herald: Quebec City presented itself to the nation, and to the world's press on Saturday, more as the capital of a banana republic than as the capital of self-respecting Canadian province. The sense of relief which all loyal Canadians will feel today over the safe conclusion of Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada can scarcely offset another feeling, one of disgust and deep humiliation evoked by the anti-royalist antics of separatist gangs in Quebec City. . . .

• • •

Halifax Chronicle - Herald: Mr. Lesage several times addressed Ottawa's invitation to Queen Elizabeth last year. The Queen, he said, "wants to stay in the Commonwealth. The French-Canadian is a royalist. Never forget that." Now that the extremists have obscured, if not contradicted, that fact, the premier is in an unenviable position. He, who greeted the Queen with unfailing courtesy, will find the hearts of the rest of Canada hardened against the people he represents. The Queen has returned to London. The charming Quebec premier is in many ways the most unfortunate politician in the country today. . . .

• • •

Sherbrooke Record: Mature moderation was the theme of the Queen's message (of Quebec), and it is a theme that could not be more timely. There is extremism in Quebec; and there is extremism in English Canada. But if the future is to hold out the prospect of more than sea-to-sea bickering, then extremist liberty and collective thinking must be eliminated. . . .

• • •

Guelph Mercury: It is not the booing of the Queen by a few score but the generally poor atmosphere which prevailed and the brutality of the Quebec police which lent a sense of shock and unbelief across the country. Relations with Quebec are unlikely to be improved by minor demonstrations or even by the stay-at-home attitude of so many Quebec people. After all, how many would turn out on a raw day in an Ontario city for a chance glimpse of the queen as her car slid along between almost solid rows of troops and police?). Canadians in general will not reciprocate the mystery of the separatists by damning an entire Canadian race for the bad manners of a moronic handful. . . .

• • •

Peterborough Examiner: The shock of the riots will have taught Canada and Quebec a great deal. The first and most obvious lesson is that municipal police in Quebec have little or no idea of how to handle unruly crowds. Since there are likely to be more such crowds in the province of Quebec and elsewhere in Canada in coming years, one of the requirements of all police forces is thorough instruction in crowd control. . . . There is no excuse for a beating of the clubbing of any place in Quebec during the Queen's visit and we trust that there will be no repetition. . . .

• • •

Toronto Star: . . . It was a national disaster. In view of the threats, extra precautions had to be taken to protect Her Majesty. But the difficult in charge seem to have gone beyond all reason. . . . The right of peaceful protest . . . was trampled on. . . .

• • •

Hamilton Spectator: What the news media's treatment of the crisis definitely will do was to show the world what a giant sore Canada has on its surface. But by showing the whole business to sea to see how sick Confederation is, they probably did more to unite national opinion than all the pussy-footing and hush-hushing of the past has been able to accomplish.

• • •

London Free Press: Already Premier Lesage has declared responsible for the brutality of the police. But the blame for this goes not to the police leaders who threatened violence against the Queen. . . .

• • •

Victoria Colonist: The main thing doubtless is that the Queen survived her ordeal in Quebec and now is safely back in London and can look on its courtesy she has never been subjected to anywhere else. . . .

• • •

Sarnia Observer: What does this (the Queen's visit to Quebec) teach us? Well, it is about time we sorted out nonsense groups and put them in their places. . . . We don't wish to add to justice minister Favreau's woes at a time of his budget presentation, but this is one occasion when he can demonstrate Canadian unity by introducing corrective legislation.

Woman Risks Marriage By Continued Smoking

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Before we married I smoked two packs of cigarettes a day. My husband asked me to stop smoking and I promised I would. I did stop — for a while. Several weeks ago I started smoking again, secretly.

ANN LANDERS

My husband smelled smoke on my breath yesterday and made such a scene you'd have thought I had committed a murder. He said I broke my word, that I am a liar and a sneak and he can't live with this sort of thing.

There my husband and I'd rather die than lose him. I feel, however, that an adult woman should be allowed to smoke if she wants to and that he has no right to impose his will on me. May I have your opinion? — NICOTINE NAN.

* * *

DEAR NAN — I agree that an adult woman should smoke if she wants to, but this particular adult woman surrendered that privilege when she promised her husband she'd quit.

If your husband is as important to you as you say, you'll kick the habit. A woman who would rather smoke than save her marriage doesn't deserve the guy.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Shall we hum a requiem for the correspondent who signed himself "Renoir?" He spent $500 on records, books and flowers on the dumb broad all the while mistaking her silence for wisdom.

I, too, was fooled by the same type. The music of our heavenly relationship was exquisite, but not until later did I realize I was plucking at muted strings and that there was no instrument attached.

The conversation that did it was this:

"What music do you prefer, Hon?"

"Oh well . . . you know . . . music."

"But I mean, do you like Corelli, Piston, Weber — Strauss?"

"Strauss. Yes, I like Strauss."

"Which one, Johann or Richard?"

"Shh!"

"Never mind. Which composition do you like best?"

"Uh! Oh . . . the Blue Danube."

When I heard that everything became clear. I'm glad I read "Renoir's" letter. I didn't think such a thing could happen twice in the same century. — DEGAS.

* * *

DEAR DEGAS — It happened three times in the same century. Another reader dropped a girl he thought was bright after one visit to church. "I couldn't believe my ears," he wrote. "When she said, 'Father who art in heaven, hallowed thy name,' I asked her to repeat it. She did — just that way. It was our last date."

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Recently in a column you advised parents to tell their children of previous marriages. What about a police record?

When I was 18 I got mixed up with narcotics, was arrested and put on probation for two years. I'm happy to say I beat the tremendous odds and succeeded in straightening around.

It is 10 years later and I am happily married to a good man. We have a young son. I am haunted by the fear that my son may learn of my unsavory history from friends or relatives.

Should I tell the boy about my past? If so — at what age? — LUCKY WOMAN.

* * *

DEAR WOMAN — Tell your son about your past but choose the appropriate time and place.

Better if you can weave the information in with another story, making the central theme "people can change and improve if they work hard at it." And let your son know you are trusting him with an adult-type confidence which he should keep to himself.

* * *

Parents are people — they can be right and they can be wrong. To help understand their viewpoints and to promote harmony at home, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

WHAT'S YOUR E. Q.?

When a hostess is relaxed, so are her guests. You create a comfortable atmosphere if you can honestly answer, "No" to each of the following questions:

1. Do you worry out loud if someone's a bit late?
2. Do you fret about the service?
3. Do you keep asking if guests are having a good time?
4. Do you keep insisting that guests eat or drink more than they want?
5. Do you feverishly race from one group to another to monitor conversations?
6. D you race new arrivals around the room to make sure they meet everyone?
7. Do you jump to empty and polish the ashtray as soon as someone puts a cigarette in it?
8. Do you keep to an overly-strict time schedule?
10. Do you have to spend most of the evening in the kitchen putting things together because you didn't plan properly in advance?

WEDDINGS

McINROY—FRY

RYLSTONE — A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at Elm United Church on Saturday, October 3rd, when Harriett Ida Fry, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fry, became the bride of Claude Richard McInroy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley McInroy, Twelve Lins. Rev. Gordon Whitehorne performed the ceremony before the altar of the church, decorated with autumn flowers and candles.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white peau de soie gown with lace bodice and sleeves. The bell-shaped skirt had a detachable train. Her elbow-length veil was caught in a cluster of pearls and her bouquet was of white chrysanthemums and red roses.

Mrs. Fern Tinney was matron of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Susan Bennett, Belleville, and Miss Linda Anderson, of Campbellford, cousins of the bride. The attendants were gowned alike in ruby-red peau de sole and carried nosegays of white mums. Their headpieces were matching wedding ring caps of ruby peau de soie. FESTIVE CANDLES

Dear Susanna: Here is a bright idea for a festive table decoration. It would be nice and harvesty-looking at Hallowe'en for instance, if you happen to be having a get-together.

Core out the centre of a large, flattish cooking apple. Line the hole with a small piece of aluminum foil (just for steadiness) and insert a pretty candle.

For a gay table that needs no artificial light, make half a dozen — three on either side of a huge bowl of grapes looks heavenly. — Mrs. Christensen

. . . and after the laughter, slip out the candles, freshen up the cored out centre with a knife, fill with sugar, set in a shallow pan with a little water and slide it all into a briskly hot oven.

NOTE: Cooking apples quickly, in a hot oven, is the only sure way I know to produce fluffy baked apples that burst open every time. — SUSANNA

Dear Susanna: There are five junior citizens in our family and every Christmas there is a request or two for a new board game. In order to keep the instruction sheets safe and in good condition for the younger ones as they become interested, I immediately glue a large envelope to the lid of the box and store the instructions in it. — Winnifred W.

Wives of 4 Principal Candidates in Election Out Making Speeches

By ARCH MacKENZIE

WASHINGTON (CP) — Once upon a time in American presidential election campaigns the candidate's wife sat beside him, accepted hundreds of floral bouquets—from small girls and smiled and smiled and smiled.

Today, she may be out making her own speech.

Their activity outstrips anything that the late Eleanor Roosevelt ever did in campaigns, although she accompanied him.

Whether this new trend marks any real break-through for women in politics remains to be seen. The fact that only 17 women are seeking seats in Congress indicates not.

Yet at the least, women in general seem to be playing a larger role in the actual campaigning.

Lady Bird Johnson, the president's wife, travelled about 75,000 miles in 1960 and should log nearly as much this time. She makes her own mildly-political speeches and she actually bore a substantial responsibility for trying to work back the disenchanted southern Democrats.

TOURED SOUTH

The vehicle was her four-day train tour of Dixie, with her husband dropping by once or twice to see how she was doing.

Mrs. Peggy Goldwater, the wife of Republican challenger Barry Goldwater, makes no speeches. But she will visit more than nine states alone, or with her two daughters, before the campaign ends. She shakes hands, drinks tea and makes pleasant small talk with ease that wins praise in both political camps.

Like Mrs. Johnson, Muriel Humphrey is a practised political hand who has campaigned solo for her husband before. She helped in Senator Hubert Humphrey's fruitless quest for the Democratic presidential nomination against President Kennedy in 1960.

She has flown into seven states by herself this time and will touch others that Senator Humphrey, as the vice-presidential nominee, can't make.

Mrs. Stephanie Miller, Mrs. Humphrey's Republican counterpart, is a less practiced speaker who essays a few words in Polish. Despite a youngest child aged 2 ½ years, she has been on the go although much of her time has been with her husband, William E. Miller.

Wrapped in with all this are scores of women's groups for Johnson or Goldwater, national women's telephone campaigns and sorties by an eight-team Democratic group that has been labelled just another example of "women's new role in politics."

SOME DOUBT INFLUENCE

How much of a new role is there? Not much more, say some cynics, who point to the Democratic nominating convention at Atlantic City last August as an example.

On television, impression of female power might have been given through concentration on three persons. One was Mrs. Joan Kennedy, a blonde beauty, wife of convalescent Senator Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts. Mrs. Kennedy made no bones about her political ignorance but the television cameras just couldn't stay away from her.

Another with a real if regional role was Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of Pennsylvania, who at 90 is a vigorous and forthright power known affectionately as "The Old Grey Mare."

A third was Mrs. Edith Green, Oregon congresswoman who played a key role in forming the convention brass to improve its reception for the rebel and largely Negro delegation from Mississippi.

On the surface, women's roles may have appeared plentiful, Mrs. Green suggested in an interview. In fact, women in her view had less responsibility than in 1960 when she was the first female head of a state delegation.

RUN FOR CONGRESS

Figures of the actual election Nov. 3 support her realistic appraisal. There are seven women seeking election to the House of Representatives or the Senate for the Republicans.

This is in addition to Republican Senator Margaret Chase Smith of Maine. There are 10 on the congressional Democratic ticket, plus Senator Maurine Neuberger of Oregon who like Mrs. Smith does not face the electors this year.

Thus, it is possible although unlikely that there could be 19 women elected among the 435 House seats and the 35 Senate seats up for election.

This compares with the 13 women elected in the expiring Congress, 17 in 1950-52 and the record 20 in 1953.

"A woman asks no quarter in politics and expects none," Mrs. Green, 54, said in an interview before leaving Washington to fight for her political life again in Oregon. "It is a man's world."

She has been in Congress since 1954 and for 14 years before that was a public school teacher. President Kennedy once offered her the post of ambassador to Canada but she declined "after a lot of deep thought."

Three Soviet Women Tour Capital Hill

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — Three women from the Soviet Union toured Parliament Hill Wednesday and sat in the visitors' gallery during the Commons question period.

The women, now winding up a two-week cross-Canada tour, are in the country at the invitation of the Voice of Women. Their visit is the second part of an exchange arrangement between the VoW and the Soviet Women's Committee. Last year six Canadian women were guests of the committee in Moscow.

She told reporters Wednesday that she and the other members of the delegation were "definitely not surprised" at anything they saw in Canada.

"We have been asked over and over again what surprised us about your country, and what the main difference between Russia and Canada are. ARE SURPRISED

"We are surprised that this question is put to us."

The tall, dark-haired woman said the purpose of the visit was to see what Russian women and Canadian women have in common.

"I think we have found a lot of things in common."

Mrs. Mirenova, who is former deputy mayor of Moscow, sat in on a city council meeting in Toronto when the Russian women were there. She also has talked with Mayor Charlotte Whitton of Ottawa.

Asked to comment on the similarities or differences in civic government here and in Russia, she replied with a broad smile.

"I can only say that at our council meetings the atmosphere is more businesslike."

Another member of the group, vivacious Marina Rankokina, said Russian women play a much greater role in the life of their country than do Canadian women.

"Russian women are very interested in working in every field. They have equal rights with men."

WOMEN'S SUFFRAGE

'Lines on Life'

By Dr. Stuart E. Rosenberg

How should we face death if we are not to rage against it, not to become morbid and guilt-ridden, nor turn our backs on life?

To some, there comes a wisdom which teaches how to accept death's inevitability and universality. The lesson of the Hindu woman is a reminder. She pleaded with Buddha to restore her son to life and was told, in reply, to bring a mustard seed from the house that had not known death. She carried her pathetic burden all about but, at last, came to understand his wisdom. She learned what some never seem to learn: there is no home without grief. Only then did she bury her child and bravely go forward once again with her responsibilities to life.

In his strange and provocative way, Ben Hecht says much the same:

KNOWLEDGE OF DEATH

"I can recall the hour in which I lost my immortality, in which I tried on my shroud for the first time and saw how it became me. The knowledge of my dying came to me when my mother died. There was more than sorrow involved. I felt grief enough, and my heart felt the rip of a dear one dying. I carried her image in my eyes, seeing her when she was no longer seeable. Her vanished voice echoed in my head, and the love she bore me struggled painfully to stay alive around me. But my heart did not claw at the emptied space where she had stood and demand her return. I accepted death for both of us.

"I went and returned dry-eyed from the burial, but I brought death back with me. I had been to the edge of the world and looked over its last foot of territory into nothingness. I had seen mortality and it reminded me like a disease. It changed my knowledge of life. Its delights were never quite able to fool me again. The secret of death appeared in all the faces around me. I knew they were citizens of two worlds, of the small vanishing one of light and noise, and of the vast endless one of darkness and silence."

BELL TOLLS

Yes, throughout a lifetime we repeatedly face our shrouds — when our beloved die, something dies within us, too. But we must learn to endure what we cannot cure. We must hold hands with our fellowmen, for their grief is ours and their end is like our own. We are all involved in life as we are in death. The same bell tolls for every man.

To face our inevitable passing we need a robust philosophy of life. And we should not wait for sorrow to acquire wisdom for living.

RCAF Member Now Librarian For Nurses

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP) — There's a big difference between the rumbling activity of an aircraft maintenance hangar and the serenity of a library, but Margaret Parkin can work in both settings and likes it.

An engineering administrator for the RCAF during the Second World War, Miss Parkin now spends her time cataloguing and indexing some 1,500 books and documents in the library of the Canadian Nurses' Association headquarters here.

Once she studied the causes of stress on aircraft parts. Now she decides which internati-nal periodicals dealing with nursing should be included in the newly established library.

"I stayed in the RCAF for a time after the war ended," she says, "but soon decided that I'd like to change fields.

"Besides, it was so hard to explain to people what my job as an engineering administrator was all about."

Miss Parkin, who has no past experience with the nursing profession, came to her new job by way of the Ottawa Public Library, the Northern Electric Company's research library and the library of Carleton University.

A 1942 graduate at the University of Toronto in arts, she graduated from the library science school of the University of Ottawa in 1960, receiving the university medal for the highest standing in the course.

PROBLEMS SIMILAR

As the Canadian Nurses' Association's first full - time librarian, she is organizing a technical library to provide research material for the association's research projects on the educational and sociological status of its members.

The new library will also allow the national staff of the 76,000 - member organization and its affiliated provincial groups to keep in touch with changes in the nursing profession around the world through exchange of nursing journals.

"It's fascinating to see that in all countries, from the most highly developed right down to the newest nations, nurses really do have the same problems and interests.

"Right now, higher education for nurses seems to be the hottest topic in all the professional journals—it isn't just a Canadian subject for debate."

Church Groups

C.W.L.

MARMORA — The October meeting of the Marmora Council of the C.W.L. was held in the Parish Hall. Rev. Father W. P. Healey opened the meeting.

Mrs. Tom Hanley, president, extended a welcome to members present, and Mrs. Maurice Lynch read the treasurer's report.

CONVENERS' REPORTS

All members strongly objected to the program "Festival" produced by the CBC on October 7th. Since a letter of protest to this program sent previously has seemed to make little difference, a motion was passed that this be brought to the attention of the regional meeting for action.

It was agreed that all members report visits to the sick at each monthly meeting.

Mrs. Charles Lajoie asked that used clothing be collected for a fall shipment to the mission.

Mrs. John Clairmont displayed a large blue and white quilt and a picture-book crib quilt which the ladies had completed at quilting bees at her home. She suggested having a further sewing bee at her home to complete aprons for the bazaar. Mrs. Anson Campbell stated there is wool available for anyone who wished to knit for the bazaar.

In his address, Rev. Father Healey thanked Mrs. Clairmont for organizing quilting bees and all the ladies for their time and energy spent on this work. He outlined plans for the annual bazaar to be held October 20th-21st in the Parish Hall and asked God bless Charles Crawford again convene this event. He requested that special prayers be said for Rev. Father O'Neill of Madoc who is ill.

After adjournment, Mrs. Charles Brady gave an interesting talk on the subject of Education in which she outlined courses available at Marmora High School and Madoc Composite School.

Lunch was served by Group 3.

Hungry For Beef Stew?

by Mary Moore

When you are hungry for beef stew the solution, in this house, is to make it yourself.

I went directly to the head butcher in my favorite store and asked him to cut me 3 lbs. of stew beef because it is lean. He obligingly brought out a whole shin, showed it to me, I gave the nod, and he cut the meat from the bone and it weighed 3 lbs. (85c per lb.) When I had it at home I made up a stew as I wanted it to taste and as I hope you will like it.

Dinner Menus

THURSDAY
(Dinner for Relatives)

Mixed Grill: Bacon, Sliced Veal or Lamb Kidneys, Chicken Livers, Corn Relish, Mushrooms; Mashed Buttered Potatoes; Cauliflower with Cheese Sauce; Sliced Tomatoes; French Pear Pie (see Tuesday); Tea.

SUNDAY

Emem's Rich Beef Stew (see Thursday), with Dumplings (see Tuesday); Brussels Sprouts; Mixed Bowl Salad; Russian Dressing; Peady's Mocha Date Cake (see Friday); Coffee.

EMEM'S RICH BEEF STEW
(serves 6 generously)

3 lbs. shin (or other stewing beef, ¼ cup flour, 1½ teaspoons salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon paprika, 2 tablespoons butter, 3 cups boiling water, 1 cube, ¼ teaspoon garlic salt, 2 carrots, finely chopped, 2 carrots, cut in 1" pieces, ½ cup chopped onion (I used Spanish), 3 medium celery stalks cut in ½" pieces, ½ cup finely chopped parsley.

Cut the beef into 18 uniform pieces. In a bowl or strong paper bag mix together the flour, salt, pepper and paprika and dredge the meat pieces in it. (Reserve the surplus flour mixture.) In large heavy pot melt butter until golden and over high heat, sear floured meat pieces in it, stirring until brown on all sides. Add the boiling water and cube and bring to simmer, covered, until very tender — about 4 hours — stirring occasionally. Now add the finely chopped carrots and onion and cook ½ hour longer. Then add coarsely chopped carrots and the celery and cook 20 minutes longer or until carrot pieces are tender. Stir in chopped parsley and serve with fluffy mashed potatoes.

NOTES:

1) If your family likes lots of gravy in their stew, mix together 2 tablespoons of the leftover flour mixture and 2 tablespoons cold water until smooth. Add 1 teaspoon soy sauce or Worcestershire sauce and 1 cup cold water and stir into hot stew until thickened and boiling.

2) If you add more liquid as suggested in Note 1 above, you may cook Dumplings on this stew: Sift together 1½ cups sifted all-purpose flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoon salt. Quickly stir in ¾ cup milk. Dip your mixing spoon in stew, then spoon dumpling batter from it in 6 equal mounds onto top of gently boiling stew. Let cook uncovered for 10 minutes, then cover tightly for an additional 10 minutes without removing lid. Serve at once.

Honey Adds Taste Appeal To Many Fall Vegetables

Honey can add special appeal to the fresh fall vegetables so plentiful now. Give a gourmet finish to squash, onions, carrots, beets, and even turnips, as suggested below.

Prepare carrots, cut in fingers or chunks and cook in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain, arrange in a baking dish and drizzle honey over the top. Sprinkle with chopped mint or marjoram and grated cheese. Reheat and brown under the broiler, or in a very hot oven.

Bake halves of acorn squash cut side down on a greased baking dish for 30 minutes in 375 deg. F. oven. Turn over, coat top edges and the cavity with butter and honey and sprinkle with nutmeg Continue baking until tops brown a bit, about 15 minutes.

Cook about 24 small onions in salted water 30 minutes. Drain and put them in a baking dish. Mix togwther 2 tablespoons honey, 2 tablespoons catsup, 2 tablespoons butter and ¼ cup hot water and season with salt and cayenne. Pour over onions, cover and bake about 1 hour in 350 deg. F oven, basting now and then. 6 to 8 servings.

To dress up leftover carrots, mix together a little melted butter, about the same amount of honey and a sprinkling of chopped parsley. Add the carrots and heat uncovered for 2 to 3 minutes, stirring carefully until the carrots are well glazed.

For honeyed beets, make a sauce of 2 tablespoons butter, melted, plus the same quantities of flour and honey blended in and heated along with ½ cup each of water and vinegar. Cook until thickened - this takes about 3 minutes. Stir in 3 cups cooked sliced or diced beets. 6 servings.

Glaze turnip fingers with apple in a heavy frying pan on top of stove. First, mix equal quantities of honey and butter, heat and add diced unpeeled apple. Cook the apple about 3 minutes, then add cooked turnip fingers and finish glazing together.

Peel 4 large onions, cut in half and parboil in salted water 10 minutes. Drain. Mix together ¼ cup honey, ¼ cup vinegar, 3 tablespoons salad oil, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ½ teaspoon salt and ½ teaspoon paprika. Pour over onions in skillet and simmer until tender (about ½ hour). Baste occasionally. Serve the sauce over the onions.

Here is another glaze that you can use on any of the vegetables mentioned above: combine ¼ cup honey, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon vinegar, ¼ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon of pepper; stir and boil 1 minute in skillet before adding 3 to 4 cups of cooked vegetables. Simmer vegetables in glaze until they glisten and are heated through. Serve the glaze over the vegetables. 6 to 8 servings.

Every home heating fuel claims economy, dependability, cleanliness, convenience.

But compared to other fuels Natural Gas is best.

Just how economical is economical? How dependable is dependable? Just how clean is clean? Compare one fuel to another and the facts will prove that Natural Gas is best no matter what the others claim.

Fact: Natural Gas costs far less than electric heating, and in most areas of Ontario less than oil.

Fact: Natural Gas is so economical that you can heat an entire house with normal insulation evenly, including basement . . . no need for individual room thermostats, for closed off rooms.

Fact: Natural Gas is dependable. Supply lines are buried underground. Weather and road conditions, power failures or burned out fuses do not disrupt the flow of fuel.

Fact: Natural Gas burns cleaner. All its volume is turned into heat energy. No soot. No greasy deposits. No baked-in dirt on walls or drapes.

Fact: Natural Gas forced air systems make living more comfortable and healthier. The warm air is circulating and being filtered constantly. Uncirculated air, as provided by electric heating, is stale air.

Fact: Natural Gas lets you conveniently and economically use your heating system for air conditioning during Summer months. Lets you humidify the circulating air too.

Fact: Natural Gas, properly installed, with Automatic shut-off and other modern safety controls is as safe a heating system as you'll find anywhere. Electricity leads the list of fire causes over all other forms of energy. (Ontario Fire Marshal's Report.)

Fact: With Natural Gas, service is free.

There is other evidence. But these facts are enough to show that although every fuel makes the same claims, if you compare one fuel to another, Natural Gas is best.

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—There was a mix-up in landing instructions for the Queen's plane at Summerside, P.E.I., at the beginning of the royal tour Oct. 5, informed sources disclosed Wednesday.

As a result, the royal plane landed west-to-east while the control tower was giving instructions for an east-to-west landing.

Sources stressed in the now 8-can-be-told account of the incident that the Queen was in no danger because the weather was clear and the pilot was able to carry out a visual landing without any necessity to depend on ground instructions.

The landing instructions from the control tower gave the pilot the weather conditions, wind direction and velocity, and ground radar checks on the speed and altitude of the aircraft.

It is vital for bad-weather landings, but unnecessary when the pilot can see the runway clearly.

The sources declined to speculate what might have happened if there had been heavy low-lying cloud hampering the pilot's view of the Summerside field for the Queen's arrival on Prince Edward Island.

The landing occurred before a CBC national television audience with almost nobody catching on to what was actually going on.

TV PLAYED A PART

The fact that the landing was being televised by the CBC played a part in the mix-up.

Sources gave this account:

As ground control officer for the landing, the RCAF assigned to the royal flight an officer who had "talked down" 10,000 planes.

Learning that the landing procedure for the royal flight would be on CBC television, the officer wrote out his entire landing instructions so that he wouldn't forget a word for the TV audiences.

He wrote down the instructions—in effect, a television script—for an east-west landing, the normal procedure for Summerside and for all airfields in Canada located in the prevailing wind is from west to east. Aircraft land into the wind to help cut their speed.

But the wind at Summerside Oct. 5 suddenly shifted around from the west to the east and the royal plane had to land from west to east.

As the Queen's BOAC jet plane began to let down for the west-to-east landing, the ground control approach officer began reading his instructions for a landing in the opposite direction.

The BOAC pilot immediately caught on to what had happened and, saying nothing—all ground instructions and cockpit replies were being broadcast—carried out the landing as if there was nothing amiss.

Fort Lauderdale. The area was soaked by a 10-inch rain four days ago, leaving flood-control canals too high to handle Isbell's rain.

HITS KEY WEST

Isbell brushed Key West southernmost city in the continental United States, then tore into the everglades with winds up to 100 miles an hour.

In Cuba the faltering economy suffered another damaging blow as Isbell destroyed much of the rich tobacco crop and a number of the government's tobacco warehouses.

The Communist regime said it had evacuated hundreds of thousands of persons from low lying areas, more than 2,000 alone from the La Colorado region of Pinar Del Rio province on the western tip of the island.

The government said hundreds of homes were destroyed by winds of more than 100 miles an hour and floods caused by torrential rains.

Isbell was the third hurricane to strike Cuba this year, following Cleo and Hilda, which dealt heavy blows to livestock, sugar, tobacco and other crops.

Isbell also was the third hurricane to smash Florida this year, but by far the smallest and least damaging. The first was Cleo, which caused an estimated $150,000,000 damage in south Florida. The second was Dora which caused $200,000,000 damage in north Florida.

Jenkins denied in a sworn statement that he knew anything about the arrangements for Reynolds' purchase of the advertising time — advertising time Reynolds said he did not need.

The rules committee, which is 8-to-5 Democratic, voted that way not to call Jenkins to testify.

A native of Jolly, Tex., Jenkins was a senior at the University of Texas when then Congressman Johnson offered him a job. There were two interruptions in his association — during the war when Jenkins served in Africa, Corsica and Italy and in 1951 when he made an unsuccessful run for Congress from Texas.

While in the army, Jenkins married the former Marjorie Whitehill. They have two daughters and four sons, aged three to 17.

section would limit the constitutional amending powers of the federal government. "But that's only my own interpretation."

Justice Minister Favreau said none of the present federal or provincial authority will be changed and so far as the future is concerned, "I am not ready to agree that this subtracts from federal authority." It was mainly a question of clarifying federal constitutional jurisdictions.

Mr. Robarts said agreement on the formula was "another big step forward and the culmination of many years of work."

"If we are going to be a country, I think we have to do our own housekeeping."

"A very good over-all recommendation," said Mr. Manning, in reference to the formula.

AGREEMENT EASY

Meanwhile, the premiers had little difficulty reaching agreement on the proposed deep study of the Canadian tax structure. Finance Minister Gordon and the provincial finance ministers had met Tuesday to draft the terms of reference, and there was easy agreement when the plan got before the premiers.

The study was conceived at the federal - provincial conference in Quebec last year as a preliminary toward revision of the current tax arrangements that expire March 31, 1967. It will be a penetrating study of the whole tax picture, including the federal, provincial and municipal levels, and the committee will be asked to report by early 1966.

The study will be co-ordinated by A. W. Johnson, assistant deputy minister of finance.

The premiers also dealt briefly Wednesday with a presentation from the four Atlantic Provinces in support of provincial jurisdiction over offshore mineral rights.

The six other provinces lent their support, but the federal government wants the question settled by the courts. The matter was left over to a forthcoming meeting of resource ministers.

U. S. Favors Tory Victory In British Election Today

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States government, if it voted in today's British general election would probably back the Conservatives as a matter of convenience.

It feels it knows where the prickly spots are in Anglo-American relations. With Harold Wilson as Labor prime minister, it can see some new ones.

There isn't a hint, of course, of any official U.S. line out the public record—including visits this year to Washington by Prime Minister Douglas-Home and by Wilson — sketch the areas of conflict.

Further, a Labor victory would mean slowing down policy developments until the new British team gets to work.

American public interest in the campaign has been limited somewhat by its own election and most news dispatches from Britain have tended to dwell on the difference in styles between the two.

But nuclear defence and the prospects of progress in the political integration of Europe are the chief questions posed by today's voting.

Wilson made plain in Washington last March after conferring with President Johnson a Labor government would see a peace-keeping role internationally rather than using American weapons to retain a nuclear capacity.

He stated opposition to the American concept of a multi-nation nuclear fleet which the British Conservatives have accepted with reservations.

Wilson and Labor were opposed to Britain's entry into the European Common Market, which French President de Gaulle scotched anyway. But efforts continue to work out some political alliance with room for Britain.

There would be no British shift under a Labor government toward what probably is the main Anglo-American irritant—trade with Cuba.

Sir Alec and President Johnson differed on that point last February and Wilson in March agreed with the prime minister. On the same lines, there is no difference anticipated under a Labor government in Britain's favoring China's admission to the United Nations, although Wilson might be more militantly in favor.

Allied with the American concern about Cuba is the British policy in giving left leaning British Guiana its independence. American pressure was applied a year ago to postpone this step, preventing the emergence of what the U.S. fears would be another Cuba - style nation not only within the hemisphere but on the mainland.

The U.S. view of Wilson tends to take note of his personality as a one-man band who cuts a more independent figure than his Conservative predecessors and who apparently prides himself on frequent contacts with Moscow in the past. There is also conjecture whether British-German relations would be as warm under a Labor government.

One thing is taken for granted here: Whoever wins will cause no basic shift in Anglo-American relations and between the victor here Nov. 3 and the winner today in Britain, quick contact is guaranteed.

Will Survey Nursing Homes In Province

TORONTO (CP) — Conditions in nursing homes for the aged in Ontario will be surveyed by the Ontario Welfare Council, starting next month.

A council statement says areas of concentration in the study will include licensing and supervision throughout the province; standards of care as to accommodation and staff qualifications; education programs for training nursing home personnel; and provision for rehabilitation and recreation in nursing homes.

The council has organized a 23-member committee to conduct the study. Under Mrs. R. W. Hooper, the committee includes representatives from the departments of health and welfare and the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, plus social workers, nursing home operators, nurses and health units.

Only a few years ago, Bolivia was on the verge of political and economic chaos. Today, with great infusions of U.S aid, its economy is growing faster than any other South American nation. Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press, traces the comeback in this story.

By PAUL KIDD

LA PAZ (CP) —Landlocked Bolivia, in the words of one of its citizens, is almost "a wholly owned subsidiary" of the United States.

The term, used to illustrate the degree of American influence in the backward Andean republic of 4,000,000, contains more than a little substance.

Politically, such influence is resented by many educated Bolivians; economically, however, it is welcomed.

Since 1952, the United States has poured into Bolivia more than $300,000,000 worth of aid highest per capita assistance given any country in Latin America.

Without it, little of the social and economic progress slowly elevating the Bolivians lowly standard of living would have been possible.

Eighty-five per cent of its population are Indian or of mixed blood, two - thirds of whom speak only Indian languages.

The country's illiteracy rate of nearly 70 per cent is the highest in South America while per capita income is $100 a year.

PEASANTS GOT LAND

In 1952, at a cost of 3,000 lives, the first social revolution in South America toppled the country's tin - mining aristocracy.

The old order, under which three per cent of the population owned 90 per cent of he land had kept the Indians in a state of virtual serfdom for 400 years.

Under the new order, the National Revolutionary Movement government of President Victor Paz Estenssoro broke up large estates and redistributed land to some 2,500,000 peasants.

The government also nationalized the three giant tin-mining companies, Patino Aramayo and Hochschild, which continue to provide Bolivia with the bulk of its foreign exchange.

Only three years ago Bolivia was mired in deeper debt and economic stagnation than any nation in America. Bolivians were seething with discontent and the country was drifting dangerously toward political chaos.

Today, foreign exchange reserves have climbed to more than $15,000,000 from nearly zero and a start has been made on meeting old debts.

FASTEST GROWTH

Bolivia's 8.5 per - cent economic - growth rate last year was the highest in Latin America.

A six - per - cent rise in per capita income over the last three years and a tigh grip on inflation have brought a substantial increase in bank deposits.

People are better dressed and jobs are opening up for e small but growing middle class.

For the first time, many Indians are able to buy shoes Others are buying their first window glass to keep the winter out of their huts.

An increasing number of Indians are acquiring such prestige symbols as radios, bicycles and, on a co-operative basis, trucks.

This improvement in living conditions has been the result of a boost in U.S. aid and a sharp shift to the right in Paz's political thinking.

American aid now is running at $65,000,000 a year compared with $25,000,000 a year during the period from 1953 to 1961.

Not long ago, Bolivia was known as "the Socialist state of the Andes." Today, however, a new, cordial approach to private enterprise is evident.

U.S. BACKS PAZ

There is no doubt that the United States is solidly behind Paz. But, in addition to strengthening the republic's economy, U.S. money inadvertently goes toward paving for the political police system and supporting the president's party dues of five per cent are automatically subtracted from the salaries of public employees.

The official American diplomatic line is that the aid has no political strings; that it is simply being poured into Bolivia to create better conditions for the people.

In the last three years, the United States has given Bolivia $145,000.000 worth of development loans, at the same time sharply reducing grants used only for budgetary support.

Recently, an industrial development bank opened here to make loans to private firms Existing private enterprises are expanding and a top textile firm has announced big building plans.

Gulf Oil Company has struck oil in 50 wells in four fields and is seeking government permission to build a 400 - mile pipeline so that it can export from a Pacific port.

FOUND GOLD

A survey carried out under a U.S. aid contract has shown evidence of between one and three billion dollars' worth of gold deposits in northern Bolivia.

Under a vast resettlement program, more than 150,000 peasants have been moved off the cold, barren 12,000 - foot Andes plateau to more fertile farm areas in the eastern low lands.

Helped along by U.S farm loans, farm extension services and rural improvements agriculture is booming.

Today, Bolivia is self - sufficient in both sugar and rice, two foods which three years ago had to be imported at high cost.

Aided by American technicians, the country is developing its llama wool industry.

Development of a transportation network to open new areas in the east to colonization is under way and another paving of the 135-mile La Paz-to-Oruro road began four months ago.

IMPORT EXPERTS

Now, with a shortage of able people to run the mines, railroads and other nationalized enterprises, foreign experts are being brought in to try to get the money-losing industries into the black.

Lloyd Aero Boliviano the national airline, is being modernized with the assistance of technicians from North Central Airlines in the United States.

Engineers from the United Kingdom are trying to show the Bolivians how to make their once British - owned railways again run on time.

Paz's chief task, outside social reform, has been to make the nationalized tin-mining industry economically viable.

In the mines, labor holds a veto over management, which has resulted in flagrant featherbedding and dwindling production.

After nationalization, mine employment under the labor leadership of former vice-president Juan Lechin and Communist-dominated unions, soared from 19,000 to 29,000, and, by 1960, the mines were losing $10,000,000 a year.

MINERS LAID OFF

The next year, with only American aid keeping the industry going, Paz signed an agreement with the United States, West Germany and the Inter - American Development Bank for $38,000,000 to modernize the mines, promising to lop 6,000 men from the payrolls.

Despite fierce union opposition, several thousand miners have been laid off and official are predicting that, within a year, the mines will be paying their own way.

A Bolivian proverb, referring to the country's much discussed but undiscovered mineral reserves and its rich, untapped tropical farmland, speaks of "a beggar sitting on a throne of gold."

Hard to believe, but this is the school of tomorrow experts are predicting for the year 2000 A.D., says columnist Jack Hutton.

Teen-Age Canada
School of Tomorrow Shown at World's Fair

By JACK HUTTON

Just a few weeks ago a visitor walking through the Hall of Education at the New York World's Fair stopped in shock before a nine-foot-high spindly structure that looked straight out of a science fiction movie.

"That's a school?" she gasped.

She's not alone. Educators all across this continent are buzzing about the same model which forecasts the neighborhood school of 2000 A.D. — less than 40 years away.

Some visitors rubbing their eyes, have buttonholed World's Fair attendants to ask if the model is a joke. No, they're told the model is based upon the best advice available from teachers, scientists, sociologists and architects.

Hardest to grasp is that the school is for everyone. Not just the young. By the year 2000 we will have realized that education can't be packaged in labelled compartments.

The entire family will be involved in study of some kind. And why not? The World's Fair experts predict that Dad may only be working four hours a day as the work week gets shorter.

Education will be a home - school combination in a way we find incredible in 1964. Every home will probably include a "study sphere" in which teaching machines, language laboratories and other devices will be a common as the family TV set is today.

WILL BE CENTRE

The school of tomorrow, therefore, will be a centre catering to a variety of needs that our schools are only beginning to touch — cultural, recreational and educational.

The World's Fair model turns over the circular ground floor to culture and recreation. Its facilities will include rehearsal halls, auditoriums, lecture rooms for theatricals, concerts, lectures, exhibits and other activities.

Three towers rise out of the basic structure, supporting a series of multi-storied units that will be responsible for specialized learning. The effect is not unlike a giant home for purple martins.

But notice the "pie plate" resting in the middle of the three towers. This is the key to the entire school, the electronics centre — call it the electronic "boiler room" if you like — that keeps the school humming.

An antennae-like tower rising from the centre and connected to the three main towers at various points is the storage area that can provide information in a split second on any subject you can name.

That's not the library we know, is it? All information will be stored electronically and available simply by informing the electronics centre what we want to know.

And who will have to whisper or tread softly? Noise won't disturb the giant computers that supply the information while they figure out timetables, attendance and solve tough equations for lazy math classes.

The one thing we can be sure of is that students in that school of tomorrow will sometimes read about 1964 and chuckle about our undeveloped world, much the same way we smile at the first cars.

The signs are already with us. Just look around you. Where will you fit in?

NEW IDOLS

Here we go again.

Jo-Anne Marshall of Halifax takes exception to my brief mention of the new British group the Animals, in a recent column. (What did I say? I can't remember).

"The most wonderful group to come along in years, and a nice group of guys, too, are the Animals. So why knock them, Jack? They have a style that makes the Beatles sound like an out-of-tune barbershop quartet. And I used to be a Beatle fan — before I grew up.

"The Beatles were all right when they were singing and enjoying it. Now all I can hear in their music is dollar signs."

Whatever you say, Jo-Anne.

A well lighted car, is a safe car. Replace all burned out tail lamps and headlights immediately. For an on the spot headlight repair, always carry two strips of reflective tape to be placed on the lens of the burned out light.

1. The duty of a policeman is: (a) write the laws; (b) enforce the laws; (c) interpret the laws or (d) all of the above.

2. A show-off is: (a) courageous; (b) unknowing; (c) a pretender or (d) a daredevil.

One-stop banking

In a few minutes they'll be out again, with all their banking done. Right now they want to cash a cheque, get something out of their safety deposit box, have their savings account book made up. Next time? He may be in about a loan; she to buy a money order for her aunt's birthday. An able, obliging staff looks after them; and should they need help on some financial problem, the manager is there — a good man to talk things over with. — Complete service. Trained people. Canada Has Plan to Help Settle Problem of Russia's Refusal to Pay Back Debt

TORONTO (CP) — External Affairs Minister Martin said Wednesday that Canada has a plan for helping settle the problem of the Soviet Union's refusal to pay $52,000,000 in back dues for United Nations peace-keeping operations.

Mr. Martin's statement was made in answer to a question from the audience at a meeting of the Toronto branch of the International Law Association. He said he is not at liberty to disclose Canada's ideas for a solution to the problem.

Mr. Martin said he hopes that UN Secretary-General U Thant will be able to work out the problem with the Soviet Union before the General Assembly opens next month. Russia contends the peace-keeping operations were undertaken illegally through the General Assembly instead of the Security Council.

He said he did not know what the Soviet Union planned to do, but he found it hard to believe that Russia would leave the United Nations in the present state of detente in the world.

In answer to a question from Keshin Wang, a Toronto Chinese-Canadian lawyer who was once a Nationalist Chinese delegate to the UN, Mr. Martin said his government's present policy on admitting Communist China to the UN has declared repeatedly by me is predicated on a two-China policy."

Mr. Wang asked if the question of recognizing Communist China would come to a head at the UN this year. He asked Mr. Martin thought the two-China viewpoint would gain support.

EXAMINING QUESTION

Mr. Martin said Canada felt it was inadvisable to include any country and was examining the question carefully.

In his prepared speech, Mr. Martin said there has been a change of attitude by the Soviet Union toward international law, due partly to nationalistic motives.

At one time, Mr. Martin said, the very existence of international law was doubted by Soviet writers.

PRESIDENT NAMED

TORONTO (CP) — The Conservation Council of Ontario Wednesday appointed Dr. A. E. Berry of Toronto as its new president, succeeding D. N. Kendall who retires after three terms in the office. Dr. Berry was general manager and chief engineer with the Ontario Water Resources Commission from 1956 to 1963. He now is secretary - treasurer of the Canadian institute on Pollution Control.

SALES DON'T CHANGE

Retail sales in August were an estimated $1,601,548,000, practically unchanged from August, 1963, the bureau of statistics reported today. Sales were down two per cent in Quebec and about one per cent in Ontario but showed small gains in other regions.

MORE THAN A HUNDRED building inspectors from around the province registered last night and this morning for the ninth annual conference of the Ontario Building Officials' Association at the Sun Valley Motel. In the picture Gordon Sutherland, Etobicoke registers at the desk manned by Association vice president, Edward Law of Cookville, with assistants Mrs. Dianna Killen and Mrs. Sharron Archambault.

Michigan Youth Given 6 Years On Rape Count

OWEN SOUND (CP)—Ronald James McLain, 16, of Fenton, Mich., was sentenced to six years in penitentiary Wednesday for the July 7 rape of a 16-year-old girl, despite Crown and defence pleas for a shorter term.

Mr. Justice C. D. Stewart of Ontario Supreme Court recommended the case be reviewed after two years when a parole board might decide to release the youth on suspended sentence.

McLain pleaded guilty Tuesday to the assault, which took place near the girl's home after he had accepted a ride in his car.

Both Crown Attorney R. K. McAvoy and Defence Attorney M. C. Keon requested a shorter term, claiming the youth had an unhealthy home situation.

Mr. Keon said the youth had told him the offence was "one way of getting back at my father." McLain had no job at the time the offence occurred.

Ontario Building Inspectors Hold Convention in City

One hundred and three members had been registered this morning and another thirty members are expected to register today for the ninth annual conference of the Ontario Building Officials' Association, starting today in Belleville. Registration began last night.

The program started about 9.30 this morning with a speech of welcome from Mayor Jack Ellis, and welcomes from the city engineer and presidents of the Belleville Real Estate Board, the Quinte Home Builders' Association and the Chamber of Commerce.

London building inspector, Jack Dobbs, presented the mayor with a plate carrying the crest of the city of London, and Kingston building inspector and president of the Association, Donald Bruce, spoke in praise of Belleville. City building inspector Grant Stickle was master of ceremonies for the greetings.

Twenty seven wives of Association members, in Belleville for the convention, started out on their own program after the official greetings. Today's program for the women includes a tour of the Avon Jewellery factory, a luncheon at the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club and a lecture and demonstration on how to make women's hats. The ladies rejoin the men for the President's Reception, in the evening.

Today's business for the Association includes election of the 1965 executive, lectures on use and occupancy of houses, on the principals of fire protection and addresses by several building materials suppliers.

BABIES GALORE

TORONTO (CP) — East General Hospital reported 5,476 births during the last year, more than any other hospital in Canada, Dr. E. Cullen Bryant, chief of obstetrics, said Wednesday. Twins occurred once in every 104 deliveries. The hospital serves 500,000 persons in East York, Scarborough, Leaside and East Toronto.

Man Serving Life Term Again Charged

TORONTO (CP) — A man serving life imprisonment for non - capital murder has been charged with robbery of $58,000 from a suburban Scarborough bank in July, 1963.

Charles Duncan, 36, alias Henry Michael Dunn of Hamilton, was sentenced last month in the shooting death of Harvey Babin, 26, in a bootlegger's apartment June 30.

Police said he was brought here Tuesday to face the new charge.

Robert Leroy Barber, 30, of Toronto was arrested near Chicago last year after the Parkway Plaza branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia was held up by two gunmen.

Barber, currently serving a 15-year sentence, admitted his guilt during this trial, but refused to name his accomplice.

Police recovered $13,240 in Barber's home the day after the holdup and another $5,000 was found in a safety deposit box rented by Mrs. Barber, later sentenced to three months for possession of stolen money.

Creditiste Leader Warmly Praises Queen and Sharply Denounces Separatists

OTTAWA (CP) — Real Caouette, sometimes accused by opponents of wooing Quebec separatists, surprised the Commons Wednesday with warm praise for Queen Elizabeth and a sharp denunciation of separatist snubs for "insulting" her.

The Creditiste leader said "a very large majority of the French Canadians of Quebec" were impressed by the Queen's open - minded address to the Quebec legislature Saturday and by her impeccable command of French.

"Her Majesty represents for all of us a way of life that has enabled us to grow in freedom according to our aspirations," he said amid applause from all parts of the House.

Mr. Caouette said the Queen was the guest of the Quebec government and separatist demonstrators had no right or justification to insult her.

If the separatists wanted to seize power in Quebec, they should use democratic methods and not resort to "threats, blackmail, anarchy and revolution with blood - letting."

Speaking eloquently in French, he said he was honored to chat with the Queen Monday night at a state dinner at Government House.

This meeting had strengthened his conviction that the Queen showed high tact and reception in her televised speech Saturday.

He spoked with approval her statement that a dynamic country should not shrink from revising its political philosophy, that there is nothing surprising in the fact that a 100-year-old constitution may not necessarily meet all the requirements of the day.

Mr. Caouette endorsed a suggestion by Opposition Leader Diefenbaker that both houses of Parliament pass an address to the Queen expressing the loyalty of her Canadian subjects and their appreciation for her 10-day visit.

He said the separatists who booed the Queen Saturday and scuffled with police along her route in Quebec City were misguided.

Confederation could stand much improvement, but this could be achieved by attempts to stir up anarchy.

English- and French - speaking Canadians would solve their differences through mutual understanding and trust.

"Her Majesty's visits to Canada have never been a cause for any Canadian to feel ashamed.

"Neither the Commonwealth nor the Crown prevent Canadians from acquiring security with freedom. We must not blame others for what we did not have the courage to do."

He said the royal visit came at a time of tension and confusion in Quebec, but it would open the door to better understanding.

Normal Palace Routine Taken Up by Queen

LONDON (CP) — The Queen once again has taken up her normal palace routine after her testing trip to Canada. A spokesman said she intends to spend Election day quietly while Britain's voters cast their ballots for a new government.

This morning she was to work on state papers and have a few audiences, bidding farewell to departing diplomats. In the evening she will probably watch election results on television in her private sitting room.

Her first day back from Canada was spent "mostly just catching up with things," the spokesman said.

As soon as she drove in Tuesday night through the cheering crowds at Buckingham Palace gates, she went up to see her two youngest children, Prince Andrew, 3, and the infant Prince Edward. The two eldest —Prince Charles and Princess Anne—are away at boarding school.

Once she had seen the children, she responded to the insistent crowd massed in front of the palace and went calling her to the main balcony to wish her a noisy, happy "welcome home."

Mr. Queen spent most of a cold, rainy Wednesday afternoon with the children in her private apartments overlooking the lady palace grounds.

As always—perhaps this time more than most—there was a great sense of satisfaction in the palace that the Queen was home again. The country felt it, too. With the royal standard once more flying atop the big square many-windowed building where the heart of the Commonwealth beats, Britons could turn their undivided attention to the pressing problem of electing their new leaders.

HAWRELAK RE - ELECTED

EDMONTON (CP)—Re - election of Mayor William Hawrelak of Edmonton was conceded by his only opponent, George Prudham Wednesday when reports from 238 of 264 polls gave Hawrelak 49,521 votes and Prudham 23,910.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Colonel Yogi Berra, commanding the New York Yankees' Fighter Squadron, pressed the white button yesterday, and ordered his heavy bombers to replace their delayed fuses with high explosives.

Three of them responded, Mantle and Maris, the "Double M for Murder" duo rocketed back-to-back staple blasts into the wild blue yonder over Busch Stadium in St. Louis, while Joe Pepitone sharpsredded his delivery clearing all three bases occupied by Yankee strolling players.

The controversial Signor Pepitone, who is so popular in St. Louis as a Kennedy at a Goldwater fundamental, was the second player in the series to relieve total main congestion with one dose of bludgeon medicine. The Cards' Ken Boyer introduced "Sock," the all-base cleaning detergent.

Pep's poke was the least dramatic of any of the four-base socks of the series. It came as a clincher after the Yankees had built up a 6-1 lead and actually proved to be nothing but four extra nails in the Cardinal coffin.

As the Dean (Dizzy) of Mississippi would say, "That evens the count at three-all" and by the time this reaches the pooch, front lawn, streets and newslands, the issue will have been decided.

There is either "Glory, glory, Hallelujah" chanting in the Bronx and the far-flung Yankee outposts, or street-dancing in St. Lee with the famed Missouri mule out-flapping their approval in the wide-state hinterland.

And speaking of Ole Diz, in this department's humble non-expert opinion, the television commentary both in New York and St. Louis has been the best these sports-weary ears have heard in many a series moon.

Phil Rizzuto and Joe Garagiola in New York and Curt Gowdy and Harry Caray (The Voice of the Cardinals) in St. Louis left little if nothing to be desired.

Garagiola was inclined to be more garrulous than his confrere, but the former catcher is exceptionally well informed and an excellent analyst of plays and players. He has a fine sense of humour.

All four announcers maintained a steady commentary and the chief credit it was confined to the series and baseball in general.

There was no reference to quail-hunting in the Ozarks and crawfishin' with mah Uncle Zeke in Ole Miss; no reference to the abc of the bot dawgs or the quantity of mustard needed.

In the Yankee Stadium the well known "How About That" voice of Mel Allen was missing for the first time in years. The definitely pro-Yankee Allen (after all, he was hired by the Yankee organization, but so was Vin hired by the Cardinals) was replaced by Rizzuto. And there was little lost in the exchange.

Several fans have enquired as to the Yankee switch from Allen to the likeable Rizzuto.

The man who invented "How About That?" has been part of the Yankees' radio-TV team since 1947, except for 1954 when the Bombers took a series off. It came as quite a surprise when Allen was not among the four men nominated to broadcast the series.

A current television magazine story says though the decision was announced jointly by the baseball commissioner's office, NBC, and the teams involved, New York sportswriters are saying it was the CBS's idea to bench Allen.

And they're speculating further, the story says, that CBS, the new owner of the Yankees, does not intend to renew Allen's contract to broadcast the team's games next season.

"As far as I am concerned, there's nothing to that," Allen said. "If it's right, they haven't told me about it."

How About That?

The Big Seven

Chicago's third line may have found the scoring punch it lacked last season.

The third unit, which seldom appeared on the ice and accounted for only 38 goals last year, produced two markers Wednesday night as the Black Hawks blanked Boston 3-0 in the only National Hockey League game played.

Centre Phil Esposito scored once and picked up an assist to move into a second-place tie with five others in the scoring race. New York's Don Marshall leads with three points.

The wingers on Esposito's unheralded line, rookie John Brememan and Chico Maki, each earned a point. Brememan registered his first NHL goal and Maki was given an assist.

The leaders:

	G	A	Pts.
Marshall, New York	1	2	3
Provost, Montreal	2	0	2
Esposito, Chicago	1	1	2
Hadfield, New York	1	1	2
Henry, New York	1	1	2
Nevin, New York	1	1	2

(23 players tied with one point)

Canada Wins 1st Gold, Bronze Medals

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Canada won its first medals of the Olympic Games, a gold for victory in rowing and a third-place bronze in track, as world records were equalled in the men's and women's sprints and an eight-oared United States crew defeated the favored world champion Germans for the prized eights gold award.

A pair of husky, tall Canadians — George Hungerford of Vancouver and Roger Jackson of Toronto—brought off a tremendous triumph by winning the gold medal in the coxless pairs rowing event.

Harry Jeromie of Vancouver sprinted to a third-place finish in the men's 100-metre dash, losing a silver medal by an eyelash to Cuba's Enrique Figuerola in a dazzling race highlighted by the world record-equalling victory of Bob Hayes of the United States.

Canada, too, had a chance for another medal in the 800-metre men's race when Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., won his semi-final qualifying heat and will go into Friday's finals against New Zealand's great Peter Snell in a star-studded field.

A world record was broken in rifle shooting, an Olympic mark was cracked by Al Oerter of the United States, who won the gold medal in the men's discus throw, and the United States added to its growing bag of medals by winning the gold medal in women's platform diving.

EQUALS DASH RECORD

Wyomia Tyrus of the United States equalled fellow - American Wilma Rudolf's world mark of 11.0 seconds in the women's 100-metre dash heats that saw Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver finish third in 11.5 to advance to the semi-finals, also Friday.

Shortly after, as a great hush rose from the crowd of 85,000, Hayes tied the men's mark of 10 seconds flat in winning the sprint by six feet. Armin Hary of Germany set the mark in 1960 and Jerome equalled it in Saskatoon the same year.

The rowing world record came when Gary Lee of the United States won the three-position free rifle gold medal with a score of 1,183 points. A Swiss sharpshooter held the previous mark of 1,176 points.

Canadians placed fifth in the finals of the women's high jump and 10th in platform diving. Romania's world record holder, Iolanda Bolanoc, won the gold medal in the high jump with a leap of five feet, 11⅛ inches and a New Jersey school girl took the diving championship away from a German blonde.

Diane Gerace of Trail, B.C., leaped five feet, 7⅛ inches for fifth place and Carol Ann Morrow of Ocean Park, B.C., placed 10th among a dozen competitors.

Oerter, a 260-pounder, shook off his various ailments including an injury to his neck and won his third consecutive discus gold medal with a toss of 200 feet, 11½ inches, breaking his own Olympic mark of 194 feet, two inches he set in 1960.

OVERCOMES INJURY

Oerter competed with his right side frozen to prevent internal hemorrhaging from torn muscles in his rib cage.

Britain's Ken Matthews, a 30-year - old electrical engineer from Sutton Coldfield in Birmingham, won the last of the four track and field events on the program for the fifth day on the two-week games, the 10,000-kilometre walk.

Matthews won the race that is equivalent to 12 miles, 376 yards, in one hour, 39 minutes, 56 seconds, the fastest ever in Olympic competition. Records, however, are not recognized because courses vary from site to site.

In the rowing regatta, the Vesper Rowing Club of Philadelphia captured the premier eight-oared prize after the Canadian pairs crew of medallists had pulled off one of the big surprises of the games.

Russia and the United States shared the gold medals in the rowing events, each with a pair, Russia and Denmark and Germany collected one gold apiece.

Russia won both the single and double sculls; the United States captured the pairs with cox as well as the eight. Canada won its first rowing gold medal since the 1956 Olympics in the coxless pairs; Denmark took the coxless fours and Germany the coxed fours.

U.S. DOMINATES SWIMMING

The United States continued to dominate the swimming, adding two more gold medals to bring its bag of championships in swimming to nine out of 12 contested.

Three swimming world records went by the poolside in the men's 400-metre freestyle and 200-metre breaststroke and in the women's 400-metre freestyle relay.

Don Schollander of the United States became the first winner of three gold medals in these 18th games when he won the 400 freestyle in a record time of 4:12.2, cracking his own world mark of 4:12.7 set last July 3.

Schollander bagged his first gold medal in the 106-metre freestyle Monday and his second game as anchor man of the 400-metre freestyle relay team Wednesday.

He is virtually assured of a fourth gold medal in the 800-metre freestyle relay which closes out the swimming program Sunday night.

The United States freestyle relay team won the gold medal with a world record clocking of 4:03.9 to raise the previous mark of 4:07.8 set by an American quartet in Los Angeles Sept. 26. Canada placed seventh in 4:15.9.

Australia's Ian O'Brien finally cracked the U.S. stranglehold, winning the men's 200 breaststroke gold medal, only the second won by the Aussies in such games as Johnny Bower, 40 going on 41, Red Kelly, 37, and Allan Stanley, 36.

Youth, however, is the word in Chicago. The Hawks were spurred to victory by three youngsters who form the seldom-seen third line that accounted for only 38 goals last season.

The Hawks ontshot Boston 38-33 before a pleased opening crowd of 14,185 and handed the Bruins their second loss without a win this season.

Although it was the only game played, there also was action in Montreal where NHL president Clarence Campbell handed out $800 in fines for a brawl that occurred in the Boston-New York season opener Monday.

Assessed as much for game misconducts were Boston's Reg Fleming, Ted Green and Forbes Kennedy and New York's Rod Selling, Dave Richardson and Earl Ingarfield. Fleming and Green were given additional fines of $100 each for keeping the brawl going.

Hawks Blank Bruins

Ted Lindsay To Play For Wings

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Remember Ted Lindsay?

Sure thing. He scored 365 goals during his 14-year-career in the National Hockey League. He retired in 1960. He used to play for Detroit Red Wings.

The Red Wings announced Wednesday that the 35-year-old all-Canadian of Gordie Howe and Sid Abel is coming out of retirement and will play this season. Lindsay, out of action for four years, worked out every day of training camp until he returned to playing shape.

He is not the only oldtimer who'll be in the lineup tonight when Toronto Maple Leafs visit the Wings for the first game of the season for both teams.

All the other clubs have already tested action. Chicago entering the picture Wednesday night with a 5-0 defeat of Boston Bruins that netted Glenn Hall 23-save shutout. Phil Esposito, John Brememan and John McKenzie scored the Black Hawks goals.

LOTS OF VETS

Besides Lindsay, the Wings lineup boasts such old folks as Howe, aged 36, and Bill Gadsby, 37. But the Leafs easily outdo Detroit in that department with swimming. Dawn Fraser won the women's 100 freestyle.

O'Brien's time of 2:37.8 erased the world mark of 2:38.2 set by Yoshi Tsutsumi at the U.S. Olympic trials. Tsutsumi was third today behind O'Brien and Russia's Gyorry Forkopenko.

Miss Stewart reached the final in her specialty, the 100-metre butterfly, qualifying in a semi-final heat. She was fourth in 1:06.6. The Vancouver girl had a world record of 1:07.3 to her credit—set in 1963—but it has been broken by a Dutch girl.

Sharon Stouder, already a silver medallist in the freestyle sprint, broke her Olympic mark of 1:07.0 in the qualifying heats Wednesday. She led all the way in her heat to win by a narrow margin in 1:05.6 over Holland's Ada Kok, holder of the world record of 1:05.8.

Dr. Ferenc Torok of Hungary won the individual gold medal in the men's pentathlon championship with a total of 5,116 points. Russia took the team title in the gruelling competition that combined shooting, cross - country running, riding, swimming and fencing.

Another Hungarian, Mrs. Ilidiko Rejto, captured the women's individual foils gold medal with Helga Mees of Germany second and Antonella Ragno of Italy third.

Yankee Bats Blast Cards 4-2 Hopes

—Favored Today

By JOE RICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP) — For the seventh time in the last 10 years, the World Series went down to the seventh and final game today with St. Louis Cardinals' New York Yankees tied at three victories apiece.

The odds favored the Yankees 10-13 although the Cardinals have not lost a seven-game series in four previous appearances. The Yanks, 20-8 in all series play, have won five of nine in seven games.

And for the third time in this series, the Cardinals' Bob Gibson and the Yankees' Mel Stottlemyre prepared to match pitches, each seeking his second triumph with only two days rest.

Playing with their backs to the wall, and in enemy grounds, the American League champion Yankees averted elimination Wednesday with an 8-3 victory behind young Jim Bouton.

The victim was tiny Ken Boyer moms, 33, a lefthander who valnly sought his first Series triumph. Simmons did well through five innings but met the home run bats of Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle, who connected back-to-back homers in the sixth to break a 1-1 tie.

Joe Pepitone's grand slam, climaxing a five-run inning in the eighth, put the game on ice and made Bouton the first two-game winner of the Series.

LIKES THE PARK

"I'm glad we're playing the last game in this park," said Yankee manager Yogi Berra. "The boys seem to hit better here than in Yankee Stadium."

Johnny Keane, the Cardinal manager, said he had been undecided until the last minute whether to go with Gibson, righthander Roger Craig or southpaw Ray Sadecki in the final game today.

"I decided on Gibson because . . . he was my best pitcher all year and he pitched our best game in the Series. I've just got to go right down the line with my best."

"I don't think the short rest will affect him," he said "But if I see he doesn't look sharp in his warm-up I'll switch to Sadecki."

Gibson tolled 10 innings in his 5-3 winning effort Monday striking out 12 batters. At that time, he was pitching with his normal three-day rest after having been beaten 8-3 in the second game.

FORD STILL HURTING

"It'll be Stottlemyre," he said. "Whitey (southpaw Whitey Ford) is still hurting. He limbered up during Wednesday's game and told me he couldn't make it. That heel injury he aggravated in the opening game still bothers him."

Stottlemyre, 22, a righthander who outpitched Gibson in the second game and turned in seven fine innings against the Cardinal righthander Monday had never before pitched in the majors with only two days rest.

Bouton got off to a shakey start Wednesday, giving up singles to Curt Flood and Lou Brock in the first inning Bill White hit into a double play and Flood scored.

It was Bouton, however, who got the Yankees moving in the fifth inning after Tommy Tresh bounced a ground-rule double into the stands. Bouton came to the plate with two out and hit a change-up pitch into left field for a single that scored Tresh and tied the game 1-1.

Then Mantle and Maris became only the fourth duet in history to rap homers in succession.

Simmons was lifted in the seventh in favor of Toronto's Ron Taylor, who put out the fire but was yanked in the bottom half of the inning in favor of a pinch hitter.

SHULTZ TAKES OVER

Barney Shultz, 39, a knuckleballer, went to the mound in the eighth. Phil Linz singled, went to second on Bobby Richardson's sacrifice bunt and Mantle was walked intentionally with two out.

Elston Howard rapped a single to centre, scoring Linz, and Tresh walked, loading thebases

The Cardinals scored a run in the bottom of the eighth and as they started a threatening rally New York manager Yogi Berra took Bouton out.

Asks For $750,000 Donation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Bill Rathie asked downtown property owners Wednesday to donate $750,000 toward the cost of a downtown coliseum site.

The money would come from property owners' 10-year share of profits from the Downtown Parking Corporation, which represents property owners in the city's core area who many years ago passed a $1,000,000 bylaw to establish parking lots in their area.

Mayor Rathie said the Town-town Business Association "is considering" the proposition.

Such a contribution would probably reduce the net cost to the city to about $550,000.

BOXER BANNED

TOKYO (AP—Valentin Loren, the Spanish featherweight boxer who punched a referee after he had been disqualified, was banned Wednesday from Olympic and international amateur boxing for life.

American Swimmers Win 4 Gold Medals

By ED SIMON

TOKYO (CP) — American swimmers Wednesday continued to dominate the Olympic pools in the greatest sweep since the Australians romped off with the honors in the 1956 Melbourne games.

In all, the Americans took in four gold medals at the pools. And they broke records by the handful as they did it.

Cathy Ferguson won the 100 - metre backstroke in a world record 1:07.7, mark after three U.S. teen - agers had taken turns lowering the world mark in the heats of the 100-metre butterfly.

A French girl, Christine Caron, was second in the backstroke followed by Ginny Duenkel of the U.S. all three races under Miss Duenkel's previous world mark of 1:08.3.

Canada's Eileen (Joey) Weir of Toronto placed seventh among the eight finalists in 1:09.5—her best time ever. She kept up with the leaders for the first 30 metres but then faded.

Dick Roth of the U.S. won the 400-metre individual medley in 4:45.4, breaking the world record of 4:45.6 he set earlier this year. Canadian Sandy Gilchrist, an 18-year-old who is studying at the University of Southern California, placed fifth in 4:57.4.

In diving, the Americans swept all three top placings. Ken Sitzberger took the gold with a points total of 159.90 followed by Frank Gorman, 157.63, and Larry Andreasen, 143.77. Canada's Tom Disney of Vancouver had been eliminated earlier.

Australians were the top qualifiers, winning their heat in 4:11.9. The Canadians — Patty Thompson of Hamilton, Mary Stewart of Vancouver, Louise Kennedy of London, Ont., and Marion Lay, a Vancouver native, from California—were third in 4:14.9 in a heat won by the U.S. in 4:12.2.

Don Schollander of the U.S., who won the 100-metre freestyle gold medal Tuesday, set an Olympic mark of 4:15.3 Wednesday in the 400-metre freestyle trials. Murray Rose of Australia set the previous mark of 4:18.3 in the 1960 games.

Gilchrist finished second in his heat in this event with a time of 4:24.2 but failed to qualify. Two other Canadians also were eliminated. Ron Jacks of Vancouver finished third in his heat in 4:29.3 and Ralph Hutton of Ocean Falls, B.C., were fifth behind Schollander in 4:29.4.

Miss Stouder led the 16 qualifiers—including two Canadians —into today's semi-finals with the best time of 1:07.6.

Marianne Homeniuk, a freckled - face blonde from Toronto, finished third in her heat in 1:09.5 and Miss Stewart, former world record holder, was third in her heat in 1:09.9. Miss Kennedy failed to qualify.

Switzerland Beaten By N. Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — Switzerland sagged to a 2-0 defeat by Northern Ireland Wednesday night in the first leg of a world soccer cup qualifying round.

The goal came from a penalty awarded to the Northern Ireland team in the 46th minute.

Belgian referee Hubert Burguet pointed to the penalty spot and adhered to his decision despite protests by the entire Swiss team. Then inside forward John Crossan of Sunderland booted the penalty home with a shot which had Swiss keeper Elsener diving in the wrong direction.

Larks 'Nest' Requires Capital

MONTREAL (CP) — Owner Ted Workman said Wednesday his Montreal Alouettes need more capital to finance their proposed stadium, but he insisted the new structure will be ready for the 1965 Grey Cup game.

He admitted, however, that several problems have been encountered and the Canadian Football League has been advised of the difficulties.

"I spoke to commissioner (Sydney) Halter in Toronto last week and explained the situation," Workman said. "He said that the CFL would review it at the (1964) Grey Cup meeting. I just wanted to be fair with the CFL."

The 1965 national final was awarded to Montreal last spring on the understanding that the 60,000-seat stadium in east-end Ville d'Anjou would be ready at that time. Although hardly a sod has been turned, the youthful Alouette owner remains confident.

Why Schultz Not Craig? "The Second Guessers"

By JACK HAND

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The second guessers were wondering today why Johnny Keane came in with relief pitcher Barney Schultz in the eighth inning of the sixth game when he had Roger Craig in the bullpen.

Schultz, who had been roughed up for seven hits, four runs and a 12.00 earned run average in three previous appearances, was ineffective again. The Yanks got five runs before the inning was over.

The Yanks, leading 3-1 added another score on Phil Linz's single, a sacrifice, an intentional walk to Mickey Mantle and Elston Howard's single (the 1964) Grey Cup meeting. I just wanted to be fair with the CFL."

Of course, Keane undoubtedly was thinking about the probability of a seventh game when he made his move. Bob Gibson, due to start Thursday, worked 10 tough innings Monday. He was hit on the shin twice and once on the back.

Although Keane said he would shift to Ray Sadecki if Gibson was not sharp when he warmed up, he undoubtedly had Craig in mind for a good workout. The former New York Met pitched sensational ball Sunday in a relief role, striking out eight men and allowing only two hits in 6 2-3 innings.

Curt Simmons and Jim Bouton, meeting in a repeat of their third-game duel, were tied at 1-1 until Roger Maris and Mickey Mantle tore into Simmons with back-to-back home runs in the sixth inning of the fifth game.

Keane then removed Simmons for the right-handed Ron Taylor who got the side out. But the Card manager, trailing by two runs, had to go to his bench to hit for Taylor in the sixth.

By BEN WARD

OTTAWA (CP) — If Ottawa Rough Riders wind up on top of the Eastern Football Conference this season, a large part of the credit will have to go to Moe Racine, the big place-kicking specialist who has been pulling games out of the fire with amazing regularity.

Racine, one of Coach Frank Clair's impressive flock of Canadian stars, put on a typical performance in a Sept. 26 game here against Montreal Alouettes when he booted three field goals and a convert in a 16-14 win.

Things would have been disastrous for the league-leading Riders that day without Racine's unerring accuracy. The rest of the offensive action was being stopped cold by the hungry Als.

The 26 - year - old native of Cornwall, Ont., dubbed "Moe the Toe" by his cohmates, shrugs off the hero's role.

"A kicker isn't much good unless the rest of the boys get him within range," he says.

But the statistics show that getting Racine within shooting range isn't too difficult. In that Sept. 26 game, the third one this year in which his kicking points averted a Rider loss, he lobbed his field goals from 32, 34 and 39 yards. The longest came on a tense situation in the dying minutes with Ottawa trailing 14-13.

"The whole trick is getting yourself lined up perfectly straight. Kicking converts or field goals, you've got to have your foot and the ball lined up with the target. Not even a quarter-inch off."

DOESN'T TIE BOOT

Although it sounds simple, it has taken Moe better than 10 years of practice to perfect his scoring skill in which he has been over five points per game over the last three years.

He doesn't agree with those kickers who tie their boots to force their kicking toes up.

"I've tried it in practice and it hasn't been any good. You tend to get the sole of your foot on the ball and the kick doesn't go high enough. It's more like a line drive, which spoils accuracy."

Moe's longest field goal has been 48 yards. It came in a 1952 game here against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

That was during his best full season so far. He amassed 79 scoring points, second highest in the East, on 36 converts, 12 field goals and seven singles.

Last year he missed one of the club's 14 games but piled up 57 points, fourth in the East.

This year he's in the usual duel with kicker Don Sutherin of the Tiger-Cats and is determined to wind up again as the league's highest-scoring kicker.

Coach Clair, who grabbed Racine on the strength of his high school football in Cornwall, says everywhere in the club is confident that things will turn out that way.

Couldn't Remember Being Lapped

Well-Beaten Kidd Almost Blacked Out

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) — Bruce Kidd, Canada's top distance runner from Toronto, faded to a 26th-place finish in the Olympic 10,000 metres Wednesday and said afterward he had almost blacked out.

Kidd was lapped twice by the top four in the race but he said he couldn't remember it happening.

"I may or may not advise him to retire," said coach Fred Foot. But Kidd himself said he plans to run in the 5,000 metres Friday.

The race was won in a complete upset by Billy Mills of the United States, a marine lieutenant who barely made the team. Mohammed Gamoudi of Tunisia was second and world record holder Ron Clarke of Australia was third.

Kidd stayed in contention for only the first six of 25 laps. Then he fell back, from sixth place to 15th at the 2,500-metre mark and then back to 26th among the 29 who finished.

His time was 30:56.4, more than four minutes slower than Mills' Olympic record of 28:24.4. But he was only four seconds behind Russia's defending champion Pyotr Bolotnikov who finished 25th in 30:52.8.

WALKS BACK

Bitterly discouraged, Kidd walked the four miles back to Olympic village by himself.

Later, he talked about the race in faltering sentences, shaking his head as though in a daze.

"I'm not as smart as I think I am," were his first words.

"I was loose and running tight. If I had been really nervous I would have been okay. It wasn't loose.

"I didn't have any thoughts at all during the race. I guess it almost blacked out. I can't remember those guys lapping me."

Kidd dominated North American distance running for four years before encountering what he called a "mental block" and a heel injury last year.

Of Wednesday's race he said: "You know, the last thing I remember is looking down at Bolotnikov's legs before the race. He had them shaved and they were awful white."

Asked whether he had set too fast a pace in the first lap when he went out after the Russian, Kidd said: "That was our strategy. Fred told me to go out fairly because he figured the other guys would set a fast pace."

He said he misunderstood the time announced by the stadium public address system after three or four laps when he was still in contention.

"I thought the pace was slower than it actually was and I couldn't understand why I felt so tired.

WAS TIRED

"I felt that was the pace I had to go the entire distance and I was tired. . . . I was so scared that I didn't have any thought processes at all."

An added twist to Kidd's defeat was the fact that he was lapped by Gerry Lindgren, the 16-year-old American who now has the same kind of glamor Kidd enjoyed two years ago. Lindgren went into the race with a sore ankle.

Kidd has been described as "burned out" by prominent New Zealand coach Arthur Lydiard. But Canadian track manager Jim Daly said Wednesday that he was "not in bad shape."

DISMISS PLAYER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tackle Bill Frank, a major cog in British Columbia Lions' vaunted offence, has been dismissed by the Western Football conference club. A club announcement said that Frank will either be traded or placed on WFC commissioner Syd Halter's suspended list indefinitely. A statement said simply that Frank has been suspended for his second violation of training rules. Earlier this month, Frank, 26, was fined $350 for impaired driving.

KELLY IS BACK

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League completed the 1964-65 roster Wednesday when centre Leonard (Red) Kelly returned from the Olympic Games in Tokyo and signed a contract. Kelly, 37, will dress for Leafs' opening game Thursday in Detroit against the Red Wings, runners up last season to Leafs for the Stanley Cup championship.

Looks Like Atlanta For Braves

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves announced Wednesday they are considering a con tract to transfer their National League baseball franchise to Atlanta.

William Bartholomay, chairman of the board of the Braves, told a press conference that he is returning to Milwaukee with the first firm commitment from Atlanta officials since rumors of the shift started more than a year ago.

Bartholomay would not predict whether the agreement would be satisfactory the board is expected to consider it within 10 days.

The Atlanta deal is tied to television rights for the entire southeast and this was expected to have a major bearing on the contract offered Spohnsman said the rights amount to millions of dollars.

FINISH FIFTH

The Braves, who finished fifth last season, have been mentioned consistently in talk about major league baseball for Atlanta.

The news conference was held in the office of Mayor Ivan Allen Jr., who championed a bond issue to build an $18,000,000 stadium scheduled for completion next spring.

The stadium, a round bowl on the fringe of the business district, would seat 57,000 for baseball and 52,000 for football.

Bartholomay declined comment when asked about a threatened suit to keep the franchise in Milwaukee.

Should the Milwaukee franchise be transferred, it would end a 12-year stand in the Wisconsin city, where attendance has declined considerably.

What Do Hon. Cops Do?

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP) — Long-time Tokyo residents say the safest way to send money home here is to stuff a wallet full and throw it out the window of a moving taxicab.

Chances are when you get home a Japanese man will be waiting for you to give you the wallet back, intact.

Visitors here for the Olympic games are also finding honesty in Japan is not only the best policy but seems to be some sort of state religion.

WOULDN'T TAKE REWARD

When he returned to the Olympic village he found his taxi driver sitting in the lobby, holding the pearl necklace and looking over every athlete who went through the gate so he could give it back to the right man. And he wouldn't take a reward.

She spent a long day at the swimming pool and when she returned she found the Japanese seamstress had been sitting in the hotel lobby all day waiting to return the 25 cents.

And the official drank unwisely and too well of an evening and became separated from his wallet with hundreds of dollars and official badges and tickets. He had no idea where to start looking.

It took two days, but eventually a bartender's mother arrived with the wallet, money and tickets.

She and her son had spent the time tracing the man through his embassy.

They said they were sorry it took so long.

WINS THIRD

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y (AP) All Canadian posted his third straight victory at Finger Lakes Race Track Wednesday, finishing a neck in front of Flambeau Rouge in the $1,400 feature. All Canadian was bred by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor, owner of Northern Dancer, winner of this year's Kentucky Derby and Preakness.

After The Brawl Was Over

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League fined six players $50 each Wednesday for a brawl that erupted in an exhibition game Oct. 4 between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers.

Reg Fleming and Ted Green, both of Boston, were fined an additional $100 each for keeping the brawl going.

The $50 fine, automatic for game misconduct, also fell on Forbes Kennedy of the Bruins and on Rod Selling, Dave Richardson and Earl Ingarfield of the Rangers.

The brawl broke out at 4:37 of the third period. Boston defeated New York 5-1.

An NHL spokesman, announcing the fines on behalf of the league president Clarence Campbell, said fining tr exhibition games is somewhat unusual although he understood it has happened before.

The Handguns

At the Quinte Marksmen's second shoot of the current indoor season, held in the Armouries Tuesday evening, the following scores were shot by the leading participants:

Frank Allin 360 (on a twenty-ed target), Don Parks 220, Cliff Smith 229, Elton McMurray 228, Harry Hodgskinson 215, Stu Hill 208 and John Reid 204. The above scores were shot on the international 25-yard dailiberale and timed and rapid fire course.

After the competition a meeting was held to finalize plans for the exhibition layout for the Kiwanis Club's first annual Sport Show, being held in the armouries. Guns, trophies, etc., will be on display under the direction of Cliff Smith.

This Window Strictly for The Birds !

ARNPRIOR, Ont. (CP) — G. S. Levy got his third partridge of the season Wednesday and he hasn't yet fired a shot.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — High light of the night at the Western Fair Raceway Wednesday night was the comeback victory of Lochinver King, a pacer owned by Dr. A. G. Morris of London.

An invitation pacer a year ago and a winner at such ovals as Toronto and Greenwood, Lochinver King had been away from the races since June. Leg trouble put him on the shelf this year, up until Wednesday night, to a paltry $480 compared with more than $18,000 in 1965.

He romped to a two-length victory in the seventh division of the Forest City Pace in the fastest time of the night, 2:08 2-5. As odds-on favorite he paid $3.30 to win.

Faced with 60 final entries for the Forest City Pace, a late closing stakes, racing secretary John Wiley split the event into eight divisions, each for a purse of $750.

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Ronnie Feagan piloted two Canadian-owned pacers to victory at Batavia Downs Wednesday night. The young driver was behind Miss Angela Mary as the three-year-old black filly won the opener on the night's card, beating Marcon Mars to the wire by a head in 2:11 in the fifth race. Feagan drove Favonian Melody as the seven-year-old chestnut mare hit the wire on top for her third win in 13 starts this year.

Crothers in 800 Finals, 'He'll Win' Predicts Coach

TOYKO (CP) — Bill Crothers of Markham, Ont., running with poise and confidence, and with the tactical knowledge he hadn't shown in three years of Mg-time track competition today, made it to the final of Olympic men's 800-metre run Friday with a first in the semi-final.

Pole vaulter Jerry Moss of Trail, B.C., a big disappointment in the British Empire Games two years ago, and given no chance of advancing beyond the qualifying round, made it into the final of the men's pole vault.

Still another Canadian in a brick-red uniform survived the second round in women's track to gain a semi-final berth. She is Irene Pietrowski, a Vancouver teacher, who despite a bad start that left her at least a yard behind the others at the gun made it to the semi-finals of the women's 100 - metre sprint with an 11.6 clocking.

It was a day of successive surprises and one that Canadians have been looking for since the 1930s when Canadian athletes were prominent in the games.

"Make it Gold No. 2 Friday when Crothers wins the 800," said Fred Foot of Toronto, Crothers' coach.

"He'll win it. I've never seen him so loose and relaxed. He's working like a machine and he's got that hungry look about him that I've seen only once before he won a big one."

ARSENAL FOUND — Nueces county, Texas, sheriff Johnnie Mitchell holds up an automatic pistol, submachine gun and a .270 calibre rifle equipped with a 10-power telescope sight as he stands amid part of the large arms cache picked up at two locations at Corpus Christi, Texas. A 29 year old plumber, Julius Schmidt, was arrested. Mitchell said all of the guns except the submachine gun was in excellent working order. He said the cache was found and the man arrested after informers reported loose talk about assassinating President Johnson, who is due to speak there Sunday evening.

The Tracks

WOODBINE (CP) — Belaric rushed between horses on the backstretch to take the lead then fought head-and-head to the wire with Famous Road to win the sixth race at Woodbine Wednesday.

Belaric's victory was a slight nose over Famous Road and her time of 1.09 2-5 for the distance was slightly behind the track record of 1.09 owned by K. Day.

With Bill Parsons riding, Belaric actually looked like a loser as she went through the stretch but she rallied again and caught Famous Road at the wire.

Movie Column

Edward G. Robinson May Win Oscar for Performance

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The new movies:

"The Outrage" is more perplexing than outrageous. It poses the age-old question: what is truth? The only answer is provided by a con man: "People see what they want to see and they say what they want to hear."

"The Outrage" like "The Magnificent Seven," transforms a classic Japanese film (it also was a broadway play) in a Western setting. But something was lost in the translation of Kurosawa's "Rashomon." Somehow its art doesn't register with the gunfighters as it did with the Samurai.

Three lone figures gather in a rainstorm at a broken-down railway station. A disbarristed preacher, a garrulous charlatan and an idealistic prospector. Together they unfold the scandal of a Western town.

A Mexican bandit has been tried for the rape of a young girl and the murder of her husband. But the testimony of the bandit, the woman and the dying words of her husband provide three versions of what happened.

Then the prospector admits he saw the whole thing and it was entirely different from what the other three said.

Paul Newman, Claire Bloom and Laurence Harvey perform above excellently.

Edward G. Robinson, William Shatner and Howard da Silva are fine as the narrators, especially Robinson as the con man. His performance might well draw an academy award that is long overdue.

Painting Stolen In Front of Twenty People

MONTREAL (CP) — A man apparently walked into the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts Wednesday and removed "one of the most important Rembrandts in Canada" from its walls in front of 20 people.

Museum director David Carter said publicizing a cash value for The Death of Jacob would "affect the results of the theft investigation."

Mr. Carter said the theft took place during regular visiting hours and a woman who saw it happen later reported to police that a tall, sturdy man of 30 took it from the second-floor gallery where it hung with other Rembrandts.

It could not have been easily taken, the director said, because its frame was attached to the wall with screws.

Quebec Students Thank Queen For Courage

QUEBEC (CP) — Students at a downtown French - language high school congratulated the Queen Thursday on her courage and said her "call for unity and understanding has certainly touched the hearts of all Canadians animated by true patriotism."

The students' association of l'Ecole Secondaire Francois Joseph Perreault, one of the largest boys' high schools in the city, said in a statement the group sent a letter to this effect to the Queen.

The statement also congratulated Premier Lesage for his remarks in welcoming the Queen to Quebec last Saturday.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): Two loved ones may accuse . . . you could be stabilizing force. Sense of humor essential. Be impartial. Show you are not impressed by shouting. You may be called upon for extra work.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): Avoid unnecessary travel. Observe rules, regulations. Tendency is to rush. Overcome this — you save time by steady pace. Relatives may appear pugnacious. Grin and bear it!

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Investigate various possibilities. Applies especially to investments, purchases. Fine time for shopping — if you are discriminating. Separate actual needs from desires, whims.

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): Fine for achieving greater domestic harmony. Realize that those close to you have problems. This leads to irritability, frustration. You must be understanding, mature.

Virgo (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Need for definite course of action becomes more obvious today. Put thoughts on paper. Outline motives, ambitions. Be "quiet within." The answers will be forthcoming!

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): More practical viewpoint required where affection is concerned. Be sure others are not taking advantage of you. Ask questions — receive answers. Those in authority "on your side."

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Details which have been shoved aside now surge to forefront. Best to handle basic responsibilities, get work out of way early. Relax tonight with friends, family.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Take initiative where ideas are concerned. But don't be in too much of a hurry to travel. Obtain valuable aid from today's Gemini message. Stress logical approach. Outline motives, ambitions. Be "quiet within." The answers will be forthcoming!

Libra (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): More practical viewpoint required where affection is concerned. Be sure others are not taking advantage of you. Ask questions — receive answers. Those in authority "on your side."

Scorpio (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): Details which have been shoved aside now surge to forefront. Best to handle basic responsibilities, get work out of way early. Relax tonight with friends, family.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Take initiative where ideas are concerned. But don't be in too much of a hurry to travel. Obtain valuable aid from today's Gemini message. Stress logical approach.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Consolidate holdings. Be serious where purchases are concerned. Don't be too anxious to sell. Avoid get-rich-quick schemes. Maintain sense of balance. Heed voice of experience.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): If you are confident . . . you can inspire confidence of important people. Day to display courage, maturity. Cycle high . . . but tendency is to skip details. This could lead to some back-tracking.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Individual or "situation" out of your past enters picture. Remain calm, sincere. If you face issues directly . . . you gain. Check details. Be a good listener. Then do fair thing.

If today is your birthday . . . you have sense of rhythm. You would make fine musician, writer — individual who promotes the arts.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Pisces, Aries, Taurus. Special word to Sagittarius: Formulate plans. But be still to wait for right time to present them.

K RETIRES BUT HIS POLICIES REMAIN

Brezhnev Heads Party, Kosygin Is New Premier

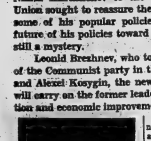
Mr. K's 'Boys' Explain Their Mentor Ill, Cld

MOSCOW (AP) — The two men who succeeded Nikita Khrushchev to the leadership of the Soviet Union sought to reassure the Soviet people today that some of his popular policies will remain. But the future of his policies toward China and the West was still a mystery.

Leonid Brezhnev, who took over as first secretary of the Communist party in the sudden power change, and Alexei Kosygin, the new premier, indicated they will carry on the former leader's drive for de-Stalinization and economic improvement.

NIKITA KHRUSHCHEV

The Soviet Communist party newspaper, Pravda, published a front-page statement that the party "firmly and consistently carries into life the Leninist general line worked out at the 20th and 22nd congresses of the party."



Khrushchev delivered his famous speech against Stalinism at the 20th congress in 1956. The 22nd congress five years later set long-terms goals of improved economic conditions and the attainment of communism. Any attempt to drop these policies would probably meet strong popular resistance, many diplomats in Moscow believe.

The rest of the world waited to find out how the change-over would affect the Soviet Union's foreign policy.

MAY RECONCILE

There was general belief that Khrushchev's departure would open the way to at least a measure of reconciliation between the Soviet Union and China. For the last year Peking has hammered at the theme that Khrushchev stood as a personal obstacle to a rapprochement between the rival Communist giants. China's boss, Mao Tse-tung and his top aides made clear that peace was out of the question as long as Khrushchev spoke for Soviet communism.

But any reconciliation with Peking could also require a common policy toward the West. This would probably mean an end to Khrushchev's era of peaceful coexistence, not necessarily leading to armed confrontation but at least increasing tensions and military budgets.

LEONID BREZHNEV

Political experts in Vienna said Khrushchev's eclipse was bound to suspend at least the liberalization drive which has been going on in Communist eastern Europe. Moscow-Peking reconciliation would certainly curtail the measures of independence shown by some Soviet satellites, they said.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW (Reuters) — At least seven Soviet officials prominently under former premier Khrushchev have been removed from office, usually reliable sources said here today. They included Khrushchev's son - in - law, Alexei Adzhubei, editor of the government newspaper Izvestia.

ALEXEI KOSYGIN

Khrushchev's resignation may also have an effect on east European leaders, such as Janos Kadar of Hungary, known as his close ally.

HAS HEALTH PROBLEMS

The world was stunned by the cryptic announcement reaching the West Thursday that Khrushchev, 70, has asked to be relieved as first secretary of the party and premier because of "advanced age and deterioration of his health." The stubborn, rotund leader had showed no particular signs

Co-existence Still Objective

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ambassador Anatoly F. Dobrynin said at the White House today that the new Soviet government intends to maintain the established policy of "peaceful coexistence" and work for a further relaxation of tensions in the world.

China Explodes A-Bomb

PEKING (Reuters) — China today announced that it had successfully exploded its first nuclear device, the New China news agency reported.

A press communique stated "China exploded an atom bomb in the western region of China at 15:00 hours (Peking time) on Oct. 16, 1964, and thereby conducted successfully its first nuclear test."

China Wants Talks

BULLETIN

PEKING (Reuters) — Communist China proposed today a summit conference of all countries to discuss the "complete prohibition and thorough destruction of nuclear weapons." The proposal came shortly after China announced successful detonation of its first nuclear device.

Today's blast makes China the fifth nuclear power after the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

The blast ended speculation started by the U.S. State Secretary Dean Rusk several weeks ago that China would set off a nuclear device "in the near future."

The New China news agency had been warning subscribers to stand by for an important announcement at 11 p.m. Peking time (11 a.m. EDT). The news flash on the explosion of the bomb came promptly at 11 p.m.

To Assemble French Cars In Quebec

MONTREAL (CP)—The General Investment Corporation of Quebec is setting up a plant to assemble cars on behalf of Renault and Peugeot, the French automobile makers, it was announced Thursday.

The corporation is a mixed body—its capital comes from both the Quebec government and private sources and its aim is to attract new industry to the province.

Gerard Filion, general manager of the corporation, said the plant will have capacity to make 8,000 cars a year. The two French firms between them now sell about 5,000 cars a year in Canada.

They will sell parts to the corporation which will assemble the cars and then resell them to the Canadian marketing firms created by the two French companies. The cars will also use some Canadian parts, he said.

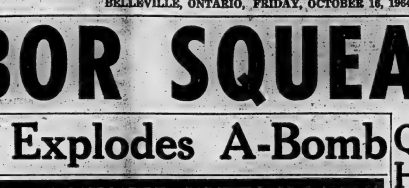
Labor party.

"Opinion surveys came too late really to affect the poll," he said in London.

Speculation was widespread among officials, diplomats and the press of the world over the new leaders, Communist party head Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexei Kosygin. Would they follow Khrushchev's policy of peaceful coexistence or steer the country on a new, radical course?

Much of it, both in the East and West, centred on the feeling that at the start of Khrushchev's removal was the bitter Chinese-Russian conflict and a resulting loss of Soviet prestige in the Communist movement.

Observers in Tokyo believed the change could pave the way toward some form of reconciliation between the Soviet Union and China. It was felt that Chinese Communist party chairman Mao Tse-tung would regard the development as a personal victory, leaving him as international communism's most authoritative figure.



In Taipei, capital of Nationalist China, the consensus was that Moscow would still reject Peking's view that communism should risk nuclear war for world domination.

Italy's Communist party, the largest in Western Europe, warned in a communique in Rome that it would not support any return to hard-line Stalinist tactics by Khrushchev's successors.

U.S. President Johnson summed up the feeling of uncertainty among Western leaders, saying the change may or may not be a sign of big turmoil or changes to come. He told a political rally that turmoil around the world would only increase the steadfastness of the American people.

U.S. officials in Washington said there was no evidence official peaceful coexistence forces Khrushchev out though other major issues of policy might have, including Soviet-Chinese relations.

Paul Martin, Canada's external affairs minister, expressed hope that the change would mean a "continuation of the policy . . . that tended toward a detente toward an easing in the conflicting positions between East and West."

BRITAIN'S NEW PRIME MINISTER — When this picture was taken Harold Wilson had just won re-election to the House of Commons by a big margin and his arms are spread wide in victory. Later the lead of the Labor Party which he heads was drastically reduced, the final result giving it a bare overall majority.

Bubbling Khrushchev Brought New Era to Communist World

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev put an end to one era of world diplomacy, opened up a new one and, in the process, plunged communism into a world-wide internal brawl that rocked the movement to its foundations.

For Russians, Khrushchev was a new sort of ruler.

The man who became premier in March, 1958, oozed confidence that the Soviet system would sweep world capitalism into the dust bin of history. He publicized his convictions with picturesquely earthy predictions. He was confident and bold enough to remove terror from the internal apparatus of the state and substitute incentives based on proud Russian ambitions.

Dramatically revising a 40-year old party program, Khrushchev sparked a sort of revolution by promising "pie in the sky" for everybody. With it he advanced, effectively, a claim to be the rightful heir to Lenin.

He advertised the need for 20 years to build the Soviet economy to the point where communism—by definition the U.S.S.R. was socialist and had not yet achieved communism — could become a reality. To provide this time, he pushed a program of peaceful co-existence, which in essence meant that the Kremlin, although it would continue to support revolutionary movements around the world would avoid risk of touching off world war.

For this, he brought down upon himself the wrath of the Chinese Communist party. Peking directly challenged his leadership of the world movement.

Ostensibly, the Chinese complaint was that Khrushchev was a "revisionist" who reworked Lenin's theories to suit himself. The battle supposedly was an ideological one. Khrushchev exploded the notion that it was simply a quarrel over theory. The Chinese, he said at a Kremlin function in mid-1964, were out to dominate the whole world Communist movement.

The power struggle brought about a polarization in world communism. Many parties, notably in Asia and underdeveloped countries, rallied to the Peking side. Many others in all continents were split by the quarrel.

Khrushchev had denied the

Favreau Praises Accord

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Favreau told the Commons Thursday that the proposed new formula to bring home the Canadian constitution "guarantees the dignity of Canada and the liberty of each of its governments."

He reported to the House on the adoption Wednesday by a federal - provincial conference of a formula under which the Canadian Parliament will be able to amend the constitution without getting final approval from Westminster.

"A milestone in the constitutional evolution of Canada," said Mr. Favreau as he paid tribute to the "broadminded-ness and patriotism" of the provincial attorneys - general who, with the justice minister, drafted the new formula.

Queen Calls Harold Wilson To Form Govt.

Labor Lead Is Sliced To Razor-Thin Margi

By HAROLD MORRISON

The 48-year-old socialist chief accepted a su mons from the Queen to form a government shor after Conservative Prime Minister Sir Alec Dougl Home had tendered his resignation to the monarch.

Wilson then returned from Buckingham Palace to 10 Downing Street, the official residence of the prime minister. Standing in the doorway there he said: "I would like to pledge myself and my colleagues to work together for the good of our country. We are facing very great problems, but I am confident we can overcome them."

Douglas-Home earlier drove from the prime minister's residence to the palace in the historic tradition of the change of government, marking the end of 13 years of Conservative power.

Wilson, at 48 the youngest man to lead Britain this century, thus received a near-thin mandate to pursue his plans to abolish the country's independent nuclear deterrent and renationalize the steel industry.

But the near-deadlock left by Thursday's voting indicated the prospect of a stalemated Parliament and the possibility of another election within a year or so.

With a plea to canvassers throughout the city to report up-to-date returns on the United Appeal drive by the week end, United Appeal officials state that the trend to high-gifts continues. Among the largest gifts in the latest returns received, is a ten per cent increase from Stephens-Adamson in their annual corporate gift, and at last report indications that the in-plant canvass of employees will exceed last year's contributions. The firm, among the top fifteen employers in the city, has always been a generous supporter of the community-wide campaign.

Campaign officials continue to urge canvassers to complete canvasses and make returns by this weekend.

Soviet Leadership Change Shocks and Confuses World

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

In Britain, where the news was overshadowed by the general election, the first political reaction came from Len Williams, general secretary of the

Agreement Came Too Late To Avert Auto Strike

DETROIT (AP)—Profit-sharing—unique in the U.S. auto industry—will be carried forward by a new American Motors Corporation and United Auto Workers agreement, but this accord was reached too late today to avert a strike at the firm.

Negotiators removed profit sharing as a main stumbling block in new nations: labor contract at AMC en hour after a UAW-set strike deadline of midnight Thursday night. Pickets began parading in front of AMC's Milwaukee and Kenosha, Wis., auto plants even while harmony was being attained on what AMC has preferred to call "progress sharing."

AMC Vice-President Edward L. Cushman and Douglas A. Fraser, the UAW's American Motors chief, announced the agreement today just after profit-sharing—now three years old at AMC—will again be extended to the first 27,000 UAW-represented workers.

Cushman and Fraser declined to reveal details of the profit-sharing agreement. These will be disclosed later, Fraser said.

WOULD HAVE STRUCK

A day earlier, the UAW's 32-member negotiating committee voted that continuance of profit-sharing was a "strikeable issue" and the plan must be kept in any new contract.

Profit sharing had been worth six cents hourly for each worker since the UAW and the plan at AMC in 1961, Fraser said.

In reporting the agreement on profit sharing, Cushman said unfortunately American Motors operations already had been shut down.

A major obstacle now to completion of the national economic contract agreement, Fraser and Cushman said, involves some 3,000 Kelvinator division employees at Grand Rapids Mich The company said it has proposed in each bargaining similar to those negotiated in the appliance industry at Kelvinator.

But the UAW has pointed out these would not include the higher pension, earlier retirement and broader insurance coverage carried in new automotive pacts. AMC also proposed a three-year contract for appliance workers in which it would skip automatic annual wage increases of six cents hourly or 3c per cent of the first two years. It proposed adding only four cents in the third year.

Program Five Ready to Start Second Year

Program Five eighty its second year of operation in Belleville Monday. The program, in which unemployed are paid to return to school, is expected to enroll about 115 students at first, in basic academic, commercial and clerical courses.

Other courses likely to start later in year include welding, building maintain a nc e, power sewing and restaurant services. Courses in almost any subject can be offered, according to program co-ordinator E. L. Smith, if enough qualified students ask for them.

Applicants for the courses are selected by the National Employment Service from the ranks of the unemployed. Students' expenses are paid as allowance, ranging from $5 per day for a single man living in Belleville to $11 per day for a married man with dependents living outside town, while they attend classes for six hours a day, five days a week, at Quinte Secondary School.

The classes are held between 4.45 and 11.15 p.m.

The basic academic course is planned to raise general educational levels of the students, at the rate of about one grade per month, Smith said, to the levels required for entry into an occupation course or to grade 10 standard. The occupational courses, lasting from three to ten months each, qualify the students for the chosen trade.

About one-third of the students, who enrolled as last year's Program Five courses dropped out before the courses were finished, in Belleville. But of the ones who finished almost all got jobs. All last year's welding graduates got welding jobs soon after graduation, and the N.E.S. believes they are all still working.

Poppy Fund Committee Holds Meeting

Chairman Gordon MacDonald called the meeting to order with two minutes silence in memory of fallen comrades.

The Flanders Poppy campaign was the business at hand. Each member reported on the progress in sales of wreaths, which was considered very good.

Mr. Everett Liddle announced that he will appear on radio CJBQ on November 30th, at 6.30 p.m. to once more acquaint the public with the Flanders Poppy, and its meaning to all Canadians.

The Flanders Poppy replica achieves its purpose in remembrance of those thousand of gallant Canadians, who, in two World Wars, have sacrificed their lives on the altar of freedom.

Appropriately, the manufacture of these has been concentrated in the hands of men who were crippled in the battlefield. In the Veterafi shops, men who are unemployable in the competitive conditions of industry commence, find, in the manufacture of these little flowers, a measure of therapeutic task. Their fingers may not be nimble, and their day's output, meagre, but they are creating true memorials, while a poppy replica produced under ordinary competitive conditions is nothing more than an artificial flower.

WAR'S RAVAGES

War's ravaging hand left marks on the minds, and bodies of those who served, and who served in battle. Many have been fortunate enough to receive treatment, but few to rise above this condition. Others have fought a losing battle. The innumerable reasons have contributed to the need for a hospital. Rehabilitation and treatment provisions have helped thousands, but it is the man who has no visible or outward scars, and who apparently came through unimpaired that requires special help, and treatment his comrades. Thus, the Flanders Poppy brings "aid for the living from the dead."

The citizens are given an opportunity at the time of the annual Remembrance Day poppy bote of their means toward this great purpose.

Anyone wishing a wreath to be laid at the Cenotaph on November 11th, in remembrance of a dear one can arrange this by calling Mrs. Draper, WO 3-0707 after five p.m., both members of the committee.

The usual donations of poppies will be made to all public and separate schools, Nov. 10.

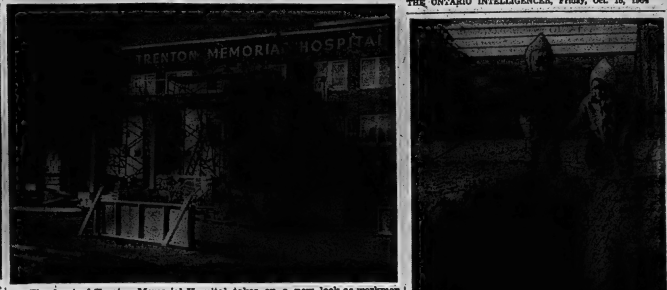
P. M. Calls on Canadians To Overwhelm Extremists

BY CARL MOLLINS

TORONTO (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson called on "true Canadians" Thursday to overwhelm by demonstrational loyalty an extremist minority that would destroy the country.

He warned violence - minded separatists in Quebec that they will not be able to "blackmail" the rest of the country into meeting minority demands.

He defended the government's decision to go ahead with Queen Elizabeth's visit to Canada Oct. 5-13 in the face of threats and demonstrations by Quebec separatists that it received "excessive and exaggerated" publicity in some cases.



Mr. Pearson told a luncheon meeting of the Empire Club of Toronto that he was subjected to "worry, anxiety and indeed pressure . . . from a few extremists in one part of Canada."

"The purpose of these crude threats and pressures was to divide Canadians, to create distrust in the hands of men who were not free to act as they pleased. . . . In the Vetcraft shops, men who are unemployable in the competitive conditions of industry commence, find, in the manufacture of these little flowers, a measure of therapeutic task. Their fingers may not be nimble, and their day's output, meagre, but they are creating true memorials, while a poppy replica produced under ordinary competitive conditions is nothing more than an artificial flower."

Critically injured in an automobile accident on the Stirling-Campbellford County road on Thursday in which Rev. Thomas James Larkin was killed instantly, Rev. John Joseph Vincent Buckley, Parish Priest of St. Joseph's Church in Belleville, died in St. Joseph's Hospital in Peterborough a few hours after admittance. He sustained two broken legs and serious internal injuries in the mishap. It is believed that Father Larkin may have suffered a heart attack while driving the car. Father Buckley was well known and highly respected in this community. He came to this city in 1949 as a Curate at St. Michael's Church and immediately entered into all activities of this large Parish. He devoted much of his time to the younger members of the Church and won their respect and love. On appointment as Priest of the newly-created St. Joseph's Parish he gave of his time and talents to develop a strong following in the eastern part of the city. His work started in a temporary church on Herchimer Avenue but the membership soon outgrew the bounds and he immediately set to work to construct a permanent home.

Indefatigably he worked night and day toward the objective and soon there was construction on Victoria Avenue the permanent church of St. Joseph's. Despite his many duties he could always find time to visit, to have innocent fun and enjoy the companionship of many people in all walks of life and faiths. He was a man of great mind, broad in his beliefs and many valued his friendship.

BORN AT CARDINAL

He was born at Cardinal, 44 years ago, being the son of Mrs. Mary Buckley and the late Timothy Patrick Buckley. He attended school in Cardinal and the high school in Iroquois and then entered Queen's University at Kingston, where he graduated in arts. He entered the Christian College of Education and following this term the University of Toronto from where he graduated with a high school teacher's certificate. From 1942 to 1944 he taught at Prescott's College at Kitchener and then entered St. Augustine Seminary at Toronto and was ordained as a Priest in St. Mary's Cathedral in Kingston in 1949.

CAME AS CURATE

In the same year he came to St. Michael's Church in this city as a Curate and stayed in that capacity until November of 1953 when he was named by Archbishop O'Sullivan as Parish Priest of the newly-created St. Joseph's Parish. Shortly after coming to Belleville he became a member of the local council of the Knights of Columbus and was active in that organization.

He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Mary Buckley of Kingston, and two brothers, James K. Buckley of Toronto and William P. Buckley, principal of Tweed High School.

Solemn High Mass will be celebrated in St. Joseph's Church on Monday morning after which Libera will be sung at Cardinal with interment in Sacred Heart Cemetery at Cardinal. He will rest at the Funeral Residence of George F. O'Brien until Sunday afternoon and then at St. Joseph's Church until the time of Mass.

Cards Manager Resigned Post September 28

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Johnny Keane, manager of the World Series winning St. Louis Cardinals, has submitted his resignation in a letter to owner August A. Busch Jr. dated Sept. 28-a week before the regular season ended.

Keane wrote that his resignation should be effective at the end of the last championship National League Game, whether it be the end of the regular season or the completion of the World Series.

Keane denied reports that he would take the managerial job at Pittsburgh, replaced by Danny Murtaugh. There also has been some talk that Keane could wind up in New York as a coach and heir apparent to Mets Manager Casey Stengel.

Keane's position as manager had been shaky ever since general manager Bing Devine was fired Aug. 17 in a hassle with Busch. Devine is now assistant to the president of the Mets, George Weiss.

Carswell asked that the Roman Catholic - Protestant (school) division of taxes in a trailer court to the east of the town, be checked. Mr. Carswell said the land was assessed for $5,000; which means, in effect, a $120 return to the town in taxes and $60 each for school purposes for both factions, as school tax returns is split on a 50-50 basis.

Mr. Carswell also questioned the low return to the town from the trailer court, where he judged 28 trailers were parked. He, and some of the board members thought perhaps each trailer should be separately assessed and taxed, and named $7,000 as an educated guess of the retail value of each unit.

A check with assessment commissioner, J. Allan Smith yesterday revealed there are 50 trailers in the camp and that the owner is taxed for each unit.

Individual trailer owners are not taxed, but the owner's tax payment for each unit is recovered by him in rents.

PUC Agrees To Share Cost Of Lighting

TRENTON — The Trenton Public Utilities Commission, meeting in Trenton yesterday, agreed to share the cost of installing underground lighting in the proposed new waterfront park, south of the community gardens, in east Trenton. The PUC will pay roughly $5,500 towards installation costs and the recently formed waterfront parks' committee, headed up by ex-mayor Kenneth Couch, will pay roughly twice that sum. Mr. Couch was present at yesterday's meeting. The commission will also install water services as his contribution towards the town's ceniennial project.

The commission had "no comment" on the receipt of copies of briefs to be presented to the Ontario legislature by the Ontario Municipal Electrical Association is which the association suggests local utilities commissions be done away with and council committees take over.

Ontario Hydro has approved a percentage split between various utility departments to cover costs of the utilities office staff collecting a sewer surcharge for the town. The charge is designed to take care of the cost of operation of existing sewers and installation of new sewers and will cost the town's water users roughly 50 percent more each billing on his water bill. Council hopes to hold the line on the mill rate by paying for sewers this way. While the utilities charge will be based on a sliding scale, which could rise as the money taken in for the town rises, next year's cost to the town should be in the neighborhood of $8,000 for sewerage over $70,000 collected. Agreements between the PUC and council remain to be made and signed, so the water user shouldn't be aware of the extra charge until January billings of the earliest.

The commission turned thumbs down (again) on a HEPC suggestion that it sponsor local public speaking contests. The feeling is that there are enough other local groups doing the same service.

Russia Reclaims Spotlight

After a lengthy period during which the United States appeared to be setting the pace, the USSR has scored an important "first."

It has become the first nation to send cosmonauts aloft in company, instead of whirling around the world all alone.

It is difficult to assess the importance of this achievement.

Recent U.S. space achievements, including the magnificent results obtained in photographing the moon, have served to emphasize the technological excellence achieved by U.S. space scientists.

It may be that the Russian three-man space flight was no more than an effort to obtain, by direct scientific observations inside an orbiting satellite, information which the U.S. could gather by sending aloft instruments.

Perhaps the Russians lack the scientific skill to design instruments equal to those produced in the U.S.

This, though, is a dangerous conclusion. Once before, it was suggested the Soviet Union led in the power of its rockets, but that the U.S. enjoyed a lead in electronic control of the flight of satellites. The Russian moon-shot blew that theory sky-high.

U.S. authorities make the point that putting three men in an orbiting satellite does not make it a space laboratory. This is true, but it is also true that the ability to send several men aloft together limits the number of shots which would have to be made to get up the men and materials needed for the construction of a space platform. The Russians have also already proven their ability to fire satellites so accurately that a rendezvous would be feasible.

The next step would appear to be an experiment in which some of the occupants of an orbiting satellite left it and returned to it and their companions.

After that, the actual attempt to build a space platform could be made.

Once this has been done successfully, manned flights to the moon or beyond will be only a matter of time.

The moon flight, of course, could be attempted without the prior construction of a space platform. But for longer space journeys such a platform would be almost essential, unless the power of available rockets is greatly increased, and even if this increase in power is achieved a space platform would make such flights so much simpler that it must remain a major goal.

The three-man Russian space flight suggests that construction of a space platform, rather than a manned moon flight from the earth, may be the next major goal of the space program of the USSR.

Arctic Aloha

A Soviet scientist has discovered a link, or perhaps we should say another link, between the Polynesians and the Eskimos. A folk legend amongst the people in the Chukchi peninsula, bordering on the Bering Strait, includes a character named Eleuge, the human raven, a familiar figure in Polynesian myths. This is added to the theories of Thor Heyerdahl based on the trans-Pacific drift of the raft Kon Tiki, to the similarity of stone statues on Easter Island to those found in the Kurile and to the similar blood types of Polynesians and Eskimos as evidence that they were once of the same people.

So, the next time anybody invites you to a swank dining spot to enjoy the latest fad, Polynesian food, display caution. You may be letting yourself in for a repast of real blubber.

There is, however, no proof of the contention that the Hawaiian hula originated when a newly-arrived immigrant tried to shake off her goose pimples.

It has taken homo sapiens—"thinking man" if you want to call him that—the best part of half a million years to reach a population of three thousand million. In forty years he will have doubled that figure and beyond that to go on at an enormous rate of increase. In fact, United Nations experts have predicted that in six centuries there would be one square metre of land for every person on the globe. You can't produce food from one square metre of land, all you can do is bury people vertically. What we really need is an intelligent approach to the population problem.—Professor Ritchie Calder of Edinburgh University.

Farm Kitchen Has Changed

Windsor Star

Recently we were visiting in farm kitchen we once knew well. We noted many changes in it from the days of our youth.

The old wall-to-wall hand-made carpeting was long gone. There were no hanging lamps or table lamps. There was no big wood stove, with the accompanying woodbox. (Indeed there was no stove at all in this kitchen. The electric range and refrigerator were contained in what was once the commodious pantry.) There was no wash stand, with pail of water standing by and a towel rack nearby. (A modern sink with running hot and cold water also was in the old pantry.)

We looked around the walls and we noted changes there too. There was no big metal match box, full of large matches for the lighting of the stove, the lamps and the pipes filled with cut-plug tobacco.

Perhaps most of all we missed the big wood-stove. We wondered what the farm family would sit around on a winter's night, while chatting and munching apples. But then we looked out the window and found that the old orchard, which once provided a plenitude of apples is much variety, was gone too!

Certainly there has been much progress on that fine old Ontario farm in the past few decades. But progress removed much that

Strictly Personal
Much Passion Generated by 'Radical Right'

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Few issues in recent years have generated so much passion as the rise of the "radical right" in America. Both its defenders and its detractors have been loud, bitter, vituperative, and (to use the trickiest possible word) impassive.

In their new book, "The Strange Tactics of Extremism," Harry and Bonaro Overstreet have performed the same cool and useful service they provided Americans some years ago in "What We Must Know About Communism."

There are, basically, two ways to be "against something. One way is through ignorance, prejudice, hate and fear. The other way is through knowledge, understanding, a sense of fairness, and the rock-bottom realization that evil methods corrupt even the best of goals.

The Overstreets are opposed to the extremists of both left and right; not because the "middle of the road" is necessarily the correct position, but because extremism tends to become the mirror-image of the very thing it hates. The dedicated communist and the fanatical anti-communist have, in a profound psychological sense, more in common with one another than either of them realizes.

In "The Strange Tactics of Extremism," the Overstreets clarify and anatomize the strategies and tactics of the radical right. Although it is evident that they personally find the rightists as distasteful as they found the communists, the authors do not vilify or smear. (Indeed, anyone who reads the book and calls it a "smear" is already, to my mind, contaminated by the virus of extremism.)

Just as the communists indict anyone who disagrees with them as a "counterrevolutionary," a "reactionary," a "bourgeois lackey," a "dupe of the capitalists," so do the rightists derogate their opponents as "pinkos" and "fellow travelers" and "soft-on-communists," or "conscious traitors." Neither side can tolerate any position short of its own; both view the world in terms of "plots" and "conspiracies"; and both despise the democratic process as weak, ineffectual and inimical to its purposes.

The book's title is ironic, in a way, because the tactics of the radical right are not "strange" at all — they are the same tactics propagated and used by Lenin and all subsequent communist fomentors: secret cells, infiltration of "innocent" groups and snowballing, and the paranoid insistence that all not with them are against them as "enemies."

The pathology of politics is a fascinating, ominous and little-known phenomenon in American life. The Overstreets deserve our thanks for their calm, microscopic dissection of this 20th century disease.

Pointless to Give Vaccine After Exposure to Measles

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(FIRST OF TWO ARTICLES)

Dear Dr. Molner: I have heard of shots to prevent measles. If you give them to children who have been exposed to measles, what will happen? — Mrs. J. B. D.

The incubation period for measles — the time between exposure and the appearance of the disease itself — is two weeks.

It takes from two to four weeks for measles vaccine to built up into substantial protection against the disease.

Therefore it is pointless to give the vaccine after it is known that a child has been exposed. (It wouldn't be harmful, either, but why waste the money and effort?)

It is going to take a bit of explanation to give you a good idea of the different forms of measles vaccine, so I'll put off that discussion until tomorrow. Today we'll discuss the child who has been exposed. What can be done for him?

In such cases, give gamma globulin. This provides what we call "passive protection." The antibodies in it will give temporary protection, but later they will be cast off by the body.

If this is given at the right time (soon after exposure) it can prevent measles from developing. But subsequently the child should be given measles vaccine to provide active or permanent protection.

If the gamma globulin is not given soon enough, it is still possible to give a smaller dose, a bit later. This will not prevent measles, but it will modify the attack in this instance, the child will form the attack finally, build up protection, and hence will not need any vaccination.

Which is preferable? Six of one, half a dozen of the other — but since you cannot always be certain of when the exposure occurred, you don't always know whether the gamma globulin will happen to be timed so as to give the first result or the second.

You can tell afterwards, of course. If the child doesn't get measles, it probably means that it was the first, or preventive method. So play safe and have a vaccination given later.

How important is it to do anything after a child has been exposed? Of the millions who get measles, not at least 90 percent, in all children will, the majority will recover in routine fashion, and nothing serious happen.

But of these millions, there are some thousands who develop serious complications — pneumonia, eye damage, encephalitis (also known as brain fever) and other things.

Each year, across the country, a sizeable number of deaths occur from measles. The percentage of disastrous complications may be moderate, but measles is so common that death or lasting harm mounts into larger numbers than the totals from some rarer diseases which are more feared for less reason.

So tomorrow we'll discuss the measles vaccines which, at long last, are available.

Dear Dr. Molner: What causes osteoarthritis? Would an injury or fall play a role? — J. S. K.

The cause is not known, but it occurs in older people. A fall or injury could cause a thickening of a joint similar to osteoarthritis, however.

Hurricane Hazel roared into Ontario and in the Toronto area alone left 83 dead, 10 years ago today—in 1954. The hurricane, the worst recorded in Ontario, caused more than $24,000,000 worth of damage during the two day rampage. The hurricane had been blowing itself out south of the border when a cold front from the north reactivated it over Lake Ontario, producing the heaviest rains in Southern Ontario history.

1851—Gold was discovered near Melbourne, Australia, and more than £18,000,000 worth was taken from the ground in the first two years.

1917 — Germany's notorious woman spy, Mata Hari, was executed in Paris.

First World War

Fifty years ago today, in 1914, German armies continued their sweep through Belgium, taking several towns; in France, Allied armies put up a desperate fight in advancing into Alsace and Lorraine; the British cruiser Hawke was sunk in the North Sea with loss of 350 lives.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today, in 1939, three British merchant ships were sunk by German submarines and a U-boat hunt was intensified; 30,000 British troops were reported to be on the Western Front which was inactive during fog and rain.

Like One of Egypt's Plagues

Montreal Gazette

Prof. Connell, Dr. G. R. Lagsdon, Director of the Great Lakes Institute of the University of Toronto, spoke of what is happening to Lake Michigan. Unless adequate means are found to control pollution, that lake, within a decade, may have lost the usefulness of its water forever.

* * *

It is not simply a matter of bacteria but of the fertilizers in the water by dissolved salts and nutrients. These encourage the growth of algae. Huge masses of algae growth covers structures with slime, clogs water intakes and filters, piles up on beaches where they rot and clog waterways. Once this process has reached a certain point it can continue indefinitely by becoming self-generative.

But whenever these dangers are raised, they encounter the old problem of divided jurisdiction. Responsibility for pollution is advanced as the explanation for inaction by government. It is difficult at times not to feel that it is also the excuse. Yet in this menace, hate, above all things, is not.

* * *

The old words of Scripture are coming to have disturbingly contemporary. When Pharaoh refused to let the children of Israel go, God told Aaron to stretch out his rod over the waters: "And all the waters that were in the river were turned to blood. And all the fish that was in the river died; and the river stank . . . and all the Egyptians digged round about the river for water to drink; for they could not drink of the water of the river."

It would be historically absurd if a country like Canada, rich in waterways, and in the middle of the Twentieth Century allowed itself to be afflicted by one of the ancient plagues of Egypt; and because the different governments could not rise to the co-operation needed to serve and save their people.

Sunshine

Regina Leader-Post

In this land of cold or hot sunshine, depending on the time of year, it is difficult to appreciate the average Britisher's preoccupation with the sun. Such interest is more easily understood when it is realized that the ratio of hours of sunshine and rain in the daytime is eight to one on the south coast, six to one in London and five to one in northern England and south Scotland. In the western Highlands many hours equal those of sunshine.

Armed Robbery Attempt Brings Year in Prison

A young Toronto man charged in the armed robbery of an elderly Bancroft service station proprietor, yesterday was sent to reformatory for a year after he expressed interest in learning a craft.

Herbert Wiskin, 23, was sentenced by Judge J. C. Anderson who said it should be suggested to authorities the man be sent to Brampton provincial training school.

Earlier Crown Attorney John Pringle had requested the maximum reformatory term of two years less a day. Wiskin, he said, "was prepared to offer violence to a man who was in peaceful possession of his goods."

Wiskin was arrested after an apparent holdup attempt was foiled when the service station proprietor resisted the threat of a rifle taken from a rack in the garage.

An older man arrested with Wiskin, Joseph LaRocque, of Toronto, was given three months when he pleaded guilty to theft six weeks ago in Bancroft.

Defence counsel Tom Lally appealing for leniency, said Wiskin was not "the most mature person" and the crime while technically robbery, was the slightest form "of robbery it could be."

Humorous Talk Given Dinner By Art Duncan

"A man without a sense of humor," Bata public relations manager Art Duncan told about 200 members of the Ontario Building Officials Association last night, "is like a blind man in a nudist camp. He just does not know what he's missing".

Speaking at the President's Dinner of the Association's ninth annual convention, at the Sun Valley Motel in Belleville, Mr. Duncan stressed the need for building inspectors and other public officials to learn to appreciate their public image. "Even inspectors," he said, "have a public image." He told the group that people tend to judge the organization by the man representing it.

Touching on patriotism in his address, Mr. Duncan told the group that men don't fight for royalty, or for a flag. When a man fights," Mr. Duncan said, it's for that small patch of land he calls home. He said that if Canadians can be made to realize this, Canada will be a unified country in 1967.

Mr. Duncan was introduced to the group by Belleville Chamber of Commerce manager, Earl Dickenother, and thanked for his speech by Mr. D. J. Redding-ton of Cookville.

2-Year Term Given Man For Burglary

A two-year penitentiary term was given 23-year-old Gordon Richard Cowdrey of Peterborough yesterday for the burglary of a Frankford store and restaurant.

He was convicted after pleading not guilty before Judge J. C. Anderson to theft of a cash register and payments from the Oasis Restaurant, August 24th.

Judge Anderson said it was a serious offence and noted the accused had been released in February after serving a sentence for car theft.

Approve Bill In Principle

By MICHAEL GILLAN

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Gordon's mammoth bill aimed at curbing foreign investment in Canadian financial institutions was tossed to a Commons committee Thursday after opposition critics expressed doubts the legislation will work.

The 54-page document to set limits on the sale to non-residents of shares in Canadian insurance, trust and loan companies was given approval in principle — second reading — in the Commons and referred to the banking and commerce committee.

Besides providing stiff fines and possible jail sentences for company directors who knowingly permit sales beyond the limits, it would broaden the companies, investment powers in order to encourage Canadian buying.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) said the government would find it impossible to administer the section limiting the sale to non - residents of more than 25 per cent of shares or 10 per cent to an individual alone or in association with others.

EXPRESSES DOUBTS

Colin Cameron (NDP — Nanaimo — Cowichan - The Islands) also expressed doubts the legislation can be policed, and jokingly said few directors will land behind bars. "Allowing as the prospect might be."

Mr. Gordon said while he expected the fears of opposition members he had received no representations from companies that they will have any administrative difficulties. He felt the legislation will "work very well and easily."

Conservative financial critic George Nowlan said the legislation is a minister has a "fetish" about foreign ownership that sometimes influences his judgment and leads him to "exaggerate these matters."

"Walk" Lights Installed At Front and Bridge Sts.

"Walk and "Don't Walk".

After many years of discussion at city council and with the recommendation of the city traffic committee, "walk" lights are now being installed at the main downtown intersection and pedestrians will have specific directions when to cross without having to be on the lookout for turning autos.

At least that is the idea of the new "walk" signals which are timed to give the pedestrians complete right-of-way when they are crossing the streets.

"We have been after the "walk" lights for years" commented City Traffic Inspector J. Clare Hayes. "All that remains now is to get the pedestrians to cross properly with the lights."

Girl Who Made Mistake Needs Interest of Parents

DEAR DORIS — About two months ago I told my mother that I and my steady boy friend were having an affair. I love him and he says he loves me. We are still going out together but whenever I come in the house after a date a little late she keeps prying me with questions. My boy friend and I have quit this affair but my parents think I'm still at it.

I think telling them was the greatest mistake I ever made. I figured my conscience would be relieved. It was but what's the use of trying to make my parents believe me? I'm 15. — UNTRUSTED.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR UNTRUSTED—Keep working at it. They'll come round — and you sorely need their interest and love. Good for you for having the courage to tell your mother! Would you have liked it if she had acted as if she didn't give two hoots what you did?

* * *

DEAR DORIS — When I go baby sitting, I act on my best behavior. I never eat a fig, or wake up the children or do anything wrong. Also, my price is very reasonable. But after I come home, the lady I sit for never calls me again. Why is this so?

This has happened with more than one lady. — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED—Follow up your next assignment with a call on the mother of the family. Ask her to tell you how things were, how she felt you did your job. What could you do next time? If she sees you like her children and want to be a good baby sitter, she may open up.

* * *

(Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need. Write to her about what's troubling you.)

BATHROOM BOUTIQUE

Dear Suzanna: The most accurable idea has come to the attention of our Women's Institute group. It is a scented, decorated soap bar for your personal use in bath or bathroom. You never s a w anything so glamorous in your life, and they sell like hot cakes. So whatever you do, don't throw away those broken pearl beads you've been meaning to match up and re-string.

Start with a perfumed bar of soap in any color or shape — the one I will describe here is a white oval bar trimmed with gold. Glue a single narrow piece of sparkly gold rick rack around the flat outside edge. If u i n g ordinary straight pins, stick three or four pearls of the same size on the bottom at feet. Add about eight more, evenly spaced, to the rick rack.

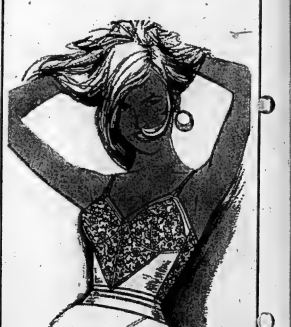
Gild or paint an artificial flower and pin it to the centre — but first spear a seed pearl with your pin — assorted sizes are fine. You might finish off by painting a gilded scroll or acanthop around the top near the outside. There are dozens of variations to this white and gold theme, depending upon the materials and colors you have on hand. — Mrs. Margaret Layen

Have you got guests coming? Then amaze them with one of these exquisite soap flowers saucily dressing up a bathroom shelf or dressing table. If you are still not sure exactly what to do, or if you would like my version of a few variations of this lovely creation, please let to complain however if you find me know. You must promise not some of my ideas pretty wild — it's just the gypsy in my soul! — SUSANNA

MORE TIPS WORTH KNOWING

Dear Susanna: On days when I'm deadly serious about my cleaning and intend to do a whole section of the house at a time, I pack nearly everything I will need in a soft drink carton. This includes such items as a tin of cleanser and bottles of: household ammia, window spray and furniture polish.

Then away I go with pail, sponge and cloths in one hand and cleaning aids in the other. It not only saves me several trips but keeps everything handy to use spot. I've even found that it's an excellent idea to store bottles this way in the cupboard. It is much neater, and nothing gets upset. — E. B. M.



Dear Susanna: The sticky side of a wide piece of adhesive tape is the best aid I've found yet for picking up dog and cat hairs from a dark suit or dress or piece of furniture. — Animal Lover.

QUESTION:

I was wondering if you still have the recipe for Mocha Date Cake you mentioned. I never heard of the two-mocha and date-together . . . Miss Jean MacN.

ANSWER:

Mocha Date Cake is an old favorite in our family. My sister learned to make it when she was a teenager. When I received your letter I phoned her and asked her to make one for me for you. She remembered sponge cake was her favorite batter when she made it years ago. So last night she came in my front door proudly bearing the aristocratic cake I am about to describe.

PEADY'S MOCHA DATE CAKE:

Plain Sponge Cake: 3 eggs, separated, 1 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup sifted flour, results: 1 cake.

Heat oven to 300 deg. Fahr. Prepare layer cake tins (either 9" or 8" deep) by greasing with shortening and fitting a layer of wax paper neatly on bottom of pans. Beat the egg yolks until thick and lemon-colored. Gradually add half the sugar, beating thoroughly and then the lemon juice and rind. Beat until thick. Beat the egg whites, salt and balance of the sugar thoroughly. It is almost impossible to overbeat the whites. Add the yolk mixture and beat for 1 minute only, just to blend thoroughly. Fold in the sifted flour and keep folding just until it disappears. Pour immediately into prepared layer cake tins and bake 50 to 60 minutes at 300 deg. Fahr. After baking, invert pans to cool for 5 minutes and then remove from tins before cake is entirely cool. Remove wax paper and cool thoroughly before filling and frosting.

Date Filling: 1 cup chopped dates, well-packed, 1 cup water, 1-3 cup sugar, 2 teaspoons lemon juice.

Cook all ingredients together gently until quite thick — 20 to 25 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool. Spread between layers of cooled cake.

NOTE:

If desired, ¼ cup chopped nuts may be added.

Mocha Frosting: 1-3 cup butter, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 2 teaspoons instant coffee powder, 3 cups sifted icing sugar, 2 tablespoons hot water.

Cream butter until light then add salt, cocoa, instant coffee powder and sifted icing sugar. Mix and cream well. Then beat in hot water until frosting is light and creamy. Frost top and sides of cake.

NOTE:

Finely chopped pecans or walnuts may be sprinkled on top if desired — but it's gilding the lily.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

A women's handbag often is the subject of jokes.

A comedian can usually get a chuckle or two by describing the contents of his wife's handbag, including unpaid bills, extra stockings, two left gloves, a recipe for beef Stroganoff and half of a baloney sandwich to nibble on while searching for a token to get up the subway.

It's no joking matter, though, when a cluttered handbag is the cause of holding up lines and generally inconveniencing others while a woman fishes for the pencil or identification needed at the moment. The man waiting behind her could well be a baloney sandwich to tide him over while she struggles for ages to find what she's after.

The overstuffed handbag is more frustrating than funny to the person who has to wait outside a phone booth while the incumbent female first has to dig out a dime, then search for her address book to look up a number... then dive into the bag again to find a scratch pad to make the notation. What should be taken only a few minutes stretches out into 15 and tempers on the line outside reach explosive stretching to the breaking point.

EQUALLY ANNOYING

It is equally annoying to have to line up behind a woman who can't lay her hands on her wallet at the supermarket checkout counter. Her charge plate in a department store; her bus fare during the rush hour; or her pay envelope at the height of the lunch period when others are waiting for it's table.

On the romantic side, men have been known to lose interest in a date whose compact has been lost in the depths of her handbag and she's had to sit with teeth clenched while she made a routine search, piling up five pounds of gear on the table until she finally found her vanity.

With daytime bags getting larger all the time, a better fitting style is called for to prevent undue delays and the frustrations they generate. The time to take inventory is before you start out; not at the precise moment you need change or your nose needs a blotting.

One way to make sure you won't go through life as a stumbling block is to clean out the day's accumulation of non-essentials each evening and to make a clean sweep each time you change your bag.

So, you may not have a baloney sandwich to keep you company while you wait on line, but at least you'll be helping to keep the line moving.

Ann Landers

Wives of Hunting Husbands Must Keep Themselves Busy

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Hunting season is here which means one fight after another. I don't mean just for a few days either. I could stand that. These fights go on for months.

I've discussed the problem of the "Hunting Husband" with other wives and here are the techniques we have all tried — along with the results.

ANN LANDERS

(1) Put your foot down and say, "No. You can't go again and leave me and the children." They go anyway.

(2) Be nice about it and send them off with a big smile. They take advantage and go twice as much.

(3) Go along. Impossible. No woods are big enough for a husband and his wife. The woods are plenty big enough for a man and 17 club members, however.

Another thing our husbands have going for them is an eight-room club house. They tell us to be sure and pack their best dress slacks and sport shirt in case they decide to go to town for a night.

So what's the answer, Ann? — HOPELESS BATTLER.

* * *

DEAR HOPELESS — Widows of The Hunt are not going to win this battle, so accept the inevitable. Your best bet is to keep busy while your husbands are out killing those lovely brown-eyed deer, themselves and each other. (You heard me.)

Get together for potluck suppers. Do your back letter-writing. Wax the floor. Clean the closets and drawers. Read those wonderful books you haven't had time for. Keep busy.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — A married man with a girl friend usually has three or more good reasons why he can't leave his wife "at present."

The married man I've been going with for six years insists he will never cheapen our relationship by giving me excuses. All he says is, "We'll be married eventually. Have faith."

His children are almost grown. Their college education is assured. His business is thriving. His wife gives him no static. He owes no pleases—no questions asked. We've been together almost every evening since 1958.

Am I supposed to be satisfied because I can see him whenever I want? It's beginning to look like a pretty weird set-up and I'm the goat.

Breaking off is out of the question. He refuses to give me up. He watches every move I make so there's no chance of meeting anyone else.

The only solution is to leave my family, friends and job and move to another state. Is it fair that I must run while he is free to stay put and probably take up with someone new?

Please print my letter as a lesson. It's so easy to become involved and so difficult to get out. — UNA.

* * *

DEAR UNA — Your story reads fine until you say, "Breaking off is out of the question. He refuses to give me up."

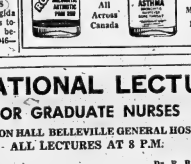
Why does the decision rest with him? The man doesn't own you. He has leased you for a few choice years but this type of "contract" can be broken simply by non-performance, and you know it.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I am 17, and a high school senior who has been elected cheerleader. Our school schedules the football and basketball games on Friday night. I am allowed one date a week.

My parents insist that my Friday night cheerleading is a date because I am out of the house and away from my studies. This means I can't have a real date all during the sports season.

My boy friend is in the stands while I am out front cheering. The game is usually over at 10:30 and I have to be home by 11:15. Is this fair? — CHEERLESS LEADER.



* * *

DEAR CHEERLESS — No. Cheerleading is part of school activity and should not be counted as a date.

* * *

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Int. 'B' Hockey Champs Get OHA Medals, Crests

PICTON (Staff) — Picton Merchants hockey team held their annual banquet in the Sergeants' Mess at Camp Picton Thursday night. Winners of the Intermediate 'B' OHA championship last season all members were present and received O.H.A. medals and crests. The medals were presented to the players by Lorne Cook, past president of the O.H.A. Dr. L. Dockrill of Picton introduced the head table guests, Keith MacDonald; Davey Jones, coach; Walt Fraser; Jack Devine, CJSQ sports director; and second vice-president O.H.A.; Mayor H. J. McFarland; Major Danny McLeod, guest speaker and sports director R.M.C. Kingston; Lorne Cook and Herb Colliver, Picton.

Thirty-three team members sponsors and guests attended the banquet to hear a most interesting speaker Maj. Danny McLeod of R.M.C. sport on hockey. All of the players were introduced to the guests by Walt Fraser and Mayor McFarland congratulated the players for bringing the "cup" back to Picton. Mayor McFarland said the occasion reminded him of the time when the Belleville McFarlands returned from Europe with their trophy. The Mayor stated that no one will ever understand the strain the boys of the McFarland west through in facing the challenge of those games in Europe.

ALL KEYED UP

Each and every player he said was keyed-up nearly to the breaking point and he added that two of these series in a lifetime was plenty enough for any player to go through. There were seven members present at the banquet, who were members of that team. Mayor McFarland went on to say that there were 17,000 spectators in the arena for the game with the Russians and that he felt the spirit of the crowd was with the Canadian boys but could not cheer the way they might have liked because of Russian soldiers attending the game carrying arms. With the score at 3 to 1 he said the last five minutes of the game took more out of him than any other event in his life.

The guest speaker was introduced by R. Colliver, representative of the Arena Commission. In his opening remarks Major Mcleod said that he would like to present some of his reflections on the game of hockey and spoke of its past history, hockey at the present and the future of the game in Canada. Some interesting historical facts on the game were brought to light by the speaker. The game originated he said right in this district and also in Halifax area, records taken from the diaries of soldiers indicate this may go back to the year 1855.

ROYALTY INTERESTED

The original interest in the game came from politicians and even Royalty, he added. A game was recorded in the year 1879, a square puck was used and it had been cut from an india rubber ball. There were nine players to a side and the game was played on river ice either in Kingston or in Montreal. The first cup to be awarded in hockey was the Arthur Stanley Cup, the origin of our present day Stanley cup. It was presented in 1890 and designed to encourage amateur hockey between the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec. Maj. McLeod went on to say that Canada has little if any Canadian culture but there is not one doubt that hockey is the number one culture of Canada. Hockey he said is a Canadian culture conceived here and exported to the rest of the world. Of this we should be justifiably proud."

In looking for qualities in a hockey player Maj. McLeod said that he would seek the following game sense, ability to think, this is a game of wits and intelligence as well as brawn, he said. Look, the ability to see a potential play, then, one must have the desire to persevere and learn to play with intellect as well as muscle, courage, heart and loyalty. In 1945 Canada had the highest level of hockey the country has ever known but now he stated the game suffers too much interference from the pro leagues. We must return the game to the community if it is to survive, he said. We must give all the aid we can to the coaches of Bantam and younger teams. This is where we must begin to protect Canada's number 1 culture.

Maj. Danny McLeod was thanked by Dr. L. Dockrill, and Picton merchants and supporters of the team were thanked by coach Davey Jones.

Road Chairman Outlines County Work to Council

PICTON (Staff) — Hallowell Deputy Reeve John Fox, chairman of the Road Committee, advised council this week that the Development Road No. 15 is more than 50 per cent completed and also County Road No. 1 completed, 12,000 under budget. Construction of No. 12 at West Lake is now under way. Deputy Reeve Fox pointed out that a land survey has to be completed on the balance of the Northport - Demorestville road construction before it can be started and completed next year. As chairman of the roads committee, Mr. Fox outlined why he felt the county should go on and complete this road all the way to join Highway 41.

With approximately four miles now completed at a cost of around $35,000 for property purchase and fencing, the remaining eight miles will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000 for property purchasing and fencing. It was suggested that the road be constructed at least to where the new bridge will be built. Deputy Reeve Fox, seconded by County Engineer R. Thomson, pointed out that in the remaining eight miles to be constructed quite possibly the first four or five miles would cost $50,000 while the remaining three would only cost $20,000 due to the location of buildings, etc.

As this road has been approved and fully budgeted by the Department of Highways for construction, it was felt by the road committee that the county would be lax in not taking full advantage of it. Also pointed out was the important aspect of new industry situating in this part of the county, plus increased traffic once the new bridge is in service. Tourist travel and accommodation would also be greatly increased. If we don't go ahead and build it next year, stated Deputy Reeve Fox, the chances of getting it built through the road development program is not as good. Many municipalities have underspent road development allowance, which in turn upsets the Department of Highways budget, therefore from now on all construction will be let by contract rather than utilizing county forces.

SURVEYOR HIRED

It was moved and adopted that the firm of E. Allen, O.L.S., be hired to complete the road survey work on the entire road. Report was adopted and carried. A letter from Hallowell Township was read in council concerning the condition of the Ridge Road in a certain area that has to be filled in due to further constructed next year. As chairman of the roads committee, Mr. Fox outlined why he felt the county should go on and complete this road all the way to join Highway 41.

With approximately four miles now completed at a cost of around $35,000 for property purchase and fencing, the remaining eight miles will cost in the neighborhood of $70,000 for

A motion of the roads committee report concerning purchases of goods directly from the county on a cash and carry basis was struck from the report. As in the past if a ratepayer wishes to procure goods from the county it will have to be done through the municipality and only upon written consent or authorization from either the reeve, deputy reeve, or the road superintendent. There was some contention that the municipalities were acting as a collection agency for the county, but council felt that if a ratepayer purchased goods through the municipality then it was by all means the municipality's problem to collect.

firmly enough to keep them in power.

Labor, which now will form its third post-war government, obtained the necessary 318 seats to give it an 'over-all lead in the 630-seat House of Commons at 2:45 p.m. local time (9:45 a.m. EDT) — nearly 18 hours after the counting of results began Thursday night.

The Speaker of the House, who does not have a vote, contested the election as a non-party candidate.

The bitter struggle between Labor and outgoing Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home's Conservative's lasted throughout the night and all morning.

LEAD SHRINKS

Labor's overall lead of 64 seats, reached when counting was halted for a few hours early today, gradually shrank this morning as the Conservatives retained their grip on Britain's rural areas.

The struggle for power between the two major parties paralleled the 1950 election in which Clement (now Earl) Attlee's second post - war Labor government scraped home with only a six-seat lead.

Twenty months later—in October, 1951 — another election was forced which the Conservatives won to have 17 seats to start their 13-year period of office.

Today's near-deadlock faced Wilson with the prospect of gruelling, all-night battles in Parliament and possibly, severe restrictions on his legislative program.

This would be most likely on Labor's more controversial plans such as the re-nationalization of the steel industry, which the Conservatives handed back to private enterprise early in the 1950s.

The tight outcome was less than the anticipations on both sides. Sir Alec had hoped to lead the Tories into an unprecedented fourth term. Wilson had hoped desperately for a 50-seat majority—enough to give the strength to impose nationalization measures and drastic revision of Britain's nuclear defence policies without courting disaster in Parliament.

"We shall govern, the country has given us authority," claimed George Brown, the deputy Labor leader.

While each already faced with a difficult balance-of-payments situation, a government with such a narrow majority might find itself inhibited in taking tough economic measures that could be unpopular.

The see-saw of the electoral battle in its closing stages gripped the nation. Millions of Britons crowded around television sets in homes, offices and stores to watch the drama unfold as the Conservatives cut into Labor's overnight lead of 64 seats.

The closeness of the battle

"What is his complaint, dear — just in case the dog gets it?"

threw out all computer forecasts which varied widely in predictions of Labor's majority from nearly 60 in the early stages to only 11 later on.

But the result was a triumph for public opinion polls which had forecast a virtual dead-heat.

Shares on the London Stock Exchange tumbled this morning in anticipation of the Labor victory. Large crowds gathered at the Steel Market, centre of the election stock gamble because of the Labor pledge to re-nationalize the industry.

"They were pushing and shoving ... prices were marked down and there was some selling going on," one market man said.

However, steel shares surged when the afternoon opening out-stood of the morning's lost millions of pounds, as the gap between the Conservative and Labor parties narrowed.

ARRIVES BY TRAIN

The prime minister-to-be arrived in London by train from Liverpool at lunch time with his wife, Mary. Crowds cheered them as they left the Euston railway station.

Wilson got a jubilant welcome when he reached Transport House, the Labor party headquarters, which is directly across the street from the headquarters of the Conservatives.

The only "big gun" in the Labor party leadership to lose his bid for re-election was Patrick Gordon Walker, Labor's spokesman for foreign affairs. He was defeated by Conservative Peter Griffiths in Smethwick in the industrial midlands.

But the Labor party was likely to find Gordon Walker a safe Labor seat in which to run again for re-election to Parliament at an early date.

Brezhnev

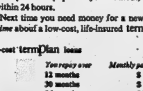
ot ill health lately, but he suffers from high blood pressure and a recurrent heart condition.

Observers in the West believed that repercussions from th. bitter feud between Moscow and Peking and shortcomings in the Soviet economy also played a part in the colonels' leaders sudden eclipse after 10 years in power.

The official announcement gave no indication what had happened to Khrushchev, last reported vacationing on the Black Sea. But it said he had lost his place on the party p.esidium, indicating he would have no future role in Soviet policy.

This was a strong indication that Khrushchev had not retired v.ol.ntarily or been stricken ill. As a voluntarily retired elder statesman, Khrushchev might have been expected to remain on the presidium. And Frol Kozlov, widely regarded as Khrushchev's chosen successor until felled by a stroke and heart attacks last year, is still on the presidium and a party secretary although inactive.

NOT SURPRISING



Brezhnev's designation to the key role of the party's first secretary was the least surprising thing in the announcement. He had long been a protege of Khrushchev and had generally been considered his heir-apparent since he gave up the figurehead post of president of the Soviet Union earlier this year to devote himself to the party central committee.

Kosygin is an economic expert of exceptional talent with a flair for organization. His appointment as premier appeared to signal a determined drive to improve the economic situation and government efficiency.

The elevation to the top spots of Brezhnev, 57, and Kosygin, 61, signalled some shift in the Soviet Communist party's 47-year rule. For the first time the top jobs went to men whose only contacts with Czarist Russia and the 1917 revolution were childhood memories. They also are the first members of the technician class to reach the Soviet summit.

Canadian Baptists Set Up Mission in Bolivia That Has Operated 43 Years

When Canadian Baptists set up a mission in Bolivia almost 70 years ago the teaching of any religion but Roman Catholicism was punishable by death, a penalty that was revoked in 1906. Despite early difficulties, the mission has carried on. Its work, is described in this story by Paul Kidd of the Hamilton Spectator, writing for The Canadian Press.

By PAUL KIDD

GUATAJATA, Bolivia (CP)—Goose-stepping soccer players marched past a reviewing stand on the edge of legendary Lake Titicaca in the Bolivian Andes.

Watching them were bowler-hatted Indian women, and four Canadian Baptist Church workers.

It was a national holiday in the South American republic and hundreds of Indians had gathered at the remote village of Guatajata, 80 miles from La Paz, to celebrate.

After a tortuous three - hour truck ride along dust-clouded mountain roads, I reached Guatajata, a centre of Canadian Baptist missionary work in Bolivia for 43 years.

The village nestles on the banks of shimmering Titicaca, the once sacred lake of the Incas and the highest navigable stretch of water in the world.

It was almost 70 years ago that Archibald Reekie, while a third year student at McMaster University in Hamilton, read an article about religious conditions in Latin America.

OPENED SCHOOL

During the following summer vacation, financed by his family and fellow students, Reekie visited Bolivia to see for himself what conditions were like.

On returning, he persuaded a Baptist convention at London, Ont., to open a mission in the backward, landlocked republic.

In 1906, two years after his first visit, Reekie returned to Bolivia and soon opened the first Protestant school in the country.

Another McMaster graduate, Bertha Gibb, followed in 1909 to become the first Canadian woman missionary in Bolivia.

At that time, according to the penal code of the land, the propagation of any religion other than Roman Catholicism was punishable by death.

Although scorned by mobs, the Canadian missionaries were protected by local officials from the death penalty, which was revoked in 1906.

Established in 1911 by an American missionary society the Hacienda Guatajata settlement was originally a 1,000 acre farm with 250 Aymara Indian laborers. It came under Canadian Baptist control in 1921.

But it was not until 21 years later that the Indian peons on the church-owned estate were finally emancipated.

The labor system of farm serfdom, long a custom in Bolivia, was inherited by the Canadian missionaries when they took over the hacienda.

Finally, over a five-year period beginning in 1937, the liberation of the serfs was accomplished.

To get title deeds to their land, the Indians were required to build homes, plant trees and scientifically raise crops.

In 1942, title deeds to pieces of land were handed to 32 heads of families.

Thus, for those Aymaras, a four - century - old system of slavery came to an end.

Since Bolivia's 1952 socialist revolution, land has been redistributed to some 2,500 000 Indians under a government agrarian reform program patterned, in large part, on that of Guatajata.

Some 30 years ago, a Spanish - style Baptist church was built at the lakeside village. Since then, seven smaller churches have been established in the Guatajata region.

Today, there are also 16 church-run schools, a Bible college and a clinic.

An Indian woman, a baby strapped to her back, was patiently waiting outside the clinic. Miss Dryden examined the small Aymara, gave the child some medicine and assured the mother there was nothing seriously wrong.

By this time, several Indians were waiting to be treated for various complaints. Some were given injections, at 13 cents a shot. Patients pay the cost price for drugs, but treatment is free.

Serious cases are driven to La Paz hospital, where, if costs are higher than the Indian can afford, the church makes up the difference.

Some 1,215 pupils, aged from seven to 15, attend Baptist-operated schools while 35 students attend the Bible college where they learn agrarian skills, carpentry, mechanics and Bible knowledge.

Kay Rowe, a 27-year-old former Hamilton schoolteacher who came to Bolivia in 1954, is in charge of the school system.

Amy, who comes from New Westminster, B.C., met his wife, whose home town is Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., when they arrived in Bolivia as missionaries 13 years ago.

In La Paz, Canadian Baptists operate a powerful radio station which has a wide listening audience of all faiths.

Developed at a cost of $150,000 Canadian-raised funds, the station has a range of 150 miles on its medium wavelength while its short wave can reach as far as Santiago, Chile.

Aided by the fact that the transistor radio has become a status symbol on the 12,000-foot high altiplano, where three-quarters of Bolivia's population lives, the station is able to communicate with hundreds of thousands of Indians who are unable to read and write.

Programs — 12 hours daily and 16 hours on Sunday consist of classical music, three to four hours of religious works and music and one hour and 40 minutes of news and sports daily.

Reporters gather local news while the BBC and Voice of America bulletins are used for international news.

With a staff of 18, the station broadcasts in the Indian languages of Quechua and Aymara, Spanish, English, and, for the benefit of La Paz's 20,000 strong German - speaking colony, in Germany.

Such is the Canadian Baptists' modern-day method of delivering the same message that Archibald Reekie brought to Bolivia nearly seven decades ago.

...the busiest little businessman in Canada could be your next door neighbor!

Who is the 'busiest little businessman in Canada?' Yes, he's your newspaperboy, but he is many other things too! He's a student now, he is studying for a career in the future. One thing for sure, he is learning the basic business practices that will remain with him throughout his entire life. His paper route is teaching him these fundamentals.

Most of us take our newspaperboy for granted. We see him delivering the paper and heading down the street. And yet, he is your main link with the entire world. From the bag over his shoulder he brings you all the latest world and local news, sports, comics. If, for some reason your paper is late or doesn't arrive at all, you realize just how important your newspaperboy is to you.

Your 'busiest little businessman' undoubtedly already has an interest in your community through his bank account. Large or small, he has a bearing on our economy. Multiply his account by the tens of thousands of other newspaperboys and you will have an astronomical figure. Naturally, he spends some profits on himself and, you will agree, it is justly deserved.

Before or after school, when most other students are batting a ball around or heading to the corner store for a bottle of pop, your newspaper boy is picking up his papers and preparing them for his route. In rain, heat or snow, six days a week, he follows the same pattern even during his summer holidays.

Accounts receivable, profits, etc., are all problems facing your newspaperboy. He keeps his own books, substitutes money from his profits to cover the few 'late paying customers' and then clears his account with the newspaper. He's a salesman too! A lost customer represents lost profits and he must cope with newspaperboys from other papers. All in a day's work, six days a week.

Next time you see your newspaperboy, take a minute and talk with him, learn a little about his plans for the future. You will be pleasantly surprised. Our future and yours could well rest on his shoulders.

MR. MELTZER ON REAL ESTATE
"What's Your Problem?"

By BERNARD C. MELTZER

The reason for recording real estate transactions and deeds of ownership is to inform persons who have not witnessed the transaction that it has taken place.

Normally it is easy to determine ownership because the deeds are recorded. There are exceptions, however, in which legal deeds transferring ownership are not immediately recorded. Sometimes it is neglect, sometimes it is deliberate — in either case it can cause confusion and serious problems, as two of our correspondents can attest.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: Shortly after my mother died, my father became seriously ill. Although we had not always been on the best of terms in the past, I returned and stayed with him for several months until he was well. During the worst of his illness he became very emotional and said he wanted me to have the house when he died, and even had his attorney bring over a new deed which he signed and gave me. He told me not to record the deed until he died so my sisters would not be mad at me for making me his favorite.

He got better — to everyone's surprise, including his — and became his old demanding, impossible self. I went back to my own life. He started running around with every disreputable woman in town. He is planning on marrying a twice divorced woman younger than I am, and promised her he would put everything in her name, including his house.

This is the thanks I get. I'm mad! But, do I have any claim at all to the house he said he gave me? — A. P. T.

Answer: You have every claim. In fact, the house is yours — not your father's.

A real estate transaction, in a sense, involves three parties; the two making the contract (in this case the deed) and, as third parties, everyone else. When your father signed the deed to the house over to you, the first two parties were aware of the transaction. Recording the deed is the way you notify third parties — it does not confer ownership; it confirms and announces it.

Since the record still lists your father as owner, should he give another deed to his current paramour, it will create a complicated problem. To avoid this unnecessary confusion and complications, I strongly urge that you immediately record your deed, and thereby, inform all third parties of your ownership.

• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: I have run into a peculiar situation and am not sure what to do. A fellow I'm at a party told me he was leaving town and had some suburban land he was willing to let go cheap. I told him I was interested and went out to look at it.

While I was walking around, the man living next door came over to see what I wanted. I told him I was thinking of buying the property. He said he wasn't sure he wanted to sell but would consider it if the price was right. I asked what he had to do with it, and he claimed he was the owner.

As the result of our argument he showed me a pretty official looking deed. In confusion, I checked with the first man who took me to the court house and showed me the records — he was the owner. The other fellow sounded like he was sure he was the owner.

I am really confused. I like the property, but don't know what to do next. Can you advise me? — R. T. S.

Answer: My experience suggest that if you buy this property you will be buying only a lawsuit. On the basis of the information and the circumstances, I suspect the actual owner is the neighbor with the deed.

Your new friend probably listed as owner of record because the neighbor has failed to record the deed — either from neglect or for some reason of his own.

Whatever the case, whoever the actual owner is, this situation is so muddled and has such overtones of potential fraud that you would be well advised to forget the whole thing.

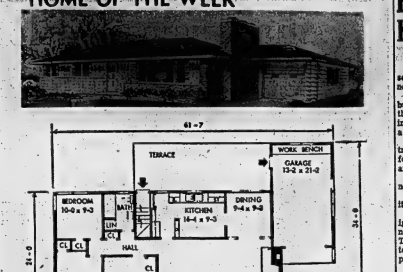
• • •

Dear Mr. Meltzer: We have been looking for a house and what is probably the most ancient real estate salesman has been trying to help us. He has taken us to see more than 20 houses, he buys us lunch, he runs to open the doors for me — even car doors. He has met more than my husband does. He calls if he has any suggestions or ideas, talks fishing with my husband and antiques with me. He even got tickets for the circus for our children, and I am plain an all around nice guy.

Unfortunately, nothing he has shown us is what we really wanted and he has run out of places.

My husband thinks we should try someone else. Normally, as would I, but he is trying so hard to be a good salesman, it would break my heart to tell him no. What if he lost his job because he couldn't sell us?

I am willing to compromise and take the best of what he has shown us, but my husband — who also likes him — says pity for the salesman is not the best reason for buying a house. I guess it just takes a woman to appreciate a man as considerate and nice as this, and you will probably side with my husband but anyway, who do you think? — J. A. O.



Answer: Families who own houses out of pity for the salesman usually end up with pitiful houses. You were right in thinking, I would agree with your husband — but wrong in thinking we couldn't appreciate a man like your salesman.

Maybe we abbreciate him more than you do. You are doing him an injustice if you think he needs pity — any real estate salesman as eager and determined and conscientious as he is, is bound to be a success. Do not worry about his losing his job — a salesman like that is in great demand. Any realtor would be eager to have him.

Economic Heart Attack Killed B. C. Mining Town

By TERRY ROBERTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — A deserted Shangri-La lies 30 miles north of Vancouver.

A community of abandoned buildings strong around the throat of a man-made lake. It's in a secluded valley high above a saltwater inlet.

There was a churchyard but no cemetery.

Shangri-La it was immortal it was not.

It had no formal name. Originally it was known as Tunnel Camp and later it became Townsite. Toward the end it took the name from the new post office—Mount Sheer.

The mining town suffered an economic heart attack in 1958 when world copper prices declined. Its recuperation a year later was short lived.

Ore in the upper tunnels of Britannia Mine, once the largest copper operation in the Commonwealth, became too costly to extract. Operations were moved to headquarters on the beach of salty Howe Sound, 2,500 feet below.

From its death in 1961 Mount Sheer began to settle into disrepair. Today it's a closet of memories for the families who moved away.

MANY CRIED

At one time, 1,300 people lived at Mount Sheer. They traded at the company store, attended an endless shuffle of bridge parties, bore children in the town hospital.

"It was a virtual world of its own and to some a paradise," says Len Allen. He was mine superintendent at Mount Sheer. Now he works at the beach.

"Many people cried when the town was eventually closed. Others found life better on the outside and shed few tears."

To the townspeople "outside" meant Squamish, eight miles north, or Vancouver, 44 years ing for city glitter meant riding the mine train to the edge of the valley. There the narrow gauge car was transferred to a hoist—called a skip—and lowered to the beach, then you boarded a boat north or south.

"There was rarely one covered passenger car," says Archie Smith, who moved to the township in the 1940s. "It would carry 95 persons. The overflow went on a flatcar."

Mrs. Arnold Bennett lived in the town from 1937 to 1958. She wasn't sorry when it came time to leave but her children were. "My family says there never was a place like Mount Sheer."

The town that didn't want to die was the child of death—the crushing death of a steel camp named Jane Flats, site of the original copper glory holes.

The deposit was discovered in 1888 by Dr. A. A. Forbes. In 1899 two Americans bought it for $88,000 and the Howe Sound Company of New York was formed. Production began in 1903.

By 1913 plans were made for construction of what was to become Tunnel Camp. Workings at Jane Flats—1,000 feet above the proposed camp—were entering out and a new tunnel was about to be driven.

All diggings in the surrounding hills fan from horizontal tunnels. As upper tunnels are worked out, lower ones are driven farther down. The present mine entrance is 900 feet above the beach.

Jane Flats was a thriving operation of bunkhouses tramways, offices and homes, all connected by covered walkways because of heavy winter snow.

The face of the mountain cracked and Jane Flats was dead.

The crushed community

'Just a Second'

"I thought YOU brought it!"

counted 56 dead and 32 injured. Production was halted for three months and construction began on Tunnel Camp.

Bunkhouses, the Tunnel Hotel, mechanical shops, homes, apartment houses, movie house, school and recreational facilities were built.

The buildings, or many of them, stand today. The town was the old-time residents, to much the way it was when the mine became known as largest in the Commonwealth—between 1925 and 1930.

It was a solid town, says Archie Smith.

"There were characters and odd-balls all right, but I don't remember anyone being exom municated.

"We got our liquor by mail order. At Christmas a boatload of four or five fons would arrive. Bootleggers who were caught were usually fined."

"He was chasing women who worked at the Tunnel Hotel. Eventually he was banished to Victoria Mine. That's a bunk house way above the town and over the next ridge."

PLAYED GAME

"We used to play quite a game at houses," Archie Smith recalls. "One man would move out and cause 10 others to move. You always had your eye on a little better house. There were no roads. Everything was hand packed to your new house."

There was not an unemployment and no old people. There was no graveyard — all funerals were in Vancouver—and no juvenile delinquency. "straighten up your kid or get out."

Noted Composer, Cole Porter, Dies In California

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) Cole Porter, one of the 20th century's great composers and lyricists, died Thursday night at a Santa Monica hospital where he underwent kidney surgery Oct. 13. He was 71.

Doctors said Porter's general physical condition even before he was admitted to the hospital Sept. 22 for a routine checkup was poor. An infection from a kidney stone flared up after he was admitted, necessitating the surgery.

Porter's legs were crushed in a 1937 riding accident when a horse fell and rolled on him. Dozens of operations followed and finally, in 1958, his right leg was amputated.

Porter's last Broadway hits were Can-Can in 1953 and Silk Stockings in 1955. He wrote the words and music to Aladdin, a 1958 television spectacular. He had been in retirement since then.

Porter was the author of song hits such as Night and Day, stage musical including Kiss Me Kate and did music and lyrics for such films as High Society.

BORN MILLIONAIRE

His was a familiar face in the society circles of Europe and the United States. He was born a millionaire and made another fortune from a fabulously successful musical career.

Porter's life was so uniformly successful that when Hollywood made a film of his life—Night and Day, with Cary Grant as Porter, in 1946—script writers had a hard time finding crises in his life to sustain the story line.

His hits were almost countless and included Begin the Beguine, What Is This Thing Called Love, In the Still of the Night, I've Got You Under My Skin and My Heart Belongs To Daddy.

Many were made into films.

Belleville Quinte Kiwanis Club Holds First Annual Outdoor Sports Exhibition

Last night was a night for all Quinte sportsmen when the Belleville - Quinte Kiwanis Club presented their first annual Outdoor Show at the Belleville Armouries.

The show was officially opened at 8:00 p.m. when president of the newly - formed club, George Brown, and Bob Carlton chairman of the show committee, cut the ribbon with a hunting knife.

Once inside on the floor show there was something of interest for all sportsmen to see and a chance to test their shooting ability at the club's shooting gallery located in the south west corner.

There were two large ski displays at the show, one by Booth Radio and TV Limited and the other provided by the Oak Lake Ski Club. To go along with the skis was a ski pony put on display by Pringle and Cooper. The ski pony is the latest in the skiing enthusiasts.

The Pringle and Cooper Company also displayed the latest in saddles. Next to the saddle display could be seen Bob Blaind's sports shop display.

Other displays included the Belleville Fish and Game Club and the Fish and Game Club from RCAF Trenton; antique gun display and target pistols by the Quinte Marksmen Club of Belleville and the Department of Lands and Forest had a display of wildlife.

A jeep was put on display by Alton J. Hadley and Sons of Belleville. There was also a display by Kelly's Sports Shop and Outboard Marine films were presented along with films sponsored by Canadian Canoeries Limited.

Mr. Brown said this will be the club's main project and that the show would be held again next year.

Seek Extension

WINNIPEG (CP)—A request that the federal government consider allowing the extension of provincial boundaries into Hudson Bay has been made jointly by the provincial governments of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba, Premier Duff Roblin said Thursday. Mr. Roblin said in an interview the submission, to which the federal government has not yet replied, was made during the federal-provincial conference Wednesday in Ottawa.

Parliamentary Notebook

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP)—The government's redistribution bill begins another stage in its checkered career soon, possibly in the final week of this month.

The bill to set up commissions in each province to reshape the boundaries of parliamentary constituencies has had an enforced period on the shelf for nearly a month.

This was partly because the cabinet redistribution expert, Transport Minister Pickersgill, spent almost four weeks in hospital and at home convalescing from the aftermaths of a serious bout of influenza earlier this year.

Mr. Pickersgill is expected to be back on Commons duty October 26 with a priority tag on the redistribution bill. Informants indicate he'll need all his parlia mentary skill and diplomacy to get the measure over the final hurdles in the Commons.

The stumbling blocks that stalled the measure in the spring now appear to have been removed by informal negotia tion among the parties. But new problems seem to have replaced them.

MPs are expressing doubts after taking a look at rough maps of new constituency boundaries prepared as a starting point for the redistribution commissions.

Gilles Gregoire Credilistes-Lapalice MP for Dorchester had signs the map makers did their job with more mathematical skill than knowledge of local conditions.

He argues that map makers working in Ottawa on a centralized basis is the wrong approach. Each of the 10 commissions which will do the final mapping job should have experts on the staff familiar with the circumstances in the province where each commission operates.

The electoral map hasn't been re-drawn since 1953 when a parliamentary committee took on the job of bringing constituency boundaries in line with population changes revealed in the 1951 census.

The constitution requires a redistribution after each decennial census and the current one has been awaiting parliamentary action since mid-1961 when final results of the 1961 census became available.

Profiles of Russian Leaders

Alexei Kosygin

MOSCOW (AP)—Alexei Nikolaievich Kosygin is an economic expert who rose under handicaps to a first deputy premiership of the Soviet Union four years ago. He is 60.

A tall, fair complexioned Russian, Kosygin was Stalin's last addition to the politburo before the dictator died. At the outset of the post - Stalin era he found himself snubbed for a while by the inner circle.

But he is a man of exceptional talents and the collective leadership that took over the Kremlin r e c o g n i z e d it. He quietly proved his value as a businessman with a flair for organization.

NAMED TO COUNCIL

Kosygin was named to serve on the council with Anastas I Mikoyan, then a first deputy premier, and Dimitry Ustinov, 55, a deputy - premier formerly in charge of defence industries.

And Kosygin's name was among those mentioned as a possible successor to the premiership in April, 1963, when Khrushchev commented t h a t age was creeping up on him and he could not hold the Soviet helm forever.

Born Feb. 20, 1904, Kosygin was only a boy at the time of the revolution. His schooling was in Soviet state institutions. He became a Communist party member as a youth, but as late as 1938 he still was an obscure official.

In 1941 he was made premier of the Russian Soviet Federated Socialist Republic, the great land mass which is the largest of the 16 Soviet republics. This was a meteoric rise.

Seven years later Kosygin became minister of finance of the U.S.S.R., and was admitted to Stalin's politburo, its youngest member.

He was raised to the rank of deputy - premier in December, 1953. The Order of Lenin was bestowed on him on his 50th birthday.

Leonel Brezhnev

MOSCOW (AP) — Leonid Ilyich Brezhnev, a boy of 10 when the Communists seized power, today swept a new class and generation to the top in the Soviet Union.

The announcement that Brezhnev, 57, had replaced Nikita Khrushchev as first secretary of the Soviet Communist party signalled a major transition in Soviet history.

For the first time in the 47-year reign of the Soviet Communist party, the top job went to a man whose only contacts with Czarist Russia and the 1917 revolution were childhood memories.

Brezhnev, t r a i n e d by the party as an engineer, worked in the steel industry for a time but gave it up and rose to the top through Communist party ranks.

A bushy - browed, ruggedly handsome man, Brezhnev had been viewed as Khrushchev's heir-apparent since he stepped from the figurehead job of Soviet president in July to move in where the real power lay.

HAS SHARP MIND

A man with black, piercing eyes, Brezhnev is known to Western diplomats as a man with a sharp mind and a friendly but reserved manner. He has been associated with Khrushchev's career since 1938 in the Soviet Union's Ukrainian region. He was born in December, 1906 in Kamenskove—now Dneprodzer z h i n s k. He and Khrushchev came up in the Ukraine as faithful party workers.

In 1927, Brezhnev was graduated from an agricultural institute in Kursk, and in 1931 he was admitted to membership in the Communist party. He is one of the post-Bolshevik, post-revolution Communists among whom technological knowledge was more important than revolutionary fervor.

Brezhnev was posted to the Urals area as a specialist in land use, and there rose to the head of the oblast (area) land department. He left the Urals to study metallurgy in his home town, graduating from the metallurgical institute there in 1935. He became a party functionary in the Ukraine and then an armed forces political commissar, serving with the 18th army during the Second World War.

MOVES UP IN PARTY

When the war ended, Brezhnev was sent back to the Ukraine, where he continued his move upward in the party.

WAS FIRED

When Stalin died in 1953, Brezhnev was fired from his job as first Communist party secretary of the Moldavian Republic, acquired from Romania during the war. But by the time other Soviet leaders arranged the arrest and extradition of Lavrenty Beria, Stalin's secret police chief, Brezhnev had bounced back. He turned up in the role of first deputy chief of the main political board in the ministry of defence—political commissar of the armed forces.

As Khrushchev rose to power, the new leader seemed to lean heavily on Brezhnev. The Ukrainian was sent to Kazakhstan, i n a n d a " agricultural experihead of Khrushchev's "virgin l a n d s" agricultural experiments, as secretary of the Communist party. In 1956, at the time of the 20th party congress, Brezhnev returned to the ruling party presidium as a candidate member.

He also was placed on the powerful secretariat of the central committee. He became a full member of the party presidium when Khrushchev later ousted Klementi Voroshilov, Brezhnev took over as president, two years later screening his central committee job.

Removal of K Looks Like Attempt by Conservatives to Buck up Communist System

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
Associated Press Special Writer

Removal of Nikita S. Khrushchev from top Soviet positions has the look of a desperate attempt by powerful Conservative forces to prevent the world Communist movement from falling apart.

The Chinese Communists will cheer this development. Khrushchev has been their prime target, but the world Communist split will be far from healed by this move.

Any healing will be at great cost to Soviet policies of relaxation.

There is some indication that forces in the party led by Mikhail Suslov are behind this development. If that is so, it can prove to be gloomy news both for the Soviet people and the West.

The removal of Khrushchev does not look like a complete route. Indeed, it is questionable that he put up stiff opposition to stepping aside.

NO RELAXATION?

The appointment of Leonid Brezhnev to head the party seems to indicate at least some of Khrushchev's policies will be continued, but the appointment of Alexei Kosygin as premier does not promise relaxed relations with the United States.

His appointment has the look of a sop to the Soviet people. Kosygin's name once was connected with consumer industry back in Stalin's days.

What appears to have happened is that Khrushchev stepped on important toes; Khrushchev carried his revision of dogma too far and clashed with powerful forces including elements of the military.

Only recently Khrushchev—who has been blamed for evidences of creeping capitalism—himself suggested the revolutionary step of giving production priority in the economy to consumer industry instead of heavy industry. This would have reversed a policy sanctified by 40 years, and would have indicated downgrading of military production.

WENT TOO FAR

That was where Khrushchev may have gone too far.

On the party side, Khrushchev's policies obviously were weakening the hold of the Soviet party on Communists abroad who have been asserting their independence. In addition his policies at home have been responsible for an upsurge in Soviet popular opinion which has been exerting pressures on the Kremlin. This meant that the party's authority at home was being weakened while it was starting at the prospect of a splintering of the movement around the world.

The Communist party probably cannot go all the way back to Stalinism but there are indications in all this that there is a tightening up in prospect—and that can be bad news both for Russians and the West.

Defence Dept. Annoyed With NORAD Move

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department is becoming annoyed with North American Air Defence Command headquarters for advocating adoption of the American YF-12A as a NORAD interceptor, informed sources said Thursday.

One reason is that the Lockheed YF-12A, also known as the A-11 or SR-71, was designed and built as a successor for the U-2 spy plane.

The Canadian government, informants said, wants nothing to do with a plane which might be used for spy flights over Russia. NORAD is a joint Canada-U.S. command.

NORAD headquarters said Oct. 2 after the first public demonstration of the 2,000 miles-an-hour YF-12A that the plane "was designed to provide an effective defence against the manned bomber threat throughout the NORAD area of responsibility."

This was the first Ottawa had heard that the big jet was intended as a NORAD interceptor.

Informants said Defence Minister Hellyer plans to recommend to the cabinet, probably next month, purchase of a comparatively inexpensive tactical jet fighter whose primary purpose will be air support of the army in the field.

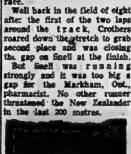
Snell Nips Crothers In 800 Metres



— Valiant Effort —

By ED SIMON

TOKYO (CP) — New Zealand's Peter Snell turned back a valiant closing bid by Canada's Bill Crothers today to win a thrilling Olympic 800 - metre race.

Well back in the field of eight after the first of the two laps around the track, Crothers roared down the stretch to grab second place Snell was closing the gap on Snell at the finish.

But Snell was running strongly and it was too big a gap for the Markham, Ont., pharmacist. No other runner threatened the New Zealander in the last 200 metres.

BILL CROTHERS

Snell won the gold medal in 1:45.1, imsving upon his 1962 winning time of 1:46.3. He also holds the world record of 1:44.3.

Crothers' time was 1:45.6, best of his career. Wilson Kipruget of Kenya was third in 1:45.9, putting Commonwealth runners on all three steps of the podium for the medals ceremony.

The United States continued to dominate track and field, however, with the Russians were having troubles.

Ken Carpy took the 400-metre hurdles in 49.6 seconds, beating the rest of the field by at least five metres. It was the fifth consecutive U.S. victory in the event.

Antal Rudas of Hungary was second with 191 feet two inches and Elena Gorchkova of Russia third with 187 feet 2½ inches.

SET RECORD

Miss Gorchakova set a world record of .04 feet 8½ inches in the qualifying round earlier today but this did not count in the finals.

Defending champion Elvira Ozolina of Russia, holder of the previous world record of 201 feet 4¼ inches and Olympic record of 183 feet eight inches, could do no better than 179 feet 9¾ inches today and came fifth.

In the women's 100 metres Edith McGuire, the girl whom the U.S. team had expected to succeed Wilma Rudolph as Olympic champion, was a well-beaten second in 11.6 seconds.

Poland's Ewa Klobukowska was third, also in 11.6.

Crothers' medal was the second for Canada in track and field at the current games. Harry Jerome of Vancouver having picked up the bronze in the 100 metres Thursday.

Jerome moved smartly through the 200-metre preliminaries today, winning his heats in both the first and second rounds to qualify for the second consecutive Olympics. He jumped 25 feet 3¼ inches, improving upon the Olympic record of 25 feet 1¾ inches he set in 1960.

Russia too the silver and bronze medals, Oleg Fedoseev coming second with 24 feet 4¾ inches and Viktor Kravchenko third with 24 feet 4¼ inches.

BREAKS RECORD

The women's pentathlon, a gruelling five - event, two-day test of female stamina newly added to the Olympic track and field program, got under way and two Russians, Irina Press and Ga'ina Bystrova, were in front after the first two events.

Miss Press, setting the pace in both the 80-metre hurdles and the shot put, had 2,202 points to 2,110 for her compatriot.

Jennifer Wingerson of Toronto rallied in the second day to climb to sixth place from 12th with 1,854 points. A second Canadian participant, Diana Gerace of Trail, B.C., was 15th with 1,703.

Canada's top woman sprinter, Irene Piotrowski of Vancouver, got as far as the semi-finals in the 100 metres and narrowly missed qualifying for the final's finishing fifth by 1-10th of a second in 11.7.

Bruce Kidd of Toronto, Canada's only long-distance runner in the games, was eliminated from the 5,000 metres when he finished ninth in his heat in 14:21.8.

He was joined on the sidelines by distinguished company. Murray Halberg of New Zealand, the 1960 champion, was knocked out by a fourth-place finish in his heat.

Elimination was a bitter disappointment to the 21-year-old Kidd, coming as it did on top of his 30th place in the 10,000 metres Wednesday. His time was far off his best mark of 13:43.8, achieved in 1962, but it was the best he has done this year.

The 5,000-metre heats were won by Mohammed Gammoudi of Tunisia, who took the silver medal in the 10,000 metres, Michael Wiggs of Britain, Ron Clarke of Australia and Michel Jary of France. Clarke had the best time, 13:48.4.

Training Camp Opens Sunday

Gordie Bell To Coach Junior B Squad

Belleville Juniors, set to open training camp this Sunday, named their coach for the 1964-65 season as a meeting with the local press last night.

Team secretary Don Barclay disclosed that club president Gordie Bell will also double up as coach for the fast-approaching season.

The job will not be a new one for Bell. He coached the Junior McFarlands to the Ontario semi-finals three years ago. Bell took over as club president when the team lost its sponsor two years ago.

Fred Smith was also re-named team trainer.

GORDIE BELL

Other club officers, named earlier, are manager Jim Matthews and treasurer "Red" Mavety.

As was mentioned, the team will open its training program at Memorial Arena Sunday night at seven o'clock. Other practices scheduled are for Wednesday and the following Sunday, also at 7.00 p.m.

Bell said the workouts will be wide open and all interested players of the district are requested to turn out.

Barclay said he expects about 10 holdovers from last year's team, still of junior age, to turn out with the club.

The team will again be sponsored but the executive, with a new, improved deal with the arena, expects to be able to keep the club operating successfully with gate receipts and various fund-raising plans.

Barclay said advertising for the backs of 13 team sweaters has already been sold and he expects the others to be picked up shortly. This money will go towards repairing and replacing equipment.

The occasion will be a big one for local youngsters with a live saddled pony, bicycles and other prizes drawn for at the game. Tickets will be sold in blocks to various firms and persons, to distribute to children of their choice.

Belleville's home games in the seven-team Eastern Ontario Junior Hockey League will be played on Friday nights. Teams are Kingston, Peterborough, Gananoque, Belleville, Picton, Napanee and Trenton.

The league schedule is expected to open around the middle of November.

Bell and the remainder of the executive expressed confidence that the club will enjoy a "good year" from all viewpoints.

Gibson Was Hero Of Series

By MIKE RECHT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Right-hander Bob Gibson is a former pro basketball player with Harlem Globetrotters who's still seldom serious—always ready with a quip.

"I hope you have a bad day," he grinned at New York Yankee starter Mel Stottlemyre, when photographers asked them to pose before Thursday's final World Series game.

But the tears took the field, it was a different Gibson with seriously intense tall man with a job to do.

The fireballing righthander kept the New Yorkers swinging wildly for five innings while his team-mates built up a 2-0 lead. And Gibson, who went 10 tough innings Monday in a 2-1 St. Louis Cardinals victory at New York, held on for the 7-5 edge Thursday that made the Redbirds world champions.

Gibson set the World Series strikeout record by fanning nine Yankees for a total of 31 in the series, breaking the mark of 28 set by W. H. Dineen in 1903 He was named the outstanding player in the series which won him a 1965 auto.

HAPPY AFTER

But afterward, Gibson was his usual self.

"It's nice to know I set a World Series strikeout record," he told reporters. "But I'd rather have the money."

He had a bottle of champagne in his hand and grinned between gulps.

He "threw his heart out for us," Cardinal manager Johnny Keane said.

"I'll tell you this," Gibson said. "I thought my stuff was better at the end than it was at the start."

Sport Slices...

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Canver, Sports Editor

They may have waited for the "Robert E. Lee" in the deep south during the old days, but the old stern-wheeler didn't get the reception the Memphis folks will give one Bobby Gibson when he returns from the series wars.

The tall Cardinals' hurler proved the hero of the series with his brilliant seventh-game mound performance despite the fact he gave up two solo homers in the last inning. He also broke the series strikeout record held by Sandy Koufax.

"We're from Missouri, you've gotta show us," taunted the doubting St. Louis fans after their rampaging Cardinals had snatched the National League pennant from the slipping clutches of the Phillies and Reds.

They hurled their defiance at the proud Yankees of the American League whose stretch drive had nosed out the favored Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox.

It was a rare instance in world series history. Seldom do the contenders meet at the peak of performance resulting from desperate efforts to throw off the hungry clutches of the "wolves at their withers."

The pennant drives extended into the bitter hard-fought world series which ended yesterday with wild paeans of triumph echoing across the wide Missouri plains and the sad march of Yogi Berra's Yankee cavalry back to the canyons of the Bronx.

It was the seventh time in world series history that St. Louis fans had the opportunity to let their hair down while those who didn't possess any tossed their wigs to the wildwinds.

It was a vastly different series to that of 1963 when the pitching arms of the Dodgers' Koufax, Drysdale and Podres mowed down the Yankee batters to grab the world series in four straight heats.

This was definitely not a "pitchers' series" despite the fact there were brilliant mound performances. King Hoss Bun dominated the seven-clash battle with the Ole Debbil Ernie riding herd in eleven instances in the Yankee gladiators.

There were solos, two-runs and three-runs homers, plus a record pair of grand slammers, one of which won for the Cards, the other consolidating a Yankee victory.

There were brilliant fielding plays by both clubs and while the Yankees, as was noted, came up with eleven bobbles as against three for the Cards, none could be classed as "boners." The series had not a few heroes but as far as this agent is concerned no single player emerged wearing the goathorns.

They should also place the laurel wreaths of heroes on the brows of Mickey Mantle for his record home-run (18) hitting; Tim McCarver for that win-producing three-run four-bagger that grabbed a tenth inning win after Tom Tresh's rewind-tripper had tied the score in the ninth and Ken Boyer for that socko-cleaning smash that gave the Cards a 5-4 triumph.

Not forgetting Bobby Richardson for his record-breaking series hits mark, with McCarver close behind, Lou Brock, Yankee first-sacker who forces an argumentative hassle almost as well as a homer, smashed out an anti-climactic grand-slammer which clinched the Bombers' third victory.

Why did Bob Gibson serve the Bronx sluggers "hit balls" in the ninth? McCarver gave away the strategy in the post-game dressing room interview.

"We told Bob," said the young catcher, "to let them hit if nobody was on. Don't walk anyone and put him on base so if the next batter bombs one it meant two runs instead of one. That's what he did."

And so the curtains falls on another world baseball classic, one that was strictly a fans' series. The purists like the softball-type where the pitcher practically dominates championship duels. The average fan of baseball likes the brand served to him this year, hits, runs, pitching, fielding, errors with the pendulum of victory swinging first one way, then the other.

What I would like to know is which one of the gods of fate decides which ticket one pulls in a pool. I'd like to shake him loose from his halo and toga. I drew four Yankee tickets when the Cards won—you figure out the rest.

Gibson Hurls Cards To Championship

By JOE REICHLER

ST. LOUIS (AP)—New York Yankees hit most of the home runs. St. Louis Cardinals got most of the timely hits.

The American League champions lost pitching ace Whitey Ford after the first game with an arm injury that was kept secret until the final game. The Cardinals' pitching ace, Bob Gibson, performed brilliantly in an iron-man role.

This, in a nutshell is why the Cardinals are the champions of baseball today after having won the seventh and final game of the World Series from the Yankees 7-5 Thursday.

This is why the Cardinals maintained their unblemished record of never having lost a full length World Series. It was their fifth such series victory, their seventh in 10 post season classics and their third in five head-to-head meetings with the Yankees.

CARDS CUT LOOSE

And how the victorious Cardinals and the near capacity crowd of 30,346 at Busch Stadium whooped it up after Gibson had ended the game by disposing of Bobby Richardson on a soft popup to second baseman Dal Maxvill.

It was the biggest day the city of St. Louis has enjoyed since they last won a pennant and a World Series in 1946.

All six previous games were wrapped up in Thursday's finale. As before, the Yankees hit more homers, made more errors, while the Cards got the timely hits and took advantage of the enemy's lapses.

The Yankees slammed three home runs, by Mickey Mantle, Clete Boyer and Phil Linz. But they committed two errors and were guilty of other loose play which does not show in the box score.

The Cardinals, on the other hand, hit two home runs—by Lou Brock and Ken Boyer—but erred only once and played daringly, aggressively and smartly. They out hit the Yankees by only 10 to nine, but turned seven of their hits into runs.

On the other hand, the Yankees failed to score in the first five innings although they had five base-runners against Gibson. They failed to take advantage of an error by shortstop Dick Groat that filled the bases in the second.

Mel Stottlemyre, the young rookie right-hander, also working with just two days' rest, kept pace with Gibson for three innings. In the fourth, however he was betrayed by a teammate and the Cardinals quickly took advantage to pile up a 3-0 lead.

There were runners on first and second with nobody out when McCarver hit a potential double play grounder to Joe Pepitone. The first baseman's throw to Linz forced Groat but the shortstop's relay sailed past Pepitone and Boyer scored on the error.

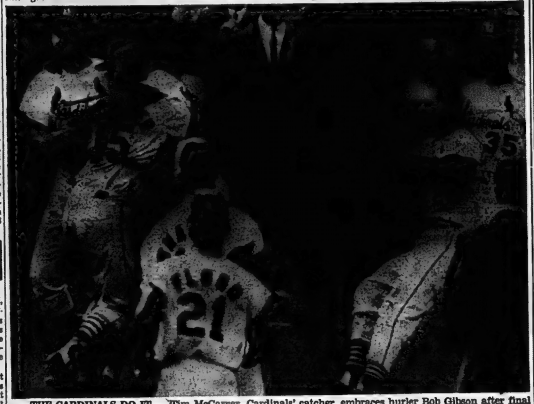
Mike Shannon followed with a single and there were runners on first and third with one out.

Then came the play that proved to be the turning point of the game. With Maxvill at bat, the Cards successfully pulled off a double steal, McCarver scoring. A pair of errant throws by catcher Elston Howard and second baseman Richardson made the daring play work. It also put Shannon in position to score the third run on a single by Maxvill.

ADDED THREE MORE

The Cards stretched their lead to 6-0 in the fifth. South paw Al Downing had replaced Stottlemyre by then and was routed in a hurry. He made only four pitches. Brock hit the first one for a home run. Bill White slammed the second for a single and Boyer drove Downing's second service to him for a double.

Mantle's homer with two mates aboard in the sixth cut the Cards' margin to 6-3 but St. Louis added another in the seventh on Boyer's third of the game, his second homer of the series.



Home runs by Clete Boyer and Linz in the ninth merely tightened the score. The game ended when Richardson whose two hits had increased his career total to 12, a series record, popped meekly to Maxvill.

It was the second victory in three attempts for Gibson, who struck out nine to increase his series total to 31, another record.

In the seven games, the Yankees outhomered the Cardinals, 10 to five but also outerrored them, nine to three. On the other hand, young McCarver performed faultlessly behind the plate and led all the hitters with a .478 batting average on 11 hits, including a game-winning home run, in 23 times at bat.

In The Dressing Rooms

By TOM PENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS (AP)—St. Louis Cardinals celebrated their first World Series championship in 18 years with champagne and sweat Thursday, and New York Yankees met the press like winners.

"What are my plans for the future?" mused Cardinal manager Johnny Keane, whose job had been reported in jeopardy near the end of the Cards' surprising season.

BOB GIBSON

"Right now, I just want to keep my future limited this afternoon to the sight of my ball players enjoying all this."

Yankee manager Yogi Berra praised Cardinal righthander Bob Gibson, whose nine strikeouts gave him 31 for a Series record.

"Gibson surprised us with his stamina," Yogi said. "He had that good fast ball."

"They're (St. Louis) a fine ball club," added Mickey Mantle, whose three-run homer in the sixth cut the Cards' lead to 6-3.

"Gibson pitched his heart out for us," said Keane.

'GOOD START'

"He got us a real good start and that's why I left him in when I saw how strong he was going and how courageously he was throwing."

Gibson, who was named the Series' most outstanding player because of his 2-1 record, said:

"It's nice to know I set a World Series strikeout record, but I'd rather have the money.

"I thought my stuff was faster at the end than it was at the start," Gibson said. "The pitches the Yanks hit for homers in the ninth inning were good fast balls."

Clete Boyer hammered a fast ball into the left field bleachers and Phil Linz drove a high hitter, smashed another to left for the ninth innings' second homer.

'GO WITH YOUR BEST'

"We had a big lead then," Gibson explained. "At times like that you go with your best, which in my case is the fast ball. You throw it hard and over the plate, daring them to swing at it.

The Cardinals did some home run hitting, too.

"Didn't little Lou Brock hammer that ball!" Gibson asked of the leftfielder's solo blast to open the three-run fifth.

"It seemed like everything went wrong," said Mantle, whose home run—his third in the series—set a new record. "I think we could have played better than we did. But I don't want to take anything away from the Cardinals. They're a fine ball club."

Leafs Down Wings In Opener

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Red Wings can't get the better of the Maple Leafs, even with Ted Lindsay.

Detroit and Toronto battled throughout last season for third place in the National Hockey League and the Leafs came out on top.

Then they met in the Stanley Cup finals, but for the second year in a row Toronto beat them for the silverware.

The teams faced each other Thursday night in Detroit and, despite a record crowd of 14,553 and the return of Lindsay after four years in retirement, the result was the same. The Leafs won 5-3.

Hired muscle — course Bob Pulford provided the ammunition for the Leafs, setting up Tim Horton for the winning goal in the second period and clinching the win in the third when he scored while killing a Toronto penalty.

The teams battled to a 2-2 tie in the wide-open first period Toronto held the upper hand with a 3-1 lead until the Wings capitalized on a rash of penalties for two power-play goals within 68 seconds.

KARNS 2 ASSISTS

Andy Bathgate, Dave Keon and Red Kelly, just returned from a government assignment at the Tokyo Olympics, scored for Toronto in the first period. Defenceman Kent Douglas earned three assists, two in the opening frame and one on Pulford's goal in the third.

Albert Langlois scored first for the Wings on a rink - to - dash. Floyd Smith narrowed the Leafs' margin while Billy Harris and Bathgate sat out penalties and Ron Murphy tied it up with Smith still in the box.

It was the first game of the season for both clubs and Toronto ended into a four-way tie for first place with Montreal, Chicago and New York. All have two points each.

The Big Seven

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Keni Douglas, a victim of the National Hockey League's legendary sophomore jinx last season, already appears headed for a better campaign in his third year.

The youthful Toronto Maple Leafs defenceman, rookie of the year in 1955-56, managed only one assist in 45 games in the NHL last season and spent a good part of the year in the minors. It may have been what the doctor ordered.

Douglas tripled last season's production Thursday night with three assists as the Leafs clamped Detroit 5-3 in the opening game of the schedule for both teams.

His output launched him into a tie with New York's Don Marshall for the early lead in the NHL scoring race. One point behind were nine players tied for second with two points each.

The leaders:

Marshall, New York	1	2	3
Douglas, Toronto	0	3	3

Lions Put Bill Frank On Block

VANCOUVER (CP)—Big Bill Frank is on the trading block, but Dave Skrien says he won't go cheaply.

Skrien, head coach of British Columbia Lions of the Western Football Conference, says Frank is through with his club as a result of his latest escapade.

The tackle, termed by the Lions as one of the toughest men in the league, was reported to have engaged in a public brawl with teammate end Pat Claridge. Frank, an American born in Denver, had a five-year contract.

Skrien, in an interview, said he would consider trading Frank to either Calgary or Saskatchewan, even though both teams are title contenders. "Sure, I'd trade Frank to Calgary for Jim Dillard," he said.

Dillard, a Calgary Stampeders halfback, is on the injury reserve list but is expected to return to action in a week.

Aces Win Five In Row

QUEBEC (CP) — Taking their fifth American Hockey League win without a loss, Quebec Aces had to hang on Thursday night to defeat Hershey Bears 4-3 before 4,991 fans.

Leon Rochefort, John Hanna, Don Blackburn and Wayne Hicks scored for the Aces. Michel Harvey, Wayne Rivers and Gene Uniacke got the Hershey goals.

Aces counted twice in the first period, did it again in the second and were ahead 4-0 when Harvey scored Hershey's first goal, catching the corner cleanly late in the period.

Bears roared back in the third, Rivers scoring early from a scramble and Uniacke, with Hershey a man short, breaking away and drawing Aces netminder Lorne (Gump) Worsley out of the net.

FORD WON'T COACH

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Manager Yogi Berra confirmed an earlier Associated Press report Thursday that Whitey Ford, the New York Yankees' star lefthander and pitching coach, would not perform the coaching role next year. At the same time, Berra revealed that Ford has been nursing an ulnag left arm since the opening game of the World Series.

Plunges Into Water Sets Record Of 526.26

That's how Craig Breedlove greeted reporters Thursday after he had gone faster on wheels than anyone ever had before, then sped spectacularly out of control for eight miles, landing in 18 feet of water.

He swam 15 feet to safety "I kissed him good-bye," said associate. "My heart dropped to my stomach."

But Breedlove was not hurt, and he had set a world land speed record of 526.26 miles an hour. His top speed during the two-way run over a one - mile salt track was 580.9, considerably faster than any man ever travelled on wheels before.

The car he used is a dart-shaped three-wheeled vehicle called the Spirit of America. It is powered by a 7-67 jet engine and has been classified as a special kind of motorcycle, as well as a car.

RELEASES 'CHUTE

Coming out of the record run and going well over 300, the 26-year-old Los Angeles driver released one of the parachutes that are supposed to help stop his 24-foot car.

"It ripped to shreds, I was going so fast," he said. "I coasted a couple of miles before trying the second 'chute, but it was still too fast. It also ripped to shreds."

He next tried the brakes, but they failed too.

Breedlove estimated he was still going 300 miles an hour when he left the end of the 10-mile track, five miles from where he tried the first parachute.

The car went another three miles, bit two telephone poles ("making match sticks out of one," said Breedlove), ploughed sideways into a dike, flipped 30 feet in the air, and came down in 12 feet of water.

Spahn Turns Down Jobs

MILWAUKEE (AP) — General manager John McHale announced Thursday that Milwaukee Braves' great lefthander, Warren Spahn, rejected three non-playing jobs with the organization next season.

McHale quoted the 42-year-old Spahn as saying he feels he can still win as a starting pitcher in the major leagues and eventually could be a major league manager.

McHale said Spahn was given his choice of becoming commentator on radio and television, pitching coach of the Braves' minor league system or manager of one of the Braves Triple A farm clubs.

Spahn, who has had 13 20-game seasons, had a 5-13 record in 1964.

'How About That' 'Do Dai' Says Japanese

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP) — Take six television sets. Add a half-dozen Japanese interpreters. Invite over two friends. That gives you one eye per screen.

Now you're set to watch the Olympic Games in Tokyo.

It's just about the only way, what with the boys and girls rowing and throwing, splashing and clashing in 15 or 20 different sports at the same time, in places as much as 100 miles apart.

And that's 100 kilometers, or 12,260 bubo, a Japanese form of measurement arrived at by placing sumo wrestlers end to end and dividing by two.

Of course, if you insist on watching the games in person, you can adopt one of two approaches. One is tedious. The other is impossible.

ONE IS TIRESOME

The tiresome one is to pick out one sport and stick with it until they snuff out the flame on Oct. 24. The trouble is that you are going to see a awful lot of Iranians doing the double kayak with oars.

That's because in the Olympics the first 10 days seem to be devoted to cutting the fields down to a size where they have enough numbers to go around.

Take basketball, which is more than the sports fans of Japan will do. In fact, judging from the crowds at the games so far they had to ask for volunteers to get anybody to watch basketball.

The ones they have collected don't have a clue. Mostly they just giggle at the seven footers.

Anyway, the United States and Russia are going to play for the basketball gold medal late next week, and until then a man at courtside is sentenced to 14 hours a day of Hungarians double dribbling.

Then there is the variety approach. A fellow starts out early in the day determined to see a little of everything. IT'S IMPOSSIBLE.

That is, impossible. He has to make his way by car from one place to another, and it is not easy to park in Tokyo.

The result is he is always arriving breathless just as the swimmers are towelling off or the gymnasts are polishing the side horses away.

So it's back to the television. Luckily, Tokyo has six channels filled with fun and games during the Olympics.

Unluckily, the commentary is in Japanese, but the announcers get all worked up and it's easy to tell when something important is coming up.

"How about that," for example, comes out: "Do dai!"

Juniors Tie

BCI Srs. Crush Napanee

By DAVID TEMPLER

BCI's Senior Collegians trounced Napanee 27-0 on Thursday at Napanee in Bay of Quinte COSSA "A" football action.

Napanee Juniors came from behind and scored two touchdowns in the final quarter to split the 16-18 decision with B.C.I.

BCI got a break in the first quarter when a fumble gave the ball to them on the 17-yard line. On third down, a 67-yard punt by Walsh drove Napanee back to their own 25. Six plays later, Walsh booted the ball from the 45 beyond the end zone for the automatic tpuge.

With three minutes remaining in the first quarter Bill Hallam lofted a pass to Allan Mott from the 40 to the 15.

Napanee, led by Arnold Marks red-dogged Hallam for a 15 yard loss but BCI's Walsh, on third down, faked a punt and went 30 yards around the near side for the touchdown.

A face-guard penalty and a profanity penalty against Napanee gave BCI the ball on the 50-yard line. Walsh went left for 16 and a first down. Bill Hallam carried for a first on the 27. Hallam hit Allan Mott in the end zone for the major.

In the third quarter Hallam again clicked for BCI with Mott receiving to the 32. Walsh grabbed his second major when Helm hit him in the end zone on a 32-yard pass.

In the fourth quarter a blocked kick gave BCI the advantage. Mott caught a long pass from Hallam but was pulled down on the five yard line. Kirk Lightfoot ground out four and then went over the centre for the touchdown.

Jim Mairs played a solid defensive game for BCI.

For Napanee Don Forbes played well both ways.

JUNIOR GAME

In the second quarter Peter Helm went over for BCI's second major.

In the third quarter Jim McCreary went around the short side for six yards and a touchdown.

Canadian Press Sports Editor

The Americans were pulling away from Russia in the battle for gold medals, and the Russians were losing in events they were favored to win. The U.S. had 19 gold medals, the Russians eight.

The U.S. won gold medals in the women's 800-metre dash and men's 400-metre hurdles, two of the five events on the track and field program today, and the Americans added two more swimming championships to bring their swimming total to nine.

Crothers couldn't catch New Zealand's Peter Snell in the men's 800-met.e final despite a determined closing bid, and the defending Olympic champion crossed the finish line in the fastest Olympic time ever.

The silver gave Canada a total of three medals in the Games so far—one gold in rowing, a silver and a bronze in track. And Harry Jerome of Vancouver will try for his second medal in the long sprint. Jerome won both his heats in the 200-metre dash today and advanced to the semi-finals Saturday. He got the bronze Thursday, coming in third in the 100-metre dash.

By JOE DUPUIS

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of 16 rabid football fans here would like nothing better than to make Toronto and Vancouver look like bush - leaguers when it comes to staging a Grey Cup festival.

The 16 make up Montreal Football Festivals Inc., an organization that will be directly concerned with putting on the annual fall spectacle next year.

Montreal will be host to the Grey Cup game for the first time in 1965—when it hopes to have a new 40,000-seat stadium ready—and Festivals is determined to make it a memorable event.

"Some of the ideas we are kicking around now seem pretty far out at this stage," says Pierre Dupont, an engineer who acts as the group's public relations man.

"But we are determined to make this festival different, and greater, than any that went before it. For example, we're thinking of developing something aimed at the guy who can't get tickets to the game. We want to give him something that will make him want to get into the spirit of things.

"Of course, we'll have the usual street parade, beauty pageant and Grey Cup banquet. But we'll embellish that, too."

FLOATS FOR TORONTO

At the moment, Festivals is chiefly concerned with getting Montreal represented in this year's Grey Cup parade in Toronto "to show how keen we are."

They have blitzed industries and businessmen to enter floats in the parade. A strong sales pitch has gone out to city fathers for a Montreal City float.

"We're sure of two big floats for Toronto," says Dupont. "We have a 50-50 chance of getting two others. And there'll be more."

One of the floats will represent the Montreal Junior Chamber of Commerce, the group M. E. (Ted) Workman, owner of the Montreal Alouettes, approached last year to help him stage Grey Cup '63 in Montreal.

A JC committee of four investigated the possibilities. Its report resulted in the formation of Festivals a few weeks ago.

All 16 Festivals directors are unpaid volunteers.

The president is Louis Raymond Daoust, an industrial teacher. Vice-president is hotel manager John Schofield while Keith Price, an accountant, is treasurer. Lawyer Hart Margolian is secretary.

They meet frequently to thrash out ideas, and plan more fund-raising blitzes. An immediate problem: How to raise $2,000 to send the Alouette band and Larkettes, the Alouette girl dancers, to the Toronto classic.

Consultations have been held with Grey Cup committees in Toronto and Vancouver where previous cups have been staged.

"We lack in experience," says Dupont. "But we make up for it in eagerness."

Leads Palmer, Nicklaus

Sikes Leads Sahara Golf

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Rookie professional Dick Sikes, two-time U.S. public links champion and 1963 U.S. collegiate title winner, led the way with a 62 through the first round of the $70,000 Sahara Invitational golf tournament Thursday.

Breaking the Paradise Valley Country Club record by two strokes, the 24-year-old Sikes toured the 7,069 yard swith a 32-30—62 to lead the field by three strokes. Far is 36-35—71.

Palmer was deadlocked at 67 with George Bayer and Tommy Jacobs. Palmer did the job in 33-34.

Nicklaus had 35-35—70. Venturi settled for even par with 36-36 and Lema had 37-35—72.

Leading the five Canadians in the tournament was Stan Leonard of Vancouver who fired 37-33 for a 69. He was followed by Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., with a 71 on rounds of 36-35.

Al Balding of Toronto shot 39-36—75, Al Johnston of Montreal had 39-37—76 and George Knudson of Toronto came in with 38-39—77.

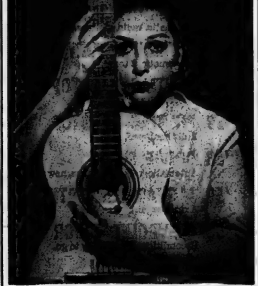
Horseman Fights Club Charge

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Waples of Victoria Harbor applied Thursday for a court order of prohibition to prevent the Ontario Commission from proceeding with a charge that he drove his horse contrary to the public interest in a harness race at Greenwood Raceway here.



The Canadian Trotting Association suspended Waples indefinitely in September, charging him with affecting the outcome of a harness race at Greenwood Aug. 4.

Waples appealed the charge to the commission Oct. 1. The appeal was upheld, but the commission started to lay the public interest charge on the basis of Waples's performance in the sixth race the same day. The application for an order of prohibition to stop the new charge will be heard before the presiding judge in chambers at Osgoode Hall Oct. 27.

Clarence (Shorty) Lockhart of Collingwood, Ont., suspended with Waples by the association on a similar charge also appealed to the commission Oct. 1. The appeal was upheld, but he was suspended for a year on a public interest charge in connection with betting on a horse Aug. 5.

Braves To Study Proposals

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Atlanta officials have offered Milwaukee Braves a 25-year lease on the southern city's new $18,000,000 Civic Stadium, Braves board chairman William C. Bartholomay said Thursday night.

"Whatever team goes there is going for a long time," he said.

But the Braves have no firm offer or a broadcast package from potential sponsors, and widely circulated reports of a $7,500,000 million five-year offer "is wild," Bartholomay added.

The Atlanta proposals will be put before a Braves board meeting next week along with Milwaukee's proposal for increasing the National League club's revenues by about $250,000 annually if it decides to stay in Milwaukee, he added.

If the decision is to move, the Milwaukee County corporation counsel's office is prepared to file legal action alleging breach of contract "any day, at any time, within an hour," at the direction of the county board, which leased Milwaukee County Stadium to the club for a three-year period extending through next year.

Bartholomay said that the ownership group was convinced that an attendance of 1,000,000 per season was the maximum potential for Milwaukee at this time, despite the club's 2,000,000-plus records of the mid-1950s, and it "couldn't come out ahead with 1,000,000 in attendance and run a contending club."

SEEK WAIVERS

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago White Sox, who missed the American League pennant by one game, asked waivers for unconditional release of veteran relief pitcher Don Mossi and bought a minor league catcher Thursday. Troubled by weak hitting catching, the Sox purchased catcher Sid Hudson, 22, from Arkansas, Little Rock of the Pacific Coast League for an undisclosed sum.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A daily double of $424.80, the biggest of the four-night-old meeting, was posted at the Western Fair Raceway here Thursday night when only nine $2 tickets and one $5 ticket were sold on the winning combination of Whisky Pat and H A Milton.

Whisky Pat paid $26.30 in the first and H A Milton grabbed the second at $23.70.

The three-year-old colt Chief Saint captured the featured race of the evening, a preferred pace for a purse of $1,000. Chief Saint boosted his earnings for the year to $9,070 and, somewhat overlooked-in-the ballyhoo, paid $14.60 for the win.

He went the distance in 2:05 3-5, the fastest mile of the night.

Only One Program of 29 Listed in 1948 Survives

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC had a weekly prime-time hour of chamber music. CBS featured Captain Billy's Mississippi Music Hall and NBC was going with Barney Blake, Police Reporter.

These shows were included in the evening schedules of the three major networks in 1948, when television sets were few.

An industry publication, Television Magazine, currently lists all the program titles that have come and gone — more than 1,000—since 1946. The listing shows the high mortality rate of TV shows of the 29 programs listed for 1948 only one has survived: The Ed Sullivan Show. Today's prime - time network shows total almost 100

It also indicates show castly one forgets. Does anyone, for instance, remember CBS' Riddle Me This?

Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts was a hit of the year. The Texaco Star Theatre and Milton Berle show on CBS had its Ford Theatre and NBC its Kraft Theatre and Philco Playhouse, each specialized in original scripts.

Recommended weekend viewing:

Tonight — Bob Hope Theatre, NBC 8:30-9:30 p.m. EDT—comedy-drama, Have Girls; Will Travel.

Saturday — Olympic Games special, NBC, 5-7 p.m.

Sunday — The Fantastiks, NBC 10-11 p.m.

LESAGE PLANE TRIP

OTTAWA (CP) — Premier Lesage said Thursday he will leave Oct. 20 for a three-week trip to France, Italy, Belgium and Greece. He gave few details, but a Quebec government source said he plans to meet President de Gaulle and Premier Georges Pompidou of France.

AT THE PARK — Hassen (Tab Hunter), intrepid young adventurer of a Damascus turn by strife, abducts the beautiful Princess Jamila (Rossana Podesta) in one of the action-filled scenes of "The Golden Arrow", showing today and Saturday at the Park Theatre. The new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release, filmed in color on locations in Egypt, features all sorts of fascinating marvels, including the clash of two armies riding on flying carpets! On the same program is color, "Rhino" starring Harry Guardino, Shirley Eaton and Robert Culp. Tonight complete shows 7.00 and 8.45 p.m. Continuous Saturday from 1.00 p.m.

Only A Whisper "The Second Guessers"

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The second guessers association had only a feeble whisper after St. Louis Cardinals won the World Series by beating New York Yankees 7-5 in the seventh game Thursday.

They questioned Yogi Berra's choice of Al Downing as his first Yankee relief pitcher in the fifth inning after starter Mel Stottlemyre had been taken out for a pinch-hitter with the score 3-0 against him.

Downing, ineffective in a relief role in the first game and victim of Ken Boyer's grand slam homer in the fourth game Sunday, threw only four pitches in the fifth inning. The Cardinals hit him for Lou Brock's home run, Bill White's single and Ken Boyer's double before Berra switched to Roland Sheldon.

Yogi followed the book, calling for a lefty to face two strong lefthanded hitters, Brock and White. But the book didn't work this time.

Sheldon finally put out the fire but not before both White and Boyer had scored.

White came in while Dick Groat, was grounding out. Boyer scored on Tim McCarver's sacrifice fly to Mickey Mantle in right field. Mantle's throw was off line and catcher Elston Howard, trying desperately to catch the ball and jump for the plate at the same time, let it get through him.

As it turned out those three runs put Bob Gibson out of reach, although the Yanks came back with three in the ninth on Mantle's three - run homer and two more in the ninth on solo homers by Clete Boyer and Phil Linz.

The Tracks

WOODBINE (CP) —Jockey Nick Shuk gave one of the finest riding displays of Woodbine's autumn meeting Thursday, riding two horses to victory and finishing second twice. He rode six times.

Shuk, long a favorite in Maryland, where he reigned as leading rider for eight years, got to the winner's enclosure of the first time with Larkin Maloney's Lucky Deal, in the third.

After finishing second in the fourth, Shuk won the fifth with Jamie Did, for Sam Comolle and trainer Walter Woods.

The combination of trainer Carl Chapman and Shuk struck again in the featured seventh. Shuk drove Swerve to Victory over Royal Start in this six furlong sprint.

Clair Says Club Needs Ferocity

OTTAWA (CP) — Ferocity — that's what Ottawa Rough Riders need, says head coach Frank Clair.

"I hope we'll come back with a more ferocious attitude Saturday," he said, referring to the return engagement with Hamilton Tiger-Cats here Saturday afternoon in an Eastern Football Conference game. Ottawa and Hamilton are locked in first place.

The other EFC game this weekend will be the last chance for Toronto Argonauts to keep the playoff hopes alive. Third-place Montreal Alouettes, with a suddenly potent pass attack, invade Toronto Sunday.

The Larks now hold a four-point lead over the last-place Argos, and with only two games to go after Sunday's date, or tie would eliminate the Argos.

A tie would leave Argos four points back, and even though they could tie Montreal on points, the Larks would get the playoff berth on the strength of two previous wins in games between the two clubs.

Ottawa coaches Clair, Bill Smyth and Don Stanby gave Riders a thorough chewing-out after their 23-1 humiliation by Tiger-Cats at Hamilton Thanksgiving Day.

Clair said Riders made mistakes because they didn't play tough enough.

"We might be out-manned this Saturday but we won't be out-socked like we were on Monday, I can tell you that," Clair said.

Grade 13 Papers In Languages To Be Combined

TORONTO (CP)—All Ontario grade 13 final examinations in languages will be single three-hour papers next June instead of separate papers on literature and composition as in the past.

Education Minister William Davis announced Thursday the new rule will apply to English and will as it spreads to other languages. Students who have credit in either the literature or composition sections of a language and are rewriting the other will be required to pass both the new combined exam.

Botany and zoology will re-main separate in 1965 but the two papers will be combined in a single biology examination.

Two Men Share Nobel Prize For Medicine

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—The Nobel Prize for medicine was awarded Thursday to a Germanborn American chemistry professor at Harvard University and a West German scientist.

The joint award was the second 1964 Nobel Prize won by an American. American Negro integrationist leader Dr. Martin Luther King was awarded the peace prize Wednesday.

Professor Konrad Bloch, 52, a naturalized American citizen, professor Feodor Lynen, 53, who works in Munich, will share the 272,00 - crown (about $53,000) award for their discoveries in the battle against circulatory diseases. Bloch emigrated to the United States in 1936.

Sweden's Caroline Institute, which made the joint award, said Bloch and his Harvard collaborators had shown how cholesterol, a vital ingredient in the living human cell, was built up in a series of "brilliant investigations."

The institute said Lynen had recently made a discovery with "the most far-reaching implications" in the mechanism, by which the vitamin biotin reacts in the cell.

Medical experts said both men's work has an important bearing on establishing new disorders of the blood stream and the arteries come about.

Lynen will be awarded after Dr. Alfred Nobel, a 19th-century Swedish munitions maker and inventor of dynamite. Nobel originally set up the fund bearing his name.

SHAPING THE EARTH

SUBMARINE VOLCANOES occasionally become active. In the Pacific Ocean, some mountains are AMBLE small, but the peaks are still 2-3 miles below the surface. The illustration shows part of the ocean bottom Southwest of the Hawaiian Islands. Several mountains EXIST in the North Atlantic, but only a small few in its southern waters.

Thin Majority Won't Deter Wilson

Will Not Affect Ability To Govern Nation

Cabinet Selections Bring No Surprises

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Harold Wilson has served notice he will drive forward with his program despite the thin parliamentary majority of his new Labor government.

Wilson, 48, promised the names of new cabinet members today as he took over at 100 Downing Street and immediately tackled Britain's economic problems.

Addressing the nation on television a few hours later, Wilson referred to his small majority in the House of Commons and declared:

"I want to make it quite clear that this will not affect our ability to govern. Having been charged with the duties of government, we intend to carry out those duties.

With only one constituency unreported from Thursday's general election, it appeared Wilson would have only a four-member majority over the Tories and the Liberals in the 630-member Commons.

The standing:

Labor	1964 1959 317 258
Conservative	303 365
Liberal	9 6
Independent	— 1
Unreported	1 —
Total	630 630

Creating a distinct atmosphere of vigor, Wilson appointed seven cabinet members — there were no surprises — Friday night and promised early additions.

Perhaps the most significant appointment was to the key economic field with Wilson naming George Brown, 50, deputy leader of the Labor party, as first secretary of state in charge of the new ministry of economic affairs.

Wilson accorded Brown the added distinction of being set-

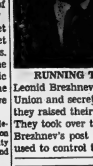
India Is Dismayed By Move

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — Teeming India, already a victim of Chinese aggression, and Japan, twice on the receiving end of atomic bombs, reacted with dismay today to the detonation of China's first nuclear device.

The blast — propelling the militant Peking government into the world's exclusive nuclear club — took place Friday in western China.



President Johnson confirmed in Washington that the Chinese detonated a "low yield" nuclear test and said "its military significance should not be overestimated." He added there is no reason to fear that the Chinese development "could lead to immediate danger of war."

Later, in Cincinnati, he said in an election speech:

"This is a sad day for the Chinese people and one of the saddest hours in the history of the world."

State secretary Dean Rusk said that there is no need for any readjustment of defence and security plans in the Far East.

John Lewis finishes 9th, Breaks Record

John Lewis did not win a medal at the Olympics yesterday, but he established a new Canadian record in the mid-heavy weightlifting division.

Lewis finished ninth with a total lift of 968 pounds, beating his former Canadian mark of 960 set at the Pan American Games.

It was a highly creditable performance for the Belleville youngster in competition with the world's best.

His coach Ken Carr-Brant, owner of the Belleville Apollo Barbell Club, was delighted with Lewis' showing.

"This is tremendous," he said. "John gave all he had and we are proud of him. Competing against world champions was a tremendous nervous strain but he came through handsomely."

Here is what Lewis was up against.

The gold medal was won by Vladimir Golovanof of Russia who set the world record with a total lift of 1,072½ pounds.

Louis Martin of Britain who set the former world mark of 1,056 was second with 1,045 pounds. Ireneus Paliiski of Poland took the bronze medal, who topped the Olympics record of 1,039 pounds.

Lewis came through handsomely in his first Olympics test and the city is proud of him.

Waiting to greet him is a new son, Wayne Godfrey, 7 pounds 12 ounces, who was born on Thursday.

Seven Canadians won prizes of $150,000 each as Hasty Cloud romped home to win the Cambridgeshire race at Newmarket's Newmarket.

Four Canadians won prizes of $60,000 with tickets on the second-place Commander-in-Chief, and four won prizes of $30,000 with tickets on Barwin, who finished third.

A record number of Irish Sweepstakes ticket holders in the Quinte district failed to score a major money win.

A Bellevillian drew a ticket on Irish Rhythm. Tickets were held by two Frankford residents on Napina and Martletta. In Deseronto and Hastings hope was pinned on Owen Davis by two other Hastings holders. A Trenton resident held a ticket on Miles Away.

It was the first time on known record that so many tickets had been drawn locally in the same mammoth sweepstakes or horses who ran out of the money today win prizes based on the total amount of the pool — usually about $1,100 each.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis — Fine warm weather will prevail over the greater part of the province this morning. Somewhat cooler air from the Pacific has completed its thrust across the Prairies and is moving eastward across the upper lakes but this air mass is relatively warm compared to the cold outbreaks from the Northwest Territories experienced earlier in the month. Meanwhile, tropical storm Isbell, wandering around in South Carolina, is expected to pull off to the northeast later today. It is not expected to come more than some 300 kilometres in southern Ontario and may actually inhibit the approach of the cooler air from Northern Ontario on Sunday.

ing segments of British industry under closer government control.

With Britain's trade gap widening and the prospect of the world becoming uneasy about investing in a country under socialist rule, the 48 - year - old leader may have to take some drastic steps to narrow the gap and offset the possible decline in the rate of foreign investment in Britain.

The Conservative Evening Standard, in a front-page story, says a higher central bank interest rate, increased borrowings from the International Monetary Fund and perhaps even import controls may have to be given serious consideration by the British faced another month of disappointing trade.

House Now Ahead Of Schedule

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Better-than-expected progress with the legislative program in the last two weeks has resulted in a speed-up in plans for dealing with the government's redistribution bill, reliable sources said Friday.

The redistribution measure will come up for debate Tuesday, a week ahead of the anticipated resumption of debate on the measure to have a special commission on each province draw new boundaries for parliamentary constituencies.

Privy Council President Mc Ilrath, acting House leader, announced the change in the Commons Friday.

But because of the illness of Transport Minister Pickersgill, who has had a period in hospital and at home with the after-math of influenza, the redistribution measure will be piloted through the Commons by Labor Minister MacEachen. Mr. Pickersgill isn't expected back in the House until Oct. 26.

The redistribution bill is one of the major pieces of legislation in removing from the hands of Commons committees the task of drawing new electoral boundaries reflecting changes in population.

The constitution requires that parliamentary seats be redistributed after each decennial census but two elections since the 1951 census helped stall earlier efforts to set up independent redistribution machinery.

The current bill had been shelved after it ran into difficulties in the Commons last spring. However, these now are reported to have been smoothed out by informal negotiations among the parties.

Although the earlier difficulties involving apportionment of commission members and flexibility in size of constituencies appear to have been solved, there were signs of new problems.

Being drawn as a starting point for the proposed redistribution commissions are:

Gilles Gregoire (Creditiste — Lapointe) has called for staff-ing each commission with experts familiar with geographical and other conditions in each province. However, he could give no indication of whether the Creditistes will delay the redistribution bill in pursuit of this objective.

Did Not Like Presence of Roy At Reception

QUEBEC (CP) — A former member of the legislative assembly known for his Quebec nationalist views protested Friday against the presence of the Roman Catholic archbishop of Quebec City at ceremonies marking the arrival of the Queen in the provincial capital.

Rene Chaloult, a Roman Catholic who has not been politically active for the last eight years, said in a statement that archbishop Maurice Roy's presence "would not have been so serious in its consequences if just one man were involved.

"But it's a whole doctrine that has been directly discredited."

Msgr. Roy, who also is the primate of the Roman Catholic church in Canada, returned to Quebec City from the Vatican Wednesday and will help greet the Queen and to assist in ceremonies honoring the 50th anniversary of the Royal 22nd Regiment.

Mr. Chaloult said the archbishop came back "to render homage at the feet of Elizabeth."

The former assembly member said this journey "results in a 300-year-old tradition of loyalty which remains suspect."

Sisters Found Guilty of Slaying 80 Girls in White Slave Ring

The sisters, Delfina Gonzalez Valenzuela, 58, and Maria de Jesus Gonzalez Valenzuela, 39, were given the maximum sentence, 40 years in prison.

Several hundred persons gathered in front of the court house in the small, isolated town Friday as Judge Timoteo Lozano pronounced his verdict. The trial began last January and brought forth details of starvation, beatings and death. Hundreds of other persons were convicted of being members of the ring and given sentences ranging from one to 25 years.

The prosecution contended the ring had been operating for at least 15 years and the girls who were slain had tried to resist discipline.

The Gonzalez Valenzuela sisters admitted operating houses of prostitution but denied guilt in the deaths.

The accused said they would appeal.

The ring's activities came to light last January when police raided a nearby ranch allegedly used as its disciplinary centre, and found more than a dozen girls, most of them teen-agers.

The girls told police of disappearances of friends. Bodies were found in crude graves at a former house of prostitution in San Francisco del Rincon.

As the investigation spread, bodies and bones were found in several other towns.

At least 21 bodies had been discovered by the time the trial began.

Included in the judge's verdict was an order that the indemnification totalling $67,209 to relatives of the victims.

Seven Years For Criminal Negligence

GUELPH (CP) — Ronald McEachern, 23, of Acton, Ont., was sentenced Friday to seven years in Kingston Penitentiary on a charge of criminal negligence causing death.

McEachern told Chief Justice G. A. Gale of the Ontario High Court that he had been drinking prior to the death of Guelph Police Constable Eric MacAulay April 4 and he had a lapse of memory.

Pravda Blasts 'Hare-Brained Scheming, Brags'

Held Responsible For Economy Failures

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP) — The first bill of indictment issued against Nikita Khrushchev suggests that personality played a big part in the downfall of the flamboyant Soviet leader.

An editorial in the Communist party newspaper Pravda today sets out some reasons for the decision to relieve Khrushchev as premier and Communist party first secretary.

The editorial does not name Khrushchev but clearly refers to him when it denounces "cult of personality" and "subjectivism and drifting in Communist construction."

"Hare-brained scheming, immature conclusions and hasty decisions and actions divorced from reality, bragging and phrase - mongering, command-ism and unwillingness to take into account the achievements of science and practical experience" are alien to the party.

The editorial, regarded as both a limited policy statement and a bill of particulars against the 70-year-old Khrushchev, indicates nevertheless that the new Kremlin leaders will go ahead with the Soviet plan to call a conference of world Communist parties.

There had been speculation in the aftermath of the power shift that the meeting might be called off as a gesture of reconciliation toward China, which has bitterly assailed it and declared that China will not be represented.

Ostensible purpose of the conference is to patch up Soviet-Chinese differences and restore unity to the world Communist movement.

In praising the principle of collective leadership and assailing a personality cult is allen to communism, it suggests that one of the factors in the party's decision to remove Khrushchev as first secretary and the decision of the Supreme Soviets to name him as premier was Khrushchev's overwhelming dominance of the Russian scene.

He was thus tarred with the same brush that he used on Stalin in the days when Khrushchev was denouncing the late dictator for fostering a personality cult.

The import of the editorial is that domestic considerations played a major role in the fall of Khrushchev.

Measure Talked Out

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Nicholson indicated in the Commons Friday that the government is considering an amendment to the Criminal Code to fight mail distribution of scurrilous anti-Semitic and anti-Negro propaganda.

At the same time he rejected a proposal by David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) that mail privileges be withdrawn from anyone who distributes literature "calculated to bring into hatred, ridicule or contempt, any person or group of persons by reason of race, national origin, color or religion."

Mr. Nicholson, a lawyer, argued that Mr. Orlikow's bill would legalize government censorship and invasion of privacy, undermining the historic rights of the individual.

The measure was talked out in the hour set aside for private members' business, but will come up next Friday for further debate.

Mr. Nicholson said the post office and the justice department are planning an active study to find a legislative formula that will deter hate propaganda while protecting freedom of speech.

SOLUTION ELSEWHERE

"It is my opinion that if a solution is to be found, it will lie in an amendment to the Criminal Code or some similar statute, rather than changes in the Post Office Act."

He said the courts should dr

National Security Council Called to the White Hous

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson called the national security council to the White House today after he abandoned the election campaign trail for a watchful weekend in the U.S. capital.

The president had planned to spend today at his ranch in Texas and to campaign Sunday in the state.

The top items on the agenda for the council are to review issues arising from the ouster of Soviet Premier Khrushchev, China's explosion Friday of its first nuclear device and the new Labor government in London.

Information available from high U.S. administration officials indicates this is Washington's view of the week's three dramatic developments:

The Kremlin—The new leaders of the Soviet Union, communist party boss Leonid Brezhnev and Premier Alexe, Kosygin, probably will make some move toward patching up the Soviet-Chinese split and restoring unity to the whole Communist bloc.

U.S. officials doubt that a reconciliation is possible, but the removal of Khrushchev, who had denounced China, at least clears the way for the Kremlin to explore the chances of settlement.

Chinese nuclear explosion — The major U.S. problem is to try to assure any Asian countries which might be intimidated by the Chinese nuclear achievement that the U.S. will back them if they are threatened by China.

British election—On the whole U.S. officials do not anticipate serious policy differences with the new British government although progress toward agreement on the proposed NATO nuclear missile fleet seems sure to be slowed down considerably. This in turn could create some difficulties with West German Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, who has been pressing for an early settlement of the issue.

Council Will 'Negotiate' Rather Than Call Tenders For New Public Works Barn

Belleville city council will "negotiate" rather than call new tenders for the construction of the city's new public works barn on Coleman Flats.

Earlier this week council voted to delete certain items and call new tenders after bids received were approximately $80,000 higher than had been estimated. The lowest tender figure—$263,067 — would have put the project considerably over the city's budget.

But yesterday at a special meeting Mayor Jack R. Ellis quoted a letter from the Canadian Construction Association, which held that calling of new tenders for the public works barn would be unethical without a major change in the scope of the work.

Accordingly on recommendation from Ald. Ben Corke the council voted to rescind Tuesday's motion to call new tenders, and instead negotiate with the lowest bidder after deleting an open storage garage and a long list of minor accessory items.

COULD REDUCE COSTS

Mayor Ellis said that deletion of the open garage and other items would reduce the cost by an estimated $80,000, which with winter works subsidy should put the works building project well within the city's budget.

But council was not unanimous and three members Aldermen George Ross, Ross David and Don Whalen opposed the motion to negotiate.

Ald. David said council missed the boat last February, when it failed to accept an offer for the sale of the Houston property. He said that had the offer been accepted the city could have saved from $75,000 to $100,000.

Referring to the motion to negotiate rather than call new tenders Ald. David claimed that regardless of what the Construction Association said, in eliminating the open garage and deleting certain other items council had made a major change in specification and in doing so was entitled to call new tenders.

MUCH ABOVE ESTIMATES

Alderman Whalen said council should not be too concerned about the Construction Association.

He said that despite expert advice the tenders received were much above the estimates and he warned that the same thing could happen in connection with the planned renovations to fit the YMCA building as a police station.

He claimed that it "sounds bad" to negotiate with a contractor.

To this, however, Aldgrman Jarvah said it was standard practice for senior governments to negotiate with the contractor after a firm price had been received.

And Ald. Don Joss felt that by negotiating council could get on with the construction of the building at a price within the city's budget.

Ralph Campbell Speaker at School Opening

Professor Ralph Campbell, former Marsh Hill public school student and now faculty member at the University of Toronto, will be the guest speaker at the official opening of the new two-room elementary school at Marsh Hill on Saturday, Oct. 24th.

Professor Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Campbell of this city, was raised on the 6th concession of Sidney, and attended S.S. No. 20 public school at Marsh Hill and high school at Stirling. He returned to Canada last summer following two years as an economics adviser in Jordan.

Marsh Hill pupils moved into their new school this week and find a big contrast from the old "little red school-house," which had provided elementary school accommodation for many decades.

Designed by Watson and Wiegand, Belleville architects, the new Marsh Hill school, which cost $61,000, was built by Miron and Wiggers of Trenton.

One of its features is the absence of any stove or furnace. The new school is electrically heated.

Offer Produce In Quantity On Market

The local market was unusually small and temperatures prevailed over the city early this morning. However, there was still an ample supply of local produce offered for sale at prices unchanged from previous weeks.

Vegetables remained plentiful this morning; carrots selling at 75 cents a six quart basket, tomatoes 65 cents a six quart basket, turnips 15 cents each or two for 25 cents. Cabbage sold at 25 cents each and up according to size with cauliflower selling from 30 to 35 cents each according to size.

Squash was offered from 20 cents up a piece and red and green peppers selling at six for 25 cents. Canteloupe sold at two for 25 cents. Beets sold at 10 cents a bunch and three bunches for 25 cents.

Potatoes were selling at 65 cents a six quart basket and apples at 75 cents a six quart basket. Butternuts sold at 25 cents a quart.

Eggs were offered this morning at 35, 40, and 45 cents a dozen for small medium and large and 50 cents a dozen for extra large.

corded for the Columbia Broadcasting System, Sunik restated the U.S. position that the Chinese device, however primitive it might be, represents a serious danger for peace in the world in general, and peace in the Far East in particular.

There was no direct comment from Moscow where the news of the blast arrived late a day after a Kremlin shake-up had ousted Premier Khrushchev from power.

Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri of India, a country still edgy over the 1962 Himalayan border war with China, accused the Chinese of trying to build a "mighty war machine." In a statement from New Delhi, he said the explosion is "a danger to the maintenance of peace."

PROTESTS BLAST

The Japanese government issued a strong protest against the detonation. Chief cabinet secretary Eisaku Sunei speaking for failing Premier Hayato Ikeda, said "we deeply regret that Communist China has ignored the desire of the people of the world for a halt to nuclear tests."

Expressing fear that the Chinese bomb'swill spray radioactive dust over the Japanese islands. Sunei demanded that China immediately halt plans for further testing.

In Bombay, Dr. Homi J. Bhabha, chairman of the Indian atomic energy commission, told reporters India could make an atomic bomb in 18 months if it decided but added:

"I don't think such a decision will be taken."

A spokesman for the Nationalist Chinese government on Formosa called the Peking blast "a propaganda stunt designed to step up Chinese Communist intimidation and blackmail in the international scene"

Mining Committee Impressed With N. Hastings Potential

With Hastings County meetings of the Ontario Legislature Select Committee on Mining concluded at Marmora yesterday, committee members have expressed surprise at the mining and tourist potential in the Bancroft, Madoc and Marmora areas.

The committee, with Rene Brunelle, MPP for Cochrane North, as chairman, met at Bancroft on Wednesday and Friday held a morning meeting at Madoc and an afternoon meeting at Marmora. Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings East, is a committee member.

Following the meetings Mr. Brunelle said his committee was impressed with the tourist potential in the Bancroft area and with the mining potential in the Madoc and Marmora areas.

The committee was told that development roads, particularly a new road from Madoc to Marmora to the Coe Hill area, were needed to realize the full potential of the district.

sponsible for failures in the Soviet economy.

Both Brezhnev and Kosygin are former engineers. Brezhnev a steel engineer and Kosygin a textile engineer. The elevation to the top posts may presage a more professionalstype attack on economic problems as possible under the unpredictable Khrushchev.

Whereabouts of the former premier remained a mystery, though he was widely believed to be in Moscow. Transfer of power appeared to be taking place peacefully though there was no firm guarantee that Khrushchev would not fight back.

Meanwhile, a picture emerged of Khrushchev's final days as Soviet leader. It bore out the belief that Khrushchev was forced from rule at a dramatic, secret meeting of the Communist leadership.

(W. Averall Harriman, former U.S. ambassador to Russia and U.S. state undersecretary for political affairs, said Friday night that Khrushchev told him last year he would step down after his 70th birthday and even named his successors. Harriman said in a talk at Muncie, Ind., that the only reason Khrushchev didn't demise "is the manner in which it happened.")

Authoritative sources said the Communist party central committee voted Khrushchev out of office because of his erratic incompetence and nepotism against him.

OBSERVED BY CHINA

A foreigner who talked with Khrushchev last month said the premier was almost obsessed with the Chinese challenge. It was his handling of Russian-Chinese relations that some non-Communist observers say swung the balance against him in the Communist leadership met last Monday.

Khrushchev at the time was replying at his vacation villa on the Black Sea over news that the Soviet Union had sent into orbit the first multi-passenger spaceship.

Khrushchev had invited Gaston Palewski, French minister for nuclear and space research, for a talk and lunch on Tuesday.

Palewski related that Khrushchev talked about state affairs with the air of a man who was confident of running them for months. He appeared in good health.

Khrushchev excused himself, saying he had to fly back to Moscow to greet the cosmonauts.

Palewski left and Khrushchev vanished, so far as the public was concerned.

He has not been mentioned since by press or radio except for the terse announcement that he had resigned.

World Events Crowding in Now Swiftly on Washington

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Russian power-shift dominates major world events crowding in now swiftly on Washington.

But if there is considerable surprise at the suddenness of Nikita Khrushchev's fall from grace after 10 years, there is little apprehension. His apparent successors may be temporary, some believe.

The official view is summed up in President Johnson's first public comment delivered Thursday night when he said the events "may or may not be a sign of deeper turmoil or may be a sign of deeper changes to come."

Efforts to heal or at least narrow the deep rift with China is may have been a major cause for the firing, observers believe, although they feel other reasons probably played a part too. They need further details to be sure.

Both the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. the two most powerful countries in the world have moved swiftly to pledge adherence to continued efforts to promote peace and relaxed tension.

Besides the Russian development, Red China's nuclear test —predicted as recently as Sept. 29 by State Secretary Rusk—is of limited interest. "No surprise," President Johnson said, adding the military importance should not be overemphasized in view of the gap between tests and nuclear stockpiles or delivery capability.

Similarly, Labor's thin win in Britain is of minor importance comparatively. To the U.S. it means a new relationship with a new team although undoubtedly the U.S. would have preferred a substantial victory either way to facilitate planning in defence and other matters outside the shadow of another election soon.

There is an element of domestic curiosity about the latest Kremlin doings.

That and the Chinese nuclear blast momentarily at least have taken play away from the Nov. 3 U.S. election empaign. They have dulled the impact that the Republicans might have harvested from the morals case of Walter Jenkins, long-time Johnson intimate and presidential aide who resigned this week after disclosure that he had been arrested twice on morals charges.

The resignation hit Johnson where he is weakest, observers agree, and where the Republicans have been hitting increasingly hard at "scandal in the White House."

Second-guessing Russian transfer of power could strengthen Johnson's appeal as a man of prudence and he swiftly took the opportunity to say as much. Allegations that Republican Barry Goldwater is trigger happy, by the Arizona senator's own admission, have hurt him worst in the campaign.

Observers note major world events usually tend to help the government of the day and former President Eisenhower picked up an unknown amount of support against Adlai Stevenson in the 1956 Suez crisis.

The Democrats also are believed to have prospered in the 1962 elections from the Cuban missile crisis.

But the lack of public apprehension about the Russian shifts is indicated by a front-page cartoon in Friday's tabloid Washington Daily News. It shows a glum New York Yankee fresh from World Series defeat saying to woe - begone Khrushchev with a suitcase: "You too?"

President Johnson and Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin, in meeting for 45 minutes Friday, said they both extended pledges of continuing policies of peace.

WHY WAS HE FIRED?

The key question now for U.S. authorities is just why Khrushchev was fired.

One speculation is that his position was seriously undermined by the Cuban missile crisis in which, observers say, at least—he and Russia suffered a serious loss of face.

The episode also bared in all its bitterness the Soviet-Chinese rift.

But observers also point to the continuance of a number of problems including agriculture and the chronic debate about whether priority should be given in more consumer goods or more industrial muscle.

Soviet satellites also have been exhibiting growing restiveness and a desire of greater independence.

One thing is sure from the American standpoint: Any plans that President Johnson had of easing in a November victory with a speedy summit meeting have been postponed. Some settling down is essential first.

Peking's Feat Gloomy News For West, Soviet Union

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Red China, after travelling a long, rocky road to a nuclear test explosion, now can be expected to mount a diplomatic drive to become the nuclear club spokesman for a third world.

Peking's feat—no matter how long it will take to acquire stock - pile and deliveries—is a gloomy news for the West and the Soviet Union.

Not only is the development likely to increase tension between Moscow and the Chinese, but it also can step up the potential of the Peking regime for trouble - making.

With the explosion of a nuclear device, China is in an enhanced position to pursue one of its major policy aims—creation of an "intermediate zone" —a third world — which it envisages as a bloc, regarding the Soviet Union and the United States with equal hostility.

The main direction of this drive is in Asia, Africa and Latin America, the so-called underdeveloped world, where Communist Chinese diplomacy already is extremely active and in some cases highly successful.

In the non - white world, the impact of the feat will be heavy.

It is probable that what the Chinese did was accomplished without significant Soviet help. China's do-it-yourself drive toward the nuclear club's door began in earnest in 1956. Since then the drive brought increasing estrangement from Moscow, a widening rift in the world Communist movement and a quiet purge inside China involving both the party and the army.

A Chinese test explosion can be considered strong propaganda for Peking, raising its potential in political wars of Asia and Africa and its capacity to harass its political opponents in Moscow, even though Nikita Khrushchev, the No. 1 enemy, is gone.

While the Chinese are a long way from a delivery system and stockpile, their explosion of a device will raise difficulties for Russians and Americans, both acutely aware of the propaganda effect. Other countries too, will be uneasy. Japan, for example, may seek revisions of her treaty with the United States to strengthen her security. India will be doubly worried.

Tuesday, the focus will shift to a controversial bill to revamp the electoral map in line with population changes. The redistribution measure has been shelved since last spring.

The first order of business Friday was passage of an address to Queen Elizabeth expressing the "deepest loyalty, affection and devotion" of the Canadian Parliament.

MPs then stood up and sang God save the Queen. Lucien Plourde (Crenditiste - Quebec West) sat at his desk and most other Creditistes were absent. Mr. Plourde said later outside the House he did not mean to insult the Queen, but felt that O Canada should be the only national anthem.

Ferry Becomes Stranded Due To Heavy Fog

PICTON (Staff) — In Friday morning's heavy fog the largest of the Department of Highways ferries operating between Glenora and Adolphustown became stranded. The "Quinte Loyalist" carrying 3 trucks and about 8 cars on the 7.30 A.M. run to Adolphustown ended up about ¼ mile west of the dock and nudged against the mainland shore in the mud. Capt. J. A. Haylock, in charge of the ferries said that he ordered the other ferry to remain where she was as turning the props this close to shore might have done damage to the ship. Capt. Haylock stated that the compasses are affected by continuously running in a straight line. They are only used in weather such as this and they are inclined to operate a little more slowly because the ferries in their course do not turn much. Tugs and mine sheard also affect the compass and it is considered that this is how the ship went off course. Trucks were not permitted to cross on the smaller ferry, which operates all day with no mishap. It ran fairly close to schedule. Fog over this area was dense and lasted until afternoon. The passengers on the ferry sat it out from 7.30 a.m. until 1.30 in the afternoon when the smaller ferry went to their assistance and towed the larger ship from the shore. During the crossing of the smaller ferry she kept her horn blowing periodically and cars and trucks on shore also blew to aid in finding direction. Visibility at noon was no more than 30 feet in places. After leaving the dock one lost sight of shore immediately. There were no women aboard the ferry at the time of the mishap, according to one passenger those on board settled back for a wait and appeared to enjoy their adventure.

In other business Friday, the Commons approved a $216,000 advance for 1964-65 to Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Opposition MPs criticized the housing agency for moving too slowly in the public housing field and for discriminating against veterans in Vancouver and elsewhere.

Fred Stenson (P C— Peterborough) said CMHC housing projects should pay municipal taxes as do competing privately-owned projects.

Monday, the Commons resumes debate on the labor code, which sets a $1.25 minimum hourly wage and other minimum standards for employees under federal jurisdiction.

An Eventful Day

Change is the essence of life, politically as well as biologically speaking.

Seldom, though, does our political metabolism churn at the pace of the past year.

All the summit figures have been replaced at least once.

It seems only yesterday when a meeting of the world's Big Three would have brought together the unstoppability of Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain, the volatility of Nikita Sergeyevich Khrushchev and the youthful decisiveness of John Fitzgerald Kennedy.

All have been removed, by ballot and bullet and palace revolution.

In their places we have men whose abilities have not been tested before the spotlight of publicity.

Naturally the world is nervous.

It could become more so.

• • •

Macmillan is now twice removed from office, succeeded by Sir Eric Douglas-Home in a "changing of the guard" within his own party, with his successor now defeated at the polls in Thursday's election in Britain.

If the assassinated Kennedy's successor, President L. B. Johnson, meets the same fate and is defeated at the polls by Republican candidate Barry Goldwater, confusion will indeed be compounded.

Thus the really big news remains the replacement of Nikita Khrushchev by two of his proteges.

• • •

Khrushchev was never a dictator in the Stalin manner, but his power over Russian affairs was virtually absolute in spite of the fact that he shared responsibility with other members of the presidium.

While it is true that he has been ill and that he is old — seventy on April 17 last — there are substantial reasons for doubting that health and age alone could have forced him to step down at this time.

Unless he was virtually on his death-bed, if he had been planning his own retirement he would almost certainly have first welcomed home Russia's "space tyrika." These pioneers of the space age were Nikita's darlings, a living proof that the nation he led is no longer a nation of backward peasants and unskilled factory-hands.

• • •

That he was forced out, rather than that he stepped down of his own accord, seems certain. That, though, does not necessarily mean that his successors Leonid Brezhnev of the party and Alexi Kosygin of the state, will strike out immediately on a new policy path. They may sincerely admire the man who brought them into prominence and regret what they considered the necessity of replacing him. They may endeavor to follow the general line of his policies, while improving performance.

Nevertheless, the atmosphere of Soviet politics is sure to change. Khrushchev was a personality, unpredictable, given to rages but also breaking into sunny spells of good humor. Brezhnev and Kosygin are likely to be more stable. Their conduct is likely to be more consistent — a potential gain but also a possible obstacle, for the ability to do a quick about-face can be an asset.

• • •

Brezhnev and Kosygin are political technicians. So, too, in a certain sense is the new Prime Minister of Great Britain, Harold Wilson. President Johnson is a politician of a different school, but still a politician. The technicians take over from the personalities. The era of Great Men, which was at its height in the days of Churchill, Roosevelt and Stalin, seems dead, for the time being.

• • •

So the world is confused and afraid. To put the whipped cream topping on this shivering jelly of uncertainty, there comes the explosion by the Chinese of their first nuclear device.

China takes the first step into the nuclear club on the day after Mao's arch-rival in the Communist world is dethroned and on the very day that Britons learn that new prime minister is a man who has declared he will never consent to "splicing a German finger on the nuclear trigger."

If, as we said in our first sentence, change is the essence of life, the world is truly jumping today.

But not necessarily with joy.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 17th, 1944

Three delegates to the district convention of the Kiwanis Club held at Quebec, gave an account of the meeting to members of the club at the weekly luncheon held at the Quinte Hotel on Tuesday. Each member took a part of the proceedings and a most graphic and at the same time interesting account was given. Each speaker strained the goodwill that existed between the English and French-speaking delegates, and the consensus of opinion at the convention was that the best of relationship exists between the English and French-speaking provinces and any difference can be ironed out by better understanding of each other's problems.

The President also asked all members of the club to assist the Kinsmen Club in their "Shell Out" party to be held in the Armouries on Hallowe'en night.

The unveiling of the cairn which has been erected by the Historic Sites and Monuments Board of Canada commemorating the early settlers of Carrying Place, Prince Edward County, and the treaty with Sir John Johnson concluded there with the Indians in 1787, took place yesterday afternoon and some 200 persons were present. Mr. W. C. Mikel, K. C., of this city, one of the chief supporters of the movement to erect the cairn, acted as Master of Ceremonies. The principal addresses were made by Brig. General Cruikshank and Mr. W. G. Mikel, K.C., and reports as were made by Mr. A. E. Calnan of the Picton Gazette, Lieut. Col. Bywater, Trenton and Chief Green of the Tyendinaga Reserve His daughter was present and had donned Indian dress for the occasion.

Dr. J. J. Robertson will leave shortly for New York City, where he will attend a meeting of the American College of Surgeons.

Mr. Walter Dobbs has returned to Montreal after spending a few days here with his brother, Mr. Garn Dobbs.

The corner stone of the new United Church at Point Anne was laid under Masonic auspices by Most Worshipful Brother Lieut. Col. W. N. Foston, K.C., Past Grand Master, who acted officially as Grand Master. Lieut. Col. S. S. Lazier, was Deputy Grand Master. Many members of The Belleville Lodge Moira Lodge and Eureka Lodge were present. The Rev. L. M. Sharpe will be the pastor of the church.

Mrs. P. A. Tripp, has returned home after spending two months with her son, Charles Tripp, and her daughter, Mrs. Sisk, May in Saskatoon, Sask.

Eighty boys of the junior department in connection with the Y.M.C.A. sat down to a bountiful supper which was prepared by their mothers. After supper, Mr. R. R. Mellish, the chairman of the boys' work committee, took the chair and a program of speeches and music was much enjoyed. The Juniors have been formed into four groups with three members of the Junior Leader's Corp in each group.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Strictly Personal
Narrow View Expressed by Broad Phrases

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Futely Personal Prejudices! Increased leisure, without an increased cultivation of the mind and refinement of the senses, is the most dangerous enemy of what we call "progress" — as boredom which soon hunts pleasures with a vicious intensity is the Fifth Horseman of modern life.

No matter how great the fear of retaliation, nations will never disarm as long as ambition pays; and even when ambition no longer pays (as in the nuclear age), nations still act blindly as if it did.

A woman with the talent to blush at will can fool any man.

Those who make the mistake of hating everybody who deserves hating eventually discover that they have no emotional energy left for loving those who deserve loving; if we treat every man according to his just deserts, as Hamlet said, who would escape whipping?

There is less to fear from a conscious phony than from a man who believes every word he utters; and the world's irony is that it has always been betrayed by the decent men with bad ideas, not by the scoundrels.

People who won't give their affections until certain they are reciprocated remind me of the old Vermont farmer who quoted as how he wouldn't go in the water until he had learned how to swim.

Speaking of boredom, as I was earlier, reminded me that one of the chief purposes of education was admirably expressed by Prof. Phelps at Yale, when he wrote: "The best insurance against old age and disability is an interesting mind. I have never tried to make young men a more efficient; I have tried to make them more interesting. I like to hang pictures on the walls of the mind, and to make it possible for a man to live within himself, so that he will not be bored with himself."

Parents who hold one child up to another as a "good example" are guilty of two crimes: encouraging priggishness on the part of the good example, and provoking resentment on the part of the other.

The most futile books in the world are those which give advice on "how to succeed," for it is subject impossible to transmit, for those who have succeeded don't know how they did it, and those who require the instruction are not capable of benefiting from it.

In this season of so much campaign baloney, politicians would be wise to remember Dwight Morrow's observation that "Any party which takes credit for the rain must not be surprised if its opponents blame it for the drought."

Paradoxically, the only way to express a narrow view is with a broad statement.

To Your Good Health
Measles Sometimes Present Serious Complications

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

(SECOND OF TWO ARTICLES)

As we discussed yesterday, measles is a common disease. Nine out of 10 of us get measles.

Most of the time it is "just a childhood disease," and children recover without harmful aftereffects.

Yet sometimes there are complications. Eyes, lungs, brain and other parts of the body can be seriously damaged. Each year there are deaths too.

For years nobody could find a way to make a vaccine to prevent the disease. Anyway, in past years diphteria, whooping cough and smallpox were deadlier, and deserved first attention. Finally we learned to prevent shots.

Now, due to the work of the Nobel Prize winner, Dr. John F. Enders and his associates, measles vaccine is available.

There are three types of vaccine. I grant that most people will be guided by whatever type of shot their doctor uses, and that is fine. The important thing is to see that children are protected against outbreaks. Therefore I recommend. Each has its good points and its drawbacks. So here they are:

No. 1: A live virus vaccine (living virus, but attenuated, or made less virulent) gives excellent protection — up to 90 to 95 percent. Its drawback is that in rare cases it will give a child a real, although mild, case of measles. Such cases last from two to five days, as compared to a week or two weeks for regular measles. And there are no complications from these rare cases, as there can be with ordinary measles. This is a good vaccine, but sometimes uncomfortable.

However, giving gamma globulin along with the vaccine will reduce any reactions from it.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have a slow-growing cataract on one eye. Will it hurt to use an eyewash? — Mrs. W. F.

No, but eyewashes won't influence the cataract.

OTTAWA—In the Liberal Commons course these days, there is so much kicking over the party traces about continuing and costly concessions to Quebec that you sometimes can catch quick glimpses of the flying hooves.

Here on lucky old Parliament Hill where almost anything stays secret longer than overnight, the party caucus traditionally gets about as close as anything ever comes to approaching the confidential.

But so concerned have become some of the MPs — those, from Ontario, the Maritimes and the West Coast — over the persistent down-grading of Federal power for the up-building of provincial authority, especially, may feel, almost exclusively that of Quebec, that the one topic-tip-blocked Commons recess has begun leaking like a sieve.

Out of it come tales of Backbench Liberals, fire in their eye, standing toe-to-toe with Prime Minister Pearson and telling him bluntly that his soft" policy with the Belgian frontier and the Germans advanced on Dunkirque; Austrians reported success in their Galician drive; the British sank four German destroyers off the Netherlands coast.

A LETTER FROM INDIA

"Delhi consists of two towns — Old Delhi and New Delhi. Old Delhi has many architectural masterpieces. One, the Red Fort, built (1638-48) as an Imperial Palace, has a wall inscribed with a Persian couplet which reads: 'If a Paradise be on the face of the earth, it is this, it is this, it is this!'." — from The Handbook of India.

Mrs. George Graham, Trenton, received a letter recently from her son's wife, Vyvyen, describing the ceremonies when Mr. Roland Michener, Canadian High Commissioner in Delhi, India, took office.

Col. Robert J. Graham is the Navy, Army and Airforce Adviser to the Commissioner, and his wife's account of the day's events makes interesting reading.

"We had to be at Canada House at 7.30, hats and gloves and full uniform. The Chief of Protocol arrived and we all departed in official Indian cars for the President's Palace.

"Mr. Michener and the Chief left five minutes after in an open car and were met at the gate by a troop of the President's bodyguard and brought to an open court of the palace where we were all seated.

"The band played the National Anthem and Mr. Michener inspected the guard of honor. Then the ladies all went to the gallery overlooking the large ballroom. Mr. Michener came in, followed by all the Canadians and an equal number of Indian External Affairs Officers, who stood on either side of him.

"There was a fanfare and the President entered.

"Mr. Michener gave a speech and handed over his credentials. The President gave a speech, then shook hands with all the men.

"The ladies came down to the yellow drawing room (the one that has the beautiful silver andirons in the fire-place.) The men joined us and in a few minutes the President and Mr. Michener entered.

"The President shook hands with everyone and we were given coffee and refreshment, then back to Canada House for champagne.

"The Canadians had a bad time borrowing morning suits. But Bob was outstanding in his white uniform and sword."

VISITS IN INDIA

For this gracious glimpse of "Canada abroad" through Vyvyen's letter, we are indebted to Mrs. George Graham, who recently returned from a visit with the Robert Grahams in Delhi, which, she says, "I found to be a most fascinating city; and full of contrasts to our way of life."

She says, "For example, in the busy city streets one sees much cartage done by the bullock cart. In fact some beautiful hand-made teak-wood furniture was delivered to my son's home in just such fashion.

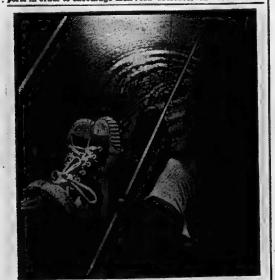
"Then, too, India-made motor cars are much smaller than ours (they are not allowed imports in order to encourage their own manufacture of them) and you notice that the cars are pushed over their side when ever a tire needs changing.

"One thing that gave me much pleasure, as an active member of the Red Cross Society, was to see the tremendous amount of welfare work that is being done, and it warmed my heart to see in a village school which I visited, the children clothed by the Canadian Red Cross.

WONDERFUL SHOPS

"The shops are wonderful places in which to explore. However unimpressive they may appear from the street, once within, they are exquisite. We visited one jewelry shop where jewels stored in lovely cases were revealed to us that were so beautiful it was like some thing from the Arabian Nights. One necklace of rubies was described like a collar for a ladies gown, winged with diamonds on the front. I touched it gently with one finger so that I could say I'd felt $30,000: its estimated worth

"If so happened the King of Jordon visited Delhi while I was there. In his honor a polo game was played by two opposing Indian teams, a game which he attended under Presidential escort. I was at the large reception held for him later, where many shook hands with him. I did not get around to doing so (which I perhaps will now regret) for I kept meeting so many charming and delightful guests.



COLD BHK

"As is the case with all journeys, while it's exciting to go away, it's wonderful to come home again, and once home, one thing I enjoyed thoroughly was a good cold glass of milk. It seemed as though I'd never tasted anything so delicious in my life! Perhaps it was because from the time I left Belleville until my return I don't recall being offered or served one glass of milk!"

Mrs. Graham had been invited to attend a wedding in Delhi, but was unable to do so since she was returning to Canada. Her granddaughter, Margaret (Bobbie), and Vyvyen did attend, however, and we shall have the pleasure of "looking on" through Vyvyen's interesting letter next week.

MAIL CALL

Question: I just read in the obituary column that a friend I haven't seen in several years just passed away. She was a widow and had remarried about a year ago. I do not know her husband, but would like to offer him my condolences.

Even though we've never met, would it be appropriate for me to send an expression of sympathy anyway? I plan to write to her sister, as well, since I've kept in touch with her by mail over the years. — Mrs. P. B., Canton, Ohio.

Answer: A letter of condolence is sent to the closest relative of the deceased, so even though you've never met him it would be appropriate to write to the widower.

Question: When checking into a hotel, who takes the luggage out of the car or taxi, the doorman or a bellhop? Is it necessary to tip both? If so, how much is proper? Does the bellboy also take care of clothes that are on hangers, instead of being packed in a suitcase? My husband and I are going to a formal dinner dance, and I plan to hang his dress suit and my gown in the car when I drive down rather than get them wrinkled in a suitcase. — Mrs. T. M., Stamford, Conn.

Answer: The doorman usually takes the luggage out of the car and takes it in to the check-in-desk. A tip of 25 or 50 cents is the norm for the doorman, depending on how much luggage there is. The bellboy takes the baggage up to your room, and it's customary to give him 25 cents for each bag. The doorman also will carry in the clothes that are on the hangers, and the bellboy will take them, along with your bag, to your room. A 50 cent tip for your overnight case and your formal clothes would be about adequate.

To Scotsmen, Knowing Whence Ye Come of Utmost Concern

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

MOY, Scotland — Lachlan Mackintosh of Mackintosh, Comdr., R.N. (Ret.), is a rather grandiose name for the unassuming and boyish chief of the Clan Mackintosh, an hereditary post held by the lairds of Moy Hall since the 15th century.

More exactly, the Mackintosh is head of the Clan Chattan (pronounced Hattan), a federation which includes the MacPhersons MacBains, Farquharsons, Davidsons, MacGillivrays, MacQueens, Shaws, and certain branches of the Macleans and Mcintyres, not to mention all the Mackintoshes in the world who spell their names in at least 50 known ways.

All this may be singularly impressive to anyone not of Scottish extraction. But to Scotsmen all over the world, knowing whence ye come is a matter of deep-rooted concern. In fact, this concern occupies a good deal of Comdr. Mackintosh's time and efforts, in return for which he receives neither payment nor power.

The preoccupation of Scotsmen with the ancient tribes from which they spring is understandable in the light of highland history and geography in ancient times most area of this mountainous, wooded country were all but inaccessible. Fierce traditions of family loyalty and banding together for mutual self protection developed much as in the American hill country.

KNOW THEIR HERITAGE

For sentimental reasons they persist to this day. Few Scotsmen, wherever in the world they may live, do not know their clan heritage. Most maintain some Scottish customs. Parts of Nova Scotia — a land remarkably like Scotland in geography and climate — are more Scottish than Scotland. The heads of the McNeils and McBains are American, the chief MacPherson is Australian.

Testimony to this pride is found in the affairs of men like the Mackintosh of Mackintosh (all clan heads are known as the Something of Something, such as the McLean of Dewart and the Cameron of Lochile).

Not a day goes by that the mail does not bring the Mackintosh letters from all over the world, some requesting information about genealogy or clan connections others — some of which are put into an annual publication — just chatty about chattan. During the summer, there is a constant stream of visiting Mackintoshes at the gates of Moy Hall, a few miles south of Inverness. Most just come for a social visit. All of them Comdr. Mackintosh is delighted to receive.

Clan heads do not — and really never did — have any legal power or other authority in the feudal sense. Many large landowners were the original clan heads, but mostly they were the heads of very large families, to whom it seemed expedient, in those parlous times, to pledge loyalty.

Not surprisingly, many Mackintoshes and members of related clans still live in the area. However, the Scots are great colonizers, and there are more in America, Canada, New Zealand, Australia and South Africa today than in Scotland. This fact did not prevent the Mackintosh from holding a gathering of the clan at Moy Hall last summer; the canny Scot tied it in with a trade fair, and presumably said a few words about Scotland.

STRONG CLAN TIES

Comdr. Mackintosh never ceases to be amazed at the strength of clan ties throughout the world. There are even members of this third largest of all clans (behind Macdonald and Macleau) in Sweden, harkening back to the days when Gustavus Adolphus' armies swept through Europe in the name of the Reformation. The chief has no idea how many there are in the world, but to their everlasting credit, they developed a raincoat and an apple that bears the family name.

Moy Hall, which the Mackintosh proudly shows all comers, is a 20th century mansion. The foundation of the original one in which Bonnie Prince Charlie himself slept stands near. The Mackintoshes shame-facedly admit they cast their lot with the ill-advised young man who sought to take the crown back from England. Among the Mackintosh's souvenirs are a tam (hat) the young pretender left behind, a bound volume of 1745 newspaper clippings chronicling the abortive revolt, and a cutting of the original Mackintosh apple tree (that's another spelling).

Moy Hall's dining room is lined with impressive portrait. of the present chief's predecessors, handsomely decked out in kilts, velvet doublets, swords, dirks, pistols and silver buckles. All the paraphernalia dates from a barbaric time, and it is as highly individualistic as the clan chief it decorates (there is no standard Scottish ceremonial garb).

As for what a gentleman wears under his kilt, the truth is — except for highland flings or athletics — nothing. A kilt may contain up to 27 feet of heavy pleated material, making it unlikely to ride up under normal circumstances. Its design also makes it warm enough in winter and cool enough in summer.

No story on Scottish traditions would be complete without a word about Scottish regiments, of which—the Gordon Highlanders — we visited at Edinburgh's Redford Barracks. If you can rise at 0630 hours you may hear the pipers pipe reveille (wall worth it), or hear the bagpipe band at 8:15 a.m. Better yet, see the tattoo in the courtyard of Holyrood Castle during each summer's Edinburgh Festival. It is one of the most stirring of all military displays.

Scottish regiments originally were private armies. One — the Duke of Atholl's 40-men and pipers — still is, technically. Usually they were raised from local clansmen. To this day most Scottish young men enlist directly in units related to their clan background, a unique privilege which makes the morale of Scottish regiments among the highest in the world (there are many Gordons in the Gordon highlanders). Officers are entitled to their own coats of arms, carried by their own piper in parades, a holdover from clan chief days. Most officers learn highland dancing also.

As for pipers, though it takes two years to train them, it is said they are born and not made. Which is just as well, considering, you've got to be a Scotsman in the first place and like bagpipe music in the second.

"Now, here's one that feels UNUSUALLY good when you take it off!"

Cured of Mental Illness Man Makes a New Start

DEAR DORIS — Remember me? I wrote from a mental hospital and told about being upset and bruising my dear wife. And cheating on her.

DORIS CLARK

Now I am back to my old job with a promotion. I gave my daughter away at her wedding. How thankful I am for a mental hospital and a good woman. She drives me to work and when I leave her I give her a good smacker on the cheek. I don't care who is watching.

I thought I was through for what I had done. Now when I come home from the plant I see my work clothes blowing on the clothes line and smell the odor of pie or good old Irish stew.

I shall pray for Embarrassed and hope she will give some of her free time to someone in a hospital. — JACK.

DEAR JACK — It's like entering a brand new world, isn't it? Congratulations on your recovery. And on having a wife who didn't give up the ship!

* * *

Confidential to AT WIT'S END — Could it be that your young English friends have better manners than some of our Canadian boys? You are charmed, infatuated, but not in love! (You don't have to be sex maniacs to "dream about doing immoral things.")

(Have you done anything about what's troubling you? Doris knows Canadian resources and can guide you to the help you need.)

This is a bulb

This beautiful flower came from that bulb

A miracle? Not at all here's how to do it . . .

Just dig a hole — drop in a bulb, right side up

Add a few handfuls of earth, water . . .

Walk away whistling

Suddenly it's Spring

Your Springtime can be electric with beauty. Take tulips. They range in color from pure white to almost black, from softest pink to deepest purple. They add special brilliance to any garden. Daffodils often beat the robin in announcing Spring. Their golden beauty — seemingly so fragile — defies winter's final blasts. And you can't mistake the fragrance of a hyacinth. It's the very breath of Spring. White, yellow, red, pink, blue — they light up the area wherever they are. Dutch flower bulbs: so simple to grow, so easy to care for and so inexpensive. For the best, be sure they're marked "Imported from Holland."

Anglicans Split on Union With Methodists

By GODFREY ANDERSON

LONDON (AP) — A split among high and low sections of the Church of England may upset plans for reuniting Anglicans and Methodists in Britain.

By the end of this year, each Anglican diocese must submit a report, giving its opinion on the merger, to the convocations of Canterbury and York. So far, only a few of the 43 dioceses have spoken. Their reports have not been published but enough is known to indicate that disagreements among churchmen are sharp.

It is the all-embracing nature of the Church of England that helps make things difficult. It runs the gamut from high church Ritualists (whose churches and services closely resemble Roman Catholic practice, to low church Evangelicals, who regard preaching the word as their primary task and do it in almost Calvinistic simplicity.

Enter one Anglican church in Britain and you will find statues and pictures, confessionals and incense, six or more high candles on the altar, priests in full vestments. Enter one in the adjoining parish and you find a bare, scrubbed chapel - like atmosphere, a text or two upon the walls, a Holy table with two small candles, a minister in simple white surplice or black robe. Yet others — so-called Broad Church—are compromises between these two extremes.

TWO APPROACHES

All are part of the state-established Church of England, all use the same prayer book and are bound by the same rules, though they interpret them differently.

As parishes differ, so does each diocese. Some, such as Durham and Truro, are traditionally high church. Their bishops wear cope and mitre. Others, like Manchester, are traditionally low. Their bishops prefer red robes with puffed lawn sleeves like early post-reformation figures.

When the Archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England is high church (as Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey is), then the Archbishop of York, second ranking prelate, is traditionally low (as is Dr. Donald Coggan).

Thus some kind of balance is held. Real trouble starts when all sections of this broad-based church are required to act and speak as one.

On the other side of the fence the Methodists themselves are seriously split. They decided not to debate the proposal at this year's annual meeting, shelving the issue until their next conference in July, 1965. By then they may have some clearer indication of the Anglican attitude.

The Methodists, who split away from the Church of England about 200 years ago, have always maintained a close relationship with the state-established church.

A Lift for Living

We Who Belong to Same God Also Belong to One Another

By REV. HAROLD E. KOHN

One day this week an elderly lady who owns a large country estate asked me to advise her as to where she should plant pine, cedar and maple on her land. Knowing of my interest in nature she shared with me her concern that the land would be a place of arboreal beauty for many years to come. She explained, "I shall never see these trees mature, but someone in the future will enjoy them." Long after her passing, patterns of light and shade will adorn the earth; the music of whispering leaves will be performed by playful breezes; the rich, black topsoil will be saved from erosion by the protective embrace of countless roots and rootlets. Someone's future will be brighter because of the thoughtfulness of this good woman.

This gracious lady has mastered one of life's most meaningful secrets: she has learned how to let her interests and joys reach out and serve the good of people she will never see. She is aware of the joint membership she holds in life with people unknown to her, and she has formed a significant fellowship with generations beyond her. She has thought of them, planned for them, worked for them. Her love of beauty is being shared with them, and the joy she finds in trees will be spread to them.

WHOLESOME ATTITUDE

Such a wholesome attitude toward people who are outside our circle of close friends and relatives is basic to religious living. We humans belong to each other. We are important to each other, not only as far as marriage and the family are concerned, not only as far as employers and employees or the linkages between neighbors in small communities are concerned, but all people of all generations belong to each other. God has so fashioned the world that the effects of any one person go out from him in ever-widening circles, to touch families, races, religions and generations other than his own. The Apostle Paul, while preaching to the Athenians, spoke of the essential unity of mankind, saying, of God "He made of one every nation of men to dwell on the face of the earth." The King James translators rendered this passage, He ". . .hath made of one blood all nations of men." All translators of Paul was speaking of men's kinship under the Fatherhood of God; we belong to one another because we belong to the same Father.

Our connections with each other make it inevitable that, for good or evil, others will feel our influence whether we wish it or not. We bear traces of good and evil that have come to us from unseen and unknown persons, and others, unseen and unknown to us, will feel the effects of our lives. If we have gained good fortune without hard work and without suffering, it is because someone else has worked strenuously and suffered before us. If we labor industriously and suffer without apparent reward, it is so that others can prosper from our work and trouble. When we are at our best all the world is a little better for it. When we do wrong the world is somewhat worse for it. We all have some power for making our lives felt in other lives.

CHIEF DIFFERENCE

A chief difference between the responsible person of faith and the irresponsible person is that the former is constantly aware of the importance of his influence and is thus intentionally influential, while the latter is influential too, but accidentally, impulsively, or from poor motivation. The good man invests his influence, while the mediocre man squanders his. And, since the good man knows his influence and responsibility do not end with his family neighborhood, race, religion or generation, he does all the good he can regardless of such secondary considerations.

Dr. Wilfred Grenfell, the famed medical missionary to Labrador, once called upon a man who suffered from tuberculosis of the ankle, and the doctor found it necessary to amputate her leg. A short time later the great doctor made a brief lecture tour of the United States, and, while speaking in a Congregational church, asked if anyone knew of a person who might donate an artificial leg to the needy Labrador woman. At the close of the meeting a Methodist woman told the doctor that her husband, a Presbyterian, had died and had left a wooden leg in good condition. Dr. Grenfell accepted the gift of the leg and later fitted it to the native of Labrador. He said, "When I, an Episcopalean, took that Presbyterian leg, given to me by a Methodist in a Congregational church, back to Labrador, it fitted my Roman Catholic friend, and she could walk."

We belong to each other; all men everywhere do. What we possess in the way of goods and compassion and grace fits somebody's needs. The healing of the world's social, economic and spiritual ailments rests upon our recognition of this truth that we who belong to the same God belong to one another.

Will Not

Foreign secretary is Patrick Gordon Walker, 57, who was defeated in Smethwick, victim of the "white backlash" against Commonwealth colored immigration. Gordon Walker will apparently be installed in a safe Commons seat.

Under defence minister, as expected, was Denis Healey, 47, an intellectual and Oxford graduate.

The Liberals had an unexpected gain in laggrieas in the late election result, meaning they will have a total of nine members in the new Parliament, one more than in the last. But Wilson showed no sign of seeking negotiations with Liberal leader Jo Grimond. Observers noted that Wilson has no timetable for the more controversial elements of his program, such as nationalisation of building land and renationalization of steel.

Going over to opposition, Sir Alec received a handsome tribute from Lord Blakenham, Tory party chairman, but observers still wondered whether the party will seek another leader before the next election.

Lord Blakenham credited Sir Alec with a "magnificent fight," noting the closeness of the election which virtually split the British population.

"It is a result which would have been thought quite impossible, a year, nine months or even six months ago," said Blakenham. "It attributes this entirely to the leadership of Sir Alec Douglas-Home."

Despite Wilson's show of confidence, he faces a tough parliamentary situation, even worse than that of the 1950-51 Labor government which had an over-all majority of only six.

Somewhat surprisingly, Quintin Hogg, education minister and one of the hardest battlers in the former Tory government, said:

"A small majority will be hell for everyone in the House of Commons. But it can be done. Public interests do not need to suffer."

WAS WALKING BOMB

TORONTO (CP) — Police said a University of Toronto student they searched Friday was a walking bomb. Peter Kieran, 18, of suburban Don Mills, was charged with illegal possession of a stick of dynamite and four detonator caps and fuses. Police said six detonator caps were found at his home.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

Cassius Clay, Cassius X, Muhammed Ali, take your pick, has had the batteries of his built-in radio recharged.

He twisted the dial down Miami, Florida way, the other day and what came out were reruns of former spoutings with some changes in the dialogue.

The east was the same that played in the Miami Beach farce last February 25th when the villain in the Clay-authored script, one Sonny Liston, went on a sit-down strike and was counted out while management looked on aghast.

With his lips flapping like the wings of a wounded mallard, Clay, alarmed at the lack of interest of the typewriter mob, called a news conference at his home.

The mouth that apertures the handsomest mug in boxdom since Britain's Phainting Phil Scott, is rounding into the form that separated some $75,000 (American) from gullible British fight fans, and later a couple million from curious Americans.

The rumor that marriage had muffled Muhammid's mouth motor has been dispelled. Madame X, a beautiful colored youngster, apparently is content to bask in the braggadocio of her spouse.

For Cassius who develops that "lean and hungry look" only when the conversation turns to Mammon, has come forth with his latest album "Cassius and Me."

This one out-forecasts any of the Louisville Lip's former predictions. Before the Liston waltz, Clay was content to call the round in which he would slay the gladiator opposing him.

This time he not only calls the round in which he will rout Mr. Liston into anaesthesia, but also the minute—with promise of a finer pinpointing when he gets to Boston.

He will, said the loquacious laddybuck from Louisville, dispose of Mr. Liston in the second minute of the ninth second in the November 16 rematch.

Furthermore, he said, not wishing to give a curious if careless world a double-barrelled shock, he will name the second of the minute the referee will count the fateful "ten" over his prostrate foeman from Philadelphia.

He told the amused newsmen, "after a prediction like that, I could retire leaving a record never to be equalled. No other fighter could ever call the exact second."

If you read the Joe Louis series, you will recall that Clay, too, called the second (both of them) in the fifth round when he asked, Joe claims, to stop the fight—and was pushed back into the ring.

And Cass tosses in a political touch whereby giving away his election leaning, "I'm gonna beat that big ugly bear just like Johnson is gonna beat Goldwater." That statement should boost the Goldwater stock no end.

Someone asked if he was speaking as Cassius Clay or as Mohammid Ali, the name he adopted when he embraced the Islam religion. The handsome face split in a wide grin.

"There ain't no more Cassius Clay. He died." But newsmen felt he was talking like the loud-mouth Louisville Lip in the days before the first Liston brawl.

"On November 16 in Boston, Mass., Sonny Liston will be all mine in round nine. That is, unless he stays on the stool. I'm gonna be selling Sonny Liston steels at the fight."

"He'll last a little longer this time," Clay said, "because he's in better condition. But when I get through with him, there won't be any challengers left around for me."

Methinks, if Liston is in fighting shape and not batting in the shadow of a questionable background, the Black Muslims will be wearing mourning when the dawn fog seeps in over Boston common on Nov. 17th.

Yanks Oust Yogi; Cards' Keane Quits

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

While the baseball world digested Friday's bombshells that left World Series rivals Johnny Keane and Yogi Berra as ex-managers, the grapevine whispered that Keane will be the new pilot of New York Yankees and Leo Durocher will succeed him as field boss of St. Louis Cardinals.

Reliable sources reported that Keane had the edge for the Yankee job over Alvin Dark, ousted earlier this month as manager of San Francisco Giants.

Durocher was known to be the favorite of St. Louis owner Gussie Busch but the Cards' new general manager, Bob Howsam, was rumored to be pushing Whitey Kurowski and veteran minor league pilot.

Before the second-guessers had much of a chance to rehash the World Series, Keane marched into Busch's St. Louis office and handed in his resignation, which he said was written several weeks ago.

Not long after, Berra got the bad news from Yankee general manager Ralph Houk that the American League champs had decided to replace him after a one-year trial. The 39-year-old Yogi immediately signed a two-year contract as a special field consultant under Houk

MANY DEVELOPMENTS

In addition to the Keane-Berra announcements:

Cleveland Indians, rumored to be moving to Seattle, decided to remain in Cleveland at least through 1965

Eight wealthy Milwaukee businessmen asked baseball commissioner Ford Frick to help them arrange negotiations for the purchase of the Braves, whose present owners reportedly plan to move the club to Atlanta.

Pittsburgh Pirates said they wanted Keane to replace Danny Murtaugh, who resigned as manager because of ill health.

Bing Devine, fired in August as the Cardinals' general manager, was named Executive of The Year for the second consecutive year by the other major league general managers.

Keane said his decision to step down was made by him and his wife Sept. 23 as a result of "a number of little things—none really important."

The 53-year-old Keane became the likely successor to Berra as soon as the Yankees made their announcement. Houk said Keane and Dark were among four possibilities being considered. He did not name the others.

RED REFUSED JOB

Cardinal coach Red Schoendienst was mentioned as a possible successor to Keane but it was reported that he turned down an offer to manage in the Cardinal farm system.

Houk said the Yankees probably would name Berra's successor within a week.

In St. Louis, Busch appointed a six-man committee to screen Cardinal candidates.

The idea of dropping Berra, Houk said, began in mid-August when the Yankees were 5½ games out of first place.

"The move had nothing to do with losing the World Series," Houk said. "Friday morning was the first Yogi knew about it. In his new job, he'll be scouting major league teams and looking at some of the players in our farm system."

"I don't mind," Berra said, although he had expressed the hope earlier in the week that he would be rehired. "I'll be spending the year at home. Where can you get a job like this? I don't have to sign in or punch a clock. And the pay is good."

Just Misses Perfect Game

McKenzie hit for ten consecutive strikes before taking only the count side on his 11th effort. He spared it and turned in a sparkling 425 single.

The game was the first 400 string bowled at the Bowl-o-Drome this season. The only other 400 game on record in the city was by Russ Jones in the Men's Commercial "B" League. Jones had 406.

McKenzie had rolled a 406 at the first Master Bowlers' Tournament held in Galt late in August. There were three 406's recorded in that tourney. Belleville's Jim Begley had a 418 at Toronto's O'Connor Bowl last Monday.

Cec Hardwick and McKenzie turned in four-game totals of 1150, highest marks of the young season, in last night's Classic action.

Jim Brown Won't Quit Says Boss

CLEVELAND (AP) — Jim Brown, the Cleveland Browns' great fullback, said Friday he plans to retire after two more seasons, but club owner and president Art Modell isn't convinced.

"Two more years is an outside possibility," Brown said in an interview.

"I might stop before that, but I won't play anymore than that. These are my plans."

Modell said: "This is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard. Every player does it. Twenty players on my club have told me they were going to retire. It was meaningless."

Russel Award To Shatto

HAMILTON (CP)—The Eastern Football Conference announced Friday that halfback Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts is the 1964 winner of the Jeff Russel award for talent and sportsmanship.

End Al Irwin of Montreal Alouettes, a graduate of Hamilton's McMaster University, was declared the EFC's rookie of the year.

The Jeff Russel award is given to the player best combining ability and sportsmanship. It was offered by the league in 1923 in memory of Russel, a former player who was electrocuted in an accident.

The winners were selected by the league's officiating staff and announced by Secretary Frank Gibson of Hamilton.

Shatto, six-foot-two and 200 pounds, has been the lone bright spot in Toronto Football the last few years. A 10 - year veteran, the graduate of the University of Kentucky has been Argonauts' steadiest performer year after year.

The Trots

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Wes Coke, driver - trainer from Petrolia, reigned three winners in four trips at the Western Fair raceway Friday night to give him five wins in two nights.

He scored a 25-length victory with Pistol Pointer in the third, won by a nose with Jimmy G. Unko in the sixth and steered Molnars T Byrd to a neck win in the seventh.

Pistol Pointer, odds - on favorite, paid $2.60 and paced the mile in 2:10 2-5, while Jimmy G. Unko paid $3.20. But the Molnars T Byrd win was an upset and the three-year-old gelding returned $31.10.

Jerome 4th In 200; Crothers In 400

Americans' Rolling

TOKYO (CP) — The United States continued to assert its track and field mastery in the Olympic Games today, capturing gold medals in events it has rarely always won, but a 27-year-old Australian woman provided a comeback story with an impressive win in the new 400-metre event.

Betty Cuthbert, the heroine of the 1956 Olympic Games in Melbourne, whipped through the 400 in 52 seconds flat, just 1-10 of a second off the world record held by Sin Kim Dan of North Korea. She needed all her speed, too, for Ann Packer of Britain was right behind in 52.3

Henry Carr won the 200 metres in the Olympic record time of 20.3 seconds, giving the U.S. its second gold medal in the men's athletics. Bob Hayes earlier won the 100 metres.

Dallas Long set an Olympic record of 56 feet 8¼ inches winning the shot put, an event the U.S. has failed to win only in 1920 and 1936. Team mate Rudy Matson got the silver medal. Hungarian Varju of Hungaby the bronze.

MISSES BRONZE

Canada's Harry Jerome narrowly failed to win his second medal of the games, finishing fourth in the 200 by 1-10 of a second. Paul Drayton of the U.S. was second in 20.3, Edwin Roberts of Trinidad third in 20.6.

Jerome, a 24-year-old Vancouver printer, took the bronze medal in the 100 metres.

He was the third Canadian in Olympic history to reach both sprint finals. Percy Williams of Vancouver took the gold medal in both the 100 and 200 metres at Amsterdam in 1928, and Bobby Kerr of Hamilton won the gold in the 200 and the bronze in the 100 at London in 1908.

Carr's time eclipsed the record of 20.5 set by Livio Berruti of Italy in the 1960 Olympics at Rome. Berruti, here to defend his title, was fifth today, 1-10 of a second behind Jerome.

Shot-putter Long beat the record of 56 feet 5¾ inches set by Bill Nieder of the U.S. in 1960.

FLOP AT ROME

Miss Cuthbert, a flop at Rome after taking gold medals in the 100 and 200 metres and the 400-metre relay at Melbourne, decided before the Tokyo games that she would try her legs at a longer distance before hanging up her spikes. Addition of the 400 metres to the women's track program gave her the opportunity.

Her time of 52.0 stands as Olympic record. Best time by the preliminaries was 52.7 by Miss Packer.

It was a two-woman race. The bronze medallist, Judith Moore of Australia, was far back in 53.4 seconds. The rest of the field was more than two full seconds behind the second-place Miss Packer.

Russia finally got its first track and field gold medal of the games when Irina Press emerged victorious in the pentathlon, another new event on the women's track program.

She scored 5,246 points in the two-day five-event ordeal to raise her own world standard from 5,137.

Mary Denise Rand of Britain was second with 5,033 points Galina Bystrova of Russia third with 4,956.

CANADIANS FAR BACK

Two Canadians took part in the pentathlon, which comprises the 80-metre hurdles, shot put, broad jump, 200 metres and high jump. Jennifer Wingerson of Toronto placed 12th with 4,914 points, Dianne Gerace of Trail, B.C., 15th with 4,445 points.

Gaston Roelants brought Belgium its first gold medal in track and field since 1948 with victory in the 3,000-metre steeplechase.

His time of 8:30.8 lowered the record of 8:34.2 set in 1960 by Zdzislaw Krzyszkowiak of Poland in 8:34.8.

Roelants, unbeaten in this event for the last two years, never relinquished the lead after taking it halfway through the race. He won by a good 12 metres and was looking over his shoulder at the finish.

Meanwhile Bill Crothers, Canada's most successful track man at the games, worked his way through the preliminary rounds of the 400 metres to qualify for the semi-finals Sunday.

SECOND BY WHISKER

The 23 - year - old Mytrham, Ont., pharmacist was second by a whisker to Ollan Cassell of the U.S. in his first heat and second in the semi-finals Monday.

Cassell finished ninth and didn't qualify. Two days earlier he was fifth in the 10,000 metres.

The only thing wrong is that things have come too easily to him," Dyson added. "He wins

Famous Coach Defends Runner

Kidd Victim Of His Environment

TOKYO (CP) — Geoff Dyson, who quit as Britain's head track coach to take a job with the Royal Canadian Legion, said Friday that Toronto's Bruce Kidd "is a victim of his environment."

In an interview, the former British track star said Kidd would "benefit enormously if he went to Britain or Europe for experience."

"There is nothing wrong with Kidd that weekly or semi-monthly competition with his peers won't cure," Dyson said shortly after Kidd's 2,000-metre losing heat.

The University of Toronto student finished ninth and didn't qualify. Two days earlier he was fifth in the 10,000 metres.

"The only thing wrong is that things have come too easily to him," Dyson added. "He wins indoors in North America and has no opposition in Canada and he can't improve that way.

"Canadians at this stage should stop and consider the difference between British Empire and Olympic Games."

Kidd was the six-mile winner in the 1962 British Empire Games at Perth, Australia.

COMPETITION STIFFER

"I don't want to detract from his superb running" in Australia, Dyson said, "but here Canada has to go against 94 countries.

"Constant competition is necessary. Canada should have meets with Australia, Jamaica and other countries. Then we can build up fine teams."

Dyson said Kidd's losses here are not the fault of the Toronto distance runner, his coach or Canada.

"Until Canada builds up strong cross-country and long-distance runners the standard of their champions will suffer."

Dyson referred to New Zealand's Peter Snell who, he said, went to the 1960 Olympics "for experience."

Snell came out of nowhere to win the 800 metres, and duplicated his victory Friday, beating runner-up Crothers by six feet.

RAPS LYDIARD

"This is not done in Canada. As many athletes as possible should be sent to these games and I believe they'll provide a few surprises. Athletes need one Olympic experience to profit for the next games."

Dyson also took strong exception to New Zealand coach Arthur Lydiard for his remarks that Kidd was "burned out."

Lydiard, one of the most respected and successful track coaches in the world, predicted last week that he was sure Kidd would be among the also-rans in Tokyo.

Dyson said of Lydiard's comments: "He can't blurt out that sort of stuff. It is not so and it is unkind to Kidd and to Canada."

Kidd could do the same as Britain's Mary Rignall Read, the gold medallist in the broad jump at Tokyo.

She was among the favorites to win in the 1960 Olympics but finished far back, fouling out on the key jumps.

"She had that Olympic experience. She comes back this time and wins the gold medal. Kidd could do the same if he trained and races with his peers."

NHL Gets Under Way

Fifteen Rookies To Get Baptism Of Fire

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Youngsters often dream of someday playing in the National Hockey League and a selected few do. But how long do they stay?

That question likely will be on the minds of 15 rookies this weekend as the NHL serves up its six-game menu. Several others are trying to determine whether they can make a comeback or fare better wearing the colors of a different club.

Chicago Black Hawks, preseason favorites to finish first, have five rookies in the lineup. Two of them never tasted minor pro hockey, having made the jump directly from the junior ranks.

Detroit and New York each have two rookies, Montreal two, and Toronto and Boston have one apiece.

Dennis Hull, younger brother of Bobby, and Fred Stanfield have joined the Hawks this year as graduates of the St. Catharines, Ont., junior team. The other Chicago farm team products are John Brenneman who scored a goal in the Hawks first game, Doug Robinson and Alain Caron.

The key rookie in the crop is Roger Crozier, the young Detroit goaltender who must fill the large shoes of Terry Sawchuk. Other freshman on the Red Wings squad are Gary Bergman and Bob Dillabough.

The Rangers have given big league jobs to two players cast them by Toronto in the Andy Bathgate trade, Rod Seiling and Arnie Brown, and another chance to veteran minor leaguer Jim Mikol to make the NHL grade.

MUST REPLACE GEOFFRION

Montreal's rookies are Ted Harris, a defenceman, and Yvan Cournoyer, the sensational rookie from the Junior Canadiens who must replace retired Bernie Geoffrion on the line with Jean Beliveau and John Ferguson.

Ron Ellis, making the jump from the junior Toronto Marlboros, will be the only rookie in Toronto's stand-pat Stanley Cup champion lineup. And Boston has only one freshman, wo-jun Ron Shock, although the last-place Bruins can't be accused of standing pat.

The Bruins visit Toronto Saturday night and return home to face the Leafs on Sunday while the Maple Leafs travel to New York. The Rangers will be at Montreal Saturday night and the Wings and Hawks tangle in a home-and-home series, playing in Chicago Saturday and Detroit Sunday.

Boston and Detroit will be looking for an initial victory. The other four teams all have won a game.

Four teams have new faces in the lineup in addition to rookies.

Three players now wearing Boston's gold - and - black are Reggie Fleming, Murray Balfour and Ab McDonald, all traded in the off-season by Chicago. The Hawks have defenceman Doug Mohns, dealt them in the exchange with Boston.

Toronto fans will welcome Terry Sawchuk, who played some of his best hockey in the Gardens before the Leafs obtained him from Detroit. Another possible new face is Dickie Moore, the ex-Canadien trying a comeback.

Ron Murphy is making his debut with the Wings after being traded by Chicago. Ted Lindsay can hardly be classed a newcomer, but he's wearing a Detroit uniform for the first time in seven years.

Tigers, Ottawa Clash Top Weekend Fare

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Toronto Argonauts have only a mathematical chance of gaining the third and final playoff berth in the Eastern Football Conference, but they've left no stone unturned in their quest for a winning combination.

The cellar - dwelling Argos meet third - place Montreal Alouettes in the Sunday match of a team that has been subject to a last minute revamping.

Toronto trails Montreal by four points and both clubs meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders once in the remainder of the 14 - game schedule.

In other EFC weekend action, Hamilton visits Ottawa today with the leadership of the conference at stake. Both are deadlocked for first place with 15 points each.

WILL BE TELEVISED

Today's game will be televised on the CBC's eastern network.

Toronto coach Nobby Wirkowski announced Friday night quarterback Karl Sweetan would replace Jackie Parker at quarterback. Parker is suffering from a hairline fracture of the Argos also released Ed Mickis Friday to make room for newcomer Dave Theissen, a 205-pound halfback cut by Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League. Theissen will make his first start in Sunday's game.

The Alouettes will be weakened by the loss of linebacker Jerry Fields, who is sidelined with an injury. He's Montreal's top man at pass defence.

Field Goal Ties Score

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Mercer's 35-yard field goal with five seconds left enabled winless Oakland Raiders to tie Boston 43-43 and erase the Patriot's edge from a fantastic double comeback in an American Football League game Friday night.

Boston quarterback Babe Parilli had completed his fourth scoring pass, an 11-yarder to Larry Garron with 28 seconds to go.

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two rivals for Western Football Conference rushing honors collide tonight for the last time in the regular season tonight when Calgary Stampeders play hosts to Saskatchewan Roughriders in one of three WFC games this weekend.

Ed Buchanan of Saskatchewan is breathing down the neck of Stampeders' Cleveland Coleman, who leads the conference in rushing with 1,333 yards and a 6.9-yard average. Buchanan has 1,209 yards and a 7.7-yard average.

The personal battle between Coleman and Buchana, however, will only be an added attraction as Saskatchewan makes a bid for a share of second spot in the standings.

The game will be the highlight of weekend action which will have British Columbia Lions in Edmonton tonight and the Eskimos in Winnipeg Monday.

If Saskatchewan loses the contest, it will eliminate any hope Riders have for a second-place finish. A victory would earn them a tie and an outside chance of catching league-leading Lions, now one point ahead of Calgary.

David Beattie, 12 Wins Free Skating Title

David Beattie, juvenile figure-skating star of Quinte Skating Club spring prodnctions, is wearing newly - won honors modestly.

The twelve-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Beattie skating flawlessly won his first juvenile men's free - skating championship a few weeks ago.

David's part in a brilliant performance to win the title from a field of seven boys at the Central Ontario Free Skating Competition held at East York Arena, Toronto, resulted in the off-season by Chicago. The Hawks have defence-man Doug Mohns, dealt them in the exchange with Boston.

Toronto fans will welcome Terry Sawchuk, who played some of his best hockey in the Gardens before the Leafs obtained him from Detroit. Another possible new face is Dickie Moore, the ex-Canadien trying a comeback.

Ron Murphy is making his debut with the Wings after being traded by Chicago. Ted Lindsay can hardly be classed a newcomer, but he's wearing a Detroit uniform for the first time in seven years.

boy from the city to win an outside skating championship.

There was no doubt as to the ultimate result. David placed first on the cards of all the judges.

Both David and sister Susan, another brilliant skater, trained at the Tam O'Shanter Country Club this summer under the discerning eye of Belleville professional Paul Tatton.

The youngsters have been skating some four or five years and both give exceptional promise. They were given starring roles in the Skating Club's annual extravaganza last spring.

"Wishes Wire" Carried 215 Names

John Lewis went into Olympics action Monday with the knowledge that some of the folks back home were thinking of him.

Thanks to the efforts of the Lions Club, Lewis received over the good wishes of some 215 residents via telegram.

The "wishes wire" was forwarded to Lewis on Thursday and according to the communications office should have received it yesterday.

President Ernie Finkle and his Lions are to be commended on their action in promoting the telegram. They did an excellent job in view of the fact they had very little time.

In the short period at their disposal they placed cards in stores in the city and the places.

They were well pleased with the response as were members of the Apollo Barbell Club and the Lewis family.

It was a fine gesture, one which will be greatly appreciated by the city's lone representative at the Olympics.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) Finish one project before attempting a new one. Don't spread yourself too thin. Avoid scattering forces. Recent money question can be settled. Taken some honest expression of opinion.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to March 20) You tend to be impatient where budget, income is concerned. Before solid results appear . . . you must clear away red tape. May mean some painful reappraisals are necessary. Think about it.!!

If today is your birthday you possess fresh, original ideas. But sometimes you wait too long before putting them into effect.

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Cycle high for Aries, Taurus, Gemini. Special word to Libra: Step out of "ivory tower." Come down to earth and obtain the facts.

OPENS MONDAY
SOPHIA LOREN IN 3 PARTS FOR "YESTERDAY, TODAY AND TOMORROW"

Sophia Loren's latest romantic comedy, "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow", reunites the beautiful star with two of her favorite film friends: co-star Marcello Mastroianni and director Vittorio De Sica. The Joseph E. Levine presentation opens Monday at the Park Theatre for a week's showing, in color and wide screen. Released through Embassy Pictures, the film was produced by Carlo Ponti.

De Sica directed Miss Loren in her Oscar winning performance in "Two Women" and again in "Boccaccio 70." Mastroianni appeared with her in an earlier movie called "Too Bad She's Bad" when they were not yet international stars and the team caught little stir. Today, famed throughout the world, the fact that they are together has already excited comparisons with Gilbert and Garbo and audiences who have already seen the movie call the pair "hotter than Gable and Harlow."

Miss Loren, who plays a career girl, a bored socialite and a perennially pregnant wife, grins heroically when told of these outlandish comparisons. Marcello and I work well together," she told reporters. "We are both clowns. We both know what emotions are under the mask of comedy."

Unlike most actresses Sophia Loren has had to overcome the advantages of beauty and one of the most publicized figures in the world in order to achieve international recognition as an actress. Audiences, usually of men, who once were content to come to her movies just to look at her, were startled when she brought tears to their eyes with her Academy Award winning performance in "Two Women." She also knew, apparently, what was under the mask of tragedy.

Sophia is frank to admit that she enjoys being a movie star. It has not changed her — simply given her what she has always wanted: the chance to have fun, to please people, to be somebody. "Mostly," she says, "to have fun. I didn't have fun when I was a girl."

Complete shows 7:00 and 9:30 p.m.

Agent Prevails and Actor Happy in New Series

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When Brian Kelly's agent suggested the actor try out for an NBC television series based on Flipper, Kelly replied, "what's a flipper?"

The agent educated Kelly about the MGM film success featuring a dolphin.

"Are you crazy?" Kelly replied. "Me in a series with a dolphin, two kids and a lot of fish? Nobody would ever know I was in it."

The agent prevailed and escorted Kelly to MGM for a chat with producer Ivan Tors and his staff. The actor warned to the project when he heard their interpretation, but he insisted on his own terms for the widower father in the series.

"I won't play him as the usual type of television father whom everyone pushes around and who wants only to see that his family is happy," he said. "This guy will have to be a real disciplinarian. The kids must know that if they don't toe the mark, they'll get taken behind the woodshed."

MAY SURVIVE

On that basis — and with some salutary terms — Brian Kelly signed for Flipper. Judging from the ratings, the series has hope of surviving the season.

That's fine with Kelly, despite the competition of the small fry and finny folk—and a hammy pelican to boot. He figures there is still room for fodage ever for him. He likes to stress that Flipper is suitable for the whole family, not just for kiddies.

Kelly is the son of Harry F. Kelly, former governor of Michigan and now chief justice of the state supreme court. He is the husband of actress Laura Devon, formerly of the Richard Boone stock company.

Question: Could you please tell us what date the New York World's Fair closes? Also could you give maps and a routing on the fastest way down with tour books etc.? Thank you in advance. — A. W., Belleville.

Answer: The World's Fair closed Oct. 3, 1964, and opens again April 21st, 1965. We regret that we cannot prepare for you maps, tour books etc. as this service is for Ontario Motor League members only. Would suggest you write to one of the major oil companies for this information.

Question: We are driving to Chicago at the end of this month, and would like maps and any information you can give us for this motor trip; also any accommodation books you have for this area. — Mr. B., Picton.

Answer: If you would like to phone the Ontario Motor League in Belleville or our office in Cataraque, we would be pleased to give you any information you require. Accommodation books and personal ratings are for Ontario Motor League members only, but if you write to the Chamber of Commerce of Chicago, they would be happy to send you brochures and maps.

Question: I will be living in the U.S.A. for a number of months this year and am now living about my car licence plates. Is it all right to continue to drive my car in the U.S. with my Canadian licence plates or do I have to get the licence plates of the state in which I will be residing. Also, would I have to obtain a new driver's licence? — Miss D., Belleville.

Answer: Motorists from over fifty countries who are nationals of those nations and who are bona fide tourists visiting the United States may drive in the United States for a period of up to one year with their own national licence plates (registration tags) on their own cars and with their own personal driver's licences.

The Golden Years

Moving Where Children Live Not Always Best Thing to Do

By THOMAS COLLINS

Thinking of packing up when you retire and moving to the town where your children live?

It's a nice idea. Popular, too. But you'd better watch it.

Some retired people who have done it would give up their pensions if they could take it all back.

The Ralph Browns would.

The Browns (which for reasons that will be obvious is not their exact name) retired in Pennsylvania after a good career. They owned a little home, had adequate income from a pension and had nesteg. They had two children, a son in business abroad, and a married daughter living with her family in St. Louis.

One idea led to another as retirement had come on, and the Browns decided to move to St. Louis. After all their family was the most important thing to them now. Why not watch the grandchildren grow up?

They sold their home, executed the moving job with some difficulty and considerable expense. They bought another home about a quarter of a mile from their daughter's home. It was a more expensive home than they had — they felt they had to upgrade a bit to make a better appearance for the daughter's family.

$5,000 POORER BUT — —

"Altogether the Browns were about $5,000 poorer when they were finally settled down. And their living costs were up, may be 15 percent, what with a big town and a strange one. But it they were well enough off to weather this.

"They began seeing their daughter's family about three times a week, did some babysitting, met the daughter's friends. Things looked lovely. . .

Then, about six months after the Browns moved in, the daughter's husband, who was a district man for a national corporation, was offered a transfer to Chicago.

"This was a bombshell, of course. But the Browns would not stand in the way of the son-in-law's advance and so prepared themselves to accept the disaster. Not the daughter. She contended there was more at stake than a better job. However she managed it, she managed it quietly. Her husband turned down the offer. Life went on again. . ."

One year later the lightning struck again. The company offered the son-in-law another transfer — this time to Atlanta — and the implication was left that if he turned this one down there would be no more.

ALL MAKE MOVE

The son-in-law accepted with the consent of his wife, and in an involved plan whereby the Browns would pull up stakes and move to Atlanta with them. Both parties put their houses up for sale, sold them, and in due time were settled in houses in Atlanta. . .about half a mile apart.

"About $2,500 more was lost overall by the Browns in this operation. They had to take out a small mortgage to buy their Atlanta house."

As they had done in St. Louis, the Browns now did in Atlanta. They established close contact with the daughter's family and set out to beautify their house and yard. Then. . .were no readymade friends around this time. The Browns were happy enough with their family. They didn't push to make any.

"It wasn't long before the third bombshell. The son-in-law couldn't make it in the Atlanta office. He had been sent in, apparently to settle some sort of personality crisis in the office, and succeeded only in making it worse. The company must have figured it wasn't his fault, and that he was a good man. It suggested that he move into the home office in New York. It wasn't a choice now; it was a matter of job or not a job. He and his family moved to New York. . .

The Browns? They no longer had the money, or the spirit. . . or the faith. . .to move again. They are in Atlanta with their mortgage and their loneliness.

GAP WIDENS

The seasonally - adjusted monthly rate had increased to £40,000,000 ($147,000,000) in the third quarter of 1964 from £44,000,000 ($132,000,000) in the second quarter.

It would appear on this basis Britain's commodity trade deficit for the first nine months of the year was running at the equivalent of $1,200,000,000 compared with about $460,000,000 in the similar period of 1963.

Ann Landers

Love Via Correspondence Unrealistic, Impractical

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a girl almost 18 and in love with a boy I've never met. We've been writing to each other for six months. Rollie is in the Navy. We started to correspond when my cousin who is his bunk-mate showed him my picture.

Please don't be like my mother and tell me I'm too young to be in love. I've read all about love and this is it.

Rollie and I agree on everything, right down to the brand of toothpaste we like best. The only thing we don't have in common is religion. We can solve this problem later.

ANN LANDERS

Rollie gets his leave in a few months and he wants to come out here to make my acquaintance. We are thinking of getting married. I can finish school later. Please give me some encouragement. My mother goes wild when I bring up the subject. — WISHING AND HOPING.

DEAR W. & H. — Sorry, Toots, but I'm not going to encourage a kooky, mail order romance built on toothpaste.

It's rough enough these days to make a marriage work when two people know each other. What chance would a couple of pen-pals have? Stay in school and cool it.

When necking becomes petting, watch out! To learn how the smart girl keeps both her dignity and her boy friend, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Necking and Petting — And How Far To Go," enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Nuclear Test Ban Treaty Not Likely to Be Upset By Detonation by China

By JOHN BEST

MOSCOW (CP)—The detonation of an atomic device by China is not going to lead to the junking of the East-West nuclear test ban treaty, in the opinion of qualified observers here.

The United States has already stated that it would not regard China's entry into the atomic club as an excuse for abrogating the 1963 treaty. Britain is believed to feel the same way.

And diplomats here believe that the Soviet Union is not likely to resume testing in violation of the ban either.

They concede that if Moscow had other reasons for breaking the compact—if it was looking for a way out—it might use the Chinese blast as a pretext to withdraw.

But observers are inclined to think that on balance the Soviet Union is well satisfied with the present arrangement and therefore not likely to upset it.

They recall that this summer, on the first anniversary of the treaty, the Soviets joined with Britain and the U.S. in warmly praising it as a move toward effective disarmament. The treaty had "moved our planet forward a further strengthening of peace," said a tripartite statement.

Further, Russia is embarked on an ambitious program to improve domestic living standards, and this has reached a point where it would be difficult to cut back without causing dissatisfaction among its people. Yet the program could hardly be maintained if an expensive program of nuclear testing were to be resumed.

The government's decision in recent years to devote increased resources to production of consumer goods is believed to have figured in the decision to accept a test ban treaty in the first place.

The treaty forbids nuclear testing in outer space, the atmosphere and under the oceans. Underground testing is not covered.

CHINA DIDNT SIGN

The Chinese have not signed the test treaty. Nevertheless Soviet propaganda would contrive to represent China as a violator of the will and consensus of the nations—more than 100 have signed the treaty originally concluded by the Big Three.

The propaganda would be mainly for consumption among nations of Africa and Asia, whose leadership China is trying hard to achieve.

In subtle ways, the explosion could help drive Russia closer to the West, though its inevitability must have been taken into account years ago when the general line of Soviet "coexistence" and friendship policy toward the West was formulated.

Over the long run, as China builds up an effective nuclear capability, Russia can be expected to grow more and more nervous, especially if its political and ideological differences with the Chinese are not settled.

Then it may be less restrained in its response.

Crash Kills Soviet Chief Of Staff

Many Senior Officers Die In Blazing Plane

Marshal Biryusov Headed Delegation

BELGRADE (AP) — A Russian plane carrying about 30 persons, including Marshal Sergei Biryusov, chief of the general staff of the Soviet army and navy, crashed today in a fog trying to land here. There were no survivors.

Biryuzov, who was also Soviet first deputy minister of defence, was leading a delegation that included many senior officers invited here for celebrations Tuesday of the 20th anniversary of the liberation of Belgrade from Nazi occupation.

The plane, an IL-18, had taken off from Moscow's Vnukovo Airport this morning. Because of fog, the plane was diverted to an airport north of Belgrade. But it overflew that airport.

Biryuzov, 59, has been known as a Khrushchev man. He rose last year from commander of rocket forces to chief of the Soviet general staff under the administration of Nikita Khrushchev, who was deposed last Wednesday as premier and Soviet Communist party boss.

The marshal accompanied Khrushchev to Prague in August for celebrations commemorating the 20th anniversary of the Slovak uprising against pro-Nazi government.

The Soviet delegation was en route to Belgrade for a similar occasion, the 20th anniversary of the Second World War liberation of Belgrade.

There was no immediate disclosure of the number of persons aboard the plane, but it was a foregone conclusion of a series with cabin layouts designed for from 75 to 98 passengers.

The group included several corps commanders as well as Marshal Biryuzov.

Believed Terrorists Burned Car

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) Police are investigating the burning of a car owned by Leon Balcer, Quebec Progressive Conservative party leader, after a telephone caller claims was set afire by the terrorist Front de Liberation Quebecois.

Mr. Balcer's late - model convertible was found burning in the driveway of his Trois-Rivieres home early Saturday and an empty kerosene bottle was found on the lawn about 10 feet from the car.

Telephone calls in French were made by a man, or men, to Quebec City and Trois-Rivieres news media Saturday and Sunday and Mr. Balcer himself was called Sunday.

"If you don't believe us," the caller said, "ask police what happened three or four weeks ago to minister Yvon Dupuis' car. We dynamited it but police have hidden the fact."

POLICE MUM

Mr. Dupuis is a federal minister without portfolio and was reported on an overseas trip. Neither Quebec Provincial Police nor municipal police at St. Johns, Que., where Mr. Dupuis lives, would comment.

The caller told the member of Parliament for Trois - Rivieres that his car had been set afire with kerosene because of a speech he made in Toronto before the royal visit to Canada in which he said the Queen would not be hurt during her Oct. 11-12 visit to Quebec City. Mr. Balcer said only "gangsters" would attempt any injury to the monarch.

In his report 4, Trois-Rivieres municipal police and to the RCMP, Mr. Balcer said he had been awakened at about 5:45 a.m. Saturday by a passing motorist who reported the car burning.

Firemen were called immediately and although the fire spread to nearby trees Mr. Balcer's home was not damaged.

CAREY GARBAGE

TORONTO (CP) — Residents of suburban Etobicoke took their garbage to the dump during the weekend as a strike of the township's 400 outside employees, including garbage collectors, continued. Street Commissioner M. F. Cox said traffic to the dump was not heavy that sometimes they were lineups of cars and special routes had to be marked in the area.

Today's Chuckle

A reckless driver is the fellow who goes out on the highway in spite of all you can do.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cool unstable weather will persist across the province both today and Tuesday. Considerable cloudiness will develop later this morning. It will be accompanied by showers in the lower lakes region while snowflurries are expected further north. By Tuesday the showers in southern Ontario will have changed to snowflurries.

Battle Lines Forming

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CF)—Battle lines are forming in Parliament on the question of whether the constitutional amending formula produced last week at the federal-provincial conference will be approved with a minimum of public discussion and expert advice.

At the moment, it appears tha. the federal government will try the shortest legislative route to having the formula adopted by the Canadian Parliament and later by the British Parliament.

At the end of the week, Prime Minister Pearson indicated that, while no final decision has been made, the formula will not go to a Commons committee where constitutional experts could give opinions about the provisions.

However, a number of government and opposition members have said privately that the formula must be given greater public discussion, while it is still before Parliament, than normally is given to constitutional amendments.

No opposition has been voiced in the Commons to the objective of the formula—to make it possible for the constitution to be changed wholly in Canada.

At present, changes must ask the British Parliament to make certain kinds of amendments.

But criticism has been expressed inside and outside Parliament about the manner in which the formula was agreed upon among the provinces and federal government.

Andrew Brewin (NDP—Toronto Greenwood) summed them up in the Commons last week:

"We say this hole in the corner procedure is totally unsatisfactory.

"It seems to me that the government of Canada is not being carried on by the elected representatives of the people in Parliament but rather by persistent lobbying of cabinet ministers behind closed doors, but it was a foregone conclusion of a series with cabin layouts designed for from 75 to 98 passengers.

Brezhnev Proclaims Policy With Other Red Parties

MOSCOW (AP) — The new leader of the Soviet Union, Leonid Brezhnev, proclaimed today a policy of peaceful coexistence, disarmament and equality among Communist parties.

Brezhnev made his first personal statement of policy since the removal of Nikita Khrushchev in a speech to Red Square reception for the three latest Soviet cosmonauts.

Brezhnev made no reference to his takeover last Wednesday of Khrushchev's position as first secretary of the Soviet Communist party. Khrushchev has disappeared since then.

In a 20-minute address from atop Lenin's Tomb, Brezhnev said "some people express disquiet that the Soviet Union is far ahead of the United States" in space flight. Some estimates say two years ahead, some five years, he added.

"We are pleased that the Soviet Union is ahead, but we do not consider cosmic research as some kind of a race," Brezhnev said. It is part of Soviet creative work in all fields for the benefit of man, he said.

Brezhnev told the crowd that a Leninst policy would be followed. He emphasized the "Leninist principles of leadership." This was a reference to collective leadership rather than one man domination of the Soviet government.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda has accused Khrushchev — since his unexpected fall—of developing his own "cult of personality" and ignoring others.

Soviet foreign policy, Brezhnev said, is built "on the unshakable basis of the Leninist principle of peaceful coexistence." He called a reduction of international tension "the only reasonable basis under modern conditions" and said "not honest people must agree."

"We stand for complete disarmament" and for strengthening the United Nations "in the interests of peace," Brezhnev said, adding:

"We stand for effective security in Europe."

He advocated unity of the world Communist movement—which is now torn by the dispute between Moscow and Peking, with some parties trying to keep neutral.

The Soviet party will fight for strengthening unity on the basis of equality among communist parties, Brezhnev said. He added that "correct correlation of interests" would be observed.

This appeared to some non-Communist observers to be a pledge to other Communists—particularly east European ones —that Moscow would not under the new leadership attempt to push them around for Soviet nationalistic purposes.

Brezhnev said the Soviet party will continue to work for a meeting of world parties, "which may and must exist in the achievement" of unity.

Red China and its supporters, the Yugoslav party, refused to attend the meeting that Khrushchev was working for. Some other Communists have opposed it indirectly for fear it would lead to a permanent split in world communism.

In the sphere of home policy, said Brezhnev, "the party regards as its main task to develop the productive forces of our society, to raise steadily on this basis the welfare of the Soviet people, to develop socialist democracy in every way."

He said the party wants the Soviet people "to live better, in a more cultured way, so the people's initiative will come into play."

This was an assurance that Khrushchev's emphasis on an improved standard of living had not been abandoned. As Khrushchev had noted before him, Brezhnev said "we understand full well the real difficulties along our road."

The party leader declared that if the governments of other nations "display a striving for peace, if the sovereign right of every nation, big and small, to settle its destiny is observed, then peaceful labor and progress will be ensured."

The welcoming of the cosmonauts was carried throughout the Soviet Union on television and was relayed to the Eurovision system.

Dock Strike Looms

LONDON (AP) — Britain's new Labor government is threatened with a nationwide dock strike in its first week of office.

Union leaders decided to call the stoppage Thursday if their pay demands are not met, industrial sources reported. It would be only a one-day walk out but would carry the threat of a prolonged strike.

A long strike would pose grave difficulties for Prime Minister Harold Wilson taking office with a parliamentary majority of only four. It would inevitably add to Britain's overseas trading difficulties. which already have dropped the nation's gold and dollar reserves

Bank Robber's Bottle of 'Nitro' Turns Out to Be Mere Tap Water

LOS ANGELES (AP)—This is nitroglycerin, give me all your money," said the bank bandit, nervously handishing a small bottle of colorless fluid.

Then, accidentally, he dropped the bottle.

It broke, spilling tap water on the marble floor.

Said the bandit, as bank employees closed in and grabbed him:

"Oh, darn."

It was one of the two bank robberies which occur, according to FBI statistics, every three banking days in Los Angeles county.

Los Angeles, bankers will tell you, is the bank robbery capital of the U.S.

Police say that so far this year bandits have taken more than $250,000 from banks in the city. Outlying areas have lost more.

Once the bandit walks out of the bank with his loot—a cashier robbery is rarely good for more than $1,000—his trouble starts.

The Bank of America has a security system that includes a hidden movie camera, triggered by the teller, which takes the robber's picture.

Public awareness of the problem also helps.

One amateur was captured when a woman customer parking in the bank's lot, thought it strange that a man with a sack climbed into the trunk of his car and closed the lid. She told police, who flushed out the bandit.

One bank official says the FBI told him it has more agents chasing bank robbers than are in New York, Boston and Chicago combined. The Los Angeles police department notes a 15.7 per cent increase this year over 1963—106 robberies compared to 91 in the same period of 1963.

But 62 have been solved.

One man who got away swapped a threatening note for the contents of the teller's cash drawer and walked out, clad in a bright, green suit and a brilliant yellow necktie. It was in the Hollywood area.

Johnson Hopes For Co-operation In Nuclear Block

Warns China's Effort Tempts Other States

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson tells congressional leaders today that the United States has made a "good beginning" in relations with the new leaders of Russia and hopes the Kremlin will join in renewed efforts to block any further spread of nuclear weapons.

Johnson stressed both these points Sunday night in a U.S.-wide television appearance in which he also spoke of the possible use by China of "nuclear blackmail" against other countries, now that it has exploded its first test bomb.

He warned, furthermore, that what he calls China's "expensive and demanding effort (to build nuclear weapons) tempts other states to equal folly—nuclear spread is dangerous to all mankind."

"We continue to believe," Johnson said, "that the strongest nuclear power on earth is much in the Soviet interest as in our own. We will be ready to join with them and all the world—in working to avoid it."

TO CONTINUE SUPPORT

At the same time, the president announced that Washington will continue to support the United Nations but that treaty which the U.S., Russia, Britain and more than 100 other countries signed last year. France and Communist China did not sign.

"We call on the world—especially Red China—to join the nations which have signed that treaty," Johnson said.

The meeting with congressional leaders, both Democrats and Republicans, was scheduled for the White House early this afternoon. It was set up at the end of last week. Officials said that the president would cover substantially the same ground that he has in speeches which he made in his television broadcast on the country's armaments developments in Russia and Red China.

Johnson's reaction to the ouster of Soviet Premier Khrushchev and its significance for the U.S., as he saw it, covered both the possibility of dangerous future crises and the hope that the new Kremlin leaders will undertake new measures to strengthen world peace.

Khrushchev was suddenly ousted Thursday and replaced by two men who share the power which he held alone—

New P. M. Must Act Swiftly

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—Harold Wilson's top priority as Britain's new prime minister will be to act swiftly in defence of the pound sterling and the nation's shaky economy.

The urgency of that huge task was underlined by official trade figures Friday showing that the country last month spent $311,000,000 more abroad than it earned.

One of the most pressing international jobs will be to line up with the United States and other allies in assessing the real meaning of the changes in the Soviet leadership.

The outcome of that appraisal could determine whether the process of East-West conciliation will go on. A lot depends on Premier Alexei Kosygin of the Soviet Union and his colleagues.

Wilson, who knows Kosygin and says he is "very able, very

More than $28,000 had been turned in to the Belleville United Appeal office by Saturday evening. The amount is about $13,000 more than had been received after the same length of last year's campaign. Most of the increase — more than $10,000 over the weekend, came from selected-residential and small business canvassers. More than $12,000 is known now to be in-plant campaign offices, boosting the total collections to more than $40,000.

19-Year-Old Oshawa Girl Wins $150,000 but Has Made No Plans

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fifteen Canadians won major prizes in the third and last Irish Sweepstakes of the year based on Saturday's running of the Cambridgeshire, and almost 400 others will collect consolation prizes expected to boost the Canadian winnings in the international lottery to about $1,900,000.

Seven top prizes of $150,000 each, from tickets on winner Hit Parade, went to two women—in Oshawa and Fanny Bay, Vancouver Island.

Another two, from the Vancouver area and one from Riviere du Loup, Que.

Four prizes of $60,000 each on the second horse, Commander-in-Chief, will go to a Toronto woman, a Brockville gravel pit worker, an Ottawa civil servant who lives in Aylmer, Que., and an Edmonton man.

Four winners of $30,000 each include a Simcoe, Ont., woman who has worked in tobacco fields to support a blind husband. They had tickets on third-place Barwin.

The other 397 Canadians who had tickets drawn on non-starters or horses who ran out of the money will collect prizes based on the total of the pool held three times yearly in aid of hospitals in the Irish Republic. Those prizes are expected to be about $1,100 each.

A 64-year-old Toronto subway ticket collector, Harold Richmond, was on duty in the downtown Queen St. station when he heard the result of the race that brought him $150,000. "I just had to sit down and hold my head," he said. The Toronto Transit Commission hastily sent a relief man, and Mr. Richmond, du. for retirement next February, went home.

Gayle Keene of Oshawa said she has no plans as yet as to what she will do with the $150,000. The 19-year-old said: "I must wait until I receive official word. So far I have only received notification by phone from a woman in Toronto."

Harold Cowell of Brockville was at work in a gravel pit when his horse Commander-in-Chief, finished second for a $60,000 prize, but was not told immediately. Mr. Cowell, who works in a hardware store, said the win would not change their way of life.

Mrs. Joseph Kiss of Simcoe, who has supported her blind husband for 10 years, said she will quit the tobacco fields and use her $30,000 winnings to "support my husband and myself in comfort for the rest of our lives." Mrs. Kiss is 51.

Motor Boats Said Used To Hunt Geese

Reports of unsportsman-like hunters visiting motorboats to stir up and chase geese on the Bay of Quinte were heard in the city over the weekend.

The report was that the hunters were using the power boat west of the city both to shoot the geese and to scare them into birdshot range of other hunters waiting along shore.

If such it would be an effective way of hunters quickly getting their count of geese, only the use of motorboat in hunt geese is not the way of a true sportsman and is also strictly against hunting regulations. . .

Gerald B. Hyde, Vice President Bowling Assoc.

The thirty fourth annual meeting of the Provincial Lawn Bowling Association of Ontario was held in Toronto on Saturday with the day long session being called to order by the president, J. A. Ferguson of Toronto, promptly at 10.30 a.m.

Reports from the 23 bowling district chairmen were in attendance along with the Association officers, the eight provincial convenors and a number of past presidents as well as a number of interested bowlers. The reports of all the standing committees of the Association were given by the various chairmen concerned and these included the championships committee; the annual committee; the veterans' hospital committee; the benevolent fund; the special events committee; the Prov. L. B. tournament committee and the annual report of the secretary treasurer.

Among the highlights brought to the attention of the meeting from these reports were the wonderful success of the Ontario champions in the Canadian championships. For the first time in the 10-year history of the Inter-Provincial competitions, Ontario won all three events. Suitable plaques and banners for the clubs which finished first and individual participants, were presented by the president of the Canadian Lawn Bowling Council, Mr. Bill Connor of Hamilton, to the winners. The special events committee reported plans were underway for a series of matches with 42 visiting bowlers from Europe will be coming to Canada for a goodwill visit in 1965.

The report of the provincial tournament committee reported a successful year despite some interruption by rain and suggested that 80 entries would be accepted for the next year. The benevolent fund reported gifts being made to the Ontario Association of sports writers and Sportscasters for their fund for crippled children of $1,000 as well as loans at the expense of all bowling at Sunnybrook hospital for veterans. The secretary-treasurer Ray Knight reported that there were 8,000 men and over 3,000 ladies registered actively acting players over the past season in 196 clubs.

The meeting voted unanimously to accept the suggested change in round robin scoring for Ontario play-downs as put into effect on a trial basis during the past season.

CLOSE ELECTION

In the elections held to name officers for the 1965 season, a strongly - contested election ensued for the office of president between the vice-president during the past year, Harold Godwin of Hamilton and Mr. Charles Iredale of Preston, a regional supervisor. These two gentlemen had contested the office of vice-president last year with the latter vote coming out as a tie and on a second ballot, Mr. Godwin was declared elected by one vote. This year Mr. Iredale defeated Mr. Godwin for president by a substantial margin and assumes the presidency for 1965.

It was the turn of Eastern Ontario to nominate candidates for the office of vice-president. A Belleville member, in the person of Gerald B. Hyde, was nominated by Mr. Ubald Rouleau of Cornwall and seconded by Mr. Vic Foxhall of Cobourg for the office and was the unanimous choice of the meeting, there being no further nominations. Jerry Hyde has been a member of the Belleville club since 1946, has served as club president, district chairman and regional convener. He will bring to this position a considerable background and interest in the game and his administration at the provincial level and his selection by acclamation is high tribute to the feeling perveient in the delegates as to his ability to handle the office of president in another year.

Mr. Ray R. Knight of Toronto was elected for the 15th time by acclamation as secretary-treasurer but asked this year for the appointment of an assistant. Mr. Knight is in his 82nd year and has been a tower of administrative strength to the Association for many years. Cy English of Leaside was elected as assistant secretary and will likely succeed Ray Knight in another year.

All district chairmen reported progress and good games in their various districts and looked forward to the hosting of the British visitors next year. District 15 was represented by Doug McCorquodale of Kingston.

Scouts Join In 'Jamboree On the Air'

Scouts of Belleville participated in their 7th "Jamboree on the Air" over the weekend. The scouts used the short wave radio facilities of three Belleville radio amateurs to exchange ideas and talk to other scouts in various parts of the world.

The Jamboree was organized by the World Scout Bureau located in Ottawa which for the first time used their own radio equipment recently donated by Daystrom Ltd. Approximately twenty scout troops landlocked rovers were invited to take part in the Jamboree and visited the ham stations in groups of six for one hour.

After the World Scout Bureau or other participating radio stations were contacted, the individual scouts had an opportunity to talk to other scouts about their activities and discuss items of mutual interest.

Belleville scouts were organized for the event by District Commissioner Arthur Fort.

Gov.-General Officially Opens Trent University

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Governor-General Vanier officially opened Trent University here Saturday with a warning to students that automation will demand a new broader education than ever before.

Whatever may have been the case in the past, the world just over the horizon will have no place for the dropout, the misadjusted, the unprepared for the over specialized," Governor-General Vanier said.

"We are accustomed to thinking of education as schooling. It is not. Education is the cultivation of an inquiring mind armed with precision, deepened with experience and inspired with the love of learning. Education can be begun, but can never be ended."

The opening was a colorful ceremony under sunny skies. Indian feathers in nearby Curve Lake band, resplendent in buckskins of green and orange with white trimming, led the opening parade.

OPENS BROCK

For the Yeomen it was the start of a three-day weekend that includes the official opening of two other colleges — the other is Brock University at St. Catharines.

Trent University, now scattered in buildings throughout the city, eventually will be located on a 1,000-acre campus overlooking the Otonabee River on the outskirts of the city.

Madam Vanier unveiled during a prize-winning statue created for the Canadian Save the Children Fund at a ceremony in Lothian Mews, a shopping area in Lattimer Square.

The statue, the work of sculptor Jack Harman of North Vancouver, will be placed in a fountain in Lothian Mews. The fund hopes it will encourage Peterborough merchants and citizens to toss coins in the fountain.

Anglican Church Army Holds Annual Rally

TRENTON — It is an annual event to hold a fall rally of The Anglican Church Army in Canada in Peterborough. Miss Greta Clark, president of the Peterborough Associates, arranged to have it held in St. George's Church Peterborough this year. There was a good attendance of the Anglican parishioners. The Church Army Associates of Peterborough have contributed this year nearly fifteen hundred dollars and a considerable amount of produce to the maintenance of Church Army Headquarters.

Captain B. A. Taylor, Director of The Church Army in Canada with headquarters and training centre located in Toronto 395-399 Brunswick Ave., was present with six captains and fourteen cadets. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Smith, Francis Street, Trenton attended the service with their grandson, Capt. Ronald Smith, now assistant to Canon K.F. Blackford in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton. Captain Smith during the summer of 1962 served as an assistant to the Anglican Ministry in Montreal and was delegated to meet the passengers ocean liners and assist the new arrivals to Canada.

In 1963 he was stationed at the Hamilton Wharf to assist any of the boat seamen of many denominations, requiring information or assistance. When they had time he would take them on a tour of the Niagara Peninsula and Niagara Falls. In 1964 he was assigned to Beverley Lodge in Toronto an Anglican rehabilitation home for young men for rehabilitation. The Anglican Church Army in Canada established in 1923. Ever since then trained and commissioned many young men for this vital ministry within the Anglican Church. These young men come from all parts of Canada and must be dedicated to this Christian service before they will be accepted.

At this meeting some gave a resume of their activities during this year, serving in mission parishes in Western Canada, meeting new arrivals in Canada, in lumber camps, fresh air camps for children and Indian settlements.

The meeting was closed by the president, Miss Greta Clark, expressing her appreciation to all who attended and contributed making the meeting a wonderful success. After the benediction a buffet lunch was served giving all an opportunity to have a social get together and become acquainted with the twenty young men associated with the Anglican Church Army in Canada.

Wooler Objects To Location Of Building

TRENTON — Objections, which were termed "about 90 per cent sentimental," by one township official, were voiced at Thursday night's meeting in the Wooler town hall, to Murray Council's plan to locate a $30,000 municipal building outside the village of Wooler.

For the most part, the objections came from village residents themselves, and even though such reasons as "loss of assessment" were given, township clerk Angus Gunter said on Friday in his opinion most people objected to locating the building south-east of the village because council will meet in the new building and, "people are used to council meeting in Wooler."

However, Mr. Gunter stressed that council would have the final say in the long run. Last year, council passed a resolution to locate the proposed new office building which is to be the township's Centennial project next door to the equipment sheds on the old Wooler Road, about two miles south and east of Wooler.

Once a $10,000 Centennial grant has been approved by government agencies and other costs handled by the sale of debentures, council will have to take a stand on the location: although Reeve Douglas McMaster and the majority of council approve the rural location, two councillors, Leo McAuley and Gerald Ross would like to see it in Wooler.

NEW LAKE

A lake with a 500-mile shoreline will be created behind the dam and built as a part of the South Saskatchewan River Development Project.

Street Building Costs May Top Estimates

TRENTON — Trenton council learned this week costs of reconstructing three of the town's main streets may exceed estimates by more than $125,000.

M. Tomlinson, the consulting engineer hired by the town to supervise the project, said the final estimate of cost was $794,000, rather than $667,000, and laid this to additional work which had to be done on Dufferin Ave., Sidney St. and Dundas St. East, in order to have the job done right. Rayner Company workmen or their subcontractors ran into bad soil conditions, inadequate water and sewer connections etc., he said.

Legion Plans Poppy Week

TRENTON — Legion Poppy Week will commence November 5 and will continue until November 11, both dates inclusive.

Trenton Legionnaires have been asked by the branch executive to turn out in numbers to make popular the annual poppy sales campaign, and volunteers to sell are also needed.

Sunday, November 8, the branch will hold a church parade to St. George's Anglican church. The Trenton Sea Cadet Band will accompany the marchers.

On Monday, November 9, at the high school auditorium, the 2 RD Brass and Reed Volunteer Band will give an hour's concert and the film, "Fields of Sacrifice," will be shown. The proceeds from a silver collection will go to the Legion poppy fund.

'Fog' Crash Damages Cars

TRENTON — An accident on County Road No. 33 in Murray Township early Saturday morning in heavy fog resulted in $365 damage to the two cars involved.

The cars were driven by Arthur Francis Dorland, age 36, of Wooler and Miss James McConnachie, age 24 of Campbellford, Ont. The drivers told police they failed to see each other in the heavy fog.

Boss Requested To Retract Statements

OTTAWA (CP) — The grand council of student unions of the University of Ottawa Sunday night voted to demand an official retraction of remarks made about the academic standing of student by Bill Boss, university public relations officer.

The council voted nine to six, with one abstention, to demand Mr. Boss retract his statements about Miss Marie Chevrier, daughter of Liberal member, Canadian high commissioner in London.

The controversy started Oct. 8 in London when Mr. Chevrier was quoted in a radio interview that he was "having some difficulty in getting Marie into a proper university." Britain is because of the "higher standard of education in the United Kingdom."

Mr. Boss said the following day the 19-year-old Miss Chevrier was "having a hardtime holding her own here."

He said Mr. Chevrier "would seem at last to be learning that parents no longer 'get' their children into university; students must earn their right to admission and to remain."

FILE CONFIDENTIAL

The grand council of student unions said in its resolution that a student's file is confidential information and Mr. Boss had "greatly attacked a student's reputation."

The council also charged that Mr. Boss, by mentioning that Mr. Chevrier was on the university's board of governors, insinuated Miss Chevrier "owed her admission to the University of Ottawa to the part her father could play as a regent of the University of Ottawa.

The resolution demanded an "official retraction" from Mr. Boss "to rectify the unfortunate situation for which he must assume the sole responsibility.

22 Black Saints Canonized by Pope Paul

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul proclaimed Sunday the canonization of 22 Uganda martyrs as the first black saints of modern times in an unprecedented ceremony in St. Peter's Basilica.

Native tom toms drummed the news of the canonization from village to village across the vastness of equatorial Africa where the 22 sainted Bantu tribesmen lived and died for their faith in the late 19th century.

The canonization rites accompanied by the native-beat music of a new African oratorio in the presence of colorfully robed African delegations is St. Peter's Basilica makes it possible for African Negro Roman Catholics to have their children baptized in the names of people of their own blood and traditions. The saints include a court jester, a herdsman, four musicians, a cloth maker, a dugout canoe builder and a potter.

The Uganda martyrs are the first saints canonized under Pope Paul. They had been beatified — declared blessed — by Pope Benedict XV in 1920. That is the step usually needed to venerated locally in their native lands.

With canonization, the Roman Catholic Church declares that they ascended to heaven upon death, and prescribes that they not only can receive public honor, but must receive it.

One by one the pope named the 22 martyrs who were burned alive, beheaded, cut to pieces, speared or clubbed to death at the orders of pagan tribal King Mwanga of Uganda between 1883 and 1887.

Batawa Man Injured in Car Accident

Wilson Irwin, 29 Sidney Street, Batawa is in Belleville General Hospital with a fractured right leg and injured ribs suffered when his auto left the roadway on Highway 33 north of Frankford on Saturday afternoon.

Provincial police said the accident occurred about five miles south of Stirling on the Frankford road.

Two other cars came to grief on Highway 37 at O'Brien's Bridge, one on Saturday and another Sunday night about 11 o'clock.

The Sunday night accident saw a late model car driven by Harry Leal, William Street, Belleville, leave the roadway on a curve and down an embankment into a deep ditch. The car was said damaged to the extent of about $500. No one was injured.

Hard to Get Young People Interested in Politics PC District Women Are Told

All political parties in Canada have a dangerous something in common—an increasingly disinterested public, a veteran politician warned Saturday.

"What worries me about politics is that it seems hard to get young people interested—and a lot of other people too," Elmer Sandercock, MPP for West Hastings told the annual Eastern District 2 meeting of the Progressive Conservative Women of Ontario at St. Columba's Hall.

"I can imagine that all the other parties are having the same problem — the Liberal party has trouble getting people out, and the NDP too."

"If you brought the Prime Minister of Canada here we could easily find a hall that would hold all the people out to hear him. And that would apply to Premier John Robarts if he came here," added Mr. Sandercock.

"But if you brought the Beatles the arena wouldn't hold them!"

Mr. Sandercock's non-party remarks came in the midst of a running series of political addresses at the meeting.

The assembly of 40 delegates from five local ridings to elect an executive drew a large representation of Conservative provincial and federal politicians.

Besides Mr. Sandercock the meeting heard from MPPs Norris Whitney (Prince Edward-Lennox); Clarke Rollins (Hastings East); MPs Jack Bigg (Athabasca); Doug Alkenbrack (Prince Edward-Lennox); Rodney Webb (Hastings-Frontenac) and Lee Grills of Belleville.

DEFENDS DIEFENBAKER

The roster presented a study in contrasting styles ranging from the politically impartial remarks of Mr. Sandercock to the bluntness of Mr. Bigg, who castigated critics of Opposition Leader Diefenbaker.

"Mr. Diefenbaker," he said, was a man of high principles and those who called him a dictator had "few principles of their own."

"They are pink. That means Reds without any guts," he told the meeting.

He charged "disloyalty" by party dissidents was one reason for the Conservative defeat at the last election.

Mr. Webb blamed the press for the Conservative defeat and publishing slanted news from the Commons.

"We were defeated in the last election by the press and TV . . . and no one knows that any better than those of us in the House of Commons day after day.

"It's slanted news — it's not true news."

The flag debate carried on by the Conservatives was of vital importance, he said.

"Had we not carried on the debate we would have had the three-leaf flag today. Had it gone to a vote, today we'd have had the Pearson pennant."

Mr. Alkenbrack laid the emphasis on organization. Party members must also "go out" to the people and tell about the Progressive Conservatives."

Mr. Rollins warned the delegates and politicians against preoccupation with the past and shrugged off the effects of publicity.

"We must not dwell on the past but look to the future."

"Actions speak a great deal louder than words and I personally couldn't care less about publicity as long as we are helping people."

Norris Whitney looked for a greater supporting role by Ontario Conservatives for the federal party.

Only John Diefenbaker as party leader could be assured of the same support across Canada, he said.

"We in Ontario should have a greater effect federally than we have had in the past."

He said we should use what we have in Ontario to support John Diefenbaker to win the next federal election."

Walker, Sisler Take Over Reds, Pirates

CINCINNATI (AP) — Fred Hutchinson, a cancer sufferer, resigned as manager of the Cincinnati Reds and Dick Sisler, who has been a coach and acting manager, was named to succeed him.

Hutchinson had managed the Reds since 1959 and directed the team to the National League pennant in 1961.

His cancer ailment was discovered the first of this year, but he directed the team through the 1964 season until Aug. 12 when he was given a leave of absence.

PITTSBURGH (AP) Harry Walker was named field manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates today to succeed Danny Murtaugh, who resigned at the end of the season for health reasons.

The 45-year-old Walker played in the major leagues for St. Louis Cardinals, Philadelphia Phillies, Chicago Cubs and the Cincinnati Reds.

Walker, the National League batting champion in 1947 with the Phillies, was signed to a one-year contract for an undisclosed sum.

Tax Revision Needed

The Federal and provincial governments have agreed to an intensive study of Canada's tax structure.

And not before it was time.

Right now, taxes go around and around so fast that we doubt whether anybody really knows where they come out—what tax pays for what service.

The Federal government collects taxes and pay subsidies to municipalities and municipalities pay taxes to the federal and provincial governments and there is such a merry mix-up that the only person who has a solid grasp on realities is the taxpayer — he knows that, one way or another, he is going to get hooked.

There are, however, ways in which he can reduce the depth of the bite on his pocketbook and we are not at all sure that all of these ways are desirable. On some occasions tax relief appears to be granted more by whim than by reason and on others an expenditure which most reasonable men would suggest should be tax free suffers an extra impost.

Once upon a time there were probably good reasons for most of what appear today as senseless exemptions or cruelly punitive levies. The trouble is that circumstances have changed greatly, while the tax laws have undergone only minor revisions. What is required is a completely new look at the tax structure of the nation, without any preconceptions.

• • •

One fundamental question which the committee might study would be whether it is wise to levy what are generally termed luxury taxes. Many things which were once luxuries are now considered necessities. But aside altogether from this, there is the matter of whether the taxing bodies should take it upon themselves to judge how a citizen should spend his money. That, in effect, is what happens when a taxing body places a higher tax on some types of goods and services than on others.

This does not mean that our tax structure ought not to encourage the use of money for purposes which are obviously socially useful—but these should surely include the provision of productive facilities and the encouragement of Canadian ownership of these facilities.

Once this has been done, though, and once suitable tax exemptions has been arranged for the absolute necessities of life—food, clothing, housing and basic transportation, for example —then we are not at all sure that personal choice in the expenditure of money should be penalized.

There are today many taxes, direct and indirect, which influence the cost of various forms of entertainment, from gardening to nightclubbing, from owning a summer cottage to joining a flying club, from attending sports events to jitter-bugging.

• • •

An ever-increasing share of personal income is being spent on services, in the affluent society in which we live on this continent. Moreover, the so-called "pleasure-seeker" is regarded as fair game and nobody seems to care. Those who hanker to hit these charges everything the traffic will bear. Yet it is in this increase in services that the road to a higher standard of living lies for most of us. At the same time, it is the provision of these services which offers the brightest hope of our being able to find employment for all those who will be displaced by automation in industries concerned with the production of goods.

A modern tax structure would pay scant heed to that philosophy which regards pleasure with suspicion and justifies heavy taxes on anything which pertains to luxury. It is easy to say this, but not so easy to suggest how tax laws can be drafted equitably, since exemption ought to be granted to necessities. It is frequently difficult to distinguish at just what stage a necessity becomes a luxury. The income tax, with its exemptions, is an effort to solve this problem automatically, but for this solution to work it would have to be the only tax and all income, including capital gains, would have to be taxed. Nobody has yet been able to suggest how this can be done with equity, and without discouraging necessary saving and investment. Under these circumstances, the tax authorities must seek other solutions. Their task will not be easy, but the present tax structure is such a hodge-podge that any change based on accurate information and good judgment should at least be an improvement.

Administration seems to be at least as much a gift as a skill to be learned. It manifests itself in all kinds of people.—Journalist Barney Keelan.

20 YEARS AGO

Huge quantities of canned goods are leaving Picton harbor almost daily, and there is every prospect of shipping records of past years being smashed.

Picton has the chief deep water harbor in this district and canned goods are trucked here fox water shipment from as far west as Bowmanville and from Frankford south. The largest freighters find no difficulty calling here. Arriving Saturday evening, the C.S.L. freighter Seirick loaded 700 tons of canned goods for the west. This cargo alone represents some 83,000 cases or 782,000 single cans, chiefly tomatoes. Leaving Monday night, workmen who had labored 36 hours, were called upon to help load a similar one the Canadian, east-bound. Then yesterday the Edmonton, east-bound took on another big cargo.

Strictly Personal

Restraint Most Skillful Of Activities

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

What we may call "negative knowledge" is often the most important kind, and the hardest to come by. To know when not to do something is almost the beginning and end of expertise.

If you look at any good book on games — for instance, on bridge or poker — you will find that the author distinguishes the experts from the duffers by a seemingly simple test: "passing" in bridge and "folding" in poker.

The average bridge player doesn't know when not to bid, and the average poker player doesn't know when not to fold. Disciplining oneself to pass and to fold in these games is the mark of a winning player.

I have played bridge and poker for years with men who had considerable "positive" knowledge — they knew the odds, the strategems, the conventions and the rules down to the ground. Yet, in the long run, they lose, and sometimes to less seasoned players — because they lack the ability or desire to refrain from bidding or betting.

Why should this be so? Why should an experienced player be able to master so many complex and subtle elements of a game, and still be unable to keep his mouth shut? Obviously, some psychological factor is at work here that has nothing to do with the game as such.

What is operating in these cases, I very much suspect, is the unconscious unwillingness to be beaten in any given hand. The expert accepts (both mentally and emotionally) the fact that on some hands he will be beaten; he resigns himself to it and tries to make it up on other hands.

But a certain prevalent kind of duffer cannot stand the thought that he is outcarded. He hopes desperately for a miracle, and competes for the hand even when all his positive knowledge tells him he is wrong. His deepest need — to compete successfully — has worn away with his judgment; and he is a slave to, rather than a master of, his hand.

All this, of course, is more important than a mere card game. The same attitude that creates "busy bidders" in bridge and "hopeless stayers" in poker also brings to eventual grief the millions of non-players who exhibit similar tendencies in their personal and occupational lives.

The wife who does not know when to say nothing; the employee who does not know when to forgo an advantage, the teacher who does not know when to look the other way; the lawyer who does not know when to accept a fair settlement — all these, and many more, are beaten by themselves and not by anyone else. Schnabel once said it was not the striking of the keys but the "silence between the notes" that made good piano playing. Restraint in itself is the most skillful of activities.

Spelling Art, Not Science

London Free Press

Spelling is more an art than a science; it's a knack that you either have or lack. Many university graduates are abominable spellers; some in high positions rely upon their secretaries to send out letters with all the words written correctly.

It is for such semi-illiterates as these that a British publisher has brought out the Awful Spellers' Dictionary. It's a great idea, but it won't do much good.

In the first place, the bad speller is usually unaware of his deficiency. Because of some mental quirk, words have not registered on his mind, and he doesn't know how to spell. Why shouldn't "receive" be spelled "receiave" or "exorbitant" be "exhorbitant"? They sound the same.

That is why it's all but useless to tell the poor speller that he should keep a dictionary at his side. Only the man in constant doubt will use such a book, and bad spellers are usually supremely self-confident people who have been like that ever since public school.

Examples given by the Awful Spellers' Dictionary editors include "rinocerus," "venomina," and "greveous," but the latter adjective will continue to describe the spelling of those unfortunates who have never been beset by doubts and for whom any dictionary will forever remain a closed book.

Twenty-five years ago today — in 1939 — Britain, France and Turkey signed a 15 - year mutual assistance treaty; the Russian-German friendship pact was ratified; under German pressure, French troops began to withdraw almost to their own frontier.

There Is No Medicine That Will Dissolve Cataracts

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: I have been told there is a new medicine that will dissolve cataracts. Is this true? — Mrs. P. G.

No, and if it were true, I am sure there would be a great deal of news about it.

Special medications can improve vision (by increasing the amount of light admitted by the eye) in some cases temporarily.

Variations of the drug pilocarpine are used as a conservative and temporary treatment to combat glaucoma (increased pressure within the eyeball) and cataracts, since glaucoma is one of several causes of cataracts. (Diabetes and injury are others.)

But nothing will dissolve a cataract. Remember that a cataract is a cloudiness in the lens of the eye. When the cloudiness becomes too dense, not enough light can pass through.

The solution is to remove the lens, and compensate for its absence with glasses of one type or another. Modern surgical techniques have made this operation both successful and safe.

• • •

Dear Doctor: I am a victim of glaucoma and am anxious to know what I can do to preserve my sight. I have to travel about 30 miles to a specialist. I have great faith in him, but since he is very busy, I hesitate to take up his time with all my questions.

My older sister has glaucoma and she tells me that heat is harmful for it, alcoholic drinks tend to increase pressure in the eyes, and so do grave excitement and stress. In her case, even stooping over is bad. — Mrs. R. W.

Cataracts and glaucoma, two important causes of loss of sight, are much more common as we grow older (but they can at times occur early, too), so as the average life span continues to increase, we must be more aware of them.

Glaucoma must be treated as soon as recognized. The longer the pressure continues inside the eye, the more damage is done. But to answer the inquiries:

While I certainly don't encourage wasting a physician's time (or anyone else's for that matter) you should not hesitate to ask him what you need to know.

What your sister told you is, in general, correct. What she did not point out, and perhaps does not realize, is that no two persons necessarily react the same way to treatment or to conditions.

Your doctor probably will concur in most or perhaps all of what your sister said, but don't take my word for it. Ask him. That's what he is for. Or write him, since you live at a distance.

Telling a patient what to do or not to do can be just as important, at times, as any other aspect of treatment. Doctors are busy. So have your questions ready and keep your mind stick to them. But don't hesitate to ask.

Dear Dr. Molner: Are chlorophyll tablets harmful if taken regularly for a long time, and do they actually kill germs? — Mrs. L. F.

No, they aren't harmful. And no, they don't kill all odors.

'Silent Goodness' Needed

Montreal Gazette

Anatole France said of his father that he was a man of "silent goodness." It is the joining together of these words that makes the point impressive. Silent goodness is goodness of a rare kind. It is the sympathy that attends but does not dispute. When goodness is not silent it is likely to be full of arguments; its sympathy may use words that do not quite apply. Then it burdens where it ought to relieve.

A longing for the silent sympathy is in the words Shakespeare gives Cleopatra, when she learns that Mark Antony has married Octavia, and she knows her life is wrecked. She turns to her attendant Charmian and says: Pity me, Charmian; But do not speak to me.

How healing the instinct for silent sympathy can be was experienced by Sir John Franklin on his journey of northern exploration in 1821, when he and his men nearly starved to death at Fort Enterprise. They were rescued by the Indians. In the tent of the Indian chief they were given a sympathy that seemed to Franklin to be deeper than what might be found in civilization. The Indian chief sat absolutely still, regarding the sufferers with silent compassion. He would say not a word until food had been offered and eaten.

• • •

How seriously the sick may be afflicted by the goodness that is not silent was realized by Florence Nightingale. In her book 'Notes on Nursing" she speaks of the visitors to the sick she had heard and how rarely they knew what not to say. Those who set out to do the sick person good, she found, most often worry him with advice to do something or other, having just as little knowledge as to its being feasible, or even safe for him, as if they were to recommend a man to take exercise, not knowing that he had a broken leg."

She said any nurse knows when any patient is being done harm if he is being told: 1. That he has nothing the matter with him., and that he wants sleeping. 2. That he is committing suicide, and that he wants preventing. 3. That he is the tool of somebody who makes use of him for a work. 4. That he will listen to nobody, but is obstinately bent upon his own way and 5. That he ought to be called to a sense of duty, and is flying in the face of Providence.

What Florence Nightingale feared most was not the weariness that comes with such aggressive goodness; she feared most the terrible isolation that it brings to the sick. The sick came to realize that they are surrounded by active misunderstanding. They are too tired to argue; they can only listen and feel alone.

• • •

The "silent goodness" has its meaning far beyond that particular incident of time or place. for most people need something more than clever advice or frank encouragement. The silent sympathy has its power because it does necessarily react the same way to treatment or to conditions.

Your doctor probably will concur in most or perhaps all of what your sister said, but don't take my word for it. Ask him. That's what he is for. Or write him, since you live at a distance.

Telling a patient what to do or not to do can be just as important, at times, as any other aspect of treatment. Doctors are busy. So have your questions ready and keep your mind stick to them. But don't hesitate to ask.

Posterity and Cars

Sault Daily Star

When posterity appraises the Twentieth Century, the invention of prime magnitude will undoubtedly be the two world wars, the harnessing of atomic energy, the great changes in the forms of government and, to be less exact, the development of the automotive vehicle to the pinnacle of its present performance.

Reliving the Day

Oshawa Citizen

To read the findings of the Warren commission is almost to relive that dreadful day in Dallas 10 months ago. It is not much easier today than it was then to accept the shocking truth: that one unhappy youth, for reasons known only to his own twisted mind, snuffed out the life of one of the great figures of our age in a time when his potential for achievement was only beginning to be realized.

Look to Future

Niagara Falls Review

The immediate economic outlook is distinctly encouraging. Yet those who make important national decisions must look beyond the next few months and weigh the implications of recent authoritative warnings that the long-term problem is less one of merely maintaining the current rate of economic growth than of safely accelerating it.

Curling Club Will Have Ice On November 2

Working far into the night the directors of the Quinte Curling Club, under the presidency of Gil Wansbrough, recently held a meeting at the clubhouse to prepare final plans for the opening of the curling season, which promises to be one of the best on record.

An ice maker has been acquired by the chairman of the ice committee, Ron Benn, and work will soon start on the making of ice to have the rink ready for curling by November 2nd. With respect to membership, Fred Maund, in charge of this committee, reports 19 new members with prospects of several more before the opening of the season. The addition of these members will bring the total membership up to previous standards.

Considerable discussion was held on the formation of a group of 50 years and over members to play in a separate league from the regular schedule, but there was not sufficient response and the chairman of men's curling will place those who want to curl in this loop or curl in the regular schedule. A good response was had from the questionnaire on schedules and Bob Alexander and Bill Meagher, in charge of mixed curling, will have valuable data to work on.

The available ice time for the business girls who wished to curl was not satisfactory and there will be no league formed at this time but many of the girls wishing to curl, were invited to join the women's section of the club. Vic White, the newly-appointed director, in place of Cec Kirkwood, notified the club he would be unable to curl this season, due to pressure of business and a committee of the president, Bill Meagher and Ken Pinder was appointed to bring in names for the position of bonspiel chairman and students' curling.

Students from Albert College and the Ontario School for the Deaf will curl certain afternoons from 4.30 to 6.30 p.m.

A general meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday, October 28th, at which time the reports of the directors will be received.

Herbert Hoover Critically Ill

NEW YORK (AP) — Former president Herbert C. Hoover, 90, has suffered "sudden and massive" internal bleeding and doctors have listed his prospects of recovery as "extremely guarded."

The latest word on his condition was a statement Sunday night that there was "no change."

Hoover's third attack of internal bleeding within 16 months struck him early Sunday. He was in his Waldorf Towers suite where he has been confined by failing health most of the time for two years.

A late afternoon medical bulletin said Hoover was "comfortable and in no pain," and was "critically ill."

The bulletin added:

"Replacement of blood by transfusions has kept pace with the losses which have been large."

In August, 1962, Hoover had an operation for removal of an abdominal cancer. In June 1963, he suffered anemia and internal bleeding. Last February, he suffered a kidney hemorrhage and a respiratory infection.

Queen Knew Location of Hastings County

The riding of Hastings South has not escaped the attention of the Queen.

This was indicated to its MP Robert Temple when he was presented to Her Majesty during her visit last week to Ottawa.

"After being presented the Queen asked what part of the country I represented," Mr. Temple said in his regular Saturday evening radio report.

"I replied Hastings South and I was very pleased when Her Majesty said 'That's not very far from here is it — only a few ridings away.'"

"Apart from Her Majesty's excellent knowledge of our geography which deeply impressed me, I found in her warm, gracious and charming monarch that all Canadians know her to be."

Mr. Temple's remarks were contained in a report on the new federal Labor Code, which he called "an important milestone in the long movement toward the betterment of economic conditions of Canadians."

Management Should Try to Help Alcoholics

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Management should take the initiative to help alcoholic employees solve their drinking problem, Dr. W. A. Hogg, a physician with Imperial Oil Limited, Sarnia, told the annual western Ontario conference of Alcoholics Anonymous Saturday.

Dr. Hogg said an employee is more likely to take advice from top management than from fellow employees.

"But there should be no pussyfooting around," he said. If the alcoholic employee can not or will not try to help himself, there is no alternative but to fire him "to give the last final blow to his ego."

Dr. Hogg said his firm's regional health centre counsels employees with drinking problems and conducts periodic health examinations.

He was one of three panel members who discussed "AA and society" during the conference.

Joseph L. Mennill, director of the Ontario Police College at Aylmer, 15 miles southeast of London, said police generally try to be sympathetic and understanding with people with drinking problems.

He said there is some training and information on how to deal with alcoholics being given policemen attending the college but more information, from groups such as AA, would be of benefit.

"The consensus of opinion seems to be that you've been naughty."

Five candidates were offered by different groups for the election; selection among the five was by elimination voting. Unsuccessful candidates were Fred Donaldson of Bridge St. United Church, Denton McBride of Christ Church, Roddy Clark of Exterminator United Church and John Moore of Holloway St. United Church. The election was conducted by district nursing officer for the Ontario Older Boys' Parliament, Taylor Franklin of Belleville.

If you're trying to get the most for your insurance dollar, the tape-recorded comments of Russ Jackson may help you:

Russ Jackson talks about doubling his money with London Life

Why did Russ Jackson—football player and mathematics teacher—choose a $25,000 Jubilee whole life policy? Russ gave his reasons in a tape-recorded conversation in his Ottawa home. Here they are—in his own words:

"There are not too many places where you can double your money as well as protect your family."

This one comment sums up Russ Jackson's reasons for buying a $25,000 Jubilee whole life policy. It's interesting to hear him explain the steps that led up to this investment.

"Being in the position I'm in, I have a lot of insurance people who contact me and try to get me to take insurance policies of one sort or another.

"But I had known some people in London Life and when a chap here in Ottawa—contacted me, I was ready for insurance and more than willing to talk to him."

Why did Russ feel he was "ready for insurance"?

"I was married in 1961 to a Hamilton girl, Lois. We now have two youngsters—a boy, Kevin, and a little girl, Suzanne.

"This policy gives my wife protection if anything should happen to me and would provide her to carry on what I think would be a fairly normal life."

Protection is one side of his Jubilee whole life policy. Investment is the other. Russ looked into this thoroughly.

"As many people know, bonds and investments are part of the Grade 13 Algebra course. Teaching this to the students at high school has made me aware of all the pitfalls and possibilities in this type of investment. Before I made a final background has helped a great deal in evaluating this London Life policy.

"My monthly premium are $34.58.

"If I live to age 65, I will have paid in—being 28 at present—a little over $25,000. And if I leave my dividends to accumulate, which I plan on doing, then this policy can be worth over $30,000.

"This would be double the amount I would have paid in premiums."

(Note: the $30,000 figure Russ mentions above is made up of $13,600 guaranteed cash value and the balance in accumulated dividends. These dividends are based on the 1964 dividend scale. While they are not guaranteed, London Life has had an outstanding record of dividend growth. For example, since 1951 the dividend rate has been increased seven times.)

"I have to admit it's a long-term investment — you're not going to make a lot of money quickly—but the protection that you get with it makes it extremely attractive."

London Life insurance is flexible. Here are three of the choices Russ will have when he reaches age 65:

(a) He can continue to pay premiums on his $25,000 policy and continue to build savings.

(b) He can withdraw his $30,000 or so as a lump sum.

(c) He can use his savings to provide an annuity for life or for a set number of years.

Russ talked briefly about one other feature of his insurance program.

"I also have what is known as an income continuance. This extends through to May, 1984, and guarantees Lois—if anything happens to me between now and 1984—$200 a month, every month, until that date in '84. The purpose of this is to guarantee my children—who are very young now—the chance of going to college."

(This income would be in addition to the $25,000 provided by Russ' Jubilee policy.)

Russ Jackson's story is not unusual. Today, most young men know they need insurance to protect their families. Many of them are discovering they can also double their money with London Life. A representative of the Company can show you how.

Your Car

Minor Woes Don't Make Car Lemon

By EUGENE B. MILMOE

No reason to despair if your car is afflicted with hard-starting, stalling and missing . . chances are better than 75 percent that the cure is simple.

All three troubles could be caused by poor starting technique. If you pump the pedal too much, you can overload the cylinders, creating all sorts of headaches. Even after you finally get started, the flooded engine will be balky, tending to stall and miss for a while. Water in the fuel is another easily corrected condition which is often at fault. A can of the dry gas or water absorbent mixtures sold by your dealer will solve this problem . . and you can help prevent its recurrence by keeping the tank well-filled, thus minimizing condensation.

A clogged fuel filter, a manifold air leak, dirty carburetor, sticking automatic choke, fouled spark plugs, pitted points and loose cable connections sum up most of the other easy-to-cure troubles which may have caused you to label your car a lemon.

F. D. asks: "Should the radiator pressure cap be loosened a bit when the temperature guage shows heat build-up?"

Never. This defeats the entire purpose of the pressure system which is to raise the boiling point of the coolant and thus minimize the chances of overheating.

From N. T.: "Our car seems to bounce along noisily and generally gives an uncomfortable ride, even on smooth roads. Would shock absorbers or springs — or both be the cause of this?"

There's a good chance that neither is actually to blame. Check first for faulty shock or spring bushings, shackles or clips.

F. N. writes: "My '64 sedan is equipped with power steering which I have difficulty controlling. The lightest movement of the wheel seems to bring about a very sharp steering reaction."

If the power steering system itself is at fault, excessive pump pressure or a sticking control valve is the likely suspect. But keep in mind that over-inflated tires can also cause extremely sensitive steering.

S. T. asks: "I've heard that slight automatic transmission hum in park, neutral and reverse gear is normal. What about a hum in drive and low, too?"

If you're lucky, . .low transmission fluid is the reason. If not, worn parts or insufficient pump pressures are calling for attention.

Card parties will be held during the winter in the homes and the proceeds will be used to purchase additional equipment for the greens, such as a motorized roller.

The new officers elected for the ladies' club were: president, Mrs. Mabel Brooker; vice-president, Mrs. Mary Doran; secretary, Mrs. Evelyn Burgess; treasurer, Mrs. Verna Woodbeck.

Bulletins From Birdland

By WINIFRED H. WILSON

PLUMAGE DIFFERENCES

We could hardly fail to notice the plumage difference in some of the birds that visited our feeding tray this last summer. Of course we had known that certain kinds have two or three "phases". Screech owls and ruffed grouse may be either red or grey; some hawks have two, some three phases: dark, medium, or light. Then, without taking into account differences due to sex or age, there are slight variations in individual song birds. This is quite marked in several species. White-throated sparrows vary in color a great deal, some being decidedly red-dish-brown, others almost grey-ish - brown.

But we had several families of evening grosbeaks, and discovered a vast difference in the individuals, so much so that we knew them all apart. These are the yellow, black, and white birds that for some years have been coming from the north western part of the continent to cities of central and eastern Canada each winter. Of late, some have nested just north of these cities, and we have been fortunate in their choice of territory. Their young have been fed our sunflower seeds on our feeding shelf.

All the adult males have black tails and wings with a large, white wingpatch. All have somewhat U shaped bright yellow mark outlining their very dark brown crowns in front and on the sides. All have much yellow on their bodies and brown faces. But there similarity ends. Most have a thin, black line that divides the yellow head piece from the big, pale bill. Generally the brown extends well down both the back and the under parts, coming to a point in both places. But some have no dividing line between the yellow on the head and the bill, and the brown may stop at the neck or slightly below. Even the yellow U varies in width and shape.

No two adult females are exactly alike. Their general color may be brownish-grey or grey-ish - brown, with a gold list hard to describe. The black wings and tails are spotted and splashed with white, with no seeming regularity except two round spots near the tip of the tail. Their white throats have a thin black line on the sides.

The main color of a young evening grosbeak is almost what might be described as old gold. Young males carry their father's large, white wing-patch but have small white tail markings, similar to the mother's. Young females have little white patterns on both wings and tails.

Susanna's Family Fare

SPARKLE PLENTY

Dear Susanna: Here we go again on the fascinating subject of making candles for all the holidays coming up. I'm an addicted candle maker, and recently I was asked to make some for the head table at a church supper. Here is what I did:

I used 15 individual glass goblets and made a gorgeous "pellet candle" (that's my special name for them) for each place setting. The lights were lowered along that side of the room and the effect was stunning.

I used special installers wicking — this is very important so that your fine glass won't break and the wax should be poured when it is as cool as possible. For the lower half of the goblet and the base of the stem, I brushed on glue and sprinkled it with gold glitter and sequins. (Just use a small water paint brush. For a finishing touch I tied a small bunch of artificial grapes to the stem with a satin bow. — Ellie W.

Just in case someone gets thirsty and you wish to use your glasses again, simply refrigerate them for an hour or two and they should unmold quite easily. Or if anyone else wishes to become addicted, I'll help you on your wayward way. by not only sending you the outline of basic decorating candles, but complete details, step by step on how to make Ellie's gorgeous goblet candles, in case you might find it in your heart to send me a handy, homemaker's hint! — SUSANNA

MORE TIMELY TIPS

Dear Susanna: Did you know that very fine sandpaper stroked gently across a sweater that has pilled (either from wear or from being washed right side out instead of inside out) will remove those tiny little balls of lint, or whatever they are? — Margie Langdon

Dear Susanna: I had trouble with a purple blouse fading around the neck area. My dry cleaning man advised me that he had attended a convention at which they were asked to warn their customers to always wear a plastic cape around their shoulders when using hair spray.

He said that not only is there a strong possibility of the color in a great many materials being affected, but various kinds of other damage can occur, depending on the makeup of the fabric. — Mrs. S. N. N.

So it's cloak and lacquer for us from now on! One thing more, if you have just applied deodorant, and it seems as though you will have to wait some time for it to dry so that you can put on your dress, don't worry. Just put your garments with a folded piece of absorbent tissue to remove the excess moisture. Then when you remove your deodorant's efficiency, but it will help prevent any gummy substance from coming to your dress. — SUSANNA

Indian Rock Paintings Subject of Study Guild

Mrs. L. Reid and Mrs. G. Mayhew presented a unique and most interesting program on "Indian Rock Paintings" at the June meeting of the season of the Women's Study Guild. Using a Dehnesscope machine they were able to show the actual reproduction of the paintings as found in the book by the artist, Selwyn Dudney, and Kenneth Kidd, curator of Zoology at the Royal Ontario Museum.

The origin of the paintings is lost in antiquity, but mention was made of such paintings by early Jesuit missionary explorers, and of a book "The Singing Wilderness" by Sigurd Olseon. In 1956 the Ontario Museum commissioned Selwyn Dudney to track down these rock paintings and compile pictures and records of them.

Most areas in Ontario have been discovered that have numerous paintings, Quetico National Park, Lake of the Woods, Agawa (Lake Superior Provincial Park north of Sault Ste. Marie), and Bon Echo Provincial Park at Lake Mazinaw.

PAINTINGS IN OCHRE

The pictographs are found on vertical rock faces usually rising directly above the water and accessible only by boat. Most of the paintings are fin-ger-type and are done in ochre shading from rusty orange to purplish brick red. The pigments are quite strong yet, and have stood up well despite the westhering of the years, much better than any modern day pigments could.

Some pictographs showed a scrolling design, others portrayed animals, birds, mythical creatures, hands and man-made objects of those days. Many were abstractions and showed wit fantasy or dream-like quality. Still others gave a graphic account of some deed or exploit that their hunting would be want. It proved most difficult to obtain definite dates or interpretations of the paintings, as there were no written records.

VALUABLE HERITAGE

The accounts were made the more interesting as both speakers had seen and taken pictures of the paintings at Bon Echo and Mrs. H. Dyke had brought pictures that she had taken at Agawa Park. It was felt that the Indians had left us a valuable heritage in these traces of a vanished culture.

The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. L. Reid, and was presided over by the new president, Mrs. J. Reynolds. New officers, for the year were announced and the program list and suggested topics presented. Mrs. N. Meldrum used the topic "Peace and Unity" for the worship period, closing with the Indian translation of the 23rd Psalm.

Hostess for the evening were: Mrs. G. A. Pennington and Mrs. Carleton Miller who served lunch at the close of the meeting.

President of PC Women Sees Bigger Part for Her Sex in Public Affairs

Canadian women can look to more of their sex playing prominent roles in the nation's public affairs in the future.

That's the opinion of one woman who should know — Mrs. H. S. Harrison Smith, national president of the Progressive Conservative Women of Canada.

Mrs. Smith is probably the busiest woman in Canadian politics right now, travelling across country conferring and speaking with local branches of her organization.

Saturday she paused briefly on the return stretch of her tour that has taken her from her hometown of Kelowna clear to Newfoundland.

The reception she received from the membership of the Progressive Conservative Women of Ontario's Eastern District at a refreshed growing enthusiasm in the organization across Canada she told the women at St. Colomba's Church Hall.

In the traditional coffee break after the meeting, she reflected on the contributions — both past and possibly to come — from women in public life.

"When women are elected to office they do just as good a job as the men," she said.

Yet, it was pointed out, Canadian women have not appeared in the numbers in the nation's legislative assemblies. "Canada has been overlooking (up to now) candidates than the other Western countries," she replied.

MORE IN FUTURE

Why?

"I just don't know," she admitted "maybe it's the men."

However, Canadian women are seeking their identities in growing numbers in the professions and various phases of public life. The same should hold for parliamentary activity.

To think that we may find more women elected to office in the future.

Such women across Canada is being asked to donate $1 to the foundation.

The history of the Progressive Conservative party is an integral part of Canada's story and there is definite need for a centre to house all the memorabilia of the party and its role in Canadian affairs.

MANY DOCUMENTS ON HAND

The proposed scheme would provide a "political and historical library in order to hold and preserve documents in trust for the use of the nation —not just Progressive Conservatives.

Already a vast store of documents, manuscripts and literature has been promised the project, said Mrs. Smith.

At a business meeting before Mrs. Smith spoke, the organization returned its executive— once again re-electing Kay McFarland of Nepanee as chairman.

Other officers are: vice-presidents, Mrs. R. J. McFarlane, Kingston, Mrs. Jean Smith, Tweed, Mrs. Edna Patrick, Frankford, and secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Gladys Willmon, Trenton.

TRAFFIC TOLL

One thousand pedestrians died on Tokyo's traffic-packed streets in 1963.

Old-Fashioned Telephone Board Used

VANCOUVER (CP) — In the depths of the B.C. Telephone Company building here, surrounded by electronic dialing equipment, is an old-fashioned telephone switchboard.

The switchboard is the centre of ship - to - shore communications, which automation has so far left behind.

The 3,700 ships connected to the 16 positions in the radio-communications room look forward to the cheerful "good morning" from the girl telephone operators. And sometimes a day one of them reads the weather forecast.

They work the old-type cord switchboard and the room looks the way a person expects a telephone office to look. It's not automated like the ong-distance and regular switchboards which are cordless.

"Calls generally come in from a radius under 150 miles but it can recall messages from ships close to Hawaii in mid-Pacific," says Marion Jones, assistant supervisor of the radio room.

All calls are monitored to check transmission so there is assurance the parties can hear each other. Each type of ship has a different band on which it can call. Tugs are on the yellow band, pleasure craft on yellow and black, fishing boats on white.

The girls log all distress calls, and calls in which profanity is used.

"Any person using profane language on radio - phone is warned by the operator," says Meryl Clifford, radio supervisor. "If he persists it is jotted down in the log and reported to the department of transport."

And, she added, "there are many more profanity calls than distress calls."

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My husband made dinner reservations for us at a very good restaurant last week-end. Unfortunately, my sitter was late in arriving, so we were late in getting to the restaurant. We were only about fifteen minutes overdue, but our table had been given to another couple, the head waiter was very polite and offered to give us the next available table, but we still had to wait about half an hour. I was very annoyed about it. Since we hadn't called shouldn't he have held the table for us anyway, in the interest of holding our patronage? — Mrs. M. M., Chicago, Ill.

Answer: When reservations aren't honored at the dot, and there are people waiting for tables, it's permissible for the management to cancel the reservation and give the table to others. When you discovered you were to late, it would have been to your advantage to call the restaurant, say you were detained, and ask that the table be held for an additional fifteen minutes until you arrived. If it were not convenient for so, the head waiter then would have told you how long it would take to have another table ready for you.

By WILLIAM GLOVER

NEW YORK (AP) — "Sure, I'm a mucker - upper," says Joan Littlewood with obvious relish. "But I haven't even begun.

"How I'd like to start all over again, kicking the bloody nonsense out of the theatre."

Perched blithely before an afternoon breakfast of hamburg rare, and beer, London's celebrated stage rebel ignored an aide's suggestion that she watch her tongue.

"They can't make me discreet," she grinned with crusading ardor.

Miss Littlewood, despite such belligerent hyperbole and a fishwife vocabulary, is much more than the "red-necked scruff" from the slums of London's East End which she calls herself.

"She is just about the most tasteful person I have ever met," comments one author who has felt the unsullgated duress of her enthusiasm. Admirers regard her as a goddess, opponents as an ogress.

Her self-portrait in conversation is a paradox. With all that purple talk, unsalnity Joan retains a womanly lustre. Short and slim, dark hair in a tousled bob, Miss Littlewood at 50 is a bright-eyed sparrow who has been boisterously pecking at the Establishment for 32 years.

STAGED REVUE

She came over to stage Oh What A Lovely War, a satirical revue by her Theatre Workshop Company on Broadway.

The entertainment, based on events, memoirs and songs of the First World War, opened to widely divided notices, and director Littlewood is still making adjustments to attune the long-run English hit to American audiences.

Just about everything she's ever done, has—to hear her— managed to involve "both love and hate." Stretching ambivalence a notch farther, Miss Littlewood declares "I've never worked a moment in my life," then delightedly asserts later, "I work day and night."

North American audiences previously seen such examples of what she wants in "a living, smashing theatre" as A Taste of Honey and The Hostage. She was here briefly to supervise the latter. Mention of its late author, Brendan Behan, uncovers a chink in her gruff armor.

"It was difficult to come back this time without him," she sighs. "We'd have done any thing short of banging him on the head to keep him to line."

Therein she regards as a word descriptive of the existing order.

We broke out of the racket through skill, cunning and immorality," was the lady remarks through non-stop puffs on a cigarette. "We were a lot of outcasts in legal reality—neither in London nor Dublin wanted us They used to call me a Cockney Sino-Petrov."

ACTORS IMPROVISE

"Our company never does the same thing twice, and we only present the bones of dire necessity. People never do the same thing twice, do they? Why should the theatre?"

Just what is The Littlewood method of acting?

"There's a tremendous discipline, but I can't talk about that. It's much more difficult than the discipline for idiots in the regular theatre. My people have to learn to think—and that's awful difficult at the start for some."

She refers to her pre-performance sessions as "inventions," during which her actors start with the playwright's dialogue and go on to improvisation.

Australian Women Are Sportsminded

OTTAWA (CP) — Australian women lag behind Canadian women in their participation in public affairs, says a former Ottawa city councillor

Mrs. R. B. Nickson, who has just returned from Canberra where her husband was commercial counsellor to the Canadian High Commission, says most Australian women are engrossed in other things.

Men are very sportsminded, she says, and also keen homemakers. Many of them make their own clothes too, and they "pay more attention to makeup" than most Canadian women.

She says there are as many women in the professions in Australia as in Canada, but there are no women in the 124 member House of Representatives. There are, however five women in the 60-member Australian Senate, an elected body.

Mrs. Nickson says she feels Canadians are much more inclined to get excited about public issues than Australians.

The Ottawa woman was active in a women's public speak ing group in Canberra but found the women were content to let their husbands do the speaking for them when it came to public affairs.

WOMEN OF THE MOOSE

The first regular meeting of the Women of the Moose was held in the Moose Hall with Senior Regent Nellie Shandraw presiding. After opening procedures a number of items were discussed and it was decided that the next meeting will be held in the form of a Hallowe'en party at which time members, friends and children are invited.

The electric blanket drawn on September 29 was won by James Filume of Picton and the draw donated by Nell Shandraw was won by Joyce McCamon.

ATTENDED CONVENTION

Following the meeting several co-workers left on chartered bus for Timmins to attend a convention. While at the meeting the co-workers had the pleasure of listening to the guest speaker Miss Cora Sim, the Grand Recorder from Moosehaert. The two queens crowned were Betty Culp of Niagara Falls and Rene Mine of Kirkland Lake. Their husbands and families had the pleasure also of attending this ceremony. Many of the members also witnessed convocation on Sunday afternoon at which time the new Grand Officers of Ontario were introduced.

The last meeting of the month was brought to a close and refreshments were served by Audrey Donnelly and her committee. At this time it was announced that co-worker Lillian Henshall of Trenton is a patient in the Toronto General Hospital.

Reader Considers Husbands Biggest Problem in World

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I've been reading your column for a long time and have concluded the husbands seem to be the biggest problem. My formula may not work for one other wife in the whole world, but it worked for me and I'd like to share it.

ANN LANDERS

Ten years ago my husband began to get up at 5.30 a.m. to go to work. He wasn't due at the plant until 7.30 a.m. and we lived within walking distance. I couldn't figure it out.

One morning when he left the house at dawn I followed him. He went straight into the home of a woman I knew well. I saw her through the dining room window — wearing a shabby, soiled bathrobe, hair a mess, the house plain filthy. Glasses, dishes, ashtrays and bottles were strewn all over. Clothes and papers were piled in corners.

That evening when my husband came home for supper I was waiting for him. I had fished out of the rag bag a filthy housecoat — one which had been used as a floor mop. I messed up my hair, swept all the kitchen garbage into the living room and scattered papers and junk all over the place.

When my husband saw me and the house he almost collapsed. I greeted him cheerfully with, "Dearest, why didn't you TELL me you like this sort of thing?"

He made no attempt to defend himself. He swore he had learned his lesson and asked me to forgive him.

That was 10 years ago and I've never had a minute's trouble with him since. — MORE THAN ONE WAY TO SKIN A CAT.

DEAR ONE — Some eats don't need skinning. They just need to be converted from Tom cats to House cats. Congratulations on effecting the conversion.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I will be 15 years old in a few weeks. For the past year I have been babysitting in the neighborhood. I have over $75. in the bank. This babysitting money is what I am going to college on, so please don't tell me to stop.

The people I sit for almost every Friday night are very nice — or I should say the lady and the children are nice. The man got fresh with me last night when he was walking me home. It was not my imagination, Ann. He asked me how I would like to have a steady date with him. I was scared out of my wits and walked as fast as I could to keep ahead of him.

I know his wife will call me again soon. I don't want to sit for them any more but what can I say? Please rush your advice. — ALMOST FIFTEEN.

* * *

DEAR ALMOST — Tell your mother at once. If she wants to discuss with the man or his wife it's up to her, but you should not be involved.

Obviously you can't sit for these people again. And please don't discuss the incident with your friends. It could be harmful to the mother and her children.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Should a mother spank a person the second time if the first time she spanks him he laughs?

Thank you. I am from Toronto, Canada, Yours Truly — P.C.C.

DEAR P.C.C. — A person who laughs when he gets spanked gives his mother the idea the spanking is not accomplishing anything — that it is a joke. His mother then is inclined to give him a second spanking which she hopes will not be so funny, and usually it isn't.

British Style Chicken Curry

Ivy is a British nurse who has come to Canada to work. Her talents are welcome here and I found out that she could make a wonderful chicken curry.

She was willing to come to our house on Sunday evening and make it for our dinner.

The speed and confidence with which she worked in a strange kitchen won my praise and so did the curry.

While she made this dish I hovered, watching every move and helping a little.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Barbecued Hamburg Steaks; French Fried Potatoes; Broccoli in Cheese Sauce; Celery Hearts and Gherkins; Fruit Cup; Coconut Cookies; Coffee.

IVY'S INDIAN CHICKEN CURRY (serves 8)—one 2½ to 3-lb. frying or roasting chicken, cut into serving pieces; or 2½ to 3 lbs. cut-up chicken pieces)

Salt, pepper, ½ cup butter, ½ cup shallot onion, coarsely chopped, 1 medium cooking onion, coarsely chopped, ¼ or ½ cup desiccated coconut (if grated raw coconut if available), 2 to 2 teaspoons curry powder, 2 to 3 teaspoons flour, ¼ to ½ teaspoon salt, 1/16 tea spoon cinnamon, ½ cup cold water, 1 can chicken noodle soup, ½ soupcan of water, about 2 or 2½ cups cauliflowerets (parboiled.)

Cook cauliflower in boiling salted water to cover for 5 minutes and drain. Set aside. Sprinkle the chicken pieces moderately with salt and pepper. Melt the butter in a large frying pans and brown the chicken pieces in it, turning frequently. Transfer chicken pieces to large shallow baking dish. In butter remaining in pan saute the onions and cocoanut until onion is transparent but not brown at all. In a small bowl mix together to a smooth paste the curry powder, flour, salt, cinnamon and ½ cup cold water. Stir this curry paste into the sauteed onions and cocoanut, stirring over medium heat until (to quote Ivy) "the butter separates from the curry." This takes only 1 or 2 minutes and is a perfect description of what happens in the pan. Add the can of chicken noodle soup. Distribute the reserved drained cauliflower pieces over the chicken pieces evenly in baking dish, ing dish, pour contents of pan evenly over, rinse pan out with ½ soupcan of water, pour this over evenly. Cover with lid or snugly with foil and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for ¾ hour. Serve with fluffy boiled rice.

This is a rare treat and will fill curry lovers with gratitude to Ivy who deserves every bit of it.

Being Housewife True Profession Says Poet

By VIVIAN BROWN

WESTON, Ont. (AP) — Women have been so brainwashed in the last 10 years they feel guilty if they are "only" housewives, says Pulitzer prize winning poet Phyllis McGinley.

"Women are so wonderful, they can do just about anything—combine a career and home, work part-time out of the home or become a dedicated housewives," she says, "but what's wrong with being a housewife? Should women be conscience stricken because they want to stay home and have children?"

Miss McGinley's poetry (in private life she is Mrs. Charles Hayden) frequently extols virtues of homemaking, motherhood and the joys—and frustrations—of raising children. Her latest book of verse is called Sixpence in Her Shoe.

She blames what she says is the current restlessness among housewives directly on college deans and writers who implant doubts about the worthiness of being a housewife and mother.

"Are we going back to the medieval thesis that education unfits a woman to change diapers or make lemon meringue pies? Does appreciation of good poetry or languages cripple a girl's talent for making chocolate brownies?" she asked in an interview.

Miss McGinley considers herself a 'part-time worker whose premarital impetus has sent me jogging along in two jobs because I don't know quite how to stop."

Her formula for doing everything she must as a woman, seems to be as foolproof as the recipe for pie crust she offers: Keep it light and everything will come out rainbows.

She has managed since her marriage in 1937 to write verse, essays and children's books while feeding her husband a "diet of pure delicacies" and planning family celebrations for daughter Julie, and Patsy who now is married.

Miss McGinley regrets that many girls of this generation can't run up a hem or cook a meal, although they have been taught to sail, typewrite and sail a boat.

"Being a housewife is a true profession, 'ancient, honorable and unique'. Compared to it, all other careers are upstarts," she says.

tough," hopes to meet the Soviet chiefs but not before he sees the newly elected president of the United States in the next month or two.

REFINE POLARIS POLICY

The Wilson government must define its frigid attitude toward the U.S. project for an Allied armed-manned fleet of Polaris missile carriers, known as the multilateral nuclear force.

To safeguard Britain's currency and to buy time for his government, Wilson probably will seek standby funds from the central banks of Europe and America. To stabilize the economy, Labor hopes to right the country's deficit in overseas trade.

Wilson's Labor party already has come out against British entry into the nuclear fleet force. But the party knows the United States and West Germany, particularly, want a British decision by the end of the year. Unless they get it they may go ahead without Britain.

WANTS NEW SYSTEM

As Wilson sees things, the force scratches only at the surface of the over-all problem before the Atlantic allies. He wants the Allied nations to move from the old crumbling systems of a sovereign independence toward a new order based on collective security and interdependence.

His argument in Washington would be to make the North Atlantic Treaty Organization a truly multilateral operation. He is ready, for a start, to phase out Britain's nuclear force, and turn it over to NATO.

Wilson, who has visited Washington twice for informal talks since becoming party leader last year, is convinced top members of the Johnson administration favor some of these ideas.

MAY MEET NASSER

Britain's position in Aden and the Persian Gulf is another problem. Arab nationalists led by President Gamal Abdel Nasser of the United Arab Republic are increasing pressure for a British withdrawal. Wilson may suggest meeting Nasser in an attempt to neutralize the whole Middle East.

Indonesian hostility toward the Commonwealth federation of Malaysia finds Labor accepting the Conservative government's commitment to defend Malaysia.

As to Europe and the Commonwealth, Wilson would like to inject greater warmth into Britain's relationship with France and other Common Market countries.

Jackie Mason Fired From Sullivan's Show

NEW YORK (AP) -- Entertainer Jackie Mason was fired from the Ed Sullivan variety show after his performance Sunday night on the hour-long Columbia Broadcasting System program.

Bob Precht, producer of the program, said he cancelled the comic's contract calling for six more appearances on the show.

He said Mason was guilty of "offensive conduct, insubordination and gross deviation from material agreed upon for the telecast."

A spokesman for Mason said the comic meant no offence by his on - camera antics and claimed that they had been thoroughly misunderstood by Sullivan and Precht.

Sullivan said Mason made "uncalled for gestures" when coming on camera to finish a monologue that had been interrupted by a special viewing of President Johnson's U.S.-wide message.

Robert Chartoff, Mason's manager, said the comic was merely trying to get the attention of the audience.

He said Mason had not been officially notified of the contract cancellation, but Precht said he notified the comic that he was fired as the latter was leaving the stage following his performance.

lutions of the Commons and Senate. It is traditional that the British Parliament merely adopts the changes requested with virtually no debate.

As a resolution in the Canadian Commons and Senate, there would be only limited opportunities to examine in detail the important questions.

REPEAT FORMULA

It is argued that the formula merely follows that agreed on in principle among the provinces and federal government three years ago. The consensus of federal-provincial meetings this year have carefully referred back to the 1961 formula put forward when the Progressive Conservatives were in power.

However, it may be significant that Opposition Leader Diefenbaker has said there have been changes incorporated in the latest agreement from that put forward in 1961.

He argues that they involved powers of the federal Parliament and he questioned whether Ottawa isn't paying a very high price for the ability to make wholly - Canadian constitutional amendments.

The question the government faces: Has there been sufficient public discussion with the forthcoming Commons - Senate debate?

Printers Assured Police Will Remain Impartial

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of Local 91 of the International Typographical Union (CLC) were assured Friday that police will remain impartial in Toronto's daily newspaper strike.

But at the same time, the local was cautioned against breaches of the peace by strikers.

The assurance was given at the end of an hour-long hearing before the Metropolitan Toronto Police Commission into union accusations that police used unnecessary force to disperse 238 union demonstrators outside a suburban Willowdale publishing company Oct. 5.

The five-man union delegation headed by Robert McCormack, Local 91 president, showed the commission photographs showing police moving pickets at the scene.

The delegation claimed police criticized the pickets and tried to provoke incidents. They said that up to that time they had never had reason to complain about police actions since the union went on strike July 9 at The Telegram, The Globe and Mail, and The Star. The newspapers have continued to publish.

Staff Insp. Harold Adamson, who headed the police squad at the demonstration, told the commission he had repeatedly asked senior union officials to disperse the men because they were blocking the sidewalk.

USE FOUL LANGUAGE

Insp. Adamson said he had asked the officials to reduce the number of pickets and waited 50 minutes, "during which time people passing by were forced to walk on the roadway to get past." He said obscene language was being used and children on their way to school overheard it.

He said that at the end of 30 minutes he called in a 15-man squad that had been waiting nearby and ordered the pickets to leave.

Five men were arrested and charged with obstructing police and causing a disturbance.

Police Chief James Mackey defended police action and read from a list of reported incidents ranging from threats and intimidation to beatings and newspaper thefts.

He said that after earlier violence during a demonstration outside a suburban North York printing firm, he was forced to form a special squad to deal with such incidents.

Nick Williams, local vice-president, replied that incidents attributed to union members have been caused by other persons.

COMPLETES CABINET

Sunday night he named Sir Donald Macdougall, 51 a wartime aide of Sir Winston Churchill, to be his chief economic adviser. Macdougall will be director-general of the new ministry of economic affairs, which Wilson has created to revitalize British trade and industry.

Wilson named Sir Hugh Foot as minister of state for foreign affairs to be Britain's chief United Nations representative. Foot, 57, former governor of Cyprus, was serving as Britain's chief UN representative1962 but resigned in protest over the Conservative government's policy on Southern Rhodesia.

Despite his thin majority, Wilson is reported to intend to move quickly to nationalize the steel industry again.

"We intend to fulfil our mandate," he said in a week-end broadcast.

The new prime minister may postpone an electoral pledge to take over urban land for housing development. Instead, the administration is expected to move to curb rents and real estate interest charges.

SENDS GREETINGS

Earlier Sunday, Johnson sent greetings to Kosygin and said he hopes "our governments will work constructively in attempting to resolve the urgent international problems facing us in the world."

In his address Sunday night, Johnson had words of praise as well as criticism for the deposed Khrushchev, saying that he was "guilty of dangerous adventure" as in the Berlin and Cuban crises but that "he learned from mistakes and he was not blind to realities."

In reporting on the Chinese nuclear explosion, Johnson added some detail not previously made public. He said the test was conducted at a site near Lop Nor Lake in the Takla Makan Desert of the Chinese central Asian province of Sinkiang. U.S. intelligence had watched the building of the test site there for several years, Johnson said. (Presumably the observations were made by high flying aerial cameras.)

State Secretary Dean Rusk said Sunday in a television interview that China's entry into the nuclear arms race complicates the problem of getting agreement among the powers on a complete ban on nuclear tests.

Rusk said none of the nuclear powers would now want to sign a comprehensive treaty "unless the Red Chinese come aboard."

Society Leader Terms Talk By the Queen 'Magnificent'

By RENE d'ANJOU

QUEBEC (CP)—A St. Jean Baptiste Society leader Friday night termed the address of Queen Elizabeth to the Quebec legislature "magnificent" and deplored the fact that it was pushed into the background by police action during last week-end's royal visit to Quebec City.

Dr. Laelius Boulet, president of the Quebec diocesan section of the French - language patriotic society, told about 500 delegates to the annual meeting that the Queen's address amounted to "a royal gift."

Dr. Boulet said the Queen's words are not only a magnificent and subtle support "of our just demands," but also a reminder of the need for justice and mutual respect in English-French relations in Canada.

The address, he said, was a piece of "high political wisdom" that should be studied not only by those responsible for the present state of the Canadian Confederation, but by those who will devise a new or revised construction.

He quoted almost the whole 14 - paragraph address in his presidential speech to delegates at the opening of the weekend convention.

He said he hoped that every body will seek "to understand and attain the ideals" fixed by the sovereign.

SUGGESTS MEETINGS

Mr. Boulet suggested that the St. Jean Baptiste Society organize meetings with leaders in English - speaking Canada to acquaint them with the principal grievances or requirements of French - speaking Canadians, the goal being to increase mutual understanding.

"English Canada still asks itself what we have against the present Confederation," he said. Explanations had to be made clearly, and in a manner "the English press is not able to define."

He asked what the English press of Quebec is doing to inform other English - speaking Canadians of problems here, and he felt "it is about time it takes seriously the present malaise and its social and political role before this malaise."

Commenting on the cool reception the Queen received in Quebec City, Dr. Boulet said it was regrettable the Queen had been placed in such a situation "but we have chosen to refuse the status quo" and a good reception would have been interpreted "as an acceptance of an intolerable situation."

Delegates will study the possibility of the society activity entering politics, not as a party but as a supporter of one.

However, Dr. Boulet warned that it should remain above politics until there is unanimity on major problems.

It would be imprudent to make a premature engagement," he said.

Moira Secondary School Graduation Night Success

Scenes of young Bellevillians Saturday night received the official stamp of fulfilhood as high school graduation diplomas.

Scene of the ceremony was Moira Secondary School as the graduates briefly returned for the last occasion of school life.

For all of them it was a nostalgic event. For some, the rewards of academic applicating came in solidly tangible form as nearly $4,350 in scholarships, bursaries and awards were distributed from the auditorium stage.

Among the young academic notables were Shirley Chisholm, Elizabeth Corke, Allan Aitchison and Robert Skinner. Among them, they won scholarships totalling more than $3,000.

The auditorium and balcony were crowded by students and parents for the ceremonies conducted by principal W. J. Musgrove.

Both graduates were represented in the keynote speech — the senior adults by Ray Wilson, District High School Board chairman Gerald A. Wisbert, the younger people by Valedictorian Bob Prescott.

MORE

END OF PERIOD

For the graduates, Bob said, the night's events signified the end of a period of most exhausting, but thoroughly enjoyable years.

To both parents and teachers must go the credit for any accomplishments they had achieved of them far, he reminded the students and graduates.

Whatever heights we may achieve they will be theirs also — for they have laid most of our success in adulthood."

Mr. Wisbert emphasized the importance of taking a creative, active role in life.

One must be a participant, not a spectator.

During past 18 years—the 18's range of many of the students and graduates—he noted the technical and social changes that had changed the whole fabric of society.

While pondering what the next 18 years will bring Mr. Wisbert emphasized the basic need of society was still the need for understanding in human relationships.

Greetings from the school board were expressed by Dr. Peter G. Loder.

The awards and diplomas were:

John A. McNeil, Former Manager Of CP, Dies

TORONTO (CP) — John A. McNeil, 88, general manager of The Canadian Press during 1939-45, died Sunday after a heart attack.

Mr. McNeil, managing editor of the Montreal Gazette for 12 years before he was appointed CP general manager, directed the affairs of the national newsgathering co-operative through the difficult years of the last world War. He retired in 1945 for reasons of health.

His association with the wire service that grew in later years into The Canadian Press began in 1911. He became Toronto correspondent of the Quebec-Ontario section of Canadian Press Limited, forerunner of the co-operative organized in 1917.

In 1913 he moved to Montreal as a reporter for the Gazette and in turn was appointed assistant city editor, telegraph editor, news editor, editorial writer and assistant managing editor. He was named managing editor in 1927.

Mr. McNeil became a director of the Canadian Press the same year, and in 1938 was appointed second vice-president. When the late J. B. Lewis retired as CP general manager in 1939, Mr. McNeil's fellow directors named him to the post.

LOVED THEATRE

Newspapers were Mr. McNeil's career, but the theatre was his real love. This was reflected in his collection of plays, biographies memoirs and other theatrical literature.

Along with autographed photographs of stage celebrities his collection comprised one of the largest in Canada. He told friends that his will included a provision that the collection was to go to the New Play Society of Toronto.

Mrs. McNeil never owned a car, yet he was interested in affairs of the Canadian Good Roads Association from its formation in 1914 until 1952.

He attended some 30 or so banquets meetings as press and publicity representative.

He was a member of the Ontario legislature press gallery from 1903 to 1912, including a term as president in 1911. He was a director of the old Toronto Press Club from its formation in 1907 until 1912.

Mr. McNeil's wife Grace died in 1954.

He is survived by two sons, Marc T., of Ottawa and John Anthony of Toronto.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

TRUMAN RECOVERS

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Former president Harry S. Truman, 80, recovering from injuries suffered in a fall, is reported in satisfactory condition. Truman fractured two ribs and suffered head cuts when he fell in the bathroom of his independence, Mo., home last Tuesday.

American Motors and UAW Continue Profit-Sharing for 3 Years in New Agreement

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corporation and the United Auto Workers Union reached agreement today on a new three-year contract covering AMC's 34,000 automotive division employees and continuing profit sharing.

A continuing walkout there inevitably could cut off the company's automobile building. Doors and fabrics for cars are made there, as well as refrigerators.

Both AMC and the UAW predicted Rambler and Ambassador car production would be resumed Tuesday after a four-day strike in support of UAW new contract demands on AMC.

This would leave General Motors Corporation, the world's No. 1 automaker, the only one shut by strike.

GM and the other two members of the big three—Ford and Chrysler — reached national agreement ahead of AMC, which was put last in the pattern was set elsewhere.

SHARE IN PROFITS

In the new national economic agreement, AMC workers get the higher pensions, earlier retirements and wage gains won earlier in Big Three pacts—plus a share in profits, if sufficiently high.

In 1961, when the previous three-year contract was negotiated, AMC and the UAW/settled first and came up with the industry's only profit sharing plan. It was diluted this time, but kept

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The seats of the mighty took world-stunning kicks in the pants over the weekend, resulting in solemn confecture as to what the future holds for all.

Quarterback Nikita Khrushchev, who has been tossing the passes for the Russian Soviet squad, was heaved out of the game, the park and the club by the Reds front office. He may be sent to a minor league in Siberia.

One of President Johnson's top coaches has been accused of misbehaviors that could throw a monkey-wrench into the Democrat team's bid for a second Washington championship.

In the sports world twin bombs were thrown into the baseball activities dagnesit. The Yankees ousting of one-year manager Yogi Berra and the resignation of John Keane who led the St. Louis Cardinals to a world championship.

Perhaps the step-down of Berra as the Yankees manager was more or less to be expected. Or was too much expected of him?

Anti-Yankee fans have been known to say that a village half-wit could manage the Yankees with the material at his disposal. With the Fords, the Mantles, the Maris', the Richardsons, the Terrys, and a near-all-star supporting cast, it was just a matter of going through the motions, they said.

Don't you believe it. Last season proved how utterly silly the statement was. A manager is something more than a figure-head. That has been proved many times. And don't believe the stuff you hear about the front office, the top brass, etc., not knowing anything about what is going on down there in the dugout and on the field.

They're the boys who pay the shot and in their plush offices are panels of push-buttons, while an expert scout squad keeps them well supplied with up-to-the-minute information.

Under Berra the Yankees went into a protracted slump. Rob they pulled out of it in time to launch a victorious drive to pennant and world series.

This is nothing new. The Yankees have slumped before and no blame was attached to managerial activities. Yogi was no more to blame for Yankee lethargy than he was for the fine showings of such teams as the Orioles and the Chicago White Sox. I note that the Orioles' and Sox' managers have not been replaced.

There could be something in the statement that the Yankees' front office was dissatisfied with Berra's handling of pitchers during the schedule season. I do not know the Berra temperament but he had "Whitey" Ford, one of the game's greatest pitchers and a second veteran, at his elbow. He could have sought advice if he so wished.

Some one once told me when I was a kid, "Son, when you go to get a job, never work for a relative." Berra was named manager of a team he has been associated with for years. In fact he was one of the family. This might have given rise to the allegation that player dissention in the Yankee ranks could have been a factor in his managerial demise.

The inside story of Keane's decision to resign his managerial post with the Cards after winning the world series may never be told.

He said he made up his mind to quit in September. His resignation was dated Sept. 28th.

He told a press conference that his decision was based on the "accumulation of little things." Among the little things was the report he would be replaced by Leo Durocher.

Earlier the Cards' general manager, Bing Devine, and business manager Art Rouzong had been fired by Cardinal senior adviser Branch Rickey. Some believe this had something to do with Keane's decision to quit.

Keane, it is stated, became the likely successor to Berra as the Yankee general manager, Ralph Houk and Keane are good friends dating back to their minor baseball days. Besides, despite his 35 years with the Cardinals, Keane is molded in the Yankee tradition. And at this moment he is available.

Since Keane's resignation was dated September 28 it is rumored he got the tipoff that Berra was on the way out, regardless of the seasonal outcome—and he was slated for the job.

Ole Casey didn't quit after his first world series despite the fact a half-dozen teams would have taken him. In fact he hung on until he had won nine more, then took over the cellar series winner, the New York Mets.

Sikes Wins Sahara Golf

LAS VEGAS (AP)—Former amateur star Dick Sikes Sunday won the $70,000 Sahara invitation golf tournament.

He shot a 72 for a 72-hole total of 275 and collected $12,000. Leaving such renowned pros as Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Ken Venturi and Tony Lema to finish down the line, Sikes, 24, of Cleveland, refused to yield to pressure.

He came in one stroke ahead of former U.S. Open champion Bill Casper, who made a belated challenge with a 67, 5 under par, worth $6,500.

Only two Canadians finished. Stan Leonard of Vancouver toured the course in 37-38 for a total of 283 for $1,350 in prize money. Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., won $256 with a 38-38—76 for 287.

Al Balding of Toronto fired a 71 Saturday for 218, three strokes over the cut-off.

Habs, Leafs Win, Tie; Share Top Rung

By TED BLACKMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Yvan Cournoyer isn't hockey's most eager checker.

The youngster sparked the Habs to a late rally Saturday night for a 2-2 tie with New York, closing the Rangers lead with his first goal this season and then sending Beliveau in on a break 37 seconds later for the equalizer.

On Sunday he erased a 1-0 Boston lead with his second goal and started the Habs to a 3-1 victory over the Bruins.

HABS TIED WITH LEAFS

The Canadiens moved into first place along with Toronto, which also picked up three points via a 7-3 win over Boston Saturday night and a 3-3 tie in New York Sunday. Chicago and Detroit split a home-and-home series, the Hawks winning 4-2 at home Saturday night and losing 3-2 to the Red Wings on Detroit ice the next night.

The weekend schedule left Montreal and Toronto unbeaten with five points, Chicago and New York tied for second with four points, Detroit next with two and the Bruins still looking for victory after four straight defeats.

Earl Ingarfield and Bob Nevin tallied second-period goals as the Rangers dominated the sloppy Canadiens. But the roof fell in at 15:54 of the third when Cournoyer poked in Beliveau's pass and 37 seconds later big Jean tied it up.

Cournoyer steered a pass from Ted Harris to Beliveau who broke in alone and faked Marcel Paille out of the net. An opening game goal of 13:429 in shrieked with joy but coach Toe Blake grumbled about Montreal's listless effort.

The Habs, however, were flying 24 hours later as they peppered Boston goalie Ed Johnston with 40 shots. Johnny Bucyk's first-period goal stood up until Cournoyer and Claude Larose tallied in the middle frame.

Claude Provost scored his third of the season at 19:58 when Johnston left the net in favor o fan extra forward. Boston scored on an extra forward. Possessed by 12,500 hockey supporters.

Toronto bombed the Bruins Saturday night as Frank Mahovlich and Red Kelly turned in two-goal performances in a loosely played game before 13,958 fans at the Gardens. Ed Shack, Dave Keon and Ron Ellis also scored for the Leafs.

BRIEF LEAD FOR BRUINS

The Bruins got goals from Murray Oliver, who gave them a brief 1-0 lead, and Dean Prentice.

Terry Sawchuk donned a Toronto uniform for the first time Sunday night as Punch Imlach rested Johnny Bower. It might have been a happy occasion for the ex-Detroit netminder, but his debut was spoiled when New York put three third-period goals behind him to gain the draw.

Jim Pappin scored twice and Kent Douglas the other for the Leafs, with seven points added a single as the Leafs carried a 3-1 lead into the closing 10 minutes.

But rookie Lou Angotti scored his second of the season at 10:06 and ex-Leaf Bob Nevin tallied at 13:54 as the Rangers unleashed 16 shots at Sawchuk in the last period. Tim Horton was penalized and Angotti scored on the power play.

Stan Mikita had a big night Saturday with a goal and three assists in Chicago's 4-2 win over the Wings before 14,391 fans Sunday night 11,654 fans at Detroit saw their own hero, Gordie Howe, put two goals behind Denis Dejordy as the Wings won their first game of the season.

Howe scored his 541st goal of the season during the first period and Parker MacDonald tallied what proved to be the winner during the middle session. Doug Robinson and Chico Maki replied for the Hawks but Detroit never lost the lead.

Cats Claw Riders; Sew Up Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Things are just about back to normal in the Eastern Football Conference.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats are finally looking like defending Grey Cup champions and Dick Shatto of Toronto Argonauts is making a strong bid to retain his conference scoring championship.

The Tiger Cats virtually sewed up the EFC lead Saturday, walloping Ottawa Rough Riders 34-16 to break a deadlock for first place.

The Ticats now hold a two-point lead over the Riders and a 2-1 lead in games between the clubs. Both the clubs meet third-place Montreal Alouettes and the cellar-dwelling Argos once and one win would assure Hamilton first place and a bye into the conference playoff finals.

Shatto charged into touchdown territory three times Sunday, leading the Argos to a 31-19 victory at the Alouettes. The super effort clinched an all-time record in the Canadian Football League of 98 touchdowns for the veteran halfback.

The previous record was 87 held by Toronto quarterback Jackie Parker.

SUTHERIN SETS MARK

Shatto also brought his season points total to 66 to come within 13 points of EFC scoring leader Don Sutherin of Hamilton. Sutherin, however, was doing some record setting against the Rough Riders Saturday, kicking his 13th field goal of the season to surpass the former season mark of 12 held by Ottawa's Moe Racine.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney of Hamilton marshalled his attack for 235 yards, charged over for two touchdowns and threw two touchdown passes to Tommy Grant. Sutherin, while setting his field goal record, also kicked four converts and three singles.

Russ Jackson and Ron Stewart got the Ottawa touchdowns and Racine booted a field goal and one convert.

The Ticats, playing with the precision of defending champions, scored a touchdown on the opening series of plays. They led 8-0 after the first quarter, 20-6 at the half and 34-9 after the third quarter.

Stewart and Jackson combined for a brief glimpse of brilliance in the second quarter. A 5 yard run by Jackson and wheeled for a pass to Jackson who raced 30 yards for a touchdown.

Ottawa gained 83 yards in the air as Jackson, experiencing one of his poorest days, completed only four of 14 pass attempts for 50 yards. Ottawa carried the Ticats 191 to 171.

CLOSE ON ALS

The Toronto win brought the Argos to within two points of Montreal and kept them in contention for the third and final playoff spot.

Parker was the king pin in the Toronto win, completing 14 of 17 passes for 182 yards during the first half while the Argo defensive front line threw up a pass umbrella against Montreal quarterback George Dixon that yielded two yardage.

Lineman John Vilunas also got a Toronto touchdown and Karl Sweetan converted three and added a field goal. Dave Mann scored the other Toronto point, a 65-yard single.

Ted Kluby scored Montreal's lone touchdown on a blocked punt play. Willie Lambert converted and Gino Berretta kicked a single. The latter also counted a safety touch when Mann was nailed in the end zone on a punt attempt after a poor snap.

Sweetan took over as quarterback from Parker in the fourth quarter, and connected on two

WEE WILLIE'S WAITING — Wee Willie Lambert (26) isn't fazed by the outsized opposition as he moves in under a pass near the edge of the Toronto zone. Towering over Willie are Argo Dave Thieson (28) and Ron Howell (30). They all missed the ball. Argonauts won the Eastern Conference game in Toronto Sunday 30-10 over Montreal Alouettes.

Colts Jolt Green Bay Hopes

By DICK COUCH

Associated Press Sports Writer

Paul Hornung wore the spotlight, in more ways than one, and it meant another trip to the cleaners Sunday for Green Bay Packers.

Hornung, bothered by a pinched shoulder nerve, donned a protective collar for Green Bay's key National Football League game against Baltimore Colts.

Then he missed five successive field goal attempts, the last one backfiring into a 24-21 Colt victory that jolted the Packers' 1964 title hopes.

Detroit Lions strengthened their hold on second place in the West by blanking Chicago Bears 10-0. Los Angeles Rams climbed to third with a 42-14 rout of San Francisco 49ers in other Western Division action Sunday. The Lions are 4-1-1; the Rams 3-2-1.

In the Eastern Division, St. Louis Cardinals and Cleveland Browns pulled out narrow victories and remained tied for the lead at 4-1-1. The Cardinals scored two touchdowns in the final half-minute for a 38-24 decision over Washington Redskins. The Browns caught Dallas Cowboys 20-16 on a 56-yard interception return by Bernie Parrish in the fourth quarter.

Old Colts Marion and Big Sam Baker led injury - riddled Philadelphia Eagles past floundering New York Giants 23-17. Bill Brown scored three touchdowns as Minnesota Vikings slugged Pittsburgh Steelers 30-13.

In Sunday's American Football League action Buffalo Bills, only unbeaten pro club, stretched their victory string to six by whipping Kansas City Chiefs 35-20 and Houston Oilers Sam Baker led injury - riddled Chargers walloped Denver Broncos 42-14.

The Tracks

NEW YORK (AP) — Bold Lad, heir-apparent to the two-year - old U.S. horse racing championship, scored one of the easiest triumphs of his brief career Saturday as he rolled to a seven-length victory in the $176,825 Champagne at Aqueduct for his seventh successive triumph.

The son of Bold Ruler from Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Wheatley Stable romped over the sloppy one mile in 1:36 2-5 to earn $116,825 and boost his bankroll for eight wins and two seconds in 10 starts to $387,473.

Thomas N. Nichols' Tona pulled one of the big upsets of the racing season by defeating vaunted Tosmah in the $57,350 Vineland Handicap at Garden State Park in Cherry Hill, N.J.

At Keeneland in Lexington, Ky., Ford Stable's Umbrella Fella scored easily in the $57,180 Breeder's Futurity over Clarence F. Smith's Seafes.

At Hawthorne in Chicago, Sledge, top - weighted at 128 pounds, led all the way to win the $77,550 Midwest Handicap.

TIES RECORD

TOKYO (AP) — Finland's Vaino Markanan tied the Olympic record of 560 Sunday in winning the gold medal in free pistol shooting. The record was set at Rome in 1960 by Aleksey Gustchin of Russia. Canadian marksmen Garry McMahon of Dartmouth, N.S. and Bill Hare of Ottawa finished 11th and 20th respectively in a field of 54.

TOKYO, (CP) — A German girl equalled the world record today in winning her country's first track gold medal of the Olympic Games and Russia's Tamara Press captured the women's discus throw with an Olympic record toss.

Four Olympic women's track and field records were broken. Speedster Edith McGuire of the United States won the gold medal in the 200 metre to complete a U.S. sweep of all four sprints. Her time of 23 seconds flat also was a new Olympic mark.

The U.S. boosted its gold medal total in track and field to 12, the same as it won in Rome in both the women's and men's competition, by also taking the men's 400 metres. But the Germans were leading after five events in the grueling men's decathlon.

Karin Balzer, a 26-year-old laboratory technician in East Germany, equalled the world mark in the women's 80-metre hurdles. The thrilling race was so close that all three medal winners were given the same clocking, 10.5 seconds.

HEAD HEALED

Twice before, Mrs. Balzer equalled the world mark in international competition. The previous time was in 1958 when she was 10.6 set in 1959 by Irina Press, Tamara's sister, who was Soviet Today's new star was timed.

Mrs. Balzer had to force the pace after a slow start and went with a desperate lunge at the tape that carried her inches ahead of Teresa Ciepla of Poland in second place and Pamela Kilborn of Australia in third.

Irine and Gisela Birkmeyer of Germany, now retired, also share the world mark. The Russian woman was the first to do 10.5.

Mike Larabee, who at 20 is considered the elder statesman of the quarter-milers, sped to victory in the 400 metres, outdistancing Swindell's Wendell Motley in 45.1 seconds. Motley was second for the silver medal and Poland's Andrzej Badenski got the bronze with a time of 45.6.

Peggy Brightwell of Britain, the favorite, could do no better than fourth in 45.7.

The famous Press sisters today completed an Olympic double when Tamara took the women's discus with an Olympic record toss of 187 feet, 10¾ inches. Irina captured the five-event pentathlon Saturday.

Before Tamara let loose with her best heave of the day, Ingrid Lotz of Germany smashed the old mark with a toss of 187-8¼. Mrs. Lotz won the silver medal and Lia Manoliu of Romania the bronze. Miss Manoliu's toss was 186-11.

The previous record of 180-8¼ was set at the Tokyo Olympics by Nina Ponomareva of Russia. Miss Ponomareva was in action today but finished 11th.

DOESN'T QUALIFY

Nancy McCredie of Brampton, Ont., Canada's Pan-American Games champion, failed to qualify for the final round.

Thus, the third highest gold medal winner at Rome with 13, won three gold medals today in equestrian and cycling events but failed to find gold after nine days of competition.

With five days left in the 18th Olympics, the United States already has equalled its total medal output in 1960-61. The U.S. has 29 gold, 21 silver and 19 bronze. But with the windup of the track and field competition Wednesday, there are few sports left in which the Americans excel.

The Russians, having their best days are far behind the Americans at this stage with 14 gold, 11 silver and 17 bronze. But they expect to score heavily in gymnastics.

In the women's 800 metres, Miss McGuire's 23-second clocking was one-fifth of a second better than the Olympic record of 23.2 set by Wilma Rudolph of the U.S. in a heat in 1960. Wilma and Ma.garet Ann Burvill of Australia are co-holders of the world record of 22.9.

Miss McGuire got off to an excellent start, took the lead just a few yards away from the start and held it the rest of the way, winning by about a yard.

BEATS RECORD

In the women's 800 - metre semi - finals, France's Mary Jeanne Duprerur won her heat in the Olympic record time of 2:04.1. The previous mark was 2:04.3 by Russia's Ljudmila Shevtsova, set in 1960.

New Zealand's Peter Snell winner of the 800 metres, and Dyrol Burleson of the U.S. both won their semi-finals in the 1,500 metres and were considered the best bets for medals in the Wednesday final.

Snell set an Olympic record in the 800, turned in a spectacular metric mile today.

The tireless Kiwi shredder methodically clipped off a time of 3:38.8, equalling a 3:35.8 mile under the arbitrary formula of adding 17 seconds to arrive at an equivalent time for the mile.

His lap times: of 56.5, 1:53.3 and 2:55.8 left no doubt that he was the man to beat.

Burleson won his heat in an excellent 3:41.8. But two other U.S. milers, Jim Ryun and Tom O'Hara, didn't qualify and the Canadian entry, Ergas Lepa of Toronto, also was eliminated.

Ryun finished ninth and last behind Lepa in 3:45.1, well off his best time. Lepa placed eighth in 3:51.2.

IN DECATHLON LEAD

In the decathlon, a pair of Germans and a Russian were closely bunched for the lead. Will Holdorf of Germany moved in front after the day's events with 4,090 points. Fellow - German Hans Joachim Walde was second with 4,074 and Russia's Rein Aun third with 4,063. The nearest American in the event that was once a U.S. speciality was Fau Lhaman, sixth with 3,878.

Bill Gairdoor of Toronto was 15th with 2,566 points and Jerry Moore of Trail, B.C., was 21st and last with 2,261.

The Italians had a banner day—winning the equestrian three - day team event gold medal, with Mauro Checcoli taking the individual riding gold and Giovanni Pettenella winning the 1,000-metre cycling sprint.

The Italians had a banner took the team title with 25.8 points. The United States was second with 64.86 and Germany third with 56.72.

Finland's Pentti Linnvopo set an Olympic record in winning the rapid fire pistol shooting with a score of 592. The previous Olympic record of 587 was shared by William McMillan of the U.S., a marine captain who won the event in 1960, and Stefan Petrucu of Romania. McMillan was 12th today with 585.

Bill Hare of Ottawa placed 22nd with 579 and Gray McMahon of Dartmouth, N.S., was 47th with 551.

WIN IN FENCING

The Russians ended Italy's long reign in the epee fencing when Grigory Kriss captured both the individual gold medal and the bronze. The Italians won the gold medal in the last six Olympics. This time they didn't take a medal.

Britain's Bill Hoskyns, world champion in 1963, won the silver and Kuram Kostava of Russia the bronze.

The Russian grappler took the welterweight gold medal in the Greco-Roman wrestling as all eight gold medals in the sport were decided.

Hungary and Japan each won two gold medals and Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Turkey one apiece.

US Swim-Dive Team Said The 'Greatest'

TOKYO (CP — AP) — The United States and Germany did to swimming what the jet engine has done to flying—plercing the barrier of record times in a dramatic Olympic finals Sunday.

The U.S. swimming and diving team emerged from the Tokyo games as the greatest in Olympic history, but Australia and Germany served notice that they are all out to break U.S. swimming supremacy in the next games in Mexico City four years hence.

Of a total of 66 medals at stake in swimming and diving, the U.S. team won a record of 37 including 16 gold. The total is six more than the famed 1924 team led by Johnny Weismuller brought home from Paris. The maximum number of medals a country could win was 56 since each country could enter only one team in relay races.

Australia, a superior contender in the men's marathon 1,500 metres and the 200 -metres, bagged nine medals including four gold. Germany's combined West - East squad collected eight including one gold, and Yukiaki Okabe won their country's only swimming medal, a third - place bronze with 8:03.8.

GIRLS NOT OUTDONE

The girls also threw a world mark over the side. In the 400-metre medley relay, the U.S. team of Cathy Ferguson, Cynthia Goyette, Sharon Stouder and Catherine Ellis clocked 4:33.8. The old mark of 4:34.6 was set earlier this year.

The silver went to the Dutch quartet of Kornelia Winkel, Klena Bimolt, Ada Kok and Erica Terpstra with 4:37.0. Russia's Tatiana Savaliova, Svetlana Babinina, Tatiana Devitova and Nelly Ustinov took the bronze in 4:39.2.

Canada finished sixth in the field of eight with a time of 4:49.9. Swimming for Canada were Eileen Weir of Toronto, backstroker; Marion Lay, Vancouver - born California resident, breaststroke; Mary Stewart of Vancouver, butterfly, and Louise Kennedy of London, Ont., freestyle.

RECORDS RECORD BOOK

The swimmers Sunday wound up eight days of pressure-packed competition that has pretty they completely rewrote the Olympic record book, smashing 14 world records and equalling another.

There were four finals in swimming and one in diving Sunday, climaxed by the world record 4 smashing men's 800-metre freestyle relay.

Steve Clark, Roy Saari, Gary Hinas and Don Schollander of the United States broke the world record held by the U.S. in the incredible time of 7:52.1 for the gold medal. Fo Schollander, it was the fourth gold award in the Tokyo games.

Germany's Horst Gregor, Gerhard Hetz, Frank Wiegand Hans-Joachim Klein were just a shade slower, but fast enough to drill another hole in the old standard—8:01.8—and win the silver medal in 7:59.3. The Japanese quartet of Makota Fukui, Kunihiro Iwasaki, Yoshio Shuji

35 Youngsters Turn Out

Juniors Open Training

Coach Gordie Bell put 35 candidates through a 90-minute skating session at Memorial Arena last night as the Belleville Junior "B" Hockey Club opened training.

"It is hard to tell much at this point but there seems to be a few good looking boys out there," was Bell's comment.

He has called other workouts for Wednesday and Sunday evenings this week, both at 7:00 p.m.

Returning from last year's club last night were regulars Bob Moon, among three goalies out; Bob Boyle, Bob Ethier, Larry Stewart, Bill Lang, Roy Marsele and Jim "Bud" Pringle.

Others among the candidates who have had some junior experience were Jim Woodcock, Steve White, John Smith, Wayne Woods and Paul Smith.

Manager Jim Matthews said that Carl Boomhower missed the workout because of damaged skates but he expected him out later this week.

Matthews also mentioned Jim Rutherford, Grant Hagerman and Jerry St. Denis who he hoped to see out with the team shortly.

Bell stressed the point that "all positions are wide open and we will more than welcome any city or district players wishing to bid for a spot."

Several local youngsters, out for the junior squad for the first time, drew favorable comment from a handful of rail-birds.

TEACHER DIES

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP)— Dr. Richard L. Weaver, 52, professor of conservation and education in the University of Michigan school of natural resources died Saturday, following a heart attack.

Badminton Season Opens On Tuesday

The Belleville Garrison Badminton Club starts the 1964-65 season at the armories Tuesday evening.

The club named Douglas Low the season president; Ted Smith, vice - president and games co-ordinator; Thelma Bastren, secretary; St. John Brown, treasurer and Mervyn Potts, Billie Waldron and Dave Bell, directors.

Play will be held four nights a week instead of the usual three. These are Tuesday, 7.30, Wednesday, 9.00; Friday and Saturday at 7.30 p.m.

Something new in the membership drives has been adopted by the Garrison Club.

It is a "take it or leave it" proposition to the potential member. In other words the new players or those wishing to play will be given two or three nights play at no charge.

If they enjoy the game and the club, they can join. If not no hard feelings.

Experienced members of the club will join in an hour of organized play for the newcomers to help get things off on the right foot.

A new system of organization play under games co-ordinator Smith will be introduced this season.

The club will take part in five Central Ontario Badminton Association tournaments during the coming season.

TORONTO (CP)—Judo King displayed one of the strongest stretch finishes of the Canadian racing season to defeat E. Day in the last stride Saturday and win the $18,250 Durham Cup Stakes handicap at Woodbine race track.

Veteran Pat Remillard, who was aboard E. Day, couldn't hold off the challenge by Judo King and jockey Hugo Dittfach. An extreme outsider, Judo King returned $46.20 to win.

It was his first stakes victory.

Canebora, Windfields Farm's 1964 horse-of-the-year, was the four - to - five favorite but finished a badly beaten sixth.

CAN THEY DO IT AGAIN? — Queen's Golden Gaels have three 1964 victories under their belts in the senior intercollegiate football league, and Coach Frank Tindall (left) has his squad going for a second successive championship. The Gaels romped through the 1963 season undefeated to win the Yates Cup, symbol of intercollegiate football supremacy. Queen's Athletic Director, Al Lenard, looks on as Coach Tindall points to a question mark where the name of the 1964 winner will appear on the cup's base.

Meanwhile, McGill University Redmen dumped University of Western Ontario Mustangs 36-19 at London to take a solid hold on second place in the four-team league.

In Ontario Intercollegiate action, Ottawa University Gee Gees took their fourth straight game with a 33-13 victory over University of Waterloo Warriors. Loyola University Warriors defeated Guelph University Redmen 19-19 and Waterloo Lutheran University trounced Royal Military College 27-0.

Cal Cormar gave the Gaels a 6-0 first-quarter lead over Toronto with a 294 - yard unconverted touchdown.

However, Queen's went ahead to stay after halfback Jim Young galloped 43 yards for a touchdown. Another Cormon touchdown and a field goal by Young made it 21-7 by the half.

It was Cormor and Young again in the third. Young went over on Cormor's pass after Toronto counted a safety touch. A 69-yard pass-and-run play by Doug Cowan made it 33-9 after the start of the third quarter.

Don Bayne and Wayne Norris got the other touchdowns for the Gaels.

No wonder they call halfback Willie Fleming of British Columbia Lions Willie the Wisp.

Fleming, in his sixth year with Lions after coming from the University of Iowa, had been having a spotty season.

But hardly a hand was laid on him Saturday night at Edmonton as he ran 109 yards before 12,000 fans for a touchdown to set a Western Football Conference record and tie a Canadian Football League mark.

Fleming, who seems to be able to gear his 183 pounds to whatever speed is necessary, raced for another touchdown as British Columbia beat Edmonton Eskimos 34-14 Saturday night.

Calgary Stampeders trounced Saskatchewan Roughriders 42-0 at Calgary before 20,000 fans in the other WFC contest Saturday night.

Edmonton plays again tonight at Winnipeg.

Fleming with the 109-yard touchdown run, bear the WFC mark of 100 yards set by Tom Casey of Winnipeg against Saskatchewan Sept. 20, 1952, and equalled the CFL mark set last season by George Dixon of Montreal against Ottawa Rough Riders.

KAPP ALSO SCORES

Fleming got his second touchdown after taking a short pass from quarterback Joe Kapp in a play covering 50 yards. Kapp scored the other B.C. touchdown.

The other B.C. points came on two converts and a single by Peter Kempf, a single by Neil Beaumont and a safety touch conceded by Edmonton on a kicking formation.

Eskimos got touchdowns from flanker Jim Thomas and fullback Bill Tobin. Both were converted by centre Bill Mitchell.

At Calgary, flanker Bobby Taylor caught passes for three touchdowns, Lovell Coleman scored two touchdowns and quarterback Eagle Day counted the other touchdown. Placekicker Larry Robinson, the WFC's leading scorer, got the other six Stampeder points on four converts and two singles.

Roughriders again were without quarterback Ron Lancaster, who suffered a broken rib in a game in Eastern Canada. Bob Ptacek was at quarter all the way.

Harry Jerome Stages

Greatest Comeback In History

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP) —One of the greatest comeback stories in modern Olympics track history has been written at the National Stadium in Tokyo by Harry Jerome of Vancouver supposed to be washed up two years ago.

Jerome, who has been an inspiration to the Canadian track team the last few days, missed making it for the second time to the medal - winning podium when he was a driving fourth in the men's 200 - metres Saturday at the Olympic Games.

But he gave Canada its first finalist in the men's furious sprint 1936. At the same time, he exploded the myth that he folds under pressure and proved that he could come back after personal tragedies in the 1960 Olympics and the 1962 British Empire Games.

Jerome went lame in the 100 metre semi-final at the Rome Olympics four years ago, and didn't finish the race. He trailed the field by a yard when he sprawled to the track. He withdrew from the 200 but ran in the heats of the 400 - metre relay. But he aggravated his injured left leg and had to be replaced in the semi-finals.

PULLED UP LAME

At the B.E. Games in Perth, Australia, he pulled up lame in the 100 yards, withdrew from the 200 and left for home. Shortly after, he underwent an operation for the leg injury.

In Tokyo, tributes have been heaped on Jerome by his fellow-Canadian athletes and team officials.

Bill Crothers of Toronto, who won the second-place silver medal in the 800 metres Friday, said Jerome high tribute.

"I can say that it is almost impossible to make the finals of both sprints, but Harry did it despite eight races in four days. He has done a great job."

Jim Daly of Winnipeg, manager of the track team, said Jerome had carried the heaviest load of any of the Canadian team because of his poor showing in Rome and Perth.

MISSED BY WHISKER

"In the finals of the 100 and 200 he came up with two of the best times (10.2 in the 100 and 20.7 in the 200) and missed the bronze in the 200 by a whisker. No other sprinter here has run so many races.

"Canadians should realize that this is a fantastic job he has done. He's carried the heaviest load of any member of the Canadian team on his shoulders because of the trouble in Rome and Perth. It's got to rate as one of the success and comeback stories of these games. Now he's proved that he is a great competitor."

"I didn't want to come last," said Jerome, who won the third-place bronze medal in the 100 Thursday. "I'm not really strong enough for the 200 but I wanted to give it a big try. I knew the rest of the field was fresh and I was hoping that someone would make a mistake and I would be in there to cash in.

"Now I want to go back home and see if I can build up my strength for the 200."

Keane Waits NY Call

HOUSTON (AP) — Johnny Keane, who resigned last Friday as manager of world champion St. Louis Cardinals, sat by the telephone at his home here Sunday night awaiting a call from New York Yankees.

Keane is expected to replace Yogi Berra as manager of the Yankees. Berra was fired as pilot of the American League champions a few hours after Keane had resigned his Cardinal post.

"I see here in the papers where I'm the new Yankee manager," Keane said. "I have not up to this point been contacted by the Yankee management. But I'm here at home and available.

In New York a spokesman for the Yankees indicated Ralph Houk, the Yankee general manager, would get in touch with Keane after he returned from a Sunday trip.

Earlier in Pittsburgh, Joe L. Brown, general manager of the Pirates, denied he had offered Keane the post of Pirate manager to succeed Danny Murtaugh who quit because of ill health.

On Saturday, The Associated Press learned that Keane will be named to succeed Berra, probably at a Thursday press conference. It is understood he will be given a two-year contract.

Russ Says Athletes 'Too Old'

TOKYO (AP) — The once mighty Soviet track and field forces are wearing out like an old automobile and the new models haven't come in yet.

That's what Gabriel Korobkov, veteran coach of the Russians, says — and this is one Gabriel who doesn't always blow his own horn or fear exile to Siberia.

"Our athletes are too old—they are past their prime," the Soviet coach said, graciously accepting continued Russian setbacks and America's success in the 1964 Olympics.

"We have some very fine young men coming up, but they are not ready now. They will be ready in two years for the European championships and in four years for Mexico City (the 1968 Olympics)."

Soviet track prestige was further shaken when Bob Schul, a rangy runner with an explosive kick, won the 5,000-metre run, right on top of Billy Mills' unbelievable triumph in the 10,000.

This marked the first time the United States ever had won any race over 3,000 metres in the Olympics.

"This does not surprise me," Korobkov said. "I have seen the United States' long distance runners improve from year to year since we started our dual meets after the Melbourne Olympic Games (1956).

"The Americans learned the techniques and put more emphasis on the longer events as the result of our meets."

Western Hockey

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems scored two weekend victories to break a three-team, first-place tie and take a two-point lead atop the Western Hockey League standings.

With both games before hometown crowds, the Totems defeated Los Angeles Blades 2-1 Saturday night and followed with a 3-0 victory over San Francisco Seals Sunday.

Up to Saturday, Seattle shared first place with Vancouver Canucks and Los Angeles.

Los Angeles Blades moved into second place by defeating Portland Buckaroos 3-1 Sunday. Portland handed Vancouver a 3-2 defeat Saturday while Victoria Maple Leafs did the same to San Francisco.

The weekend action leaves Seattle with eight points, Los Angeles with six and Portland and Vancouver with four each. San Francisco and Victoria have two apiece.

Put the 'Hunt' Back in Hunting

The great hunter is becoming a lazy stiff. He is doing this in this day and age of push-button firearms, rapid transportation and with the full and benign blessing of the arms and ammunition manufacturers. Today with the aid of lovely optical assists in the form of multi-powered telescopic sights, he can set up his 338-6.5 altered depressurized - magnum - which comes equipped with a muzzle brake in standard models and pot an animal in either eye at 500 paces. I think it is too bad.

I have never killed a piece of big game with the use of a telescopic sight. Over the years, I have made it a point that if I cannot get within sighting range of my quarry on foot, I will proceed if I will blow him off the mountain from the next county.

ONTARIO BOWSHOOTS

Being in this business of outdoor writing, I have a large firearms battery. Last year, before I went to Ontario to "shoot the moose", I laid out an impressive array of firepower to lug along with me. Spare rifles for this, an extra shotgun for that . . . they all went into the gun packs. But when the meat and potatoes part of the hunt came to pass . . . the actual shooting of the moose. . . my 6mm Mauser, equipped with standard Lyman receiver sight and bead ramp front, did the trick at 30 feet.

A friend of mine, who has hunted ceaselessly all over the world loaned me his favorite magnum last year, a beautiful Winchester .338 that groups five shots inside of three inches at 200 yards and lays 200 grain loads with monotonous regularity into a six inch circle at 400 yards. On this weapon he has mounted a 2 by 8 variable telescopic sight. With this one gun, you can sit on your duff and become a hero to the folks back home.

R. THIS HUNTING?

Two friends of mine have a "long gun," a weapon of truly impressive statistics and design. Taking the action of a Weatherby .300 Magnum, they tacked on a 6.5 barrel incorporating a new twist in rifling. With this gun, which weighs 13.5 pounds, they have shot groups of seven inches at the utterly impossible range of 1500 yards. I have stood at their elbows and watched them hunt a deer off a mountain face 1080 measured yards away in 12 shots! They have a gun here at their disposal that is a masterpiece of design, ballistics and gunsmithing, although, yet I question whether or not this is the same code that I was taught when I was a boy learning to hunt. Is this hunting or is it a demonstration of supreme shooting skill at live targets?

Every day, I receive something from the arms companies. Often these releases are announcements of new weapons. A bigger, faster and harder-hitting than any other ever created. Ranges, like the horse-power in automobiles, are comparisons at best, for what is fine for the man in Gunstump County, Colorado, is scarcely what you would need for popping a deer in the Catskills of New York State. Yet, with all this firepower to play with, the deer hunters of the nation are the big-rifle buyers.

Did you know that the Winchester .458 American magnum had as big a sal. after its introduction to deer hunters as it did to true big game seekers? So help me, a weapon capable of delivering four tons of muzzle energy and one which possesses a recoil that will send you home crying to mother is being used to kill an animal you can flatten with a well-placed .22 Short!

FEW WERE KILLED

Before World War II not too many hunters, at least here in my Eastern deer hunting locale, used telescopic sights. To begin with, they were too blasted much! Being precision optics, the selling price from the European market was high. But since the introduction of the Japanese imports, the optics at a price that makes me wonder how the workers manage to live, unbelievably good. The service is sporting these black tubes on top of their pet rifles. At best, they are nothing more than a compensation for ineptitude!

We have become a nation of stuttering riflers, not stalkers! We perch like a homesick seagull on a rocky promontory and glass a square half county in size. Spotting our game, we move leisurely, not with too much stealth, for the animal thinks that we are still home in bed. . .he's eating his breakfast and we are 90 miles from our position. So it is measured down into what looks like a good shooting point, set up our sights by precalibrated tables for range and then touch one off. Of course there is the attendant labor of going over to pick the animal up and take it home, but after all, that is part of the hunt, isn't it?

Why not try something this year? Take that valet tube off your rifle and go out and stalk and kill a piece of big game on your hind legs. Get off in the brush and track something down as a hunter was meant to do when the sport was first designed. When and if you do, I promise you a sense of accomplishment far in excess of the one you get while simply squeezing off a shot at a live target. Let's change the name of the game to hunting, not shooting!

IDEAS IN ACTION—As a former coach of Oxford University's track team, Lionel Pugh has a few ideas how to develop what he considers the magnificent material in track and field. One idea has been put into action with the construction of an outdoor track and field training area at the University of British Columbia where Pugh is assistant professor and head track coach. The $50,000 facilities are scheduled for completion in 1965. (CP Photo)

Sport Snapshots

By DENNIS ORCHARD

VANCOUVER (CP)—An outdoor track and field training area unsurpassed anywhere is taking shape at the University of British Columbia.

It's based on a concept that comes from a few decades of mental doodling in Lionel Pugh's career as one of Britain's top track coaches.

At 42, the former Oxford University coach has a chance to see it realized.

He doesn't use the word "challenge" to explain his emigration from Britain for a lower - paying, harder - working job as assistant professor and head track coach at UBC. But that's obviously it.

And he thinks facilities must come first, because young people must be attracted to sports the know are "very unattractive."

The training area is one big step. It is an all-weather track enclosing pits and runs for various events, a normal plan except that it is elaborate enough to keep more than 100 athletes busy at a time.

STRETCH FOR TRAINING

No football or soccer team will get near the place. It won't be for spectators it will cost about $50,000 and it will be strictly for training.

"I want everything at hand," says Pugh, who is equipped to instruct in the entire range of track and field events.

The new layout, to be ready by the summer of 1965, is the primer for the job. It also takes athletes.

How, he is asking himself and others, can he keep athletes in training when they're finished school in May and anxious to jump into summer jobs "just when track begins in any civilized country?"

His own half-answer is some sort of job-finding service to keep them close by and available for daily workouts.

How are you going to give them competition? Travel widely to meets on the U.S. west coast. Pugh hopes to have a small team doing this soon. "I would be very happy with 20 to start with."

PLANS CLINICS

The other part of his adventure here as part of the "missile-hustle" or "train-drain" to Canada will be made as provincial director for the Royal Canadian Legion's track program. He hopes to develop "mission-ry clinics" to train coaches, to offer the best instruction in physical conditioning and to get the ball rolling at the community level wherever he can.

Four months in Canada have taught Pugh that Canadians welcome him here.

"I feel people want change. I don't know why. Nobody's indicated that to me, by the way, and I'm very happy about that.

"But I've talked to so many people. It's a strange thing. They have a very self-effacing attitude about their athletes. They don't expect much. Th write themselves down."

Pugh also sees a "strange mixture" of British and American traditional here and he can't entirely escape them himself.

"It reflects in sport, too. We're never quite sure where we're going over here.

"Anyway, it's worth a try.

"You've got magnificent material, you know. Cheer, you've got magnificent material."

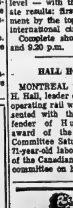
Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni Co-Stars Of 'Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow' In Color

The eagerly awaited Joseph E. Levine presentation "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" opens tonight at the Park Theatre in color and wide screen. Starring Sophia Loren and Marcello Mastroianni, the romantic comedy, released through Embassy Pictures, was filmed on location in Rome, Naples and Milan by director Vittorio De Sica and produced by Carlo Ponti.

De Sica's four month shooting schedule began on a hot summer day in the midst of a July heat-wave and was completed on a brisk autumn evening on the new National highway joining Milan and Bergamo. The "set" was the interior of a $16,000 Silver Cloud Rolls Royce convertible and in this sequence photographers rode strapped to a tiny platform on the bumper of the luxurious automobile. The Rolls was brought from England to Milan to represent the ultimate status symbol in the picture's "Milan" episode. With Miss Loren and Mastroianni alternating behind the wheel, the car was joined to an open truck carrying De Sica and his crew as the cars sped up to 90 miles an hour along the new Milan-Bergamo autostrada.

For the Rome portion of the filming, an abandoned rooftop garden high above the Piazza Navona was converted into two adjoining garden apartments, a dispossessing thousands of pigeons. The birds were given free feed and temporarily put out by the moviemakers, for throngs of summer tourists following Piazza temporarily off-limits during the shooting of night sequences showing Mastroianni sitting alone and dejected in the enormous square. To light the "night" scene, three massive nights, a huge photograph measuring 90 feet long by 30 feet high was built to provide the proper backdrop. Consisting of 30 separate panels, it is one of the largest panoramas ever assembled.

Another "exterior" was Miss Loren's bedroom in the "Mara" sequence. In this role, playing a call girl, she performs a torrid strip-tease for Mastroianni — and was coached in this undulatistic art by Jacques Ruet, dance master of the famous Crazy Horse Cafe in Paris. Summoned to serve as a "technical advisor," Monsieur Ruet taught Loren with his dancer's pantomime. "If you will forgive the pun," he revealed, "Miss Loren's act comes off very well."



In the "Adelina" episode Miss Loren plays a beautiful bride married to Mastroianni, but the mother — before the wedding — steps in to wed the children. To play these parts, De Sica used 12 youngsters ranging in age from six months to seven years. Three sets of brothers and a pair of sisters with strong facial resemblances played the same characters to give the cinematic variety of a five year lapse in time in the action of the story.

Each of the three stories in "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow" presents Loren and Mastroianni in a different situation on a different social level — with the same fortunate results: first-rate entertainment by the top talents of the international cinema world.

Complete shows are at 7.00 and 9.20 p.m.

Fantasticks Given Lavish Production by Hall of Fame

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—The Fantasticks is an imaginative little musical comedy whose rudimentary scenery calls upon the audience to use its own imagination and it has been running off-Broadway for more than four years.

Sunday night, NBC's Hall of Fame presented its more lavish adaptation of the hit as its premiere production of the television season.

It was beautiful as all Hall of Fame programs are likely to be.

The boy and girl, John Davidson and Susan Watson, were handsome and sang well. Bert Lahr and Stanley Holloway are funny men under almost any circumstances although comic material as the two fathers of the lovers was lean. Ricardo Montalban was graceful and bold as a sort of play catalyst in a dashing Mexican costume. The music was tuneful with lyrics that were philosophical, romantic and humorous as the story demanded.

But something unfortunate must have happened to The Fantasticks during its journey from stage to television. Perhaps it was because it was cut by about a third to fit into a TV hour. Whatever the cause, the result was a rather dull, rambling and sometimes downright confusing story.

For the first half hour, it was simple boy-meets-girl love story—a romance shrewdly arranged by the fathers. But when boy-lost-girl in the second half, everything became pretty fuzzy for the viewer.

Recommended tonight: Andy Williams Show, NBC, 9-10 EDT —With Al Hirt and Tennessee Ernie Ford. .

Here Is a Teenager That Earns Own Respect

DEAR DORIS — About the girl of 14 who felt her mother was pinning her in the house. She also said that she wanted to meet a "certain boy." I am also 14. I also have to do my share of work around the house. This isn't such a burden.

For the past two years, I and five of my girl friends have gone camping with chaperones. This year we went for three days. We arranged all the details ourselves, such as how much food we would need, where we could get a tent, who would take us and who would be our chaperones.

My girl friend's parents agreed to chaperone us. We had a really wonderful time. Our parents were only too happy to agree because we took care of everything. Shown you what one can do when they work for it. — NORA.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR NORA — Well! That sounds more like it!

* * *

DEAR DORIS — What is the proper thing to say after someone in the family has died and people come and give their sympathy? — WONDERING.

DEAR WONDERING — Something like: "Thank you. I know you were fond of her too. It means a great deal to me that my friends have been so thoughtful and sympathetic over these trying weeks."

Express your feelings freely and don't mind if you fill up a little. Real friends won't mind. The unkind thing would be to retire into your shell so that they feel shut out.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — The most wonderful man in the world finally proposed to me and we have set the date. I want a small wedding — not more than 30 — but in composing a list have reached a staggering figure of 96.

Doris, should I leave out my close friends and invite "great aunt Mabel and husband" as Mom suggests, or should I leave out the relatives? I originally planned on close family and friends but Mom won't leave it at that. She has promised to abide by your decision.

Doris, these people (there are about 45 of them(have never known me and vice versa. — MUDDLED.

DEAR MUDDLED — "Not more than 30" means, to me, just the immediate families on both sides and one or two friends apiece. Something will have to give.

Are you sure Great Aunt Mabel hasn't been interested in you ever since you were a baby? No feelings must be hurt. Since Mother is footing the bill, and a wedding is a Family Occasion, with a capital F, stretch your list to include those she wants.

Even if it means some of the younger set wait until later for a party with you.

(Doris, who is a trained social worker, can help you with your dilemma. Write to her.)

U.S. Officials Keep Eyes On Red Leadership

Consider Steps to Take If Conditions Change

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—U.S. officials, are watching for possible further upheaval in the Soviet Union's leadership as they consider what steps the United States should take in the coming weeks to deal with changed international conditions.

President Johnson, who conferred with U.S. congressional leaders for 2½ hours Monday, has called a meeting of his special advisory committee on foreign policy for Wednesday. This group of prominent private citizens will be given detailed reports on world developments and asked to consider various possible actions.

Johnson told reporters he had met with the congressional leaders, Democrats and Republicans, but gave no details of the information presented to them. He said the reports he and several cabinet members gave constituted "a highly classified briefing."

It is understood that U.S. administration officials told the congressional leaders they are not sure what issues, domestic or international, led to the overthrow of Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

The briefing is also understood to have brought out that while Leonid I. Brezhnev, 57, seems to be the top man in the Soviet ruling group, the actual post-Khrushchev power structure is not yet clear and the possibility of further changes possibly involving a power struggle in the Kremlin, must be borne in mind.

AUTHORITY DIVIDED

Khrushchev's formal authority was divided between Brezhnev, as first secretary of the Communist party, and Alexie Kosygin, 60, as premier.

U.S. experts said real power in the Soviet Union is vested in the Communist party's presidium, which is a kind of board of directors with Brezhnev's position that of chairman of the board.

Administration officials say the situation faced by Brezhnev and other members of the Soviet Communist ruling group is basically different in one respect from that which faced the men who took over after Stalin's death in 1953.

The men now in power have had a great deal of experience in working together, they shared authority with Khrushchev, who spent almost three years of his time away from Moscow.

May Adopt Jackson's Design

By KEN KELLY

OTTAWA (CP) — Famed artist A. Y. Jackson is on the road to becoming Canada's Betsy Ross. His flag design is reliably reported to be the choice of a majority of members of the Commons flag committee.

Informants say the committee probably will split 9-5 to recommend to the Commons that the 82-year-old Canadian painter's maple leaf flag design become Canada's flag and that the Canadian Red Ensign be used to mark Canada's Commonwealth connection.

Where Betsy Ross is said by legend to have stitched the first stars and stripes flag for Washington after the American revolution, Jackson's design was produced in 1959 on a piece of paperboard with watercolors.

Mr. Jackson, one of the famous Group of Seven artists, has appeared before the flag committee, scheduled to report its choice to the Commons by Oct. 29, and explained the origins of the design. It has three red maple leaves joined on a single stem against a white background with a wavy horizontal blue bar at top and bottom.

Its chief difference from the flag design proposed by the government last May is that the government's design had a vertical blue bar at each edge.

Jackson is reported to have advised the committee that he got the design idea from one of his most famous works, Red maple. It shows a small maple tree with bright autumn foliage against a background of a river

BLUE FOR RIVERS

The wavy blue bars are meant to represent Canada's rivers, the high roads on which the fur traders and explorers first penetrated the new continent.

Reliable sources say the Jackson design has the support of Liberal, New Democratic, Social Credit and Creditiste MPs so far. The five Progressive Conservatives still haven't committed themselves and one source says they aren't ex-

Charges Government Attempting To Usurp the Role of the Press

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition leaders hurled charges of news management Monday after it became known that the Conservative government plans to produce its own taped radio and television programs for free distribution to broadcasting stations.

Today's Chuckle

Put all your money into taxes. It's the only thing sure to go up.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Cool weather accompanied by a few showers or snowflurries will persist across the forecast region today. However temperatures are expected to moderate tonight and Wednesday in southern Ontario. Meanwhile a disturbance moving rapidly out of northern Manitoba will bring snow or rain and mixed snow to Northern Ontario tonight and Wednesday and showers in southern Ontario Wednesday.

Liberal Leader Andrew Thompson accused the government of attempting to usurp the role of the press. He said the probably will bring the matter up in the next session of the legislature.

Donald C. MacDonald, the New Democratic leader, said the taped press releases will mean the public will hear precisely what the government wants.

"In short, the government has a perfect set-up for "managed news."

The government has hired Don Jamieson, a free-lance radio announcer, as a co-ordinator to act as commentator or narrator on the taped radio and television programs.

In a speech Monday at Niagara Falls, Premier Robarts referred briefly to the program of providing radio and TV tapes on government announcements, saying it was being undertaken to provide the same service to broadcast media as to the printed press.

Workers Get Extra Holiday

By STEWART MacLEOD

OTTAWA (CP) — The government lost a vote in the Commons Monday and some 200,000 Canadian workers are likely to gain an extra day's holiday each year.

Since the voting occurred while the House was in committee, there was no question of the government's life being at stake, and the only effect of the voting will be to add Remembrance Day to the list of statutory holidays under the proposed national labor code.

Had it been a question of confidence, said Liberal party sources, the amendment could have been defeated. Some members were said to have remained out of their seats rather than vote against a Remembrance Day holiday.

About 46 per cent of the 550,000 workers under the federal jurisdiction will be affected by the amendment which increases to eight the number of statutory holidays that must be observed. The other 54 per cent already get at least eight such holidays.

OWED TO WORKERS

The amendment was proposed by Stanley Knowles (NDP — Winnipeg North Centre) and got stiff support from Conservative speakers who argued that Remembrance Day is more important than others being observed and it was owed to both the workers and those who died in the two world wars.

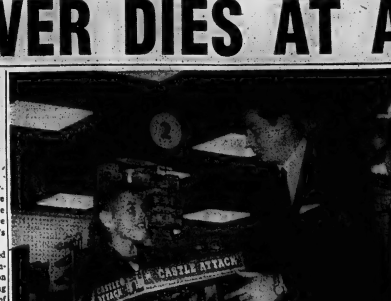
Labor Minister MacEachen opposed the amendment on the grounds that a "very big step" was already being taken in connection with holidays, minimum wages and vacations, and adding an additional holiday would be "unreasonable."

". . . We are, in a sense, entering a field that is normally reserved to collective bargaining. It is certainly not the privilege of this House or Commons to legislate completely and fully the working conditions of the work force under our jurisdiction." He said that after establishing seven statutory holidays it would be desirable to leave the remainder for action under collective bargaining.

Other holidays listed in the legislation are New Year's, Good Friday, Victoria Day, Dominion Day, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

OPPOSITION UNITED

The majority of speakers on the opposition benches had come out in favor of the extra day. The amendment came to a vote and was carried 49 to 44, with all opposition members but Liberals lining up against the government.



The Liberal benches later got help from Social Credit members to defeat another amendment that would have put noncovernment workers in the Yukon and Northwest Territories under the jurisdiction of the act. This vote was 97 to 51.

David Orlikow (NDP — Winnipeg North) proposed this amendment on the grounds that the territories did not have the provincial regulations that apply in other provinces and the federal government had a legal responsibility to these people.

Mr. MacEachen said he was not sure that the national code's minimum hourly wages of $1.25 would be realistic in all private enterprises in the north.

WANTS VISIT CANCELLED

LISBON (AP) — Portugal has asked Pope Paul to visit India, well - informed sources said Monday. A Portuguese foreign ministry spokesman declined either to confirm or deny this. The sources said Manuel Cardinal Gonzalves Cerejera, patriarch of Lisbon, at a private interview with the Pope Oct. 13, asked him to forgo the visit as a gesture of support for Portugal's claim to the territories of Goa, Damao and Diu, seized by India in 1962.

Trouble On Union Front

By DOUG MARSHALL

LONDON (CP)—The new Labor government was still setting down in the driver's seat Monday, when the motor began to misfire.

Prime Minister Harold Wilson had trouble on the union front.

Ray Gunter, the new minister of labor who called his post "the bed of nails," issued a sharp rebuke to Britain's 65,000 dockers planning an unofficial one-day strike Thursday over wages.

Gunter declared that unofficial stoppages were a negation of the principle of collective bargaining and "could only lead to anarchy."

Spokesmen for the dockers replied that Gunter should stay out of the dispute until the labor ministry is asked for its help.

Meanwhile Wilson, still announcing new ministerial appointments, found time for an urgent cabinet meeting on Britain's balance-of-payments problem.

All indications were that Wilson will seek to restrict imports in fields where he thinks Britain is capable of producing its own goods.

Wilson's latest list of executive appointments contained two more surprises.

He created a new minister of land and natural resources under 54 - year - old Fred Willey, serving notice that he intends to press ahead with Labor's controversial plan to form a commission to buy urban building land for the nation.

The prime minister also added a touch of culture to his administration by making 59-year-old novelist Sir Charles Snow parliamentary secretary to the ministry of technology.

SEEK SCIENTISTS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, apparently spurred by recent Soviet space achievements, decided Monday to start recruiting scientists for training as astronauts.

Plan to Amend Constitution Is Acceptable to Ontario

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) Procedural mechanics for amending the nation's constitution in Canada, agreed upon in Ottawa last week, require extensive refinement with "discussions to continue for days, weeks and maybe months yet," Premier John Robarts of Ontario said Monday.

He told the annual convention of the Central Canadian Broadcasters Association here that the formula for amending the constitution devised at the federal - provincial conference

Canada Defends Resources Modestly Says Gordon

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—Record moves by the Canadian government to safeguard its industry and resources from foreign control are modest by comparison with the steps taken by some other countries, Finance Minister Gordon said Monday night.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Export Association that industrialized countries such as Japan, France, Sweden, Italy and even Britain impose safeguards of one kind or another."

He told the 300 delegates that governments compelling foreign investors to extend to Canadians a chance to own a share of their business and to employ Canadians in key positions where possible "are not unreasonable."

"Certainly they are far less demanding in the aggregate than those imposed by most other industrial countries," he said. "No country can be successful if its people are not

Former President To Lie In State In Washington

Was Staunch Statesman Who Had Varied Career

NEW YORK (AP)—Former U.S. president Herbert Hoover died today at the age of 90.

The death of the 31st president of the United States occurred at 11:35 a.m. following recurrence of massive gastro intestinal hemorrhage.

The staunch old statesman, whose life spanned a varied career of engineering, high office and humanitarian service, had kept busy almost to the last.

Hoover's two sons were at his bedside when the end came.

"Work" was his rule. He called it "the best antidote to talk of ills and pills."

Death came quietly at his apartment at the Waldorf Towers which he described as his "comfortable monastery."

TO LIE IN STATE

Hoover will lie in state in St. Bartholomew's Church, Park Avenue and 51st Street, for two days. After memorial services, his body will be taken by train to Washington. There, he will lie in state under the rotunda of the national Capitol.

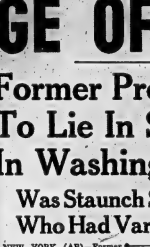
Following services there, his body will be flown to West Branch, Iowa where the final services will be held as he is buried in the national park at the site of the small cottage where he was born in 1874.

Hoover, who passed that mark Aug. 10, 1964, said in a birthday message that the key to America's abundance is its freedom.

Repeatedly, and sometimes almost miraculously in his latter years, he had fought off serious ailments.

But time, and its wear, finally claimed him. No other former president except John Adams, the second U.S. chief executive, who died at 90, had reached such an advanced age. Adams lived 90 years and eight months, Hoover, 90 years and two months.

DURING DEPRESSION



As president when the "great depression" hit the nation in 1929, Hoover endured much abuse, but he lived to regain wide affection and respect as a wise, humane elder statesman

He was sought out for counsel by Democratic officeholders, as well as Republicans. Countless friends and admirers came to love him as a man of immense sympathies and gentle wit.

Even his grave illnesses of recent times did not stop him from leisurely conversations with callers, and from keeping two secretaries at work with his output. But waning health slowed him down.

He underwent surgery for an abdominal cancer in August, 1962; in 1963 a astonishing comeback from anemia brought

Italian Reds Call Strike

ROME (AP)—Train service throughout Italy was snarled today with the launching of a rail strike ordered for 3½ hours each day for a week.

The walkout was called by the Communist General Confederation of Labor. Non-Communist unions opposed the strike.

All of Italy's rail unions are seeking pay increases and changes in the job classification system.

Republicans to Sue Commission For Equal Broadcasting Time

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Republicans plan to sue the federal communications commission to force it to grant equal broadcasting time to the party's presidential nominee, Barry Goldwater, to reply to President Johnson's Sunday night radio - television address on the world situation.

Dean Burch, the party's national chairman, announced the planned suit Monday, first in an afternoon press conference and then in a U.S.-wide speech Monday night in TV time provided free by the NBC network. He also appealed for funds to lay the $150,000 needed for a half-hour of television on one network.

The Democrats promptly fired back, with national chairman John M. Bailey asking "whether NBC believes the Democratic party is now entitled to time to respond."

The FCC ruled Monday that Johnson's speech was given in his role as president of the United States and that the networks did not have to grant equal time to his opponent, in this case, U.S. election.

Goldwater sent a letter to FBI director J. Edgar Hoover Monday, asking why former Johnson aide Walter M. Jenkins was "not subjected to a thorough security check and investigation upon moving into a highly sensitive position in the White House."

He told Hoover he had been questioned by two FBI agents at 6:30 a.m. last Saturday about Jenkins, who was asked by Johnson to resign last week when it was disclosed that he had twice been arrested on morals charges.

Separatist Movement Criticized by Minister

LONDON (CP)—Quebec Revenue Minister Eric Kierans today criticized the separatist movement in his province, saying the idea of a separated Quebec is impractical "and is obviously incapable of being realized or implemented."

"The Lesage government is not separatist," Kierans told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Britain. "We in Quebec are very conscious of the fact that we can only avoid complete cultural assimilation by obtaining a fair authority over our own social and economic structures.

"But the Lesage government is not nationalist if, by this, is meant an arrogant and belligerent chauvinism."

Kierans said the leap from legitimate criticism of certain English - Canadian and federal attitudes to the call for destruction of Confederation cannot be justified.

"Exhibitionism is no substitute for the presentation of a carefully worked out economic analysis of the costs and benefits of separation . . ."

Kierans said that until the separatist leaders engage in professional politics and seek responsible office, their only achievement will be to "cloud, by demonstration and demagoguery, the true image of Quebec—a vital surging people who are the most warm-hearted and hospitable in the world."

The text of his speech was issued to the press in advance of delivery.

Witness Says Accused Endeavored to Rescue Her

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Margaret McMillan of, West Lorne, Ont., testified Monday before an Ontario Supreme Court jury that Kenneth Witherow, 24, also of West Lorne, had apparently tried to rescue her from a fire in which her cousin, Frank Welch, 63, died Nov. 5, 1963.

Witherow has pleaded not guilty to a charge of non-capital murder by "wilfully setting fire" to the West Lorne business and apartment building. Mr. Welch lived.

Mrs. McMillan, an elderly arthritic, said she occupied an apartment above her cousin's second-floor room and was awakened in early morning by a brother, William Welch.

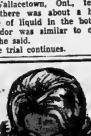
She said she and her brother tried to leave the building by the main door, but were driven back by smoke. They were rescued by persons who raised a ladder to her third-floor window.

Mrs. McMillan said she went to the window after her brother had been rescued.

"Red Witherow was at the window," she testified.

"He was after me to jump, but I couldn't because I had arthritis so bad."

She said that Fred Karscher, one of the group who had helped up the ladder, "pushed" Witherow off the ladder and took her down.



Witherow, who has spent almost a year in prison, is appearing on the charge for the third time.

Two previous trials at St. Thomas ended in deadlocked juries. M. Justice Carl D. Stewart ordered a change of venue to Toronto.

Mrs. McMillan said that when she returned to her apartment the day after the fire to get clothing, she saw a green wine bottle on the kitchen table, along with dirty dishes and a small tub. She said the bottle had not been there the previous day.

Her niece, Mrs. Joyce Sutton, of Wallacetown, Ont., testified there was about a half ounce of liquid in the bottle. Its odor was similar to coal oil, she said.

The trial continues.

IN MEMORIAM

RUSHLOW—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Rushlow, who passed away 12 years ago, October 19, 1952.
She said goodbye to none,
The heavenly gates were opened,
A loving voice said, "Come".
Often sit and think of you,
The things you used to say,
I wonder why you had to die
Without a chance to say goodbye.
Though out of sight, dear mother
Still mind and loved, still kind,
In memory's chain there's missing
Until we meet again.
Lovingly remembered by husband, daughters Margaret and son-in-law Gerald and grandchild.

RUSHLOW—In loving memory of our dear mother, Ellen Rushlow, who passed away October 19, 1948.
Dear mother, gone to rest,
Your work is over, and nobly done,
May you rest in peace, dear mother
Until we meet at home.
Ever remembered by son Bill, Stella and daughters.

ORVIS A. KENNEDY

Gideons Hear Trustee at Their Rally

East Sunday morning the service at Bridge Street United Church was a layman's service for which the minister, Rev. H. M. Davis, vacated the pulpit in favor of Mr. Orvis A. Kennedy, who spoke on behalf of The Gideons International in Canada. This church service and about forty others in the city and surrounding towns and countryside, were the culmination of the Eastern Ontario and Quebec Rally of The Gideons held on October 16, 17 and 18 in Bridge Street United Church and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Gideons from places as far apart as Perry Sound, Ottawa and Montreal gathered for a fellowship hour on Friday evening. All enjoyed the traditional cup of coffee accompanied by biscuits, two cases of which were supplied by Gideon Charles Hare, sales manager for George Weston Limited.

The Saturday sessions commenced with prayer and devotions at 8.30 a.m. and progressed through events for the ladies' Auxiliary as well as the men. These dealt with various aspects of the Gideon ministry of Bible placement in Hotels, Motels, Hospitals, Schools and other institutions in sixty five countries on all six continents. At the coffee breaks the Bridge Street High "C" Club catered and had their coffers enriched by a generous silver collection.

CIVIC GREETINGS EXTENDED

On Saturday evening the Rally banquet attended by Gideons and their friends, and addressed by Mr. Orvis A. Kennedy, Trustee on the national executive of the Gideons, was held in the new hall in the north extension of Bridge Street Church. Civic Greetings on behalf of Mayor Ellis, members of Council and the citizens of Belleville were extended to the delegates by Alderman Don Williams, who is himself a member of Bridge Street United Church and of The Gideons. Several clergymen were present including the minister of Bridge Street Church and also the Venerable Archdeacon A. S. McConnell, the latter of whom welcomed the Gideons for the Belleville Ministerial Association and spoke engagingly as always, invoking God's blessings on the Bible-placing ministry of The Gideons.

Each Gideon lady delegate took home a souvenir of Black Kennedy bore a larger cheque, a Diamond Cheese, and Mr. O. A. which was really part of the ball which trapped him into a commitment to come to Belleville from Edmonton for this weekend.

October Meet Held by Life Underwriters

The Bay of Quinte Life Underwriters held their October meeting last Friday at Johnny's Restaurant with new members being welcomed by President Ed Martin. Gordon Scott, regional vice-president, presented the certificates and was the speaker for the evening.

"Making enough money to do the things you want to do," was Mr. Scott's definition of success.

He talked on future markets for life insurance, noting that in the next six years, Canada's population will explode from the present 19 million to more than 22 millions.

The speaker warned life insurance salesmen against being just licensed operators. "You have only a franchise to sell life insurance, and to be successful you must get out and sell," he said.

Labor Peace Must Continue Says Magistrate

TORONTO (CP)—Magistrate Robert Daieper told striking Toronto printers Monday that he is going to see to it that labor peace continues in Toronto.

While hearing a case concerning picket - line violence, Magistrate Daieper said Canada has an enviable record of responsible trade unionism and has not been plagued by violence.

"This labor peace has been a comfort to all of us, and I, gentlemen, am going to see to it that it remains that way. Penalties are going to be very severe as they always have been."

Robert Nunn, Jr., 33, of nearby Lakeview, was fined $300 or three months in jail when he was convicted of assault causing bodily harm to John Blaney, a lithographer employed by The Globe and Mail. Nunn is a striking Globe and Mail printer. Court was told that a struggle broke out when Dunn followed Blaney from the newspaper.

In another case, Frank Adey, 32, of Toronto, a striking Telegram printer, was fined $50 or 30 days for causing a disturbance in front of the Telegram building last August. He was charged in connection with an incident in which a man had his eye cut when he was struck in the face.

Magistrate Donald Graham dismissed a similar charge against printer Douglas Davidson, 32, of Toronto, and James Pearce, 31, of Timmins. Pearce had gone to the Telegram in search of a printer's job.

The printers have been on strike against the three Toronto newspapers — The Telegram, The Star and The Globe and Mail—since July 9.

County Cheese Industry Started as Family Project Historical Society Told

The early history of the cheese industry in Hastings County and how it started as a family project, was recounted for the Hastings County Historical Society last night as members recognized the 100th anniversary of cheese making in Ontario.

Speaker for the evening was Mrs. Roy Bush of Rivervalley, south of Stirling who told how the Wellman family started and later of Wellman's Corners started cheese making as a business enterprise to use up surplus milk.

"Recorded history has the old Quinte factory at Bayside and a plant at Halloway as being the first cheese factories in Hastings but we feel the Whitton family was a few years ahead of this," Mrs. Bush said.

The James Whitton family which originated the cheese industry in Hastings came from England in 1830 and after operating an inn north of Kingston for a few years homesteaded in the Burnbrae district in Seymour township.

STARTED IN BASEMENT

Recalling the cheese industry in her native England, Mrs. Whitton set up a cheese vat in her basement and started making cheese to provide food for her family of 15 children.

She taught the art to her son James who in turn became a cheesemaker as did his wife who in the 1890's won a gold watch for cheesemaking from the Dairyman's Board of Trade.

Tom McCaughen, another early cheesemaker in the Rawdon district married a daughter of the junior James Whitton and is credited with the idea of first making whey butter.

Mrs. Jack McCaughen of Stirling, daughter-in-law of Tom McCaughen, last night displayed gold watches won by Mrs. Whitton and by Mr. McCaughen for cheese and butter making.

Charlotte Whitton, mayor of Ottawa, is a granddaughter of the Mrs. James Whitton who originated cheese making in Seymour township.

When the Whitton family moved to Rawdon township they started another factory later to be known as Plum Grove. This is still the factory name at Wellman's Corners.

WELLMAN'S WELL KNOWN

Wellman's Corners was to become well known both for cheese making and as a centre for instructing in cheese making.

Adding interest to her talk on the early days of cheese making, Mrs. Bush showed pictures of early factories. Another item of interest recalled was the one time policy of farmers keeping their hogs in pens near the factory to drink up the whey.

And the milk wagon operator who each morning picked up cans of milk for the factory, was a combined milkman, deliveryman and purveyor of news.

That was in the days before telephones and radios and the arrival of the milkman with the news of the day was much looked forward to.

Today factories have to pay to get the whey drawn away and the milk trucker has little time to stop and gossip.

And the neighborhood cheese factory has also all but disappeared in favor of larger amalgamated units with the latest in modern equipment.

For instance just a little more than 20 years ago there were 53 cheese factories in the county. Today there are but 17.

CHEDDAR IN DEMAND

Other types of cheese are now widely sold, but the cheddar flavor of Belleville cheese is still much appreciated and in demand, both at home and in the United Kingdom.

"Cheese making is a pioneer industry for in the 1851 census of Hastings County there are 56 cheese factories in the county. Today there are but 17.

Other speakers heard in connection with the cheese making industry were E. W. Henderson of Stirling, area dairy fieldman, and Mr. M.J. Weiner, vice-president in charge of marketing for the Black Diamond Cheese Ltd.

Mr. Henderson told of the regulatory policies in the various branches of the dairy production industry, while Mr. Weiner told of the modern cheese packaging as carried out by his company at Belleville.

Engineer Tells Why Costs Were Above Estimate

TRENTON—The council last night called for a lengthy explanation from town engineer Eric Aldersey as to why the past bi-reconstruction on three of the town's main streets this year will cost the town roughly $70,000 more than at first estimated. Councillor G. A. Weaver said he thought the public should be made aware of the facts of the case. Streets in question were Dundas Street East, Sidney Street and Dufferin Ave., with the adjoining part of Dundas Street West to Dufferin considered also.

Mr. Aldersey said the needed replacement of sewers, (Dundas St. E. and W.); the replacement of a sidewalk; added excavation work and the replacement of unsuitable soil with granular fill accounted for the increase in price.

The engineer said the work had been justified by the result, and that the contractor was justified in making the extra charge, because if there had been recorded to show the probable condition of the soil and sewer installations, the contractor's prices would have been higher in the first place.

The final cost for reconstruction work on the three streets will be closer to $820,000 than the original estimate of $667,000, with the town responsible for $371,000 of this and the Department of Highways picking up the tab for the remainder.

One happy thought came from Councillor Ross Burtt, who pointed out that many major water leaks had been discovered while the excavation work for the streets was being carried out. Councillor C. V. Graham said that a leak in an eight-inch water pipe on Dundas Street West, near the former tourist home, Pirhurst Manor, had evidently been running day and night. 365 days a year, for years," and had caused flooding east of the installation.

Won't Form Committee to Study 'Casting'

OTTAWA (CP)—State Secretary Maurice Lamontagne said Monday no immediate consideration will be given to the formation of a parliamentary committee to study broadcasting matters.

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker had asked in the Commons whether such a committee would be set up to allow questioning of CBC officials. He specified "writers' criticisms of some of the CBC programs" and controversy over the corporation's acquisition of land in Vancouver for a new headquarters.

The statement followed criticism by Percy Noble (PC — Grey North) of the program Festival. Mr. Noble said the series had a demoralizing influence.

Voters Will Be Given Chance To Guide Council

TRENTON — When Trenton voters go to the polls on Monday, Dec. 7, they will be asked to give council a guiding hand on at least two issues.

The first is to ask a man date from the public for council to press the Ontario government for more assistance with school construction costs. Council reasons there is nowhere to go but up in this field, and thinks the present system of grants, whereby roughly 50 per cent of the construction cost of $20,000 per classroom is made available to municipalities, is inadequate. A copy of this resolution will be sent out to other Ontario municipalities within the next few days, in the hope other councils will call for a public vote and that the "voice of the people" will have some effect on government thinking.

The second question to be asked Trenton voters is whether council should be given the right to make an annual grant to a municipal band.

The Trenton Citizens' Band, whose director is CJBQ's Lloyd Yager, Ted Snider, has asked the council for a $600 grant for next year. Council can find be on the books and future councils could decide the specific amount of the grant each year.

Chamber Wants Council to Back $5,000 Note

TRENTON — The Trenton Chamber of Commerce has asked town council to back its note at the bank for $5,000 in order to proceed with the building of a permanent chamber office on the front Street riverside lot, recently sold by the town to the chamber for $1.

Council isn't quite sure it wants to back the note—and isn't quite sure it can do so legally. The town solicitor, Roderick Campbell, will find out whether the town can back the note with, or without, approval from the Ontario Municipal Board.

In "selling" the land to the chamber, council made the agreement restrictive. If the office isn't up one year from the date of signing the agreement, the building (or part of it) and the land, reverts to the town.

"What would we do with half a building?" queried Council for Joseph Gould.

An Excellent Development Policy

Thursday's issue of The Ontario Intelligencer carried a report on plans for development of a large portion of Dungannon and Mayo Townships, south-east of Bancroft.

This development will be made possible by a network of new roads in the Egan Creek area, on which work was started this summer.

The general development plans, as outlined by E. Markus in the regular news-sheet of the Tweed Region of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests, gives cause for general satisfaction.

"Something for everybody" appears to be the guide-line of policy.

Trying to please everybody can be disastrous in some endeavors, but not where there is ample room for a variety of different attractions.

While the marketing of valuable timber is given as the main reason for the development program, attention will also be given to the recreational possibilities of the district.

Properly handled, the two types of development, far from interfering with one another, should complement each other.

Then too, there is a two-aim policy with respect to recreational use.

Mephisto and Cashel Lakes will be developed as summer resorts, which should not only benefit the economy of the district as a whole but which will also meet a real need.

If the Department had stopped here, though, we should see no more than the normal development of another backwoods area.

Within a few years, it would resemble hundreds of other resort districts scattered across the length and breadth of the province.

Cottages would be lined up all around the lakes and the general public would be channelled onto crowded roads, seeking out a place where pop and hotdogs could be bought and possibly the right to swim from a crowded beach acquires by the payment of a parking fee.

This time, however, the general public, the majority of city dwellers who cannot afford a summer homes, is not being forgotten. While Cashel and Mephisto lakes will be developed as resort areas, many other small lakes will be reserved for public use. No summer resort divisions will be planned for them.

If this is the pattern which the Ontario Government intends to follow in the opening up of wilderness areas in the future, we congratulate it.

It would be foolish to pretend that the results will be as desirable as those which could have been attained had a similar policy been enforced years ago, when roads were being built to beaches and inland lakes closer to the large centres of population.

At the same time, this is certainly one instance in which better late than never is an applicable appraisal.

We Need Student Workers

Nothing is so wasteful as idle equipment.

The more costly a machine, the greater the need that it be kept busy, if costs of production are to be kept down.

Our educational "plant" constitutes some of the nation's most costly equipment.

Therefore, it is not surprising there should be advocates of its greater utilization.

Many people, particularly among those with business experience, urge that it should not stand idle several months in the year.

Unfortunately, it takes more than buildings and their contents to teach young people. Recently, we have heard, in rebuttal of those arguing for continuous use of schools, the contention that such a policy would have disastrous effects on the calibre of teaching staffs.

If those opposed to longer school terms need any assistance, they can now find additional material in employment statistics for mid-September.

These figures show that 203,000 more people were employed in August than in September. Could we have found this number of qualified workers for the job available if we had not been able to draw on the talents of 273,000 students who returned to school in September?

The demands of Canada's economy fluctuate so that long school holidays may be essential for meeting our summer-time demands on the labor force.

This is altogether aside from the monetary and training benefits students derive from working.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 30th, 1914

An epidemic of motor car thefts has been sweeping through Eastern Ontario with alarming results this week. Practically every city in the area has reported the theft of motor cars some time this week. Belleville being sufficiently fortunate enough to have reported the recovery of the only automobile stolen here.

Calling prices on hay grown and sold in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces have been set by the Prices Board in an order effective Oct. 30. It was announced today. The new order fixes a basic maximum price for growers and shippers of $18 a ton for baled hay loaded on cars at the shipping point nearest the area of production.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK

By R. J. SCOTT

Strictly Personal
Book to be Published by S. Harris

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

"Why don't you," a friend asked gently the other night, "review your own book? Or is that an impossible task?"

Pretty nearly impossible, I should think. Reviewing one's own book is somewhat like judging one's own baby in a beauty contest. You read into it (both the book and the baby) what you hope is there, not what you actually see.

For the record, the book is published this week. It is called "On the Contrary." It is put out by the Houghton Mifflin Co. And it is available for $4.95 at any bookshop optimistic enough to stock it.

As the fourth collection of my columns in book form, "On the Contrary" will please the people who like the column, and infuriate the people who don't. More than that, I cannot say.

The only completely (and painfully) honest review of one's own book I have ever read was in one of the last columns written by Damon Runyon just before he died. He, too, had published a collection of columns called "Short Takes."

In this review, which was embarrassing in its self-accusation, Runyon lamented the fact that his Hessian of the typewriter" who was a great rebel at heart but behind most average.

"As a study in the art of carrying water on both shoulders, it would be worthy of a place in the Hall of Fame," he said, with characteristic dishonesty, I think it has no superior since the beginning of time."

He classed himself as a "natural born revolutionist" who pretended to be laughing at the foibles of society when he was really burning at its injustices; and called it a "great pity" that he did not remain "a rebel outand-out, even at the cost of a good position at the trough."

But, for reasons best known to himself, Runyon never hurt the bonds of his spiritual enslavement, and died a bitter and despondent man — both professionally and personally.

The irony of the situation is that if does not take the "moral courage" to be the rebel that Runyon thought he was a hasn't. He would have been a far happier man, if not quite so prosperous, had he given vent to this natural feelings and deepest convictions.

Hypocrisy exacts a higher price from people than martyrdom — and the man who says exactly what he thinks will be respected while he is being attacked — as long as he says it out of devotion to the truth, and not simply to be hurtful or spiteful. And what's more, he will respect himself.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 30, 1934 . . .

The seat for the permanent residence of the Canadian governors was fixed at Ottawa, 80 years ago today — in 1866. The site was selected by order of Queen Victoria in 1858 as the capital of the united province of Canada, its rival claimants being Montreal, Quebec Toronto and Kingston. Prior to its selection, Ottawa was a small lumbering community on the northern frontier of settlement. Samuel de Champlain reached and described the future site of Ottawa in 1613.

1918—The United Farmers Party won victory in an Ontario election.

1930 — British Columbia voters rejected prohibition of liquor.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—Allied armies gained ground in Belgium and recaptured Bruges; the rebellion of Boers led by Lt.-Col. S. G. Maritz virtually ended in South Africa with capture and surrender of many of the anti-British sympathizers.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939 — compulsory military training was revived in Australia; the British War Office said it appeared that the Germans were going to use gas on the Western Front.

Today's Criminal Gets More Protection Than His Victim

By RICHARD JACKSON

From The Intelligencer's Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Doesn't it seem strange, even perhaps disturbing . . . when you pause to reflect . . . that in so many of the post mortems on the royal visit in Quebec City, so much concern has been expressed over what the police did to protect the Queen, and so little about why it was necessary at all to give her that protection.

The way the "Bleeding Hearts" have been holding up their hands in horror, you might almost think that the booing, the screamed obscenities, the pocket-existing across the city, and finally the near-battle in front of the Chateau Frontenac were all the fault of the Queen and the police, and that the scruffy young Separatists were just so many innocent bystanders and indeed, the victims of the whole disgraceful show.

Nobody has denied that the police were tough, real tough, as tough as you've ever probably seen police be.

But those who were there and saw it through clear and objective eyes will tell you they were no tougher than they had to be.

The Terrorists had made no secret — in fact they arrogantly advertised — their plans to murder the Queen, and in spectacularly law-defying fashion had mounted arms raids to collect the weapons for what they boasted would be the assassination.

The police, too, all levels of them — municipal, provincial and federal — made no secret either of their intention to provide maximum security, and called in the Armed Forces to back them up.

NO TEA PARTY

So what did the untidy young Separatists expect if they intruded, however innocently, into that kind of explosive situation — an invitation to tea with Her Majesty?

They were students, most of them, but not all — and neither their youth, nor certainly their supposed education were valid excuses for screaming at a great and courageous lady such obscenities as they wouldn't for a moment dream of scrawling on their own college washroom walls.

So most of them were students — but who, unknown even to them, might be waiting in the darkened doors and alleyways to turn what they now claim was little more than a college caper into a roaring riot?

The police waded in, batons swinging, each time the Separatists showed their heads in numbers and each time the police came out with the ringleaders.

The young Separatists should be the first to be thankful that the police accomplished their mission of getting the Queen safely out of Quebec City without actually breaking any heads.

A few lumps on those heads is a small price to pay, for that isn't the way the college Cry-Babies and the "Bleeding Hearts" who weep for them have seen it.

That the police should be blamed for keeping the peace however roughly, is more of the same crazy mixed-up-in-reverse kind of thinking that has been making law enforcement so difficult, and breaking down respect and observance of the very law itself.

Commissioner George B. McClellan of the RCMP has dealt with this problem of society's seeming tendency to be concerned more for the criminal than for the law.

TOO FAR

He wonders if there hasn't been too much worry now about the rights of the criminal than for those of his victim.

"Where," the big, handsome, university-trained RCMP Chief has asked, "are the rights of the family whose breadwinner has been cut down by a drunken driver in a high-powered car? What system exists to provide the legal advice to the widow who may have a legitimate claim for damages against the motorist in rehabilitate her children, educate them, find them a new place in society, confidence, feel and clothe them? Who indeed but cold charity and local low-financed welfare organizations.

"But the drunk who drove the car, if convicted," the Commissioner reminds you, "is entitled to all those things, all the thing unavailable to the widow."

Something in the situation suggests McClellan, is clearcockeyed, in that we're getting our rights and wrongs mixed.

Then, cutting even closer to the bone, he asks these questions of the "Bleeding Hearts" who delude themselves that they are reformers when they plead the cause of soft rehabilitation rather than hard punishment:

"What about the right to insist that driving on our highways should be a reasonably safe pastime and not a competition to stay alive? Should it really be necessary to spend every minute that you are driving in your car in endeavoring to outwit the nuts, the firebails, and the drunks who drive on every highway today without the slightest regard to life, regulation, safety or their fellow-men?

The police in Quebec City too tough? Don't let those "Bleeding Hearts" or the Cry-Babies kid you.

Age at Which Babies Start To Talk Varies Greatly

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 21-month-old son cannot speak yet except "maaa" "daaa" "baaa." But he jabbers. I am worried because my other children were talking in sentences at his age. He seems to excel in everything else. Is there a chance that the anesthetic during his birth could have affected the speech part of his brain? — Mrs. D. E.

Before he's alert otherwise, I see little reason for you to be worried about him. And no reason to think that the anesthetic did any damage, because this would have been apparent in other ways.

There's quite a difference in the age at which babies start to talk. This boy is a bit slower than average, but I've known youngsters months older who couldn't be coaxed to say a word, and who all of a sudden started talking in complete sentences.

I assume that your doctor checks his hearing, and that is something suspicious, (which I doubt) just give the boy time to talk when he feels ready. Boys customarily are slower to start than girls.

Dear Dr. Molner: You have mentioned that a person should have a uniform bowel habit daily. Also about once a year the public is urged to have this tested. From your writings and also that of a friend, the urine didn't show any sugar while a blood sugar test did show it. What is the use of a urine test if it doesn't prove anything? — Mrs. D. J.

I have often warned that in doubtful cases, or cases in which more proof is considered needed, a blood sugar test should also be employed. (Or, even better, a sugar tolerance test.)

Yes, the blood tests are more accurate. For one thing, the early diabetes elevated sugar levels will show in the blood before enough sugar "spills" through the kidneys and into the urine.

From the pure scientific standpoint, it would be wonderful if these blood tests were used universally.

But from the practical standpoint, the urine test is simple, easy to perform, and inexpensive. It also will detect a substantial number of otherwise unseen cases of diabetes.

It is difficult enough to persuade people to have a urine test, even when declaring diabetes a weak each year many doctors offer it without charge. If some people won't have the test when it is free, how much less chance would we have of persuading them to pay for the blood tests?

It is estimated that there are as many undetected cases of diabetes as there are known ones. So the simple urine test still is advisable.

Dear Dr. Molner: What is a "biopsy test" on the last check? My wife had this. — W. L.

You mean a biopsy of a lesion, a lesion being any sort of injury, damage, or abnormal growth. Maybe a mole. . . .

A tiny bit of tissue was taken from it to be studied in a laboratory. This examination determines whether the lesion is cancerous or is not, and hence whether it ought to be removed.

Automation In Steel Mill

Christian Science Monitor

"As one hot strip mill," said Business Week in an article on the revolution in the steel industry, "the computer seems to do everything but vote at union meetings."

The steel industry, long suffering from over-capacity, is rapidly moving into a period of strained capacity," says the first of a series of articles in this newspaper as the 100th anniversary of Besserner process steel in the United States is being marked.

It is in such a context that the United Steelworkers' new concept of "total job security" must be seen. Forced in part by the competition of imported steel, American companies are making capital expenditures for improved processes — such as cut down the number of men reported to make steel "better and cheaper and five times faster than it ever was made before." Yet labor, watching that computer do everything but vote, wants to vote while it still can for a guaranteed future. It wants to protect employment. It would be foolish to no fault of its own.

If steel continues to flourish it might be able to absorb the new needs and demands of labor without immediately raising prices. It appears that the auto companies are not substantially raising prices — at least for 1965 models — as a result of the new benefits won by the United Auto Workers.

But there is already speculation about selective price increases in steel, even before new union contracts. At any rate, it seems clear that, as in the auto industry, the consumer will not get the lower prices that might be expected from increasing productivity. Thus there seems a kind of loss for the community even without the obviously inflationary wage-price spiral.

The question is whether this loss is worse than that which might occur if the workers for the country's largest industries participated less in the rewards of expansion. Now that even "middle-management" is said to be threatened by automation, it is not only the steelworkers who will be seeking ways for a transformed economy to provide "total job security".

Children's Aid Society Discusses Extra Services For Unmarried Parents

An extension of existing services to unmarried parents by Children's Aid Societies is being recommended by the Child Welfare Branch of the Ontario Department of Public Welfare.

At the October meeting of the Hastings County C.A.S. considerable time was devoted to a discussion on the additional services with Mr. Bruce Kerr, director, stating the recommendations, if carried out would involve additional $2,000 annually all of which would be born at the loc l level.

Mr. Kerr said the report suggested that the unmarried mother, awaiting confinement in an out of town maternity home, should be visited one or more times by her Belleville case worker and that the Society should assume responsibility for the return of her baby from the maternity home (which is located in either Toronto or Ottawa) to Belleville. At the present time the Society does not offer this service.

A committee under the chairmanship of Mrs. K. M. Douglas of Belleville, and comprised of Rev. Father Healy of Marmora, Rev. Alex McDowell of Belleville and Mrs. G. S. Wennacott of Belleville was instructed to study the situation and make recommendations to the Board in November.

Mr. Joel Mazer and Mr. Donald C. Lockyer were appointed to organize a Foster Parents Night the latter part of November. Said Dr. Rose, "This should be not only an expression of the Board's appreciation of the service performed by our foster parents, but an opportunity for them to meet with both Board and Staff and discuss mutual problems". A suitable program, including a speaker, is planned.

Permission was granted to Mr. J. D. Adamson of the society's staff to attend a week-long workshop for supervisors at Sundridge, commencing on the 26th of October. The workshop will be conducted by Laurin Hyde Associates of New York, consultants in social welfare. There will be eleven other supervisors in attendance.

Mrs. A. S. Lewis of Belleville, a vice-president of the Society, was asked to choose a committee to arrange for the Society's annual general meeting during the month of February, 1965.

The local director reported one hundred and fifty-eight children in ward care at the end of September, five having been newly admitted during the month. He said it was becoming increasingly difficult to obtain suitable foster homes, particularly for handicapped children. There was no particular shortage of homes for small children of normal intelligence who did not present behaviour problems but homes equipped and prepared to deal with older children and emotionally disturbed children were almost non-existent. The problem, he continued, was not entirely local in nature but common to the whole of the province and it appeared that in the not too distant future the foster home program as presently known would be a thing of the past. The answer, it would seem, would lie in small, Society sponsored group homes where several children perhaps four or five or even six, could be cared for by one set of salaried foster parents.

At the present time such homes are being used extensively by the large metropolitan societies where the foster home shortage is most acute. He made mention of the attendance of Mrs. Janette Thompson, Supervisor of Adoptions, at a meeting of more than twenty societies at London, Ontario. These Societies having children available for adoption placement, and Societies having adopting parents for whom they did not have children discussed their needs.

Mr. Kerr stated that as a result of the three day meeting it appeared likely that the local Society would be able to place a number of children and arrangements had already been made to bring in several for placement locally. As a result of a stepped-up program to obtain a permanent home for every child for adoption is possible, children are being placed at the rate of one hundred to one hundred and fifty weekly. However, he continued, "there is a definite lessening of interest in adoption this year as compared to several years ago." The local Society places fifty to sixty children in adoption each year.

Mention was made of the current campaign for funds conducted by the Belleville United Appeal from which the Society hopes to receive $5,000. This will be applied against the cost of protection-prevention and family service work in the City of Belleville.

Will Strive To Settle Auto Strike

By A. F. MAHAN

DETROIT (AP) — Both General Motors Corporation and the United Auto Workers Union have pledged to President Johnson they will strive for settlement as quickly as possible in a strike now in its 28th day.

The president prodded both company and union Monday to try for speedy settlement.

More than 300,000 of GM'S 360,000 production workers in the United States have been idle and the president said his is starting to have an impact on production and employment in other industries.

The end came Monday to another auto industry strike, it was against American Motors Corporation. It ended three days after it began with agreement on a new contract covering AMC's automotive division. There were 34,000 workers involved here.

General Motors and the UAW reached accord on a new national contract Oct. 5, but at-the-plant working agreements which supplement it have been reached by only 73 of 130 UAW bargaining units in GM.

CLOSE SOME PLANTS

When a Sept. 25 strike deadline passed the union called out its members, except in GM plants selling parts and accessories to Ford and Chrysler. The latter already had negotiated new national economic packages with the UAW.

A return to work on GM's closed-down assembly lines was made contingent upon settlement of local-level issues.

Both company and union responded to Johnson in separate statements that they were willing to work "day and night" to resolve local-level issues.

While agreement came Monday/on both national and local issues in AMC's automotive division at Kenosha and Milwaukee, Wis., a contract remain to be worked out for some 3,000 employed in the company's Kelvinator appliance division at Grand Rapids, Mich.

Negotiators were to return to the bargaining table today to tackle unresolved Kelvinator issues.

Armed Bandits Get $17,000

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Five bandits, armed with revolvers and submachine guns escaped with $17,000 Monday night from a caisse populaire (credit union) in this community 30 miles north of Montreal.

Quebec Provincial Police said the bandits arrived at the nearby home of Fernand Archer and his assistant, Andre Briere, to accompany them to the credit union. The other two bandits held Mr. Richer's family at gunpoint.

The men forced Mr Richer to open the credit union vault, tied him and his assistant up, then returned to Mr. Richer's home to pick up their two companions.

Rotarians Discuss Art Of Tipping

Members of the Rotary Club of Belleville entered into a hot discussion on the subject of "tipping" at their regular dinner meeting held at the Hotel Quinte at noon on Monday.

Heading the panel discussion was chairman Arnold Campbell with panel members, Bod Cameron, F. McGuire, Don Daugharty and Harold Mott.

The various aspects on tipping were discussed by each member as to whether or not tipping should be allowed and if so to what extent.

Following the views expressed by the panel members the discussion was opened to the floor but time did not permit a lengthy discussion. In view of this fact it was suggested that this subject be taken up at a later date.

A great deal of interest on the subject was given by Rotary members who had hoped for the opportunity to express their individual points of view on the subject of tipping.

Three new members were introduced to the club at Monday's meeting. They were Stan Hagerman, Wilbur Fox and A. Cameron.

Enos David, chairman of the Crippled Children's Committee announced that an Open House bus that will be leaving the hotel at 1.30 on Wednesday, October 28th for the Crippled Children's Centre in Toronto, have been filled.

Members going to Toronto will be taken on a tour of the centre.

U.C.W. Meeting

EAST HASTINGS REGIONAL RALLY.

East Hastings Regional Rally of United Church Women was held at Melrose United Church on Friday, October 16th with delegates attending from 30 churches, Cooper to Belleville.

Mrs. Ralph Sills, vice president of the section presided and Mrs. Laurison Ketcheson was secretary. In the opening session Mrs. Sills welcomed all attending and introduced the theme, "God's Purpose and Our Response," by the use of the book, "Your God Is Too Small," challenging all to a more sincere service.

ADDRESSES RALLY

Mrs. Arthur Packman, Belleville, addressed the rally on the topic, "We Human Beings, Whom Do We Think We Are?" quoting from Dr. Thomson's Study Book, "God and His Purpose." The Bible is called a "Mirror of Life" and each can find a portrait of himself, also a revelation of God Himself." Adam and Eve are typical human beings and the Garden of Eden is wherever they happened to be. Temptation of itself has nothing wrong with it, but how we deal with it is the problem. The speaker chose stories from the Bible to illustrate how damaging and cruel sin can be and said that God still walks in the garden of our souls.

Group discussions took place and the discussion ended with the thought that a right relation with God is the basis of true happiness and peace of mind.

Dr. and Mrs. Swan from Belleville spoke of their life in Trinidad, telling of the agricultural crops and natural products of the Island, also their work in the different schools on the Island. Dr. Swan spoke of the Christian homes and Christian leaders which were the result of our mission work in Trinidad.

Mrs. Kenneth Weaver and her group of ladies, Mrs. Sine, Mrs. Fyear and Mrs. Clancy, presented the literature in an interesting skit, after which dinner was served by Melrose ladies in their basement.

AFTERNOON SESSION

At the afternoon session Mrs. Frank Smith of Newburgh, the Belleville Presbyterial president, addressed the ladies and brought greetings, asking the question: can we produce guided people as well as we can guided missiles?—She encouraged the women to greater efforts not only to reach the allocation but to go over the top.

Rev. George Ambury, of Rednersville who is Christian Education director for the Belleville Presbytery of the United Church, was introduced by Mrs. H. Declair, Christian Education secretary.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS

Problems were discussed, arising out of the study of the new curriculum. Bible study groups were then arranged which showed great interest.

The meeting was closed with Foxboro United Church Women, led by Mrs. Ewing, taking the worship service. Mrs. Redgely sang a solo. Benediction was pronounced by Mr. Ambury, closing a successful rally.

C.A. SERVICE

FRANKFORD — Frankford Full Gospel C.A's met on Friday evening. President Keith Helm welcomed everyone.

Mrs. Fred Spring led in prayers. Mr. K. Helm had as the theme of the service, "The Menace of the Cannibal Curriculum". The Scripture reading was read by Mr. Richard Patrick. A sword drill was conducted by Mr. Ricky Rogers.

Following the song service, announcements for the coming week were given by Mr. Spring.

The evening message was brought by Mr. Lonnie Reilly speaking on "The Damage Caused by the Tongue".

DRIVERS FAIL

A survey has shown that almost 50 per cent of all male drivers in London fail their first driving examinations.

Women Need Promotion Not Protection, Club Told At B. and P. Meeting

Women don't need protection, they need promotion, but their society is motivated by the idea that women must be protected, Mrs. Ethel McLellan, Director of Women's Bureau of the Ontario Department of Labor, told the Belleville Business and Professional Women's club on Monday night as they opened their special week with a dinner at the Belmont restaurant.

"In discussing the labor force, it is important to understand the basic differences between men who are the providers and women who are the dependents. It seems one cannot talk about women's work without discussing her role as mother and homemaker. This is not true with a man's work. By custom and by law men are work seekers, and women generally are dependents. In the labor market women are more elastic, depending on the situation," the speaker continued.

NOT ATTRACTED TO POLITICS

"Women do not seem to be attracted to the role of law maker or politician, probably because they have found satisfaction in other spheres outside their homes. Many women are doing good jobs with the Ontario government in the civil service, with 208 in executive positions, but it seems rather a shame that more are not in municipal, provincial and federal governments.

"The composition of women to the labor movement has been astounding. Their gain has been faster than men with 550,000 added in the past ten years. Women are in a relatively small number as typed or work. One-half of all women work in 20 occupations, with few in primary industries or in farming. Fifty-seven per cent are in white collar occupations. Three out of five women work ing are married.

Women's Institutes

MARMORA WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

MARMORA — Marmora Branch Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. William Tisdell on their usual night, the second Wednesday of the month, with an attendance of 18 members and two visitors.

Reports showed that the public relations officer had sent out four cards, and the visiting committee had visited the oldest member, Mrs. Chas. McDonald on her 90th birthday and presented her with a small gift.

Mrs. George Eagey gave a full report of the district annual held in Belleville in October.

Discussion was held on ways and means of building the finances and plans were made to hold the Hall bazaar in November.

At this was the health meeting in charge of the president Mrs. J. R. Barker, Reg. N., who spoke on "Care of Poisons in the Home" and gave the antidotes for different poisons, but stressed the point to call one's doctor and tell him the poison involved, also that the best way of treating these accidents was to keep all such things out of reach of children.

Mrs. Herbert passed out pamphlets on the subject.

Mrs. E. P. Nayler thanked the speaker.

It was reported that a family was in need of help and the directors were advised to investigate and spend up to a quoted amount.

Two contests were enjoyed during the social hour. Mrs. James Nobes won the individual contest.

The hostesses served lunch and the meeting adjourned.

Rose Kennedy Campaigning For Her Sons

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP)—Of regal bearing and patrician beauty, the lady in the white mink hat strode purposefully to the microphone. She dug into her handbag with long white gloves, flashed out a pair of horn-rimmed glasses and a crumpled piece of paper and smiled at the audience.

"I've come to tell you my version of my son, Ted," she said, blue eyes glittering with maternal pride, "and why I think you should return him to the United States Senate."

Mrs. Joseph P. Kennedy was on the firing line again. The 74-year-old mother of the late president, better known throughout Massachusetts simply as Rose Kennedy, was staging another whirlwind one-night stand in behalf of her fiercely competitive children.

Setting was the auditorium of Central Roman Catholic high school in Lawrence, on a podium just under the basketball scoreboard. But it could just as well have been a national guard armory across the line in New York State or a television studio in a border city that could beam its shows into both states.

The only woman in United States history ever to be the daughter of a congressman, the wife of an ambassador and the mother—simultaneously — of a president, a cabinet member and a senator, was busy ducking back and forth across the Massachusetts - New York border in high hopes of becoming the mother of two U.S. senators. She's also working for her son Robert, former U.S. attorney-general, in his Senate race in New York.

OUTDRAWS SERIES

To the amazement of the local politicians, who flatly had predicted a disaster, an overflow crowd of more than 1,000 turned out to hear her, despite competition from the World Series, pro football and a fine sunlit afternoon.

The competition was formidable, all right, but Rose Kennedy was by far the better show. Her figure was still glamorously slim, her dress definitely high fashion but severely simple, her voice firm and clear, except when it came to that fateful day in November.

"You all know about Jack, our second son, and how he was inaugurated in Washington and the plans he made for world peace. But Jack is no longer with us. . . ."

The words trailed off, and a sob caught in her throat. But she gripped the rostrum determinedly and quickly regained control.

"He has left us," she continued, "a wonderful legacy of purpose and courage. We still have Ted, in whom he confided his heartfelt wishes. I am sure he will be worthy of your trust."

Various Ways With Vegetables

By MARY MOORE

The heaps of squash and cabbage and beets on our local outdoor market are so abundant and cheap it is time I gave you some choice methods of preparing them.

You know the time-honored ways of cooking these common Canadian vegetables so I will suggest some changes.

TUESDAY
(Guests)

Dinner Menu

Ivy's Indian Chicken Curry (see Monday); Chutney; Fluffy Boiled Rice; Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers; Apple Dumplings with Lemon Sauce; Tea.

SQUASH SOUFFLE:

(Note: Next time you bake pepper squash halves for dinner, bake enough extra to give you a subsequent meal, including this Squash Souffle.)

3 cups mashed squash (you could use any cooked leftover squash such as Hubbard or butternut), 2-3 cups thick white sauce (see below), 1 egg yolk, 3 egg whites, 2 tablespoons butter.

Make thick white sauce by melting 2 tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons flour, then stir in ½ cup milk until thick. Beat or mash tender baked or boiled squash until smooth. If you have the patience, push it through a sieve. Add all ingredients but egg whites and beat. Beat whites until very stiff and fold in. Turn into buttered medium-large casserole and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. about 40 minutes until puffed and tinged with gold.

SCALLOPED CABBAGE:

1 medium head cabbage — about 4 cups well-packed, chopped or shredded, 1½ cups medium white sauce (see below), 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons pimiento (optional), 6 slices side bacon, 2 tablespoons bacon fat, ½ cup breadcrumbs, 1 cup grated cheese.

Boil the chopped cabbage in water for 5 minutes —just until tender-crisp — then drain well. Mix medium white sauce by melting 2 tablespoons butter, blend in 2 tablespoons flour and then stir in 1 1-3 cups milk until thick. Saute bacon until crisp. Remove from pan and crumble. Drain all but 2 tablespoons bacon fat from pan. Toss breadcrumbs lightly in bacon fat. Arrange cooked cabbage in layers in baking dish, alternately with crumbled bacon, pepper and pimiento (if used). Sprinkle cheese over, then pour over white sauce evenly. Cover with prepared crumbs. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 10 to 15 minutes.

HARVARD BEETS:

3 cups cooked or canned sliced, diced or quartered beets, well-drained, ¼ to ⅓ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-16 teaspoon cloves, ½ cup mild vinegar (dilute with water if desired), 2 tablespoons butter.

(Note: Some grated orange rind may be added and if desired orange juice may be used, instead of vinegar, with only 3 tablespoons sugar.)

In top of double boiler mix sugar, cornstarch, salt, cloves then stir in vinegar (or vinegar and water or orange juice) and cook over boiling water until clear, stirring. Add beets and butter and cook over boiling water an additional 15 minutes. (Or turn into buttered casserole and bake, covered, at 375 deg. Fahr. for 20 minutes.)

Mrs. Mary Wilson Plays Hostess for First Time

By LYNNE EDMUNDS

LONDON (Reuters)—A major upheaval in the life of calm and retiring Mary Wilson, the wife of Britain's new Prime Minister Harold Wilson, started Monday when she played hostess at 10 Downing Street for the first time.

In the quietly luxurious headquarters of British prime ministers — which the Wilson family will soon exchange for their small suburban house — Mrs. Wilson welcomed Ceylonese Prime Minister Mrs. Sirimavo Bandaranaike to a luncheon party in her honor.

Earlier Mrs. Wilson, the clergyman's daughter who described herself as "round-faced snub - nosed, pear - shaped and plain but an enthusiastic cook," was shown around the residence by the outgoing hostess, Lady Douglas-Home, who suggested the meeting.

"I have come to look around," said Mrs. Wilson when she arrived, wearing the same bright hat which distinguished her during the election campaign. "But we will not be moving in until after Giles' half-term — early next month."

Giles, 17, is the younger of the Wilson's two sons. Robin, 20, is studying at Oxford.

WANTS 'REAL HOME'

Mrs. Wilson, 48, who was a secretary before her marriage, says she cares little about changing the deco. or furniture of the famous house that will be her new home.

What matters most, she says, is that it should be real home for her family.

"I have never lived in the centre of a city before," she said. "I suppose it will be quite hectic but we should be able to get away at weekends."

The Wilsons' new official retreat — the rambling country mansion of Chequers in Buckinghamshire, southern England —contrasts sharply with their family bungalow in the Scilly Isles.

Her role as prime minister's wife is unlikely to leave Mrs. Wilson much time for her two favorite pastimes — writing poetry and singing. Her poems have a readership of one.

"When a poem is finished I show it to Harold, then I put it away," Mrs. Wilson explains.

She prefers to do most of her own housework but will have to give this up at 10 Downing Street. The house, which was recently given a £1,000,000 new look, has official reception rooms and drawing rooms, below the six - roomed, third-floor apartment set aside for the prime minister's family.

Club Activities

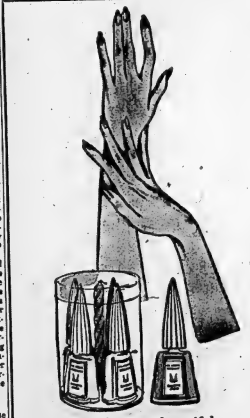
MOONLIGHT MUNCHERS

MELROSE—The third meeting of the Melrose Moonlight Munchers was held in the church basement on October 13, with an attendance of 19 girls.

The members told of the supper meeting they had prepared at home. It was decided to charge a dime if notes were not kept up to date.

The basic part of the study was "Reasons for Food Guide for Health," under the headings: fruit, why use fruit? How much fruit per day? How can we use fruit for supper? and good foods are economical.

The group work was the making of fruit cups. The leaders had made some different things from dried fruits and the members were shown how to make coddled apples.



The girls ate the things they had prepared and enjoyed the evening's work. The next meeting is to be held October 20th.

ONTARIO GOVERNMENT TRADE CRUSADE

W. Hastings UCW Hear Talk on Africa

STIRLING — A well attended meeting of the United Church Women of the Belleville Presbyterial for West Hastings region was held in St. Paul's United Church auditorium on Thursday with the third annual get-together meeting since the U.C.W. was organized under the new order of service with 90 ladies in attendance.

The hostess, Mrs. J. L. Goode, the president of the group, Mrs. Wendall Camm and Mrs. R. A. Patterson all were on the welcoming committee while Mrs. Nix Flindall carried out the duties of treasurer.

White wicker standards filled with yellow and bronze mums and large green ferns made a pleasing arrangement around the altar.

In the absence of the Presbyterial president, Mrs. F. Smith, the vice-president Mrs. Edison Sine of Wallbridge was the chairlady who opened the morning session with a hymn singsong led by Mrs. Carman Sine of Springbrook. Mrs. Harold West of Stirling furnished music throughout the day.

A short skit was presented which depicted "The Value of Good Reading" and stressed that U.C.W. literature was available. At this point Mrs. Kenneth Weaver of Mount Pleasant showed a display of a number of books and pamphlets which are available to promote interest in the women's work in the church. King Street and Grace U.C.W. of Trenton presented the devotional for the afternoon sessions. Rev. Ralph Ambury of Carrying Place brought greetings and gave helpful knowledge of the new curriculum.

GUEST SPEAKER

The guest speaker was Miss Eleanor Beach, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Beach of Frankford who brought an interesting message on an organized trip when along with 300 students from Canada and the United States visited Uganda, South Africa. She told of the living and eating habits of the African people who continue to put their trust in the witch doctor.

The Africans are restricted from eating eggs, poultry and mutton; however while the students were there the natives cooked poultry for their guests first roasting it then boiling it and finally frying the same meat. Miss Beach said they ate it but would not recommend Canadian housewives to follow this method. Miss Beach also noted that a community centre was slowly being built while the students were on this pilgrimage; even the cement blocks were being made on the spot and a portion of the building was completed, enough to form a library shelf.

Films which were previously forwarded were shown and these were based on the importance of health and sanitation living, and there was a glorious assembly of color. Creed or language has no ruling here and Miss Beach said that most of the children had a small amount of education but the women had none but were surprisingly skilled in wood carving and spent long hours at it in their mud homes.

As a close of a most interesting history on Africa, Mrs. Murney Mason of Springbrook voiced appreciation to Miss Beach and to all who had contributed in making this a most memorable fellowship. Mrs. Ralph Wellman of Bonarlaw presented Miss Beach with a small token of appreciation.

At noon the U.C.W. of Stirling United Church served a box meal in the Sunday School rooms where the tables were highlighted with autumn sprayed centrepieces.

U.C.W Meetings

U.C.W. UNIT 1

A life membership pin was presented to Mrs. Earl Bonisteel by Mrs. Arnold Steckle and Mrs. Jack Bleecker.

Mrs. Walter Morrow read the Scripture and the commentary was given by Mrs. Frank Daniel. Mrs. George Montgomery gave a reading. Mrs. Charles Judd gave a solo with Mrs. Morrow as accompanist. Mrs. Raymond Rowe gave a reading.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses: Mrs. Walter Morrow, Mrs. Herb Casey and Mrs. Frank Rabel.

Plan to Loose Apron Strings Of Housewives

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Tied down by their children, the housewives couldn't go to the university to work on their masters degrees so the university is coming to them.

New York University has a plan to loose the apron strings that bind them.

In a pilot approach to the problem facing married women eager to continue their education and prepare for the day their children grow up and they can move to professional careers, the university is establishing an off-campus campus.

Of more than 200 housewives who applied, officials chose 30 to launch their advanced study program in social work.

Classes scheduled for the four-year course are geared to the schedules of housewives who have to feed children and see them off to school before they can find enough free time to attend a class.

The program, university officials said, will be equal in quality and content to the regular graduate degree course offered by the school in the social sciences, located in New York City.

Prof. Louis S. Bershen said the program is intended to open graduate work to college-educated women who marry and find themselves home-bound by their children and other chores.

Prof. Bershen said the program was aimed at "making a break-through in the traditional two-year, full - time graduate program currently practised in the United States."

The women enrolled for the classes average 40 years of age. All are raising families. One has six children. Many have been active in paid or volunteer social work.

WCTU Discusses Thirteen Steps to Alcohol Addiction

The September meeting of the W.C.T.U. was held at the home of Mrs. A. Wells, 79 Geddes St.

A review of the year's work was given as reported at the Picton County Convention.

Miss M. Barnum spoke on the Conscecon camp, which she had visited while it was in session, giving her impressions of that phase of the work.

Mrs. E. Farnsworth spoke on some current events pertaining to the temperance work and stressed the work of the United Church former Moderator, Dr. Mutchmor and his accomplishments in the Department of Evangelism and Social Service.

Mrs. Meyers gave the devotional.

SLAVE TO HABIT

The clip sheet under the direction of Mrs. B. Way was on "Alcohol, An Addiction."

"Addiction means that one has given over or become a slave to a habit.

"Next to tobacco the most commonly used depressent drug is ethyl alcohol, which is consumed by about 70% of the adult population of our culture.

"Alcohol is an addicting substance for those people that become dependent upon it for the relief of their symptoms of discomfort, or for those who use it in a daily beverage pattern.

"They become what is termed 'alcoholic.'

2 PER CENT ALCOHOLICS

"It is estimated 2% of the population of our country are alcoholics. It takes about 15 years for men and 11 years for women to become alcoholics.

"Alcohol education should emphasize and acquaint every one with the dangers arising from moderate drinking.

"Every moderate drinker does not become an alcoholic but the only safe way is to observe total abstinence.

13 STEPS

"Analysis of case histories of Alcoholics Anonymous gives 13 steps to alcoholism.

"You drink socially, a cocktail now and then, a few beers —a glass of wine with friends.

"Bisckouts begin—a temporary loss of memory is a danger sign.

"Liquor means more liquor, sipping changes to gulping, sneaking a few shots. The 'kick' is what you are after now not the sociability of drinking.

"You lose control. You no longer can control how many you will take.

"Your "all-bi' system — you start making excuses for it.

"Drink becomes necessary as a morning eye-opener, now it is a self-prescribed medicine.

SOLITARY DRINKING

"When you begin solitary drinking. It offers a quick way into an unreal road.

You begin to stay away from friends — become 'anti social', lose your ability to judge right from wrong, become self conscious of people or you get destructive, damaging property or burting your own family. The only answer — more liquor."

Then a period of several days during which you drink blindly, helplessly. Now you are a true alcoholic — friends, family, job, food and shelter mean nothing to you — only liquor."

The next step is remorse and resentment. You see yourself as a failure, a heel, a wrecker of lives. You fly into a rage.

The fear of retribution, your hand trembles, your stare is vacant, your step unsure, your nerves jumpy.

Maybe D.T's or a serious accident. You know you are licked. You are a shambling hag-gard, twitching shell of yourself. You have thrown away respect, friendship, love, home, job and future. You are sick but can be helped to recover if you want to live and will admit you need outside help. Contact Alcoholic Anonymous and you can travel back through all the twelve steps.

FIRST STEP BACK

The first thing to do is to attend to his immediate needs — malnutrition and vitamin starvation. He must at once break off the use of alcohol. He may require the use of protective drugs for a few days and hospitalization for perhaps 10 days then continue at home and encouragement to use his own resources.

There are 90,000 alcoholics in Ontario and 35,000 living in Toronto area. About 2/3 of the adults use alcoholic beverages and about 3% get into trouble with alcohol. No single establishment like the foundation can be expected to deal with more than a fraction of those needing care.

The Foundation's basic objectives are to provide the means of training and mobilizing physicians, public health workers, social and religious agencies, industrial personnel, executives, nurses, police officers, teachers and others to deal with these addicts.

In 1962 an annual course was begun at the University of Toronto, repeated in 1963 at Queen's University and in 1964 at Western. Over the years, hundreds of persons have participated in various courses and seminars put on by the Foundation.

IMPAIRED DRIVING

A disorder which accounts for 10% of first admissions to mental hospitals and for a substantial part of Ontario's 48,000 drunkenness convictions and nearly 11,000 convictions for impaired driving cannot be considered a minor social and health problem.

The Foundation today is in an excellent position to increase substantially and effectively its community services regarding addiction problems.

SPEAKING OF MANNERS

BY PATRICIA LEWIS

MAIL CALL

Question: My father gave me a car for my twenty-first birthday, and now I have a dating problem. Some of my dates don't have cars and, since I do, it's simpler for me to pick them up instead of vice-versa. My parents think this is unladylike and insist that fellows I go out with call for me at home, car or no car. I've tried to explain to them that my way is much simpler, but they insist that I follow their old-fashioned rule. How do you stand on this? — B. E., Syracuse, N.Y.

Answer: Solidly behind your old-fashioned parents. Even if you plan to use your car on a date, the young man should be invited to your home to greet your parents and see both you and your car safely to your home again after your date. Your new-fangled method involves a double discourtesy. It's impolite not to let your parents meet your car-less date, to usurp his role as the gallant so completely. My advice is to come out from behind your windshield and take a fresh look at your relationship with your parents and with your not-so-fortunate dates, both of whom are being sorely short-changed by your thoughtless behavior.

Young Bride Will Have Difficult Time Avoiding Brush With Superstition

Written for The Canadian Press
By MARGARET NESS

A young bride planning a wedding with all the trimmings may feel she's quite modern-minded and not a bit superstitious.

But she'll have a difficult time avoiding a brush with superstition.

Many of today's customs are relics of an age when fear of evil spirits was ever present, throwing rice at the bridal couple, for example; or having the husband carry his bride across the threshold.

In early times a wedding was strategically planned to outwit the demons.

They were thought to be spirits of the air. Loud noises could frighten them away. Wedding processions were therefore noisy. At many country marriages in Europe the young men of the bridal party fired guns close to the ears of the bride and bridegroom all the way to the church.

In some parts of ancient India, arrows were shot into the air—to protect the eyes of the demons lurking around the bride.

There were also supposed to be evil spirits living below. The bride was considered especially vulnerable and pains were taken to ensure that her feet didn't touch the ground and so allow the spirits to enter her body.

CARRIED TO CHURCH

Brides were carried to church and to their new home in some countries a sort of litter was used, in others the bride was lifted right from the bed in her parents' home to the back of a horse for the trip to church.

And in parts of France women friends carried the bride seated on their crossed arms.

Fire and disguise were other means of driving away or fooling the evil spirits. Since demons don't much like fire, the bride might be carried over flames or, in one section of China, transported in a chair of a symbolic vessel of live charcoal. In ancient Greece and Rome a bride was given a torchlight escort to her new home.

Being gullible, demons could often be duped into believing an animal or some inanimate object was the bride. A sheep might be dressed in bridal array so that the malignant spirit would vent its deviltry on it.

In Europe, often when a bridegroom came to fetch his bride, an ugly old woman was substituted. She'd ride off with him, drawing the demons away from the real bride.

COVERED WITH CLOAK

Among some desert tribes, if a bride was from another camp a man's cloak was thrown over her before she rode off on a camel to her new home. It was hoped the spirits would think she was a boy.

In some European countries the bride and bridegroom dressed in clothes of the opposite sex and hid from each other for a specified time.

Evil spirits were fond of thresholds and it was unthinkable that a bride should step on the threshold of her new home. She was always carried across it, usually by the bridegroom, and often still is.

The bridal chamber was considered a place where the spirits were extremely dangerous. In Normandy, when the groom went to join his bride a friend came along to crack a whip and drive out the demons.

In Morocco a groom used to send his sword to be placed on the bridal bed and lated tacked a pistol under his pillow.

Some authorities believe rice was thrown at the couple after the wedding to provide food for the spirits. But the practice is most often linked with fertility rites.

Grain was intended to ensure offspring, and in some countries throwing barley was supposed to mean a boy and wheat a girl.

THROW SHOES

The custom of throwing old shoes is believed by some to be another relic of a practice intended to drive away the evil spirits.

In some ancient civilizations, ancestors were worshipped along with the gods. At Roman society weddings there was a special cake that was first offered to the spirits of the ancestors and to the household gods, after which the bridal couple and guests ate it.

Nowadays a bride may throw her bouquet before leaving on her honeymoon. The unmarried girl who catches it is supposed to be married within a year. In early days brides didn't carry bouquets. But an English custom called for them to take off the left stocking and toss it over her shoulder among the guests, the person who would be it would be the next married.

One custom that had a practical origin is rapidly disappearing. It's the dowry. In the days when daughters worked in the fields and were theis, father's chattels, marriage meant a financial loss and so the groom was expected to pay, usually in cattle, sheep or pigs.

Later, when girls remained at home helping their mothers, they were of less economic value to their father. And so the dowry was reversed. The bride's father gave cattle or sheep or pigs to the man who would wed his daughter and relieve him of the cost of keeping her and her clothed.

STEAL THE BRIDE

There were, of course, young men too poor or merely disinclined to pay for their brides in early times and they would resort to stealing her away from her home.

This gave birth to the custom of having a best man. When a young man set off to capture the bride from another camp or nearby farm, he drew on his friend's help. He couldn't easily control a horse, hold a struggling girl on the saddle in front of him and at the same time fend off kinfolk. So he took along the best man chosen from among his friends.

Sometimes he took several friends along and they survive today as the bridegroom's ushers.

The word "bridegroom" is derived from the tibe when, on the wedding day, a young husband would call on his bride at the marriage feast. He was her servant, or groom as a servant was then called.

Goldwater's Sister Out On Hustings

EMPORIUM, Pa. (AP)—Like many women, Mrs. Bernard Erskine had dabbled in small-town politics, "addressing envelopes and licking stamps," as she puts it. But no more. She is Senator Barry Goldwater's sister.

And the 52-year-old mother of three has plunged almost full force into her brother's Republican presidential campaign. She finds it exciting.

Mrs. Erskine has logged many hundreds of miles already in the campaign for the Nov. 3 U.S. election, by auto and plane, and she plans to travel much more before it's all over.

For the most part, she makes appearances at political gatherings and speaks briefly, informally.

"Mostly, I thank them and tell them Barry sends his regards," Mrs. Erskine explains.

How does she feel about her brother's running for the presidency? Her answer in three words: "Terribly, terribly proud."

Little Brother Becomes Big Problem to Older Boy

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I have a problem. It is called a little brother. I am a boy 14 years old.

I will be minding my own business, and my dear little seven-year-old brother will come and make a pest of himself. When I ask him to please leave me alone he says "O.K." Then he comes back to pester me some more.

I tell my mother he is bothering me and she says, "You are mean. That is no way to treat your little brother."

The next time he pesters me I hit him. (Just a little tap.) The little rat-fink screams bloody murder and my mother comes running into the room. I get heck and he gets loved up. The law says I can't leave home till I'm 18. How can I stand four more years of this torture? Help me. — IN MISERY.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR IN — The best solution to the little brother problem is to pray for another boy in the family.

Your little brother will be so busy defending himself against his little brother he will leave you alone.

(P.S. — When your mother reads this she will probably tell me to drop dead.)

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm a 16-year-old girl whose parents were divorced last year.

My dad has remarried and I dislike his new wife. Her former husband brought out so much dirt during the divorce hearings that everyone knows she's an immoral woman. Now I am torn between my mother's advice and my desire to be a self-respecting person.

Dad telephones me every Saturday and asks me what I need. I tell him I don't need anything. He offers me extra money which I refuse because I have no respect for him and I don't want his favors. He invites me to dinner with him and his wife almost every Sunday.

I hate to go but my mother pushes me. She says I'm stupid — that I should accept everything my dad wants to give me, plus whatever I can extract from him on my own.

Am I entitled to whatever I can get as payment for the hurt my dad has caused me? I need your advice. — ALBATROSS.

* * *

DEAR ALBATROSS — I hope you will not allow your mother's bitterness to turn you into a grasping, insincere person.

Be civil to your father and his wife but don't pretend anything you don't feel. And don't accept anything you don't need.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — For the past five years my husband and I have taken foreign exchange students into our home as guests during school vacations when they tourned the country. This weekend two girls from Swedeh arrived in a station wagon which carried ten adults plus luggage. My husband was appalled when that overloaded wagon drove up. I invited everyone in for a cool drink and he examined the car.

Ann, the car showed 86,000 miles on the speedometer. There was one bald tire in the back and the rear window wouldn't open. The driver said the car kept pulling to the right and made a lot of noise. I felt it was my duty to say something about it, so I phoned our minister. He said this was not "in his province." If those students had been killed and he had to deliver the funeral talk, maybe that would have been "in his province!"

I called the police and was told to talk to the cop on the beat. By then the wagon had been driven off. What should I have done? — N.B.B.

* * *

DEAR N.B.B. — You should have insisted that the driver take the wagon to a garage for a safety check. If the car did not pass muster you should then have phoned the headquarters of the organization which sponsored the tour and said, "The vehicle is unsafe. What do you intend to do about it?"

Women's Institutes

FOXBORO W.I.

Mrs. M. C. Jamieson was the hostess when the Foxboro Women's Institute met for their October meeting on Thursday evening, with Mrs. M. J. Waller presiding.

The report of the euchre showed a gain of $7.44, which was a good beginning for the season's euchre parties. A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Wilmet Jamieson thanking the members of the Institute for the wedding gift was also read. The next euchre party is planned for later in October with Mrs. R. Bullinger's committee in charge.

SPEAKS ON HEALTH

Mrs. Waller introduced Mrs. C. Young, a former Foxboro girl and a registered nurse, as guest speaker. Mrs. Young, speaking on health, gave a most informative talk on health in general and diet in particular. One thing she stressed was that one should always consult a doctor before going on a diet, also to maintain a good state of health one should follow certain rules. Mrs. Young's talk "tied in" particularly well with the roll call. "Name many calories did you eat today?" and provided a most interesting meeting for both the speaker and members.

Mrs. W. Rombough thanked Mrs. Young most capably and Mrs. Nurse Underhill in tribute to all nurses, a fitting climax to her "thank you, Joan."

During the discussion on conditions and the need of the people where Mr. J. Churchill is teaching and it was decided to pay the expense on a parcel to be sent to Mr. and Mrs. Churchill for the children.

A humorous reading by Mrs. Rombough closed the program of an informative and interesting meeting.

Mrs. Waller closed the meeting and a social hour was enjoyed over a delicious lunch, served by the ladies after the lunch committee. More discussions on conditions where Mr. and Mrs. Churchill are took up a good bit of time during this hour.

Susanna's Family Fare

FULL HOUSE

Dear Susanna: When traveling by car, and the trunk is loaded to the hinges, do pack one small grip for everyone, with pyjamas and toilet articles and wonderful fresh underclothing will be necessary for the trip itself.

This way you don't have to unpack the whole trunk and lug out all the suitcases every time you stop off for the night. Nor do you have to face the horrible task of arranging it all back again in the cold grey dawn.

We've done it both ways, and believe me, there's no comparison. — Queenie and Jack.

Here's another act in the hole: Include a pillow case for the soiled clothing — and try using a duffle bag for the pyjamas.

These soft pliable carriers don't seem to take up any room at all, and you can tuck them in almost anywhere. They are especially good if you happen to have a couple of young diners along on your trip and you are really pressed for room. — SUSANNA

WIFE VS SECRETARY!

Dear Susanna: For a while after I was married I did things the hard way. Finally I began to see the light and worked out a system for homemaking just like a business executive might do for running an efficient plant.

Mostly I just use little more and work saving ideas that keep me out of a mess, and give me time to be relaxed and pretty when my husband comes home. Let's take Monday morning, for instance, here is how I have organized washday:

(a) To begin with, always keep soiled clothes in a perforated hamper — this will prevent mildew and musty odors and eliminate a lot of unnecessary work on that score.

(b) Hand torn or ripped clothes before tossing them into the hamper — this prevents bigger and better tears and rips from appearing.

(c) When it's time to wash, pretreat badly soiled areas with a little concentrated washing solution and a few strokes of a brush — this includes such areas as collars and cuffs.

(d) Sort not only as to whites and colors, but as to light and heavy soil.

(e) Use a laundry cart or grocery cart to transport loads to the washer. Never lug them in a basket if you can possibly avoid it.

(f) If you are in an apartment or bungalow and all on one level, pack your cart again after ironing for methodically putting them away. Roll it from room to room, unloading right at the spots they belong.

You know something, this way it's almost fun! — "Learned Fan."

With assembly line efficiency like this, your husband is liable to treat you like his secretary and ask you out to dinner — he may even tell you how misunderstood he is at the office, so be prepared to keep him happy by lending a sympathetic ear — and shoulder—Susanna.

Hobgoblin Hamburgers

Make these "spooky" burgers for your youngsters and their friends, this way. Top hamburg patties with slices of cheese—when they're almost finished cooking—then serve them in toasted buttered hamburg buns. The hobgoblin touch comes when you make a face on top of each bun using stuffed olives for eyes, a carrot round for the nose, and for a goblin's grin, just cut or tear the roll, letting the melted cheese show through.

"Witch Hat" Desserts

For each serving, fill an ice cream cone generously with ice cream and set serving time ... then invert it on a large flat cookie and pour chocolate sauce over the make-believe "witch hat".

Deviled Franks

Give wieners a "devilish" dressing up—for Hallowe'en or anytime—by slitting each "frank" lengthwise and inserting a generous strip of ooey Canadian cheddar cheese. Wrap the wieners in bacon, securing with toothpicks, and broil them just until the bacon is cooked and the cheese melting. Slip them into buttered toasted wiener buns which have been given a good lining of relish.

Popcorn Shell-Out

Popcorn, buttered or "cheesed" will make each of his, the youngsters will come in and sing and recite for you while you pass the bowl around. Pop plenty of corn, sprinkle with salt and pour on the melted butter. Or try shaking grated Canadian cheddar cheese and oven-toasting for a few moments. Ummm ... we think we'll call at your house!

A Prophecy Cake . . .

For the night when witches ride and fortunes are told! Make up a big butter spice cake—2 or even 3 layers. Before frosting it, cut slits in it the way you do for birthday cakes. Insert sects favors and fortunes—to make your guests shiver just a little when they read 'em. For the filling and frosting we suggest a cheese icing (goes so nicely with spice cake). Cream together 2 (4-ounce) packages of cream cheese with a couple of tablespoons of milk to moisten. Add sifted icing sugar gradually—you'll need about 4 to 5 cups. Might tint the frosting orange, with food coloring, then outline a jack-o-lantern on top with melted chocolate.

HIS LAST WORD

He didn't make it to the 1964 Republican convention in San Francisco, although he had attended every other one since 1208. But "the Grand Old Man of the Grand Old Party" sent a farewell message, noting he had offered his last word before, but "this is really it."

In that message, he said "peace of the world is the first obligation of statesmen and government" and that the "major world issue today is whether government shall be the servant or master of men."

Hoover's range of public service included direction of massive relief operations during the First World War, food administration at home, secretary of commerce and then the presidency from 1929 to 1933.

The premier said Ontario is sympathetic to Quebec's role in Confederation and will lend its support and conviction wherever possible. He added that the proposed union of the Atlantic provinces was of interest at the conference and his government supports any changes that are for the betterment of Canada and is ready to assist in any way.

Earlier in the day A. J. Little of Toronto, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, said he welcomes an announcement by Finance Minister Walter Gordon of a federal-provincial conference to study taxation.

"One would hope that having agreed upon a study of this sort, governments would pause in the spending spree and not rush into the implementation of such things as the Canada Pension Plan and universal medicare until the broad picture is clear," Mr. Little said.

Earlier, the exporters passed resolutions calling on the Export Credits Insurance Corporation, a Crown company, to operate on as near as possible to a break-even basis.

The resolution noted that the corporation earned $1,600,000 before taxes last year and had an accumulated earned surplus of $3,254,000.

H. T. Aitken, president and general manager of the corporation, told the delegates the ECIC is effect is working on a break-even basis now.

The earned surplus had been built up during the 19 years the corporation had been operating and its earnings represented only one-fifth of one per cent.

ANALYSE WORLD EVENTS

At the meeting with congressional leaders, Defence Secretary Robert S. McNamara outlined current and future U.S. defence plans, State Secretary Dean Rusk analysed the political significance of recent world events and discussed steps the United States is taking or, plans to deal with them, and director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency and Chairman Glenn Seaborg of the ATOMIC Energy Commission presented details on what the president called classified information.

It was understood that McNamara, McCone and Seaborg dealt primarily with U.S. knowledge of China's nuclear test explosion last Friday.

Johnson also reported that Ambassador - at - large Llewellyn E. Thompson Jr. discussed probable causes of Khrushchev's removal.

Thompson, il is understood included among them the stresses and strains of promoting agricultural production and consumer goods output while investing heavily in expansion of basic industry and maintaining an extensive military establishment.

He is believed to have cited also the serious divisions within the Communist bloc, including the Soviet-Chinese split and efforts by the Soviet leadership to deal with these problems of disunity.

Conservative committee members, many of whose colleagues in the Commons favor the Canadian Red Ensign as the Canadian flag, were reported to have proposed several designs to the committee. They included designs with both the three-maple-leaf theme of the government's design and the Union Jack in a variety of sizes and places on the flag.

The crucial decision on the committee's report to the Commons is expected to be taken this week. It is anticipated that at least one effort will be made to get committee support for a request that the committee's deadline be extended.

Mr. Jackson in a recent interview said he would actually prefer green leaves to red on grounds that a combination of green and blue would be more distinctive than red and blue, and "when leaves turn red they are ready to fall."

However, he saw no chance of that winning acceptance.

Bertrand Russell

The Socrates of Our Age

By ALAN WALKER

PENRHYNDD EBRATH (CP)—Bertrand Russell poured strong tea with a steady hand. A shaggy poodle named Peanut lounged at his feet in the library of a remote north Wales home overlooking glorious Cardigan Bay.

The afternoon was calm. A slight breeze stirred rose bushes, and green leaves glistened in sunshine. It was difficult to envisage a nuclear fireball and mushroom cloud lingering lazily over that landscape.

"You must think of it, you must." And the third Earl Russell, in his 92nd year, after a half-century fight to rouse apathetic multitudes, began to talk of life and death and hope.

Russell used to think people liked life but now he fears the world prefers a sudden and spectacular end.

There is only a hint of pessimism, however, in this frail philosopher with a tough mind that is surely one of the century's greatest.

He still works continuously at persuading men and nations to abandon nuclear destruction. Even now he does not consider himself too old, too busy, or too proud to stage a demonstration in the streets.

He is the Socrates of his age — the gadfly of conscience who speaks where all men can hear. For his trouble he is scorned, ridiculed, assaulted and branded a Communist.

IN JAIL AT 90

He has been sent to jail. The first time was in 1918 for pacifist behavior. What he expects to be his last imprisonment was in 1961, for the same offence.

Most men see something absurd in a person who will never fight for anything, in any circumstances. Russell is not that sort of pacifist. For instance, he supported the Second World War. Hitler had to be stopped.

"But now, the United States knows it can wipe out Russia in half an hour. While Russia is being destroyed, it will launch a retaliatory attack that will kill large numbers of Americans.

"The American government has always lied to its people. The citizens were told that fall-out shelters would save them. Nonsense. They have been lied to for so long that it's too late now to tell them the truth."

And there is more involved than the fortunes of Russians and Americans. "Let's not forget the poisoning of the atmosphere that would result." Russell said as he scratched feverishly at the bowl of his pipe with a penknife. "An all-out nuclear war between two desperate and frightningly powerful nations would make this planet unliveable for all but a few men."

He says the United States poses the greatest threat to world peace.

"I think we should always treat Americans and Russians as equals in power and wickedness. But I think America will embark on a 'preventive' war. I don't think Russia will.

FEARS MILITARY

"There is an alliance of the Pentagon and the arms industry that is very powerful."

It is such remarks, combined with Russell's agnosticism, that lead many to call him a godless Communist. But Russell visited Russia and saw Lenin shortly after the Russian revolution. He was disappointed and wrote soon afterwards:

"I found nothing that I could like or admire."

Years later he wrote of the Russian leaders as a "band of fanatics" that were attempting to "force human beings into an unnatural shape."

When he was interviewed here, Russell had been reading Senator Barry Goldwater's Why Not Victory . . .

"I've never met Goldwater, thank God," Russell said with a shudder of disgust. "The man is preaching destruction.

"After the Republican convention I thought he'd be elected, but now I think we're safe until 1968 when he'll almost certainly be elected if he runs.

"Meanwhile, although I'm encouraged by President Johnson's liberal stand recently, he is really concerned only with getting elected. I suspect he's indifferent to the survival of humanity."

ACTS ON OWN

Russell is a great believer in individual action, hence his famous telegrams to Khrushchev and Kennedy during the Cuban crisis in 1962. For a few hours that October, Khrushchev wasn't talking to Kennedy but he did answer Russell's cable at great length.

"I do have quite a telephone and cable bill." Russell said with just a hint of rue. He spends most of his time here but travels to London every couple of months There he has three secretaries working at the Bertrand Russell Peace Foundation. He dictates letters by phone from his home here, forcing his bills up even higher.

It's not his health that keeps him here, but only the peace and quiet. He is a trifle deaf and a digestive disorder limits him to liquid food but he still smokes.

"They said smoking a pipe would shorten my life," he said. "It doesn't seem to have done so."

Russell's views on morality and religion have got him into nearly as much hot water as those on politics. In the torrent fields he follows the footsteps of his parents. . .

His grandfather was Lord John (Finality Jack) Russell, twice prime minister of Britain. His father was a member of Parliament and raised the country's blood pressure in 1863 by saying birth control should be a matter for doctors to decide on, and not for the church.

DELIVERED BY WOMAN

Meanwhile, Russell's mother was shocking the age by advocating equality for women. She had baby Bertrand delivered by Britain's first female doctor.

"Divorce should be much easier to obtain," Russell said. "There is no sense in keeping two people together who hate each other."

Russell has had four wives in the last 70 years. The latest is Russell is the former Edith Finch, an American whom he married in 1952. Russell looked fondly across the room at her and smiled. His leathery face beneath the shock of snowy hair broke into hundreds of tiny wrinkles.

"My last marriage is successful," he said. "That is the reward of persistence."

Russell, like his father, is an agnostic. What's more, he preaches his lack of belief. He has been much attacked for not keeping his views to himself.

"I do not believe in a God," he said, "and although I am closer to the end of my life than to the beginning, I find no comfort in believing in immortality.

"Some people say it's wrong to attack religion because it comforts people. It is a false comfort and they should find something more realistic and stable.

"It is also said that belief in God makes men virtuous. I have not noticed it."

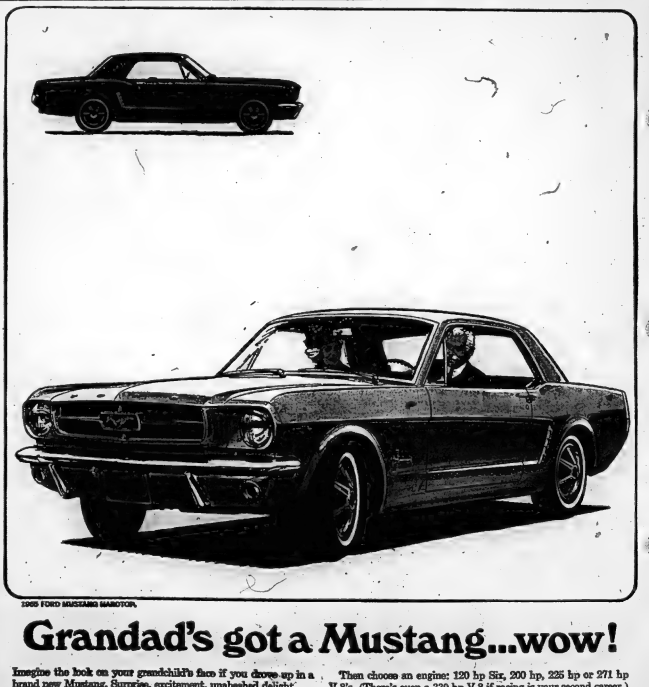
It is typical both of Russell's indifference to his own mortality and of his sense of humor that he wrote and published his own obituary in 1937. It was to be used, he said, in 1962.

Russell has written more than 60 full-length books and countless pamphlets and essays. In 1950 he was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature.

WROTE BOOKS

Academics insist that it is for his contribution to mathematical logic that Russell will be remembered. The public knows little of The Principles of Mathematics which he wrote in 1903 and of the monumental Principia Mathematica which he wrote soon after with Alfred Whitehead.

In these books mathematical principles previously taken by mathematicians as self-evident are proven in a highly abstract and complex manner—so difficult in fact that a whole apparatus of symbols would have to be explained before a discussion of the theories could even be begun It is not until page 363 of the first volume of the Principia Mathematica that the definition of the number "1" is reached.



The Oxford philosopher R. G. Collingwood accused Russell of "building card houses out of a pack of lies." Collingwood and others of the "idealism" school of philosophy felt that Russell was evading a philosopher's prime duty—that of establishing moral standards for man.

But they forgot Russell's other side, that public side which he has always devoted to what he says is the supreme moral task of all time—preventing nuclear war. Russell prefers to call his mathematical works his "real" philosophy, but through his foundation, his various written and spoken campaigns and through the conferences of scientists that he founded at Canadian industrialist Cyrus Eaton's Pugwash, N.S., estate, Russell has always fought against the temptation to retire to a university and ignore the century in which he lives.

He refuses to agree with those who say he is meddling in a world that has left him behind. He remains the oldest of the angry young men.

MILITANT .PACIFIST — Bertrand Russell, 92-year-old British philosopher and agnostic, has twice been jailed for his pacifist behavior, most recently in 1961 when he took part in anti-nuclear demonstrations. The author of 60 books, Russell won the Nobel prize for literature in 1959. (CP Photo)

It's sleek, and racy, and low, the Mustang. The thrill of owning one can hardly be described. And, as you may have heard, the Mustang is a car you design yourself on the day you order it. You start with bucket seats. Then you choose a sleek exterior: Hardtop, Convertible or the new Mustang 2+2 Fastback.

Then choose an engine: 120 hp Six, 200 hp, 225 hp or 271 hp V-8's. (There's even a 330 hp V-8 if racing is your second career.)

Then there are a hundred loving choices that will make your Mustang anything from a high-style "economy" car to a high performance "GT". Power brakes and steering, tinted glass all around, Vinyl roof covering for the Hardtop, 4-speed stick shift or 3-speed "T-bar" Cruise-O-Matic. And ets cetera.

C'mon Grandad, your Mustang's rarin to go!

Separatists Stole Headlines In Queen's Visit but Made Poor Showing in Streets

The following story is an American assessment of the Queen's visit to Quebec and the separatist demonstrations that accompanied it. The story I. written by Max Harrelson, Associated Press reporter who is a specialist in Canadian affairs and who covered the royal visit.

By MAX HARRELSON

QUEBEC (AP)—It was clear to all that the tense, security-conscious Quebec visited by Queen Elizabeth was not the same Quebec that had welcomed her so warmly in 1959.

Physically the 300-year-old city was much the same, but in five years the thinking of Canada's French-speaking people had undergone a change so drastic it has been called revolution.

Many talk of separation—meaning secession of big, populous Quebec province from Canada.

Other Canadians minimize the—importance of the separatists.

Some dismiss them as young hoodlums. But responsible authorities acknowledge that the widening gulf between the French- and English-speaking populations leaves the national government facing its most serious internal crisis since Canadian Confederation almost 100 years ago.

The demonstrations of the separatists in Quebec during the Queen's visit and the rough response of the police revealed some civil rights clashes in American cities.

Some separatists, in fact, have referred to Canada's French-speaking people as "negres blancs" (white Negroes) because of what they call their second class citizenship.

VISIT 'A MISTAKE'

The Queen's visit, now generally conceded to have been a mistake, served to focus attention on Canada's internal division more than upon the historic events leading to the Confederation, which was its main aim.

It raised questions in the minds of 700 reporters covering the royal visit. How strong are the separatists? What do other Canadians think about them? What effect, if any, did the Queen's visit have on the separatist movement? Why are they against the Queen?

While the separatists stole the headlines, they made a poor showing—in their street demonstrations. They were mostly unimpressive looking youths and their numbers were small.

One of the glaring weaknesses of the separatist movement is its leaders' inability to achieve unity. A dozen or dozen groups differ on economic objectives and methods of operation. These groups range all the way from the extreme right to socialism.

The most recent poll shows that about 13 per cent of the 5,500,000 French-Canadians favor outright secession.

What makes the problem serious is general disenchantment among French-Canadians with their status in the country.

For every advocate of separation, scores want changes but want Quebec to remain a part of Canada. Many undoubtedly stayed off the streets during the Queen's visit because they feared a large and enthusiastic crowd would be taken as a vote of confidence in the present state of Confederation.

One thing serving as a brake on the separatist movement is the reform program being put into effect by provincial Premier Jean Lesage. Advances in education and other areas have been so great in five years that many feel they can solve their problems within the framework of Confederation.

Some Canadians see a possibly that the separatist movement may get a boost from the Queen's visit because of the emotional windfall of publicity received. There appeared to be a substantial amount of sympathy for demonstrators who were manhandled by the police.

On the other hand, there was widespread resentment in English Canada—and to some extent in Quebec itself—over lack of respect for the Queen and over the unprecedented security measures, generally blamed on separatist threats.

While the principal target of the separatists is the federal government in Ottawa, they consider Canada's connection with the Commonwealth a hold-over from colonialism. For this reason, they attack the Queen and the Union Jack as much as vehemently as they attack the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and other federal institutions.

The separatists reject any sort of reforms within the present constitutional framework as a solution to the problem.

Peking Will Go All Out To Boost Nuclear Potential Say Chinese Specialists

HONG KONG (AP) — Peking is happy with the success of its first atomic test, will go all out now to boost its nuclear potential, specialists on China said Monday.

They expect a new Chinese economy campaign soon to free more money and materials for tests and research.

Intelligence sources here estimate that Communist China's budget for its nuclear program is about $500,000,000 a year.

Intelligence sources believe it will jump dramatically after the successful explosion last Friday.

In Washington, officials expect the Chinese to explode a second atomic device soon, but say it will take five to 10 years for the country to become a nuclear power.

China on Monday handed governments around the world a statement explaining why it had detonated its first atomic device and calling for a summit conference to ban all nuclear weapons.

In Peking, Communist newspapers gave front - page prominence to a slim sheaf of messages and statements supporting the atomic test. Only eight were listed — Albania, North Korea, Cambodia, the Communist parties of Japan, Indonesia, Belgium and representatives of the Pathet Lao, and the pro - Communist "neutralist" bloc in Laos.

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — India's Prime Minister Lal Bahadur Shastri said Monday China's atomic explosion confronts Asia with a nuclear menace which is "something new for this peace-loving continent."

Broadcasting on the eve of India's "solidarity day"—marking the second anniversary of the Sino - India border clash—Shastri said the Chinese are trying to build up a mighty war machine and create fear in the minds of all.

"While we must be prepared to meet any situation . . . we must not allow our faith in peace and peaceful methods to be dimmed," he added.

Diefenbaker Questions Statement

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Diefenbaker suggested Monday that the proper course would be a commission to determine whether the conduct of Mr. Justice Landreville was in keeping with his position as an Ontario High Court Judge.

He made the remark in the Commons after Justice Minister Favreau told Gene Rheaume (PC — Northwest Territories) that, charges of municipal corruption and conspiracy having been dismissed against Mr. Justice Landreville, there was nothing further which ought or should be done under the Judges Act.

Mr. Diefenbaker questioned this statement and suggested that, although no criminal charge was established, the proper course might be an inquiry commission to see if there was any "dereliction" by the Ontario judge not in keeping with his position on the bench.

The charges against Mr. Justice Landreville were dismissed at a preliminary hearing in Sudbury Oct. 8. He was accused of municipal corruption and conspiracy resulting from dealings for a Northern Ontario Natural Gas Company franchise for Sudbury while he was mayor of that city.

Moira River Bed Yields Metal Pipe, Water Heater

You find the funniest things in a river bed.

Like an old metal pipe and discarded hot water heating boilers.

At least this is an example of the material uncovered in the bed of the Moira in the vicinity of the CPR bridge when the city public works department hired a bulldozer to clean rock and algae out of the river mouth south of the Lower Bridge.

City officials said the section of old 18 inch iron pipe were possibly from an old gas or water line installation which at one time may have crossed the river in the vicinity of Fireman's Park.

About a half dozen 12 to 16 foot sections of the old pipe were rooted out by the bulldozer.

But no one seems to know where the old hot water heating boiler came from but the suggestion is that it may have been carried down the river with the ice during a spring break-up.

"At least there is no record of any building ever being there," said City Engineer Wilbur Purcell.

Tons of rock and other debris from the river bottom has been windrowed together and today is being loaded onto dump trucks and carted away.

Govt. Cannot Collect Any Of Winnings

OTTAWA (CP) — A revenue department official said today he doubts the government can claim any of the $650,000 sweepstake win of an Edmonton gardener who died two weeks before his horse came in.

R. B. Rombough, 68, had purchased a sweepstakes ticket on the second place finisher in Saturday's Cambridge shire. He died two weeks before the race, leaving a widow.

An estate tax expert in the revenue department said: "We have never had one like this before . . . but these winnings don't appear to be taxable."

He said estate tax is calculated on the value of a person's estate at the time of death, minus a basic $6,000 exemption.

"His ticket at time of death would appear to have been worth only face value—just over $3."

From an income tax point of view gambling winnings as a rule are not income and are not taxable unless it can be proved the individual is a professional gambler, said another tax authority.

The $650,000 winnings, lodged in court in Dublin, now awaits a claim by Mr. Rombough's executors. However, he has to bar to it being turned over and eventually distributed to any beneficiaries.

Doris Rombough, his 69-year-old widow who is working as a ranch cook at Tomahawk, 60 miles west of Edmonton, said she has the winning ticket and receipt.

"His will was very simple," she said simply. "He left everything to me. I hope everything goes along without trouble. But even when I say that I'm not sure that I'll ever get any happiness out of the money without him here."

Brezhnev's Policy Speech Brings Relief to the West

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Western powers may say about the desire to reconcile differences cannot mean more than a "paper-ing-over" job which eventually may have to give way to a final break between these two Communist giants.

But the hasty and undignified way in which Khrushchev was deposed, despite his widespread popularity among the Soviet masses, would indicate a profound upheaval somewhere within the Kremlin in favor of smoothing over relations with the Chinese.

This has given rise to widespread Western speculation that Khrushchev's ouster was, in fact, a victory for Mao Tse-tung, who had heaped abuse and ridicule on the former Soviet leader.

This may be the most dangerous element in the Khrushchev dismissal—that the new Soviet leadership is attempting to appease the Chinese who now have learned how to build and explode a nuclear bomb.

The Chinese had sneeringly accused Khrushchev of following under before a "paper tiger" United States and had demanded a strong, more belligerent policy against American "imperialism" — even to the point of inviting a nuclear war.

Khrushchev had fought back, pointing out that the paper tiger had nuclear teeth. He cooled off the Berlin crisis, signed a partial nuclear test ban treaty and appeared to be preparing for further negotiations with the West when the axe fell.

Brezhnev says he wants peaceful coexistence to continue, but it may be only a matter of time, after the Kremlin struggle is settled, before new East-West problems emerge as a Soviet concession to Peking.

Nationalistic Appeal Winning In Bidding Race

LONDON (CP) — The Scottish textile millionaire, Sir Hugh Fraser, says he has won the battle with Lord Thomson for control of the George Outram group of Glasgow newspapers.

"From information I have received from Glasgow it now appears that I have more than 50 per cent of the Outram capital," Fraser said Monday night. Fraser's announcement came soon after his Canadian - born opponent posted the fourth bid for the company that includes the Glasgow Herald and the Glasgow Evening Times.

Thomson's latest offer is worth £,300,000 or 31 shillings 7½ pence a share. Sir Hugh's last offer — his second — was valued at 28 shillings 2¼ pence a share.

Outram's shares were bid up to more than 30 shillings on the stock exchange Monday, largely because of the presence of a single buyer thought to be Sir Hugh. When that buying stopped, the shares dropped to 28 shillings six pence.

Thomson, specialist chairman of Outrams last August to fight Thomson's first bid of 29 shillings cash a share, has since resigned from the board to enter the bidding himself.

He opposed Thomson on the grounds that Outram's should remain in Scottish hands. Financial observers say his nationalistic appeal appears to be winning over shareholders.

130 Registrants in Classes In New Training Program

About 130 people registered last night for classes they will be paid to attend at Quinte Secondary School. The registrants, all unemployed and recommended to the Program Five courses by the National Employment Service, will be paid allowances between five and seven dollars a day while they attend evening classes, six hours a day, for five days a week. Courses opening last night were basic academic, stenographic and commercial-clerical. There are nine classes in the three courses.

Planned to open in about two weeks if enough people want it, is a basic welding course. An advanced welding course can be offered under the program, but program co-ordinator R. Bruce Reid said last night he does not expect a demand for it. Eligible people interested in the course can take it in another centre.

About 42 courses are offered under Program Five, in 39 centres around the province. Courses range from expected basic courses, such as basic academic and building maintainance to such advanced courses as data processing and such off-beat lines as cut pile fabric manufacture. Any of the courses can be offered in any centre, if enough people are interested. .

Program Five is one of nine technical and vocational training programs offered by the Department of Education. Program One covers vocational training in high schools; Program Two includes institutes of technology. Program Three covers trades and occupational training institutes. Program Four is training in industry. Program Five is training for the unemployed. Program Six is training for the disabled. Program Seven is training for vocational teachers. Program Eight is for government employees and Program Nine covers student aid. Program Five was introduced to Belleville last year, directed by co-ordinator L. J. Reid.

PROGRAM 5 TRAINEES Mrs. Sylvia Ashby of Trenton, Mrs. Rose Watson of Belleville and (seated) Mrs. Jennie Snider of Belleville inspect a modern business machine at Quinte Secondary School. The three ladies were among the 130 people who registered last night for Program 5 classes at Quinte Secondary School.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By Geo. E. Carter, Sports Editor

Recently I have had three communications from city secondary school students (two of them young ladies) criticising the city and citizens of Belleville for not providing financial aid to Olympics John Lewis.

It is definitely apparent they have not heard of the greatest farce in the annals of sport, the "Olympics Oath."

Athletes participating in the Olympics must swear or declare they have never received any emolument, financial or otherwise, for their athletic performances.

In answer to their criticism of the citizenry, not a few responsible sportsmen of the city wanted to start a John Lewis fund until they were reminded such a financial effort would ruin his amateur status and probably deprive him of his Olympics participation.

"They gave money to the Macs, why not Lewis?" nipped an adult critic.

That guy must have been a newly-arrived immigrant from Lower Sheboyka who wasn't around in the Roaring Fifties. The Macs, like all other Canadian world ice federation hockey champions and teams, were as "amateur" as Arnold Palmer.

Avery Brundage, the great pooh-bah of the International Olympics Committee, is the man who forced the observance of the Olympics Oath to the greatest extremity.

Brundage declared the Russian athletes out-and-out amateurs after he paid a visit to the Soviet Union and was led like a prize bull by Red officials who showed him what they wanted him to see.

Barbara Ann Scott, the Canadian figure-skating queen who won an Olympics championship, was forced to return an automobile given her by appreciative citizens of her home city, Ottawa.

In 1912 Jim Thorpe, the great Indian, who was acclaimed at Stockholm Olympics the "Greatest Athlete in the World" after winning the decathlon and pentathlon, later had all his medals taken away and his records obliterated from the Olympics book.

Why? Because later the Olympics Committee was told Thorpe had played minor baseball back home for a mere financial pittance.

It was not that way in the ancient days when the Greeks, who started the Olympics, were top dogs in all athletic events—and restaurants had yet to be invented.

In those days the winners were showered with honors. The local boy was wined and dined in his home city—at public expense. Gifts were forced on him. He was exempted from taxation.

As a climax he was permitted to build a monument to himself in any part of the city he chose. If he lacked funds the wealthy townsmen subscribed whatever amount was needed.

Then the Romans took over. And this probably was the birth of the so-called Olympics Oath. Living costs were high in the Roman cities. Togas, vino and signorinas cost a pretty penny.

So the Roman Olympics' winners picked up some extra cash by going on tours, making public appearances, etc. The Greeks protested the amateur status of the Romans which led to increasing bitterness between them.

During one of the subsequent Olympiads, the Romans, angered to white heat by Greek charges of professionalism, went on a rampage. They set fire to buildings housing athletes and wrecked everything that was wreckable around the stadium. The Roman emperor ordered cancellation of games.

In 1892 Baron Pierre de Coubertin of France attempted to revive the ancient games but it was not until 1896 he received sufficient support and the first of the modern Olympics Games took place in April of that year.

Keane Cinch For Yankees; Cards? * * * * *

Rickey Quits; Managerial Pot Boils

By The Associated Press

Baseball's managerial merry-go-round kept spinning Monday with two more changes announced and another set for today.

The appointments of Harry (The Hat) Walker to Pittsburgh Pirates and Dick Sisler to Cincinnati Reds brought to five the number of new managers hired since September. Two jobs are still vacant but one, the coveted New York Yankee spot, is expected to go today to Johnny Keane, who left the world champion St. Louis Cardinals last week.

Walker replaced Danny Murtaugh who resigned from the Pirates because of failing health. Sisler, who handled the Reds for the last two months of the season, replaced Fred Hutchinson who also resigned because of his health.

The first manager to get the axe was Harry Craft of Houston Colts. Luman Harris replaced him and handed the Colts for the final two weeks of the season.

Alvin Dark, reported to be in trouble all season with San Francisco, was replaced moments after the season's final game by coach Herman Franks. Another coach, Billy Herman, took over for Johnny Pesky with Boston Red Sox.

The managerial bomb really exploded last Friday, one day after the Cardinals beat the Yankees in the seventh game of the World Series. Keane, St. Louis manager, handed in his resignation and two hours later Yankee skipper Yogi Berra was fired.

New York general manager Ralph Houk flew to Keane's home in Houston during the weekend to offer the Yankee job to Keane.

The Cardinal job remains open with Leo Durocher, who quit as a coach with Los Angeles Dodgers, and Red Schoendienst, who coached under Keane, mentioned as the top prospects to fill it.

And now Durocher's status is clouded with the resignation Monday of Branch Rickey as player consultant to Cardinals. Rickey is believed to have been backing Durocher.

Tunney Approached
Want Bout In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto boxing promoter Frank Tunney says he has been approached about staging one of the elimination bouts for the World Boxing Association version of the world heavyweight championship here in mid-November.

Tunney said in an interview Monday he had received overtures concerning a bout between Canadian heavyweight champion George Chuvalo of Toronto and one of the other three WBA contenders — former champ, Floyd Patterson, Cleveland Williams and Ernie Terrell. He said he would not make any immediate decision on the fight.

"There has been an approach made to me but I have nothing to say at the moment," Tunney said.

The WBA announced last month that an elimination tournament would be held with the aid of boxing promoters between the top four heavyweight contenders, Patterson, Williams, Terrell and Doug Jones.

The WBA made the decision after stripping world heavyweight champion Cassius Clay of the title when he signed for a rematch with former champ Sonny Liston.

Chuvalo was ranked ninth at the time but he posted a technical knockout over Jones in a fight at Madison Square Garden earlier this month and automatically moved up with the other top three.

Happy Chandler Blasts Off
"Baseball Committing Suicide"

By KESO STURGEON

VERSAILLES, Ky. (AP) — Former commissioner of baseball A. B. (Happy) Chandler says the sport is painlessly and unwittingly committing suicide and can be saved only by being placed under federal antitrust laws.

Chandler accused baseball's commissioner, Ford Frick, of being a stooge for the club owners, who in turn were accused of being interested in only one thing—making money.

"Most of the owners in baseball today couldn't care less about the future of the game," he said in an interview. "They have no interest in, nor any consideration for, the American people who pay the bills."

Chandler, who was commissioner from 1945 until he was forced out under pressure in 1951, said the only thing that would save baseball besides federal intervention would be a strong commissioner, "but the owners would never stand for that.

"Most of the people in baseball want to run the sport just to fit their own pocketbooks never caring who they step on or how many people get hurt by their actions — such as moving franchises," he said.

NO LONGER A SPORT

"Baseball is no longer a sport, it's a business and should be treated as such.

"Frick is a stooge for the owner. But remember that is just exactly what they want.

"They don't want him to encourage minor league baseball or anything that is so vital to the game. They just want him to keep his mouth shut and draw his paycheck — and he does a good job of that," Chandler said.

The former Kentucky governor and senator also said professional football has replaced baseball as the No. 1 sport in America and that baseball had only itself to blame.

"Major league baseball has no respect for the minors, or for college baseball either," Chandler said. "And these are the only two training grounds for the game."

Mikita Close Behind
Douglas Leads NHL Scorers

By The CANADIAN PRESS

A player who won 1962-63 rookie-of-the-year honors then had such a bad case of sophomore jitters that he couldn't even hang on as a Toronto Maple Leafs regular last year heads the individual scoring race after the first week of National Hockey League action.

Kent Douglas has eight points including a league - leading seven assists. His determination to stay in the NHL this season is put into perspective by his performance last year in which he was credited with only one assist in 43 games. During his rookie year, he scored seven goals and 15 assists in 70 games.

Official NHL statistics released today show last year's scoring champion, Stan Mikita, two points back of Douglas. The Chicago Black Hawks ace has one goal and five assists.

The best goal scorers are Red Kelly of Toronto, Bob Nevin of New York, Montreal's Claude Provost and Lou Angotti, Ranger rookie, all with three.

Kelly is in third place with five points and Nevin is among the eight players tied for fourth place with four points each. The others in this bracket are such threats for high-scoring honors as Gordie Howe, Alex Delvecchio, Dave Keon, Frank Mahovlich, Jean Beliveau, Vic Hadfield and Jon McKenzey.

Angotti shares the lead for best rookie performance with Montreal's Yvan Cournoyer, whose three points are made up of two goals and an assist and Chicago's Doug Robinson with a goal and two assists. Among last year's leaders who possibly haven't hit their stride are Andy Bathgate with three points, Murray Oliver with two and Bobby Hull with one.

Beliveau and Chicago's Doug Mohns are a little out of character, sharing early season honors as NHL bad men with 16 minutes in penalties. Detroit's Tel Lindsay, back in the league after four years absence, is right behind with 14 minutes.

Charlie Hodge of Montreal, last year's Vezina Trophy winner, leads goaltenders with an average of one goal scored against him for each of three games. He and Chicago's Glenn Hall each have one shutout and the same goals-against average but Black Hawks' total is placed second because of the three goals scored against Chicago substitute goalie Denis DeJordy in Detroit's 3-2 victory Sunday. Boston's Ed Johnston has the worst record with a 4.75 goals-against average.

Montreal has the best penalty record with 44 minutes, Boston has the worst with 70 minutes.

Intermediate Hockey
Proposed City Entry Faces Roadblocks

A proposed Belleville Intermediate hockey club had three strikes on it after just one "trip" to the organizational plate last night.

Belleville Ellis Printers were represented at a Lakeshore Intermediate League meeting in Cobourg by players Stu Shairhead and Bev McLean.

Ellis' initial "strike" appears to be ice time. The club has been told that only Tuesday is available at Memorial Arena.

The second strike concerns players. Ellis threatened to drop out of the league if Belleville claimed the use of players Dave Jones, Lionel Bobby, John "Shaker" Baker or Doug Murray.

Trenton RCAF Globetrotters also claim they must have Floyd Crawford and Bill Plante.

And the loop's five-team western section told the meeting last night that interlocking games could be arranged if Belleville enters the league's eastern division.

An eastern section of the loop would have Napanee, Picton, Trenton and Belleville.

The western section has Port Perry, Brooklin, Bowmanville, Port Hope and Cobourg.

If the eastern section has only Trenton, Napanee and Picton, the western clubs are willing to play home and home interlocking games — but not if Belleville comes in as a fourth entry.

The Trenton RCAF Globetrotters dropped word at the meeting that they would go ahead and enter the Eastern Senior Hockey League if this loop could not make satisfactory arrangements. The Eastern Senior League has Kingston, Brockville, Smiths Falls, Tweed and Belleville.

Murlhead said this morning that he will talk to sponsor Richard Ellis today before going ahead with more plans for Belleville.

He hopes to call a player meeting later this week to determine how many players from the city want to play.

Belleville was granted one week by the league brass last night to decide about entering a club.

There was some talk about Ellis' probably playing home games at Wellington Arena if some suitable arrangements cannot be made for ice time in Belleville. This too, would be talked about at a player meeting.

Muirhead said that several well known hockey names have been considered for managing and coaching positions but no announcement would be made until the club's plans were more definite.

Ban Boxer, Officials For 3 Years

TOKYO (AP) — Korean boxer Dong - kih Choe, who staged a 50-minute sit-down strike in the Olympic ring Monday night, today was banned from international amateur and Olympic boxing for three years.

The Amateur International Boxing Association executive committee placed a similar ban on Korean boxing manager Lee Kyu-hwan and coaches Roy Byungyul and Kang In-suk.

Choe refused to leave the ring after being disqualified in his quarter - final bout with Russian Stanislav Sorokin. The fight was only 66 seconds old when Australian referee Archie Tanner disqualified Choe for fighting when told to break.

A three - year ban was placed Monday on Argentine boxer Jose Chirico, who attacked a referee, Spanish featherweight Valentin Jones was banned for life last week after punching a referee who disqualified him.

German Wins Decathlon

Russ Takes Double

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP)—Willi Holdorf, a 24-year-old German physical education student, won the decathlon, Olympic gold medal and a hefty Russian woman, Tamara Press, completed a double when she captured the women's shot put with a record toss at the Olympic Games today.

Adding to Europe's domination of the three track and field events decided during the ninth day of competition was the gold medal win of Britain's Ann Packer in the women's 800 metres.

The United States, by far the big winner in track and field with 12 gold medals, didn't get a medal in that phase of the games today, but won a gold medal in shooting for its 22nd while the Russians had 17 gold.

Holdorf won the 10-event decathlon, the most gruelling competition in the world, with a total of 7,887 points, and becomes the greatest all-round athlete.

YANKS LOSE OUT

In giving Germany its second track and field gold medal, he also became the first non-American to win the event in 28 years. The U.S. previously had won the decathlon in all six Olympics since 1928.

It was the fourth gold medal of the games for the combined German team. It also picked up a third-place bronze in the decathlon as three Germans finished in the first six.

The second place silver medal for decathlon was won by Russia's Rein Aun, who scored 7,842 points. Germany's Hans-Joachim Walde took the bronze with 7,809 points.

Bill Gairdner of Toronto placed 11th with 7,247 points and Jerry Moro of Trail, B.C., was 18th with 6,716.

The 24-year-old Miss Press won the shot put with an Olympic record toss of 59 feet, six inches. Canada's Nancy McCredie finished seventh, the best performance ever by a Canadian in women's Olympic field events.

Miss Press, who earlier won the discus gold medal, became the first woman to complete the double in the discus and shot put since Micheline Ostermeyer of France collected both gold medals in London in 1948.

Miss McCredie had a top toss of 52-1½. It was the best the 19-year-old Brampton, Ont., girl had ever done outdoors although she reached 52-11¾ at an indoor meet in Toronto last January.

Miss Press, who with her sister Irina have accounted for three of the four Russian gold medals in track and field, engaged in a weight-tossing duel with Germany's Renate Garisch-Culmberger.

The Russian and the German took turns breaking the Olympic record before Tamara, a 27-year-old engineer who weighs 224 pounds, emerged with the gold medal. She had set the previous Olympic mark of 59-6 in winning the gold medal at

Gordie Howe Hockey

By GORDIE HOWE

Stickhandling in hockey is a skill that is developed only in competition itself. One important point that I stress to my youngsters is the matter of protection.

On of the biggest faults among youngsters is improper positioning of the lumber itself, or the stick.

A stick carried too high can thoughtlessly endanger an opponent, bring a penalty. However, a properly carried stick also can be protection in the same situation.

For instance if somebody is going to charge into you, take a big run at you, you can put it up like a fence. If he is going to hit you, he'll have to come through this thing first.

You shouldn't put it up high so it'll get him in the head but about hip high or elbow high, just so that it'll protect you.

Proper positioning of the stick also is all-important in taking passes. If you're going to skate with your back to the puck carrier, with your stick in the air, there's no way in the world he's going to get the puck to you.

Like in golf, when you pass or shoot a puck, you have to have a target. Watch the next time you see a player "head-man" the puck. More times than not, the pass will be right on his stick. Because his stick was on the ice for him to aim at.

If your stick is in the air, and you're looking back and he does try to give it to you, the minute you touch the puck the defense is smart enough to realize you're looking away. He'll practically run right on through you.

For youngsters taking up hockey, skating skill will come. You have to work like crazy on skating, every opportunity you get. You have to learn quick stops and starts and skating backwards. But stickhandling comes only in actual play.

Yoda Starred, - on TV

By JIM BECKER

TOKYO (AP) — A plain Japanese girl with a big white bandage on one of her long legs was the television star of Japan Monday.

She held the nation's attention on six different channels at one time.

She was Ikuko Yoda, a hurdler and the only Japanese with a chance to win a medal in track and field at the Olympics.

Ikuko pulled a leg muscle in practice before the games, but she wrapped it up, while bandage around her left leg and went on.

She survived her first heat, as well as her second. And she made it to the finals Monday.

That's when visitors to Tokyo discovered that the very police crowds at the 70,000 seat Olympic stadium can yell, if they have something to yell about.

They yelled when Ikuko made her appearance on the track.

They squealed when she pealed down to her track suit, and did a bounding sprint in the infield to warm up.

And they chuckled when she took a broom and carefully swept up her lane, clear up to the first hurdle.

Then she was a TV closeup as she tied a white ribbon around her close - cropped black hair, and another when she adjusted her bandage.

As the lens zoomed in, you could see that Ikuko was so nervous it was amazing she had been able to tie her own track shoes.

Ikuko took off beautifully and there was a roar as she took the first hurdle ahead of the other seven girls. She was even at the second hurdle, and the roar grew louder.

Then she began to fade, and the cheers turned to groans.

Japan is winning over at wrestling, judo and gymnastics.

But Ikuko was Japan's last hope in track, and she finished fifth.

Eskimos Blast Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — End Tommy-Joe Coffey stimulated a sluggish offence with some sensational pass-catching to help Edmonton Eskimos trip Winnipeg Blue Bombers 13-1 in a dull Western Football Conference game before 14,882 fans Monday night.

Coffey, five - year veteran from West Texas State, caught six passes for 103 yards—Eskimos' entire aerial output—to set up one touchdown and score another.

An eager Edmonton defence that bulled through to nail Winnipeg backfielders for losses seven times and key Bomber penalties did the rest of the damage as Eskimos clinched fourth place with their fourth victory. Winnipeg plunged even deeper into last place with its 12th successive defeat.

Both teams are out of playoff contention.

Quarterback Bill Redell scored Eskimos' other touchdown and centre Bill Mitchell contributed a single on a wide 53-yard field goal attempt.

Halfback Bob Reed earned a conceded single on a 20-yard field goal try for Winnipeg's only point — the first of the game.

Gil Boa 38th In Shooting

TOKYO (AP) — Lones Wigger, a stocky U.S. Army officer, won the Olympic gold medal for the small bore three-position shooting event today with a score of 1,164.

It was his second medal and the seventh for the U.S. in shooting. He gained a silver medal in the small bore prone competition.

His score of 1,164 points established a world record as it was the highest recorded since targets were revised and made smaller after the 1956 Olympics. The previous record of 1,157 was set in the 1962 world championships in Cairo by Gary Anderson of the U.S., who has won the gold medal in the Olympics here in the free rifle event.

Velichko Hristov of Bulgaria won the silver medal in the small bore three - position event with a score of 1,152. Laszlo Hammerl of Hungary fired a 1,151 for the bronze medal.

Previous Olympic record was 1,149 by Viktor Shamburkin of Russia in 1960.

Highest actual total recorded is 1,172 by Anatoly Bogdanov of Russia in 1958, the last Olympics at which the slightly larger target was used.

In the field of 48 marksmen, the two Canadians placed well down the list. George March of Toronto shot a 1,111 for 32nd place and Gil Boa of St. Catharines, was 38th with 1,100.

Canadian Hoopsters Shade Peru

TOKYO (CP) — Canada's Olympic basketball team, loser of seven straight games in first-round play, found a winning combination today to defeat Peru 82-81 in overtime in a semi-final game.

Guard Warren Reynolds of Toronto saved his team from defeat with a field goal in the final seconds of regulation time and scored the winner in overtime.

Canada, competing in a semi-final round between Group A and Group B teams to decide 13th and 16th place in the 16-team tournament, jumped to a 43-28 half-time lead over the Peruvians, who had finished play in Group B with a record of two victories and five losses.

The Tracks

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP) — Patty Dates, a four-year-old brown mare by Meadow Skipper-Bonnie, won the featured one-mile pace at Yonkers raceway Monday night in 2:03 1-5 over a fast track.

Patty Dates, an 8-to-1 shot at the starting gunner, returned winning mutuels of $18.20, $9.40 and $6.20, when she beat Rick's Colt to the wire by a nose. Fine Hill Star finished third by a neck.

Rosters of the lucky 8-1 combo collected a $45.90 daily double payoff. Flashy Filly, won the first race of the evening pay $10.40, and Star Time was victorious in the second race.

WOODBINE (CP) — Champ's Six, a nondescript three year-old filly which had won but one race in two seasons, made it three by running the third at Woodbine Monday.

She returned $65.50, $26.30 and $15.50 across the board.

The filly was bred in western Canada by the Beaver River Ranch.

With Sidelights On The Leafs

Professor Imlach Talks On 'Managers'

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's a good thing we won the Stanley Cup last year," chuckled George (Punch) Imlach, big league hockey's most successful coach. "The way things are happening with winning baseball managers you never can tell what might happen."

Imlach's team, the Toronto Maple Leafs, has won the Stanley Cup, the hockey equivalent of baseball's World Series title in each of the past three seasons. And if the Leafs suddenly sour on ice, Imlach doesn't have to answer to a general manager.

He is also the general manager.

"Still, I'm an employee," he said, "and if you ever get bounced there are only five other jobs open in the National Hockey League compared to 20 in major league baseball.

"I think it was a gross miscarriage of justice that Yogi Berra got fired. After all, you hire a fellow to win and Yogi won. What more can you ask? but I guess it's the same in most sports. It's easier to fire one fellow than fire the whole team."

MUST KEEP WINNING

Berra was dismissed as manager of the pennant-winning New York Yankees last Friday.

"In hockey you have to keep winning. That's our security. In baseball, it looks as though even winning doesn't give you security," Imlach said. "Whatever mistakes Berra made, he should have been hired, not fired."

Imlach, though, has his own problems and he admits they're rather pleasant ones. "We just have too many good hockey players. I have the two best goalies in the business, Johnny Bower and Terry Sawchuk, and, as a group, I have the five best defensemen in the league. Our offense is pretty good, too."

The Leafs are unbeaten in three games and are tied for first place with Montreal Canadiens.

"We're hoping to finish in first place," Imlach said. "But winning that fourth straight Stanley Cup is more important to me. In this game you have to go all the way."

Miss Garisch - Culmberger won the silver with a heave of 57-04 while the Russians also captured the bronze, Galina Zybina doing 57 - 3 for third place. All three medal winners were under the Olympic record.

Irina Press, a 190-pounder, won the pentathlon Sunday but was fourth Monday in her specialty, the 80-metre hurdles.

BRITON WINS

In the women's 800 metres today Miss Packer won the gold medal with a blazing 2:01.1, the fastest ever run by anybody except Kim Dan of North Korea, who has a world mark of 1:50.1 awaiting recognition.

Miss Dan didn't compete here because the North Korean team withdrew shortly before the Games in a dispute with world and Olympic track officials.

Canadians Lead At Horse Show

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — Canada soared into the unofficial team lead in international jumping competition at the Pennsylvania national horse show Monday night behind 19-year old Jim Day, aboard the Comet.

Day rode the brown gelding flawlessly around an intricate, serpentine course twice and edged Mexico's Rafael Jiminez, riding Gaylor, by a heartbreaking four-tenths of a second.

Placing third in the Pennsylvania 28th Infantry Division Trophy competition was Day's teammate, Jim Elder on Beefeater.

The 1-3 finish gave the Canadians 24 points in the unofficial team standings, 12 more than the United States.

Three other countries are competing in the week - long show.

Day, who finished second Saturday night on Mr. Dunbee and tied for third on the Comet, took over the individual lead with 20 points.

Drive, Speed In Toes Says Coach

TOKYO (AP) — Herb Elliott's coach said today he believes great athletes should develop their toes.

"All your drive and speed come from your toes," explained Percy Cerutty, reputed to be one of the greatest middle-distance coaches.

Cerutty has trained a number of top Australian runners. His best pupil was Elliott, who won the 1,500 metres in the 1960 Olympic Games at Rome.

"I don't train men how to run," he said. "I try to bring them close to nature, develop their natural ability and animal instincts.

"That is why the African and American Negro are such magnificent athletes — they are primitive and uninhibited. They are loose-limbed and run free as the wind.

"They also use their toes to generate power."

Cerutty, who is 70 but hustles around like a man half his age, is visiting Tokyo as a member of the Australian Olympic delegation.

Commenting on Elliott, who retired after the Rome games, Cerutty said the athlete's success could be capsuled into one word—confidence.

"I force an athlete to think, to believe in himself and most of all to believe in me. Elliott had this confidence, that is why he was so great."

Giardello, Carter Bout Off

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Chairman Art Lurie of the Nevada Boxing Commission announced Monday night that the scheduled middleweight title fight Friday night between champion Joey Giardello and Rubin Hurricane Carter has been called off.

After a lengthy and stormy commission session, Lurie said Giardello's manager, Arnold Glovanni, refused to let his fighter perform.

The reason given: One of the co - promoters, the Silver State Boxing Club, had failed to come up with the $55,000 which had been guaranteed in the contract.

The $55,000 was to be divided between the fighters, with Giardello guaranteed $42,500 and Carter $12,500.

Giardello's manager, before the commission, promised Pat Amato, Carter's manager, that Carter would get the first crack at the title when a new date and a possible new site is agreed upon.

Eastern Conference Scoring

TORONTO (CP) — There is at least one phase of Jim Trimble's Montreal Alouettes that doesn't need improving—Gino Beretta's punting.

Beretta, one of the few regulars to survive after Trimble took over Alouette coaching duties early in 1963, has the strongest foot in the Eastern Football Conference.

He has punted 105 times for 4,435 yards, tops in the EFC, and his longest of 78 yards is second only to Bernie Faloney of Hamilton who has a 79-yard punt.

His proficiency has accounted for most of the Alouettes' 4,386 yards punting, another conference high.

Team - mate Ted Page also leads the EFC in punt returns with 37 for a total of 251 yards.

But four thrive on it. It's strictly a duel between first place Hamilton Tiger-Cats and Ottawa Rough Riders, according to EFC statistics released today.

SUTHERIN LEADS SCORERS

Don Sutherin of the Tiger-Cats leads the league in scoring with 79. Team-mate Garney Henley tops the pass interceptions department with six for a total of 85 yards returned, the longest for 43 yards, and one touchdown.

The second - place Rough Riders have the top ground-gainers in Ron Stewart, who has rushed 781 yards in 134 attempts for an average gain of 6.3 yards and a longest gain of 46 yards.

Ottawa's Russ Jackson is the top man in the passing department with 103 completions in 209 attempts for a total of 1,875 yards gained. He has 16 touchdown passes to his credit, a pass completion average of .507 and a longest pass play of 107 yards.

Hitchcock's Suspense Show Manages to Keep Out of Rut

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — The specialty of Alfred Hitchcock's television suspense series is its unity.

The well - produced, well-acted hour keeps out of a rut rather successfully. This week's story, for instance, was a scary script in which the terror was applied artificially by putting the principals in an abandoned waterfront shack overrun with rats.

This nasty business climaxed an interesting story about an ex-convict and the widow of his cellmate frantically trying to recover some stolen money. Ann Sothern was particularly good as the widow. Fate took a gruesome hand in solving not off both of them at the end.

The program is usually at its best telling those dry, understated British - type stories, which often involved soft-spoken husbands and some digging and cement - mixing in a cellar. There was one such a week ago —complete with a neat, ironic twist.

The batting average of the program is much higher than most others — which undoubtedly accounts for its longevity.

Prime tip-off on Jackie Mason's troubles with the Ed Sullivan show management came Sunday night when the comedian flatly wound his monologue and the camera moved to host Sullivan — whose face looked like a thundercloud.

Even if one failed to react to Mason's gestures — and many did not even notice them —the casual viewer could see the comedian was not ending his performance as fast as the show's director wanted. It is vital that acts obey instructions with brisk - team precision to keep a live program on its light schedule.

The Trots

He won the second half of the two - division event, each worth a purse of $750, in 2:14 4-5, the fastest time in the two sections on a sloppy track.

The first went to Ruth Key, owned by Ogie Mackey of Strathroy, in 2:17 3-5.

Odds-on choice in the betting, Stevie Dares paid $3.20 while Ruth Key returned $12.70.

The daily double paid $64.40 on Meadow Brownie in the first and Roger Hal in the second.

PLAYERS FINED

WINNIPEG .(CP)—Two players have been fined $100 each for fighting at the end of an Oct. 12 Canadian Football League game in Hamilton, commissioner Syd Halter announced Monday. The fight between Ellison Kelly, a 200-pound Hamilton guard, and end John Kenerson of Ottawa, erupted on the last play of the game. If almost touched off a free-for-all.

Sport Snapshots

By RON MacDONALD

REGINA (CP) — Weeds infested the deserted hockey rink at Regina's Campion College and the mid-July temperature was in the 100s.

The setting hardly seemed appropriate for hockey practice but pucks were rattling off the boards.

Standing in the weeds a diminutive young man was shooting pucks off an old floor mat at a net that had all the corners boarded up.

It was Francis Huck, all-star forward with Regina Pats of the Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League, who last season broke the league record by scoring 88 goals in scheduled play and another 22 in the playoffs.

"I'm practising shooting left-handed," he said, sweat dripping down his face and arms. "You never know when I'll get a chance to change hands and shoot the other way. I figure it might give me a bit of an edge."

Huck spent much of the summer in the old rink in a spirit of dedication that has marked his hockey career — and just about anything else he does.

He went to the Montreal Canadiens Training Camp in 1960 after attending the Canadian national team's special hockey clinic in Winnipeg, again to get that extra edge.

When not practising hockey during the summer, he has pursued up his baseball with batting practice. He has been playing baseball since he was eight and in 1962 was rookie of the year in the South Saskatchewan Baseball League as third baseman with Regina Red Sox.

CRAMMED FOR SCHOOL

Last season he joined Estevan Bruins and the Edmonton Oil Kings in Memorial Cup hockey playoffs after Pats were eliminated. The hockey activity forced him to miss about two months of school but a one - day week study blitz he caught up and passed his year handily. Another illustration of how he applies 100-per-cent effort.

At the Canadiens' camp this fall, the five - foot - seven 160-pounder impressed the National Hockey League club's brass.

"He surprised us," said Sam Pollock, Canadiens general manager. "He showed that bigger men don't bother him much."

Huck, 18, is back at left wing with Pats this season, currently finishing further skill and physical development, but it seems only a matter of time until he makes the big time.

The smooth skater and excellent stickhandler has been described as the hottest pro prospect in Western Canada. But he isn't ready for a pro career yet.

"I want to get my education first," he says. He plans to go to teachers' college in Regina after finishing his high school education at Campion College.

When the time comes, however, he figures to give the NHL a good try. And his size doesn't bother him. He notes that Camille Henry of New York Rangers and Henri Richard of Canadiens have done pretty well without the benefit of any more weight than he has.

Alice Faye Back in Town For Hollywood Palace Show

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—While it looked just like old times with Alice Faye smiling as she walked down the runway and sang Come On Along . . . Come on along . . . to Alexander's Ragtime Band.

No, this wasn't another of the endless television replays of the great 1938 musical she made with Tyrone Power and Don Ameche. This was Alice Faye 26 years later, looking just as blonde and beautiful and sounding the same mellow notes.

Alice was back for one of her periodic excursions from the Great American Desert to appear on a Hollywood palace show that will appear on ABC Nov. 14. She seemed to be happy to be back in action once more, but the weather made her wonder: Was this trip necessary?

"Oh, the smog," she groaned. "I don't know how you people stand it. Yesterday I was going all through rehearsals. And the heat! Nothing is air conditioned here; there's no escape."

ENJOYS BEING BACK

But she admitted that she enjoyed getting back into the show biz routine, even though she was "pushed into the palace date, by whom?

"By Phil," she said, referring to her husband, Phil Harris. He likes to see her keep her hand in the entertainment scene.

The Harrises were pioneers among the Hollywood expatriates who have settled permanently in Palm Springs, Phil and Alice landed there 14 years ago.

"There's plenty to do in the daytime — golf, tennis," she added. "I'm a hacker—don't ask me what my golf score is. You can even play in the summertime if you go out early in the morning or late in the afternoon."

Alice left the new homestead three years ago to make her first film in 14 years, State Fair. It marked a return to 20th Fox studios, where she had made all her musicals—On the Avenue, Sing, Baby, Sing, Alexander's Ragtime Band, Rose of Washington Square, Hello, Frisco, Hello, etc.

"I never saw State Fair so I don't know how the picture turned out," Alice commented. "It was exciting for people I used to work with in the old days — the ones who were left. But I didn't enjoy working the way I used to- Everything is so cut and dried now."

Alice, now thrice a grandmother, says she and Phil will continue living in the desert—at least until the smog comes. "I see it hanging over the mountains," she said. "I suppose it will get to us eventually. Then I don't know what we'll do."

SOPHIA STRIPS IN COMEDY ROMANCE

Sophia Loren called in a technical advisor for her celebrated strip-tease scene in Joseph E. Levine's "Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow." The comedy-romance now showing at the Park Theatre, direct from Towne Cinema, Toronto after a stay of seven months in color and wide screen, through Embassy pictures release. Marcello Mastroiani is Miss Loren's co-star.

Jacques Ruet, dance master of Paris' famed Crazy Horse Cafe, was flown to Italy to tutor Sophia in the fine art of taking-it-off. Ruet has trained some of the world's leading exponents of "peeling," including Dodi D'Hamburg, Claudette and Tina Martel. A former dancer himself before becoming striptease instructor (there's a "fine" to stump the panel, Ruet had only praise for the Academy Award winning actress: "She is a marvelous pupil," he said, "completely un-self-conscious — which is the second requirement of the art.'

The first requirement? Miss Loren has that also. To Ruet, they are among the most famous measurements in the world. Complete shows at 7.00 and 9.20 p.m.

COMPLETE SALE

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies announced Monday the sale of pitcher Marcellino Lopez by their Chattanooga farm team to Los Angeles Angels to complete an earlier deal in which the Phillies got first baseman Vic Power. The Phillies purchased Power from the Angels Sept. 8 during their drive for the National League pennant after regular first baseman Frank Thomas broke his right thumb.

Gas-Laden Tankers Crash, One Burns

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) Two sea-going tankers loaded with petroleum products slammed together in the harbor Monday. The crash ignited a fire that flames skyward hundreds of feet.

Authorities said one man was missing from the two crews and two men were hurt.

One of the vessels, the Santa Maria, of American registry, was abandoned and burned to a cinder hulk.

The crew of the other vessel, the Sirrah, of Dutch registry, stayed aboard and managed to pull away and sail up Cook Inlet, away from the burning Santa Maria and the flame-licked water around her.

Port officials said the Sirrah apparently dragged anchor and rammed into the Santa Maria, as she lay at ochor.

Successful Living

Girls' Home Environments Not Important to Boys

DEAR DORIS — I have a very close friend that thinks she lives in the worst place you could think of. Actually speaking, our place is not much better than hers.

The son of a lawyer has flipped over her and has asked her to go with him to the next dance. She is worrying herself sick, thinking that after seeing the place in which she lives he won't date her again.

I have told her that when a boy asks her for a date, he's not interested in the place she lives, but her. This is true, is it not? — WHACKY.

DORIS CLARK

DEAR WHACKY — Right. And when she dolls up in her dance dress he won't see any other draperies! Far better to be natural than negative about her surroundings.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I have a young lady friend who is getting married in the near future because she is pregnant and for that reason only.

As I myself was the casualty of a teen-age marriage I tried to explain to her the pitfalls of marrying just for the sake of giving the child a name.

Would you please comment on this? Perhaps a professional opinion would help her. — A CONCERNED FRIEND.

DEAR CONCERNED — Such a one may be leaping from the passing heat of the frying pan into the lasting fire of a miserable home. The child won't thank her. My leaflet on "Unwed Mothers and Their Babies" goes into all this. (Available for ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — I am a 12-year-old girl. My mother went on a trip for a couple of weeks. I have been taking care of five kids and a middle-aged father. I have to make the meals, keep the house neat, see they get to bed, etc.

My girl friend came over to spend one or two days with me. Up to that time I had been a hit in the house with no one my age to talk to. Since we live on a farm, Dad took the rest of the kids to go and look at the crop and he left my friend and I home to do the dishes. We were done by 7:00 and we decided to take a walk to town and see what we could have a coke at the cafe.

When we got home it was 10:00 and not even completely dark. Father took me into another room and beat me and said I wasn't going to get away with it. Now I have to make his meals, beds, etc. I don't think I can bring myself to do it.

Is it right or fair to leave a 12-year-old girl with such responsibilities? Have not I got the right to go to town when I'm almost always in charge of the family? — PRISONER.

* * *

DEAR PRISONER — Your Dad was unfair. The daughter he relied on for housework and child care should have been considered when it came to time off. But were you fair in hitting back by staying out?

His wrath was the greater because of his anxiety about his wandering girl! (Which he probably neglected to mention to you.)

* * *

DEAR DORIS — How does a person gain self-confidence? I'm always running myself down, when someone says "You make this well" or "You do that well."

How does one deal with persons that lie and always blame their mistakes on someone else? — WONDERING.

* * *

DEAR WONDERING — If your praiser is telling the truth, as you see it, pay him the compliment of believing him. Unconsciously, when you protest you'd really like to be saying: "Tell me more!"

We gain much self-confidence through shouldering responsibility and coming through. If we have lived with encouraging parents in our earlier years, it's a good deal easier.

People who blame others are "projecting." Because they cannot face their faults, the case is extreme a psychiat rist is indicated. Usually it's remarkable what a little warm friendship can do.

* * *

DEAR DORIS — There is a disease in our midst. It is commonly known as Passing the Buck. It is particularly true of priests, ministers, doctors, educators, policemen and parents.

We are spreading it to our youngsters and in them it becomes juvenile delinquency.

I am sure that if everyone does their part it can become a cure, not just an erstwhile deterrent. Let's quit wringing our hands and do something about it. — HOPEFUL.

* * *

DEAR HOPEFUL — True. The best boys and girls spring from the homes where mother and dad carry their full responsibility for giving love, discipline, companionship. Teachers and law enforcement officers shouldn't be counted on for more than secondary influence, although we're all in it, somewhere.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids . . . and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking" hemorrhoidal relief. This was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Many of these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured and inflamed tissues with amazing speed.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoidal protrusions it lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Astrological Forecasts

By SYDNEY OMARR

For October 21

Aries (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19): Full Moon stresses money affairs, possible partnership disputes. Try to remain in background. Time to absorb knowledge. Be a keen observer. What you now learn can aid in future.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20): You find spotlight turned in your direction. Be aware of personal appearance. Realize statements made may be used out of context. Be wary about confiding valuable information.

Gemini (May 21 to June 20): One who asks help may merely be seeking sympathy. Help only those willing to aid themselves. Better for finishing than for beginning projects. Shake off recent lethargy.

Cancer (June 21 to July 22): Full Moon stresses business and domestic areas. There is some conflict, but it can be resolved. This is done by taking the initiative. Be a leader. Seize case. Then follow through!

Leo (July 23 to Aug. 23): Head counsel of those who have proven loyal in past. Realize all cannot agree with your views. But appreciate sincerity. Show there are no hard feelings. Be gracious.

Virgo (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22): Favorable lunar aspect highlights journeys, plans for future. Give of yourself. Try to pursue creative endeavors. Plan . . . put thoughts on paper. Spread influence. Display versatility.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Full Moon stresses finances, investments . . . your willingness to be patient. Act in haste . . . and result will be waste. Survey various possibilities. Obtain hint from Aries message.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may be at cross-purposes with yourself. Review goals . . . find out where constructive changes can be made. Travel favored. So is romance. Exciting, challenging day ahead.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Before casting any stones . . . be sure your own house is in order. Full Moon points to unsettled debts, collections. Catch up on details. Build a stronger financial structure.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19): Full Moon position highlights verification of beliefs. Can now move ahead with greater confidence. Important gain indicated through written word. Fine for writing, publishing.

Aquarius (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18): Key is accepting family responsibility. When asked . . . you should offer helping hand. Don't turn back on loved ones. The more you give today . . . the more you ultimately receive.

Pisces (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20): Take care during travel. Be sure communications "go through." Avoid trap of trying to do much at once. Settle into groove of achievement. Sense of humor helps avoid tense situation.

If today is your birthday . . . you are artistic — but never satisfied with status quo. You are a pioneer — creating your style, your own way of presenting material.

General Tendencies: Cycle high for Taurus, Gemini, Cancer. Special word for Scorpio: Full Moon coincides with contradictions in your life. Be prepared for surprises!

It was decided to donate $5 to the top boy and girl in Bridge St. Public Schoolo and St. Mary's Separate School in Grade 8. A prize given to a high school student will be decided later.

Mrs. A. Whitbeld, world affairs convener gave a paper with appropriate maps on Latin American countries revealing the fact the revolution in Cuba had made the rest of the world aware of conditions in Latin America. The Alliance for Progress formulated by U.S. for development of progress in the Latin American countries needs a tremendous infusion of capital. The need that lies on one's door step makes increasing calls on Canadian aid. The visit of General De Gaulle has given publicity to conditions in countries all over South America.

Mrs. J. O. Benor, Provincial Councilor spoke briefly of the dinner at Marmora and the distinguished speaker, Mrs. W Stewart.

Mrs. Flora Malcolm thanked the hostess, Mrs J. Connor and group one served lunch.

Softball Championship Team Honored by Home Fans

PICTON (Staff) — About 125 guests, sponsors and supporters Monday night attended a banquet in honor of the Ontario champion Intermediate "B" softball team in Bloomfield. Among the honored guests at the head table were Councilman and Mrs. Charlie Howard, Mr. and Mrs. Leo McQuade; O.A.S.A. convener Mr. Belch and wife; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Anderson; Arthur Moore, Reeve of Bloomfield; Don Baxter of the Baxter Canning Co. toastmaster; guest speaker, Leo (Pee-Wee) McQuade, Belleville; and Mayor H. J. McFarland of Picton. A large silver cup, the St. Catherine's Standard Association Trophy, O.A.S.A. championship Intermediate series, stood in the centre of the head table. This trophy was won last year by Aurora and last weekend was brought back to Bloomfield to a royal welcome by the team's staunch county supporters.

Greetings to the guests and especially to the team members were expressed by Reeve Art Moore. He said it was indeed an honor for him to be able to officially congratulate the boys. "They are a credit to the village of Bloomfield and for that matter a credit to the whole county," he said. On behalf of the Warden of the County, who could not be present, he wished every success for the future to the team. Reeve Moore said not only were the Bloomfield team good looking but a good ball team. He especially thanked the wives of the players who gave to their husbands such support and encouragement. A toast to the wives and girlfriends of the players was proposed by Dr. K. E. McQueen of Bloomfield. Margaret MacDonald replied on behalf of the "softball widows".

All of the players present were introduced by the team manager Jim Guernsey, He said he did not feel any one players should receive special credit for it was real team effort that won the championship. He thanked all present and also the citizens of the county for their support in sending them to Blind River to play the series.

MAYOR GREETS PLAYERS

Clifford Belch O.A.S.A. convener in addressing the gathering said, I think this team is a great team, much better than just a good team. I have followed their activities closely and this has to be a great ball club.

Mayor H. J. McFarland greeted the players on behalf of the town of Picton. He thanked the Reeve of Bloomfield and the council for the support and encouragement they provided the team. Two telegrams were read, one from Jack Devins who expressed his regrets for not being able to be present and one from Harold Cleeve. Picton's Creighton Lockyer presented to Keith Stacey and Jim Guernsey a cheque from the Athletic Association of Picton.

The guest speaker for the banquet, Leo McQuade was introduced by Allan Anderson of Bloomfield. In his opening remarks he offered his personal congratulations to the team. He stated that this was the first time that an Ontario champion ship has been brought into the County. The next thing to it was a hardball game lost to Southampton and played in Guelph in 1933. Prince Edward County people showed the same loyal support to their teams in those days as well, he said. Some of the best ball players your team has ever had have come and gone, he continued. It is unfortunate that these players could not have been here to see you win this championship. This year your team had no sponsor, he stated, you ran your own show. This may be after all, the best way. Mr. McQuade went on to speak with a humorous touch on the background and playing abilities of each of the players in turn. Coach of the team, Keith Stacey, thanked Mr. McQuade for his address and said that Leo had started softball locally bringing it to the county. Don Baxter in closing said that it had been his privilege to act as toastmaster. That he was sure his late father Edward Baxter, who in his time had been very active in sports, would have been proud to have attended this banquet.

Gunmen Kidnap Mafia Chieftain On Park Avenue

Informer Joe Bonanno Told 'Boss Wants You'

The Trend Is Up

Collected $54,000

NEW YORK (AP) — Joseph (Joe Bananas) Bonanno, a reputed Cosa Nostra chieftain scheduled to appear before a federal grand jury today, was kidnapped on Park Avenue this morning by two gunmen police said.

"The boss wants to see you," one of the gunmen was reported to have told Bonanno.

Bonanno's lawyer said he started after the men, but stopped when one fired a shot at him.

At the U.S. Senate crime committee's hearings in Washington last year, underworld informer Joseph Valachi identified Bonanno as a leading figure in the Cosa Nostra, also known as The Syndicate or the Mafia.

Valachi testified that Bonanno bossed one of the five Cosa Nostra "families" or gangs in metropolitan New York.

A reported 30 members of his "family" were scheduled to testify in the federal grand jury's investigation. Bonanno was under subpoena to appear. The nature of the investigation has not been disclosed.

GUNMEN APPEAR

Bonanno, 59, a Sicilian-born immigrant who entered the United States illegally in 1924, had just arrived in a taxicab with two lawyers when the gunmen appeared. The cab had pulled up in front of the Park Avenue apartment building of one of the lawyers, William F. Maloney.

Police and other sources at the scene gave this account:

First out of the cab was lawyer Joseph F. Allen, who walked into the building. Maloney, Bonanno's lawyer, was next, but as he approached the doorway a tough-looking guy, "come on, Joe, the boss wants to see you."

It was raining and each of the gunmen wore raincoats and carried umbrellas.

Maloney saw them pulling Bonanno along the avenue toward 36th Street. He said he shouted: "Hey, where are you going? He's my client."

"Get back and mind your own self," one gunman responded.

But Maloney continued to follow them.

"I told you to get out!" the gunman shouted, and fired twice.

Maloney ran to the corner and saw a late-model car speeding off.

STRUGGLES WITH GUNMEN

Maloney said later in an interview that Bonanno struggled with the two gunmen. They took him along the sidewalk to the corner, Maloney said, and as the car drove off Bonanno was still struggling.

Maloney, who divides his time between Tucson, Ariz., and New York, has been de-

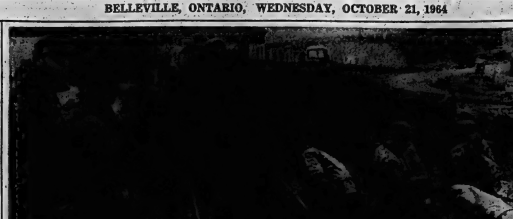
400 Employees In Etobicoke Call Off Strike

TORONTO (CP) — About 400 outside employees of suburban Etobicoke voted Tuesday to call off a strike begun last week after the township agreed to meet pay demands but decided against resuming garbage collections today because it is their regular day off.

Members of Local 185 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees (CLC) ratified an agreement reached Monday night for 10 cents an hour now and 10 cents more next year above the present $2.05 an hour. The municipality reserved the right to contract privately for some garbage collections but promised no civic employee with at least two years seniority would be laid off as a result.



Union President Sam Thompson asked members to return to work on their normal day off but the pact voted against it, deciding to return Thursday.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: A storm centre over upper Michigan is moving southward and should reach the lower lakes this afternoon or evening. Rain over southern Ontario today is likely to change to snow for a brief period this evening or tonight as the storm centre moves by. Mainly cloudy and colder weather is forecast for southern Ontario Thursday and partly cloudy to sunny weather in Northern Ontario.

Cabinet To Tour North

TORONTO (CP) — Problems peculiar to Northern Ontario will be studied first-hand by the Ontario cabinet next week as it undertakes a three-day tour of the Lakehead, Sudbury and Sault Ste. Marie.

The cabinet will hold meetings in each of the three centres — the first cabinet meetings ever to be convened in the north. In addition, the ministers will hold public meetings to hear briefs and other presentations from northern groups.

The tour begins Monday when the cabinet flies to Fort William. The ministers will then drive to Lakehead College for their first cabinet meeting.

About 16 of the 19 ministers, led by Premier Robarts, are expected to make the trip.

After a civic luncheon in Fort William the cabinet will move to Port Arthur to hear briefs from such groups as the Northwestern Ontario Associated Chambers of Commerce. Premier Robarts will speak at a dinner.

The ministers fly to Sault Ste. Marie Tuesday morning. There they will hold their second closed cabinet meeting, plus public meeting to hear local presentations.

The cabinet is to leave for Sudbury Tuesday evening. After a tour of the city early Wednesday, the ministers will hold their third meeting in as many days. Mr. Roberts is to speak to students at Sudbury High School after hearing briefs there in the afternoon.

The idea for the northern tour was born in May at the urging of Mines Minister George Wardrope, member for Port Arthur.

Al. of the cities along the route are expected to present briefs to the cabinet and others may come in from outlying centres.

Pres. de Gaulle Says France Might Quit Common Market

PARIS (Reuters)—President Charles de Gaulle said today France might leave the European Common Market "if the Common Market for agriculture is not organized as was agreed."

Information Minister Alain Peyrefitte told reporters after a cabinet meeting that Agriculture Minister Edgar Pisani reported to the cabinet on the deadlocked talks in Brussels among the farm ministers of the six Common Market countries.

The talks were blocked largely by West German resistance to common grain prices. Pisani returned here from Brussels Tuesday night.

Peyrefitte said France expressed "in the most categorical way its resolve to make the common agricultural market the corner stone of the building of Europe."

"It is not possible to negotiate successfully with the United States unless the European Economic Community is properly organized, and this cannot be unless agriculture is organized," he said.

Exporters Told Government Can Assist Businessmen

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) — The Canadian government should try to provide businessmen with more commercial intelligence from behind the Iron Curtain, J. C. Campbell, vice-president of Asbestos Corporation Limited, said Tuesday.

He told the Canadian Export Association that information about the plans of such potentially serious competitors as Russia is needed if Canadian exporters are to be able to draw up long-term programs.

"The difficulty now is that we don't know what countries such as Russia may be thinking of doing in the international markets," he said.

The federal government offered the best opportunity of getting this information.

Mr. Campbell also suggested the Canadian industrial manufacturers should do more to develop machinery for the mining industry.

He said his firm imports much of its equipment because it is not made in Canada or the Canadian product is of inferior quality.

With the size of the mining industry in Canada, manufacturers should be able to build up strong domestic markets and, on the experience won here, move successfully into foreign trade.

D. M. Culver, president of Alcan International Limited, told delegates the present trend in lower tariffs does not necessarily mean an easier time in the future for exporters.

"We will be fighting non-tariff trade barriers increasingly in the future."

The question of Iron Curtain countries disrupting established trade patterns by putting goods on the market at lower-than-normal prices also was discussed briefly by association members.

R. B. Lambert of Alcan International said trade with Communist countries is not only desirable but is inevitable. But it presented potential problems with price-cutting being one of them.

J. H. Warren, deputy minister of trade and commerce, said the question is winning increasing attention among Western governments.

Intense Haggling On Bill

By RONALD LEBEL

OTTAWA (CP) — The far-reaching redistribution bill still is tied up in knots in the Commons, six months after it received approval in principle.

Sitting in committee of the whole all day Tuesday, MPs passed 19 secondary clauses of the bill amid intense haggling and horsetrading.

They agreed to put off until later, likely next week, showdown votes on six key clauses that aroused sharp disagreements in earlier debates.

The House is to spend the rest of this week discussing 1964-65 spending estimates, beginning with the veterans and defence production departments.

The redistribution measure, given second reading April 15 and shelved throughout the summer, would result in new boundaries for most federal constituencies in Canada, in line with population shifts during the 1951-61 period.

For the first time since Confederation, redistribution would be taken out of the politicians' hands and turned over to 10 appointed commissions—one for each province.

The parties have failed to agree so far on who should appoint the commissions and how the size of a population gap should be tolerated between urban and rural ridings.

Labor Minister MacEachen, who has a reputation for getting along with opposition MPs, took over Tuesday as the bill's sponsor in the absence of Transport Minister Pickersgill, recuperating at home from a bout with influenza.

Mr. MacEachen met Opposition Leader Diefenbaker in the latter's office Tuesday morning and scheduled more meetings

Opulent Home Of Bootlegger Being Wrecked

HAMILTON (CP)—An underworld king's castle is coming down. Wrecking hammers are slamming into the opulent Bay Street South home once owned by Hamilton's most famous bootlegger Rocco Perri.

Hamilton police are taking more than a casual interest in the operation. Perri is still officially a missing person although Hamilton police say his body lies in a cement block at the bottom of Hamilton Bay. The question of his body remains unsolved.

It is 36 years since Rocco Perri was gunned down by gangsters. It is 20 years since Perri vanished.

Even in a slender chance that as the 19-room mansion is torn apart a clue may emerge which would throw some light on a gangland vendetta.

The Perri home is being torn down to make room for a new apartment house.

Who Fingers Rocket Button?

Who Is on Moscow End of the 'Hot Line?'

MOSCOW (AP)—Who is on Moscow's end of the "hot line" now? And whose finger is on the nuclear rocket button?

Until Nikita Khrushchev's unexpected ouster as Soviet leader last week, the answer to both questions was simple—Khrushchev. Now it's a bit more complicated.

If U.S. President Johnson decides to have a talk on his direct line to the Kremlin, he presumably would get Alexei Kosygin. As premier, Kosygin heads the Soviet government.

But such significant things as the lineup of portraits of Soviet leaders displayed in Moscow show that Leonid Brezhnev is the top man now. He took over Khrushchev's job as Communist party first secretary.

In the last 40 years of Communist rule, the party secretary has always been top man; he has been premier only 15 of those years. The premier the rest of the time has been a technician.

This might not be much of a problem for Johnson since the hot line is for emergencies, not a telephone. Talking to two persons on the phone at once might be confusing, but an agreed message could be put on the teletype from Moscow.

The three-or-six-button question gets more involved due to the vagueness of the Soviet constitution.

It does not designate a peacetime commander-in-chief for Soviet military forces as Johnson is commander-in-chief of his American military establishment.

Under the Soviet constitution the presidium of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament), which declares war and concludes peace, is presumably the top commander. But the presidium has 33 members, which is a bit too many fingers for one button.

Beginning in 1956, there were scattered official references to Khrushchev as commander-in-chief. One statement indicated Khrushchev already had the authority to order when Soviet military doctrine formally accepted rockets with thermonuclear warheads as the principal weapon.

This doctrine is based on an assumed danger of American rocket attack. In theory, there might be only 15 or 20 minutes warning of such an attack.

In both Washington and Moscow, it is recognized that the speed-up in the processes of modern warfare requires quick reactions. That means a clear-cut process of taking decisions. The clearest way is for one man to be responsible.

Lacking an officially proclaimed commander-in-chief, Premier Kosygin might seem to be the man. But his portrait is in the second place of importance and what No. 1 man would want to turn over the decision on massive devastation to his deputy?

On the other hand, if the Russians mean anything at all by collective leadership, they can't man such as Brezhnev—who technically is not even part of the government—have his finger on the button?

Many non-Communist observers of the Soviet scene have felt the system naturally gravitates toward one-man rule. The whole history of Soviet power shows a trend away from divided authority.

If the trend continues, Brezhnev will follow the example of Stalin and Khrushchev and add the premiership to the party leadership, or some other man will move in and ultimately take both jobs.

Meanwhile, the men who pushed Khrushchev aside are extolling the merits of "Leninist collective leadership" but in practice Brezhnev is most likely to be the man deciding what to say and when to push.

Soviet Leaders Halt Campaign To Downgrade K

Communist Parties React Adversely

By BIRGER FARUP

COPENHAGEN (AP) — Denmark's Communist newspaper says the Soviet Union's new leaders have halted their campaign to downgrade Nikita Khrushchev because of the adverse reaction from most European Communist parties.

Peter Schaffer, Moscow correspondent of the Danish party's Land og Folk, said: "To Soviet circles it has been a surprise that this critical attitude was expressed publicly coupled with demands for an explanation of the background and the methods of the recent shift of leaders."

Stig Bringert, Moscow correspondent of Copenhagen's liberal newspaper Politiken, reported that Khrushchev and his wife, Nina, have been installed under virtual house arrest in a four - room apartment "from where he can see the Kremlin towers."

Khrushchev is said to have received a pension of 1,000 (rubles a month—which is 900 rubles more than he himself gave former foreign minister Molotov," Bringert said.

UNITY CALL

As Communist spokesmen outside the Soviet Union openly criticized the manner in which Khrushchev was dumped, the Kremlin issued an urgent call for Communist unity.

"The unity and cohesion of the international Communist movement must be strengthened," Moscow Radio said.

The Norwegian communist organ Friheten said that if Khrushchev made mistakes his successors must share responsibility.

Luigi Longo, chief of Italy's Communist party, told a rally in Milan Sunday:

"The way in which comrade Khrushchev has been replaced leaves us worried and critical."

Brezhnev's party call tribute to Khrushchev's leadership and asked Moscow for "more information" on his ouster.

Yellow Journalism Danger

- - Lesage

By GERRY McNEIL

QUEBEC (CP) — Acting Attorney-General Claude Wagner, in a report to Premier Jean Lesage, says separatists, university students, thugs from Montreal and a small group of reporters caused most of the trouble when Queen Elizabeth visited Quebec City Oct. 10-11.

He said in the seven-page report resulting from an investigation into alleged police brutality that separatists made it clear weeks before the visit that they intended to make 'trouble, and that French-speaking Canadian groups like the 300,000-member St. Jean Baptiste Society "created an atmosphere conducive to extremism" with their pre-visit statements.

Premier Lesage told a press conference at the Montreal International Airport before he left for a three-week trip to Europe that the press prepared the ground for the Quebec City royal visit incidents.

"The greatest danger in Quebec, as elsewhere in all countries, is yellow journalism," he said.

PROTECTED QUEEN

"The police said the thousands of police on duty during the royal visit protected the Queen.

"As for my own safety—couldn't have cared less," he said.

In Quebec City, Mr. Wagner read the report to about 30 reporters, and a few Laval University students representing the campus weekly, at a press conference held in the private bills committee chamber of the Quebec legislature.

Armed provincial police patrolled the halls outside an unusual measure, checking press cards and turning away several students.

Mr. Wagner said no one has brought forth evidence that "one drop of blood was shed" during the 38 hours the Queen was here, despite what he termed "exaggerated and imaginative" news reports.

NO FRENCH BLOOD

"Contrary to the predictions, not a drop of French-Canadian blood was shed in the streets of Quebec."

Police had the difficult job of dispersing crowds of students, finding and isolating agitators and "foreseeing and preventing stresses before they might have degenerated into tragedy."

It was admissible that some unnecessary moves might have been made "by officers who lacked self-possession or could no longer keep cool, exposed as they were to insults and sarcasm from agitators and considering most of them had been on duty 80 hours."

Mr. Wagner noted in the report that Laval students had shouted "Gestapo" as police took spot in their direction on the university campus.

A reporter of the legislature had been told to get out after making a remark of "innocuous" about the Queen.

Marc Schaffler, 26, described in the report as a self-styled journalist" and correspondent for the Communist review Revolution in Paris, had been arrested after inciting youths to demonstrate.

"He appeared to police mingling with the crowd as a agitator in quest of provocation."

GOT THREE CLAIMS

Mr. Wagner said he had called upon all reporters who were "self-styled victims of roughness" and asked for full reports. Only three made writ-

Woman Juror Wept as Girl Recounted Story

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP)—A woman juror wept in supreme court here Tuesday as an 18-year-old girl told how she pounded on the door of the county jail trying to escape men stalking her through the darkness because she dragged into a field and raped.

Orille Dwinnell, 23, is charged with the Aug. 25 attack on the girl. A second man, Maitland McRae, 23, also of Stratford, has charged with rape in the girl, has not yet appeared for preliminary hearing.

The girl said she was followed by Dwinnell on foot and by a car as she tried to walk home at about midnight Aug. 25. She alternately walked and ran through the streets as she banged on the doors and other doors, trying to summon help.

But a passenger in the car got out and dragged her into the back seat and the car drove off with Dwinnell and the driver in front.

She said Dwinnell and the man who had grabbed her on the street had her in a field and then walked her back to the south. She said she was driven in the car driver had driven away.

Dennis Balfour, 25, also of Stratford, was the man driving the car. The other man told him to drive slowly behind the girl as Dwinnell followed her on foot. After the girl was dragged into the auto he was told to "head for the country." Balfour said that when they reached the spot where the girl was taken from the car he became frightened and drove off.

Council Studies Proposals For Developing 500 Acres In Northwest Area of City

Belleville and Suburban Planning Board "proposals for the full development of just under 500 acres of land in northwest Belleville were presented to city council last night.

The area encompassed by the planning board plans lies between No. 14 highway and Sidney Street and north from College Street to 401 highway.

Parts of the area are already developed with large residential area now in the Park Dale district and commercial development underway along North Front Street.

But a major portion of the total 495 acres area is still undeveloped and the City planning director F. J. Beavis had recently completed a detailed planning study of the area from which it is hoped a planning board and council can evolve policies leading to sound development of the area.

DETAILED PLAN SHOWN

The detailed planning study report presented to council last night proposed designed areas for different density residential areas, and areas for commercial and industrial use and outlines the roadways, schools, sewers, surface drainage requirements and other facilities required.

It also lists the estimated development costs and the tax revenue which the city might expect following full development.

The proposed basic land use allocation calls for 300 acres of the total 495 acres area to be used for residential purposes, 120 acres for industrial use and 36 acres for commercial.

Of the 300 acres of residential area, 263 acres would be single family residential and 37 acres multiple family residential.

WOULD ENLARGE SCHOOL

The ultimate population which would be accommodated in the residential portion of the area would be about 5,500.

This would necessitate extension of the present Parkdale school in 13 rooms and construction of another public school for which the school board has recently acquired a site in the Tracey Street district. A new Separate school in the area would also be required.

Cost of all the projected municipal expenditures for the area were estimated at close to five million dollars while the anticipated tax revenue following full development is calculated in the order of about $880,000.

Biggest individual municipal expenditure would be the provision of storm sewers to provide adequate drainage. Three storm sewers would be required costing in the neighborhood of $750,000.

SOME MONEY SPENT

Rebuilding of North Front Street, College Street and Sidney streets to the proper standards as arterial roads would cost an estimated $275,000 with the city's 10 per cent share of local improvements for minor roads another $120,000.

But some of the necessary municipal expenditures for development of the areas to the area has already been carried out.

To serve the North Front street commercial area the city last year installed a new $197,000 trunk sanitary sewer into the area, while city council just recently gave the go-ahead signal for widening of North Front Street between Evans and Spring streets.

Mr. Beavis told council that the new 24 inch sanitary sewer extending into Sidney Belleville would be sufficient to serve a total of about 610 acres, 110 of which are currently developed.

Last night's meeting was chaired jointly by Mayor Jack Ellis and Belleville and Suburban Planning Board chairman Dr. J. Barlow.

But council did not get completely through the lengthy planning study report.

Council will hear the balance of the report next Monday following which it will be asked to consider a number of recommendations.

Council will be asked to adopt in principle the proposed basic land use allocation and the proposals; and also recommendations concerning engineering and administrational aspects of the development area.

No Traffic Lights

Traffic lights at three main intersections will be left temporarily out of action early tomorrow.

Signals at the Bridge Street intersections of Coleman, Front and Pinnacle streets will be shut off from 5 a.m. to 8.30 a.m.

Reason is improvement, and resurfacing and general maintenance of the lights, city hall officials reported.

Councillors of 1859 Found Easy Way to Beat Bylaw

TRENTON — At a meeting of Belleville town council on Wednesday, Feb. 13, 1859, three members of council got out of voting on a controversial by-law by the simple expedient of putting on their hats and walking out of the meeting. Their action was duly recorded in the pages of The Intelligencer and Belleville and Hastings General Advertiser of Feb. 25 of that year. Council was working shorthanded that night anyhow, as the mayor (not referred to by name in the article) was absent, through illness, and when the hatted gentlemen left, council didn't have a quorum.

The by-law was introduced on the heels of a petition, taken up by Dr. Hope, "praying" that there be a more stringent by-law to do with the sale of spirituous liquors in the town.

One council member, a Mr. LeVescomte, remarked that an existing by-law was causing shopkeepers to sell lesser quantities than a gallon of the "ardent" and that the petition paid to it, and he argued the proposed by-law would "injure the trade." He also said this, Mr. LeVescomte put on his hat and strode out of the meeting, followed by Councillors Corby and Blacklock. Others at the meeting were Councillors Coleman, Clark, McArthur, Brown and Pattegron.

Mr. Corby-Alford of Roslin read about the more-than-a-century-ago council meeting when he was in Belleville recently at the back of a heirloom picture on her farm.

The by-law apparently wasn't given front page coverage — it was on page two. Page one of the meeting was taken up by the latest episode in the thriller, "The Hidden Hand," by Emma Southworth, author of such popular novels as "Bride of an Evening," and "The Deserted Wife."

Also on the front page were various business cards, inserted by editor Ira Gurnsey, dentists, harness makers, soap and candle manufacturers, watchmakers, etc.

It was noted on page two that the ladies of St. George's Church in Kingston had held their annual Tea Party or Soiree, and the ladies at the meeting had been organized by the Revs. Lauder of Napanee, Anderson of the Mohawk Church, on the Bay of Quinte, Flood, Preston of Stirling, Lane of Brockville and G. W. White of Cobourg.

The Workingman's Temperance Union had just been formed and 16 young men had dedicated themselves to the eradication of strong drink in the community. President was John Jordan, with other officers being: Homer Taylor, J. D. Roblin, Julius Cornelius, Henry Richards and Donald Urquhart.

Not Council's Fault Says Councillor

TRENTON — Councillor Gerald Weaver wants it made clear that it wasn't council's fault the Trenton Fire Department did very little this year in the way of Fire Prevention Week activity. A recent newspaper article intimated the annual inspections of stores, factories etc., couldn't be carried out because council refused to pay firemen overtime pay for extra work hours they would put in if the annual inspection was carried out in full. Fire Chief Cecil Ellis was quoted in the article as saying inspections spare the men during regular hours for the inspection work. The department did carry out fire drills at schools and the agencies were inspected for potential fire hazards.

Councillor Weaver said at the regular meeting on Monday night the present schedule for the department called for two hours off duty during three shifts 24 hours a day. The firemen work a 48-hour week. The Chief is free at all times, the councillor said, to attend to administrative duties, planning and inspections.

To add to this, the councillor said, the schedule leaves 17 man-hours during the year, "left over," during which the men take holidays or may carry out other activity in connection with their regular duties.

"We have adequate coverage at all times," said Councillor Weaver, and it's up to the Department what use they make of the time allotted without getting into overtime."

Official Plan To Be Changed In Some Areas

TRENTON — The planning board has made certain recommendations to town council to do with changes in the official plan, and council has passed the necessary by-law, by which the Ontario Municipal Board will be asked to OK the proposed changes. One proposal is that land in the immediate vicinity of the Sidney Van Camp plant on Dufferin Ave. south and land around what is commonly known as the Grove, be designated "residential," rather than zoning which suggests the land warehousing, light manufacturing, yard storage and heavy manufacturing.

Council was read a letter from the Canadian National Railway Company which said, in effect, the company would not oppose the change in zoning, but thought it was a good example of poor planning. CNR tracks run through the proposed residential zone, and "children love to play on tracks," the company spokesman points out.

Nobody had any real objection to rezoning the old Fraser property at the corner of Catherine Street and Dundas Street West to a zoning category which would permit the erection of three apartment houses. Local builder Stan Klemencic is the developer concerned.

Legion Brings Down Slate Of Officers

TRENTON — At Monday night's meeting of Trenton Legion branch 130, a nominating committee brought down a suggested slate of officers for the 1965 term. Further nominations will be received from the floor at the November 2 meeting and elections will be held at the December meeting.

Officers chosen by the committee are: Ronald King, president; Ross Brummell, vice-president; George Briggs, second vice; Frederick Levere, secretary; William McLaren, treasurer; Stanley Sears, service bureau officer; Wilfred Willman, sgt. at arms and Michael Harrison, trustee.

Eight possible executive members were selected: John Spencer, R. Nicholson, James Wright, William Langley, W. Frazis, Burke Shennett, Dean Landes, Gordon Roy and W. E. Wannamaker. Out of these eight, six executive officers will be elected.

Carling's representative was at the meeting to present the District "F" golf trophy to the branch, and two new members were initiated.

Winners of the branch golf honor were William McGinnes, William Lewis, Douglas Robertson and D. Wilson.

Deputy district commander Eric Davidson was appointed administrative assistant for the branch.

Size of Sewer Brings Petition From Residents

TRENTON — A petition bearing 13 names and one oth er petition from an individual has been received at the city office, objecting to the proposed installation of a 15-inch sewer main on Victory Street between Dufferin Ave. and Queen Street. The second petitioner is hearing before the Ontario Municipal Board must be held before the town can proceed with the installation.

Residents claim the larger main is unnecessary for the area. The Public Utilities Commission means to use the main as a lead off to other and similar installations in this area and the local improvement cost to the residents has been adjusted to the point where they would be paying little more than if the main were a six inch main.

Although the facts of the case have been adequately outlined to the public through a news item, the petitioning residents still object to the installation, and an OMB hearing will be held to hear their objections may be aired.

NAME POLLING BOOTHS

Council last night at their last night to name polling booths for the forthcoming Dec. 7 municipal election. Polls will be set up in public schools; St. Mary's separate school; one in community gardens and St. Peter's separate school. Voters, for the part, will report to schools where they have voted for a number of years. However, in the case of the poll off Queen Elizabeth School in east Trenton, voters living east of Sidney St. and north of Dixon Drive will vote in St. Mary's School.

On Dec. 4 an advance poll will be held in the town hall, over the police station, for those who cannot, through business or for some other legitimate reason, get absent from work on voting day.

Surveyor Will Take Course At Downsview

TRENTON — Trenton council voted Monday night to recommend to 1965 council that town surveyor Paul Kirk be authorized to take the "new" surveyors' course, sponsored by the Department of Highways, Ontario, at Downsview. Mr. Kirk has worked for the town for seven years.

The course will pay $4.50 a day for accommodation; $3.50 a day towards board and $10 a week for the travelling expenses for Mr. Kirk. Further expenses will presumably be taken up by council. The course is to be held in Downsview and applications must be in by Nov. 15.

WOULD CHECK FUEL

O. W. Larry, clerk-comptroller, told Trenton council Monday night he had received a "missionary visit" from a Mr. E. C. Taylor, who is seeking to distribute a mechanism throughout the province which would check out the exact amount of fuel delivered to private homes or commercial outlets. Mr. Taylor says the "gadget" does away with any misrepresentation or at sch and would be attached to all delivery trucks.

Mr. Larry said as far as he knew, there was no legislation making the use of such mechanisms obligatory, but stressed that Mr. Taylor had merely been anxious to make council aware of the device. He may appeal to the provincial legislators later to pass the necessary laws making the mechanism standard equipment on fuel delivery trucks.

Prime Minister Hits Whitehall With Upheaval

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

LONDON (CP)—Prime Minister Harold Wilson has hit Whitehall with its biggest upheaval in many years.

Wilson has appointed 78 ministers to his Labor government and, with 10 new appointments expected today, his administration will be numerically larger than that of Conservative Sir Alec Douglas-Home.

Wilson had promised a dynamic first 100 days of power but his whirlwind activity since taking over from the Tories Friday has surprised even close associates and caused a measure of turmoil at Whitehall.

Ministries are being split up and rearranged, creating an atmosphere of excitement and confusion.

Apart from Britain's economic problems the biggest immediate crisis facing Wilson was a threatened dock strike that could do tremendous damage to the export trade—precisely the area in which the prime minister is trying to improve the country's position.

Must Act

Ray Gunter, the new labor minister, today called together both sides in the docks dispute.

Gunter's swift response to a breakdown of company - union negotiations Tuesday night indicates the government's determination to be decisive and it might also give a hint of the government's broad strategy on the wages front.

The employers have offered the dockers an increase of 12 shillings sixpence ($1.67) a week for time workers and 3½ per cent for piece workers. A typical wage at present is $50 a week.

Gunmen

He was among the gangland hierarchy who police found at the Apalachin, N.Y., underworld convention in 1957. He was one of 27 indicted on conspiracy charges as a result.

A beart attack felled him in Brooklyn the day before the trial of 23 of the underworld delegates was to have opened Oct. 28, 1959. Twenty were convicted. Appeals through the courts subsequently voided all the convictions.

Bonanno's first arrest occurred in the 1920s when he was accused of transporting machine-guns to the Al Capone gang in Chicago.

In 1936 he left the United States and legally re-entered from Canada. In 1945 he became a naturalized American citizen. He has described himself as being in the cheese business.

Bonanno again entered Canada last May but was ordered deported by the federal immigration department on the grounds that he lied to immigration officials in seeking status as a landed immigrant.

Deportation proceedings were held up when an application for a writ of habeas corpus was made by his lawyers, but the writ was later rejected

Ben Simpson Football Star Dies at Guelph

HAMILTON (CP) — Funeral services are scheduled here Saturday for Ben Simpson, veteran fielder B. L. (Ben) Simpson.

Mr. Simpson, a star with the old Hamilton Tigers football club in the years preceding the First World War, died Tuesday in hospital.

A native of Peterborough, Ben Simpson was converted from soccer to football when he entered Queen's -University in 1899. He went on to a successful football career at the university, then joined the Tigers in 1904 to begin an even more illustrious seven - year career with the Hamilton team.

A top punter, he is credited with adding the art of kicking the ball into touch so that there could be no rushbacks.

Nominated to the Canadian Football Hall of Fame, the longtime gridiron star was with the Tiger team of 1908 that captured the Canadian championship. Upon his retirement from active play in 1910, he turned his football interests to officiating.

Mr. Simpson is survived by a son and two grandchildren.

Services will be held Friday at Blatchford and Wray chapel in Hamilton at 2 p.m.

Caretaking Costs QSS $36,900

At the Quinte Secondary School in Belleville the annual cost is $36,960.

This is the amount which the District High School Board has agreed to pay Hunt Brothers of Peterborough for caretaking duties at the school. The amount includes caretaking services and all the necessary supplies.

But board members are completely satisfied with the job being done by the professional caretaking firm from Peterborough and say that the cost compares favorably with what it would be were the work done by a caretaking staff hired individually by the board.

The board's own maintenance staffs look after caretaking duties at Belleville Collegiate and at Moira Secondary School.

Last night at its monthly meeting the board authorized official signing of the contract with Hunt Brothers for caretaking duties at the Quinte Secondary School.

In other business a new salary schedule for office assistants in the three district high schools was approved. Under the new schedule office assistants will start at $2340 with a top of $3540, while senior girls will have a salary ranging from $2340 to $4040.

Paving of the east driveway of Quinte Secondary school was approved while further work toward the permanent athletic track at Moira Secondary School was also authorized.

Still another bus route from the Thurlow district was approved, the contract going to Frank Brough of Foxboro.

Tenders will be called for new soft drink fountains for Bayview and Bellefonte Collegiate and Moira schools.

Staff caretaker fees to be paid by organizations using school auditoriums on Saturday afternoons and Sundays will be increased to $2.00 per hour.

Will Conduct Hearing Into Town Policing

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP)—R. Percy Milligan, chairman of the Ontario Police Commission, announced Tuesday in Toronto that the commission will conduct a quasi - judicial hearing into the policing of this Lake Huron resort town.

Police Chief Charles W. Riley cut his vacation short Tuesday when the town of 1,500 was left virtually without police protection after council early in the day dismissed rookie Constable George Tagart.

Mayor W. A. Davey said Tuesday night the police commission told Bruce County Crown attorney, P. S. R. Malcolmson, to call in provincial police reinforcements to protect the community, 20 miles west of Owen Sound, until the police situation has been cleaned up.

The Provincial Police Act allows the commission to force the town council to provide adequate policing or bear the expense of provincial police law enforcement.

COMPEL WITNESSES

Mr. Milligan said the inquiry will be conducted under the Public Inquiries Act to compel witnesses to attend and submit any relevant documents.

The council had voted 6 to 2 to dismiss Const. Taggart on a motion that his services had not been satisfactory. He joined the force on a probationary basis early last summer.

The village formerly had a three - man police force, but Const. Karl MacNaughton resigned in September after being suspended by Chief Riley and later reinstated.

Chief Riley himself was asked to resign by a 6 to 2 council vote last August but refused because no explanation was given.

May Unveil Federal Budget In March

By DON HANRIGHT

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal budget process is being speeded up. The timetable now indicates a relatively early budget speech, perhaps sometime in March.

Finance Minister Walter Gordon has publicly set a firm Dec. 31 deadline for receiving briefs on tax proposals from various organizations and individuals.

Last year he asked for submissions by that date but added that he wanted them, in any event, no later than the end of January. The result was that many waited until January.

He produced his budget on March 16.

This year the Dec. 31 cut-off is firmer, "I really mean this," he said last Friday during a question-and-answer session before the Montreal forum of the Marketing Association of Canada.

INTO 'BLACK BOOK'

Officials here explain that the object is to put the so-called "black book" of all tax proposals together earlier than in the past, so all recommendations can be analyzed and assessed well before Mr. Gordon makes his major decisions.

Normally by mid - February the black book contains from 200 to 300 pages of tax proposals. The book was once described by former deputy finance minister Kenneth Taylor as "a document of interest, amusement and boredom."

Meanwhile, work already has started on the departmental spending estimates for the fiscal year starting next April 1. First submissions to treasury board, a cabinet committee, will be made before the end of this month.

Final decisions have to be reached before Christmas. Normally the main estimates for the year are tabled in the Commons around the end of January and it takes about a month for bilingual printing of the 500-page volume.

Says Indians May Be Used As Sideshows

TORONTO (CP)—Duke Redbird, editor of the newspaper Thunderbird published here, said Canada's Indians are in danger of being used as sideshows in 1967 centennial celebrations.

He said in an interview Tuesday that Indians should boycott the celebrations unless the government gives them immediate assurance they will be given enough time and money to put on a proper show.

The Thunderbird is Canada's only national Indian newspaper and has an all-Indian staff.

Police said Tuesday night that Sgt. Hamm, father of four, was fatally cut of a boat on Prairie Bee Lake and struck his head on a rock.

A Warrant Officer Saddlemeyer of No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, had accompanied Sgt. Hamm on a hunting and fishing trip to this area about 100 miles northeast of Sault Ste. Marie.

Police said Saddlemeyer was on an island when the mishap occurred and made a raft to get to the mainland and go for help.

Police recovered Hamm's body.

Strictly Personal
Improper Use Of Words Can Mean Disaster

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Does it matter or not if words are used as precisely and correctly as possible? Is it just splitting hairs to quibble about the exact meaning of words?

Some readers apparently think so, from the letters I receive. "What's the difference," asks one reader, "if you use words wrongly or inaccurately, so long as your meaning gets across?"

The most obvious answer, of course, is that in many cases th...meaning doesn't get across. If a wrong or ambiguous word is used — and thousands of people have had to go to court to straighten out verbal equivocations in leases, contracts and other important agreements.

A new book on the Crimean War confirms what earlier researchers have suggested — that the fatal Charge of the Light Brigade at Balaklava a century ago was caused by a poorly-worded order brought to Lord Raglan by a junior officer. The whole brigade of gallant British soldiers was slaughtered through an error in communication.

Research by William J. Coughlin in Harper's Magazine a decade ago disclosed evidence that a mistake in translation of a message sent by the Japanese government at the end of World War II may have triggered the bomb that blew up Hiroshima and ushered in the atomic age.

The word mokusatsu, used by the Japanese government in its reply to the U.S. surrender ultimatum, was translated by the Domei news agency as "ignore" instead of its correct meaning, "withholding comment until a decision has been made."

According to Coughlin, the Allies then decided to drop the Hiroshima bomb, unaware that their Japanese High Command was still considering the ultimatum, and believing that it had been rejected out of hand. This may have been the greatest (and most permanent) catastrophe created by the improper use of a word.

In current events it may turn out that Senator Goldwater's loose application of the word "extremism" proved a costly blow to his campaign. His friends have been busy explaining, and his enemies attacking, the connotations of that word in the political area. Certainly, the issue of "extremism" is crucial in the coming election, although it means different things to different people.

When asked by a Prince, "What is the first thing to do in ruling a nation?" Confucius replied: "To rectify words and correct language. . . If language is not correct, then what is said is not what is meant; if what is said is not what is meant then what ought to be done remains undone; if this remains undone, morals and laws deteriorate, and justice goes astray; if justice goes astray, the people are lost. . . Above all, there must be no confusion in what is said."

To Your Good Health
Physical Irregularity Common in Young Girls

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, M.D.

Dear Dr. Molner: My 15-year-old daughter has a menstrual problem. Some months she is four to eight days early. Other times she is as much as five days late. Three times she has had two periods in a single month.

I am having a blood test for her, as the periods are severe and she is always cold and tired.

Is this normal for such a young girl? Can you suggest anything else besides the blood test? — Mrs. T. P.

Such irregularity is not unusual in a young girl. Sometimes it takes several years before the cycle steadies down into a dependable routine. (And keep in mind that, although a 28-day cycle is average, it is quite normal for some to vary from this — 21, 30 or 35 days. Not average — but normal.)

As to your daughter's case, such variability is shared by many girls. In other cases, and this is not at all unusual, there may be lapses of several months between periods when the menstrual rhythm is beginning to establish itself.

Since she has frequent and heavy periods (and sometimes more than one in a month), a blood test or blood count is a wise precaution, to make sure that she is not suffering from anemia.

She will presently settle into a fairly fixed pattern, but just now it may need some medical assistance to keep her red blood cell count up. You are observant, to connect this with her being "cold and tired."

Your doctor may find the need for some other tests or measures. After all, the physician who sees the patient and notes all the symptoms is in the best position to know what is necessary. I am limited to such information as you give me in a letter. I try to give a doctor's view of the probabilities, but leave to your physician the necessary evaluation.

For example, thyroid medication often is helpful in stabilizing a cycle, and your doctor perhaps may check into this aspect. But it depends on what he observes, not my at-a-distance assumptions.

Dear Dr. Molner: My son's pulse is from 41 to 58. Does this mean there is something wrong with his heart? A year ago it was 72 to 74. He is 21 years old. — Mrs. C. O. D.

There is a slow rate of heartbeat, or bradycardia, (as compared to a rapid rate or tachycardia).

This may be quite normal. For we must always keep in mind, in matters of health and in so many other things, that average is made up of a lot of figures which are above or below the line.

In this case, the pulse rate deserves a check-up, perhaps (ECG) to determine whether any defect exists in the conduction of impulses which regulates the timing of heartbeat or pulse.

I predict (on the law of averages") that such a test will turn out to be normal. If so, and if your son has no other related symptoms (excessive fatigue, which could mean a slow rate of metabolism, or technical signs pointing to present or past heart disease) I would forget about the matter, since slower-as well as faster-than-average are not unusual.

Note to Mrs. J. T.: Ligation or stripping of varicose veins will correct the situation as regards those particular veins, but is no guarantee that other veins will not become varicose some years later. Repeating the surgery on the new varicose veins sometimes is necessary.

Today in History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oct. 21, 1964 . . .

A contract between the government of Canada and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company to build a trans - continental rail line was signed 84 years ago today—in 1880. When British Columbia joined Confederation in 1872 it demanded, as a condition, a railway linking all sections of the country because of fear of American aggression in the northwest and the need for eastern markets. The line was completed to the west coast with the ceremony of the last spike on Nov. 7, 1885.

1879 — U.S. Inventor Thomas Edison tested the first practical incandescent electric light bulb.

First World War

Fifty years ago today—in 1914—the German advance through Belgium to the coast was checked; the Battle of Langemark began; the German cruiser Emden sank four British steamships near Cochin, India.

Second World War

Twenty-five years ago today—in 1939—four German planes were shot down while attacking a British convoy in the North Sea; French and German armies shelled each other and the French reported command of two heights on German soil.

Over-Governed

Aylmer Express

Whatever happens when Ottawa gets down to redistribution, we hope the politicians will not yield to the temptation of merely sub-dividing crowded city constituencies so that the country ends up with say 283 members of parliament instead of the present 265. At $18,000 a year, 18 additional M.P.'s could be an expensive luxury in an already over-governed country.

It's Going to Be All Right

New York Times

Even sophisticated members of the present-day world will, from time to time, express a pang of longing for the comfortable, old-fashioned "family doctor." What accounts for this heartfelt craving? Do we wish the return of old-fashioned practices of medicine? No. We seek to recapture the child's faith, the feeling of wrnshipful trust in the kindly but gentle person who felt our pulse, laid a hand on our brow, and assured us, "It's going to be all right."

* * *

Who is there, besides the doctor, to satisfy our hankering for reassurance? Who has knowledge and skill that we have not? Well, there is the young man from the florist's.

The florist was summoned when the big potted Araucaria developed a dangerous tilt. The plant was a gift, and an impressive one. It was important to maintain it in health. On appointment, there arrived young Apollo, bearing a bamboo rod and a bag of equipment. The young man had a gentle but commanding presence. He examined the plant, pronounced it a fine specimen, said its soil was too wet in the bottom of the pot. The Araucaria would have to be stabilized.

With strong, sensitive hands (one expected surgeon's gloves) he thrust the bamboo rod into the soil. He bound the bamboo to the trunk of the little tree with hemp cords. Surely, in unskilled hands these procedures could have caused death to the patient, by severing the roots, by strangling the stem.

The pot received an infusion of new soil. A powdered bottle, filled with a vile-looking substance, was presented. This was the prescribed fertilizer, to be administered once each month. The young man gave careful instructions on watering, lighting, and preferred temperatures. He strokes of the Araucaria's branches and said, "Your plant should have a long, happy life here. It's going to be all right." From the presence of Apollo was gone. The house call cost $7.50.

"Tender, loving care" is no trite expression, but a benefice. Its practice and example may emanate from unexpected sources. The Bartlett children own a cat named Grady. When Grady developed mastitis, the veterinarian dispatched him as an animal hospital. Next day, Mrs. Bartlett telephoned the hospital to learn when she might bring the pet home. A nurse-attendant answered and said, "Yes, Mrs. Bartlett. Just one moment, please." Off the phone, the voice returned and announcing, "Report on Grady Bartlett!" Shaken, Mrs. Bartlett wondered if by some coincidence she had reached the animal hospital with a human patient instead of Grady Bartlett. She was still wondering when the voice returned, and briefly, "He's just fine, and don't you worry, Grady Bartlett is going to be all right."

Grady is all right. He has resumed his place in the family bed. He has used the use of the family's name.

* * *

A similar trust was inspired by the man who fixed the rocking chair that was loved and beloved. Generations of rocking had loosened its dowels and stretched its cane seat. The man was a specialist, a restorer of antiques. He examined the lovely chair with him in order to treat it properly. "It is a fine little chair," he said. He accented tones. "Do not worry about it. It is going to be all right."

The chair was returned several days later, superbly strengthened and restored. It cost $60; but after all, it had required hospitalization.

* * *

One should relax and rely on authorities like Miss Goodson of the street car. "Listen, darling," she said. "One thing I know is the fitting of feet. I am instantly years in selling shoes. You have been wearing shoes of the wrong size. You need a half size longer, two sizes narrower. Now, we will try this." Shoes slipped over on; the feet were at last properly encased. Miss Goodson smiled her sunrise smile. "So rejolce," she said.

We can indeed rejolce, for there is an abiding gift in calling upon experts. It is the rediscovery of faith in the message, "It's going to be all right."

FOOD KILLS 53

JAKARTA (Reuters)—Fifty-three persons have died after eating poisonous food in Pleren, West Java, the official Antara news agency reported Tuesday. Antara said the food was believed to have been fried with oil mixed with endrin, a poison used to kill rats.

Farmers' Union Elect Officers, Holds Banquet

Hastings District Annual Convention of the Ontario Farmers' Union and banquet was held at Springbrook hall, on Saturday evening. The meeting was chaired by the district director, Bernard Murphy.

NEW OFFICERS

The election of the 1963-64 co-officers was in charge of Ellord Powers.

District director, Bernard Murphy, Marysville; lady director, Mrs. Shirley Reid, Springbrook; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Gladys Rollins, Plainfield; sub directors, Lorne Mackenzie, Carman Gibson, Harold Murphy, Joe Schwager, Murney Bateman, Eugene Whalen, Jim Spry, A. B. Trudeau, Cliff Heath, John Cassidy, Pat Murphy, J. T. Burns, Joseph Murphy.

Lady Sub-Directors: Mrs. Jim Spry, Mrs. Floyd Meeks, Mrs. Freeman Howes, Mrs. Ken Jeffrey, Mrs. Burton Coulter, Mrs. Harold Murphy, Mrs. Lawrison Gunning.

Interesting items of the program consisted of a very well delivered and informative address on "Hastings County," given by the 1964 Dairy Princess of Hasting County, Miss Linda Gunning and several musical selections by Mr. Bob and Master Brian Cosbey. Young Brian is to be complimented on his mastery of guitar and accordion.

REPORTS GIVEN

Reports on the activities and progress of their respective locals were given by the following presidents: Mr. Delbert Mumby, of Springbrook; Mr. Harold Murphy, Marysville; Mr. Carman Gibson, Roslin; Mr. Joe Swager, Tweed.

Guest speaker, Mr. Ellord Powers, vice-president of the Ontario Farmers' Union, of Beachburg, Renfrew County, was introduced by Mrs. Jeanne Williams, provincial lady president.

Mr. Powers remarked that on the eve of the thirteenth year of existence in Ontario there has been an encouraging upsurge of membership in the union, which was indeed very gratifying. Because of this increase nine new locals have been set up in Lanark, Kent and Huron counties. Also that many of the Tobacco growers of Durham County had joined the ranks.

That farmers throughout the province were feeling the effects of the "price squeeze" was very evident, continued Mr. Powers and that the normally easy going farmers were meeting and being forced to take radical moves to survive in this fast changing rural scene.

TRY TO SEEK REMEDIES

He pointed out that Ontario was not the only area where uneasiness as to the future was felt. Ten thousand Quebec farmers had recently marched to the legislative buildings in Quebec City and there had been a withholding action for meat from market in the USA instigated by the National Farmers' Organization.

This is now the time to take a definite stand to analyze our situation and try to seek remedies for our ills.

Farmers could not continue to receive the depressed prices of an overloaded market and stay in business, the speaker continued.

Unless stringent production controls or more effective deficiency payments were impiemented in the near future we shall see eggs and hogs go the same way as the broiler industry and later, perhaps, not so much later, beef and milk production will follow.

After a hearty vote of thanks extended by the chairman there was a discussion period after which the meeting adjourned.

Missionary In Indonesia To Be Speaker

A missionary of The Christian and Missionary Alliance on the island of Bali will describe in a church missionary conference here the tragic results of the great volcano in 1963, in which 1,500 persons lost their lives.

He is the Rev. Rodger Lewis, a missionary in Indonesia since 1953, who will participate in the annual missionary convention in the Alliance Church, located at West Moira and Coleman Streets. Dates of the special emphasis in the church are October 25 to November 1st, with the public invited to all sessions which begin daily at 8 p.m. and at 11 a.m. and 7:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Welfare Programme Trespasses On Individual's Freedom of Choice, Sales, Ad Club Told

Government welfare programs are trespassing on the individual's freedom of choice, R. J. Stafford, assistant vice-president of the Industrial Acceptance Corporation charged here last night.

"Our freedom of choice in respect to welfare measures and our right to shoulder our own responsibilities should not be encroached upon further," he told the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club. "Otherwise the only important thing you will have to save for your old age will be yourself."

Continued extension of the welfare state could rob the individual of the initiative" "to work harder" and reflect on the general economy.

"In respect to income, in the U.S. a sustained boom is in progress augmented by recent income tax cuts and the possibility of further cuts.

"In Canada, with increasing government welfare measures, increasing payroll deductions and the prospect of more, consumers may become increasingly apprehensive." Consumer credit was essential to a private enterprise economy, which in turn is the basis of Canada's high living standards.

But, Mr. Stafford noted, government policy was developing credit plans.

"Government at all levels seems intent upon making the treasury the distributing house for money whatever the purpose."

PURCHASE CREDIT UPHELD

"Purchase credit is a product of modern living," he told the club. "It is a valuable mechanism in commerce, a fundamental part of the Canadian private enterprise system based on the principle that every Canadian has the right to save and accumulate wealth.

It is a birthright "if we so choose, to own a piece of Canada, build a fence around it and hang out a sign 'Private Property'. We also have the right to make any reasonable choice among Canada's greater consumer products to buy, own, keep and enjoy these things as part of our home."

"Private enterprise embraces the right of a man to go into business — to produce the best of his ability and enjoy the personal income that results. We all share in a joint responsibility to make this system work."

Consumer credit, he emphasized, is the system that allows Canadians a remarkable freedom of choice from among the world's production of goods and services."

While many countries now have great productive capacity, further development is blocked because of a lag in distribution and consumption.

"It is more than a coincidence that in those countries consumer credit is under-developed."

"It is this freedom of choice that is the basis of opposite to North America," said Mr. Stafford, "in Europe they have progressed to the age when credit was thought so reprehensible, even sinful, but there still is not the freedom of choice that exists in North America today."

Two major charges levelled against consumer credit were answered by Mr. Stafford: "those of enjoying easy terms and hidden costs."

"Just as there may be excesses in other things so will there be excesses in buying and excesses in the use of credit," said Mr. Stafford.

When consumers over-extend themselves it is all too often assumed that finance company credit is the problem. In actual fact they have run up debts at many sources and "have generally committed themselves far beyond their ability to pay."

Cause of the problem is not "one type of credit but a combination of mismanagement and lack of self-discipline."

A consumer also is told "in dollars and cents the cost of credit when he buys on a sales finance plan."

Club Urged To Observe Hunting Rules

A plea for observance of safety rules while hunting deer or other game was issued last night at the monthly meeting of the Belleville District Fish and Game Club.

President Bill Philp urged a membership crowd of some 250 to use care, caution and common sense while seeking the elusive quarry.

These three, he said, if used at all times, would prove big factors in the prevention of accidents if not fatalities.

The club offering a special prize of $25 for the largest deer (by weight only) shot by a club member this fall.

Mike Hogan, 362 Sidney St., won the grand prize of the evening a fine 30-30 carbine.

Pension Plan Bill Ready for Introduction

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson said Tuesday the resolution leading to legislation implementing the Canada Pension Plan will be on the Commons order paper within a few days.

The government has completed its draft of the legislation, he said.

Mr. Pearson was peppered with questions about the plan in the Commons.

New Democratic Leader Douglas quoted Premier Thatcher of Saskatchewan as saying in a Toronto speech that Canadians cannot afford new social security measures.

"Is this the view of the Liberal party and does it explain the delay in introducing the Canada Pension Plan?" Mr. Douglas asked.

Mr. Pearson said he hadn't seen the report of Mr. Thatcher's speech, adding that the views of the Liberal party on pensions "have often been expressed in this house."

Mr. Pearson said the resolution leading to the pension plan bill would be introduced before the end of October. Later, he said it would be introduced "in a few days."

Michael Starr (PC—Ontario) asked whether other negotiations would be needed with provincial governments.

"I don't think so," Mr Pearson said. "The legislation has been drafted."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Pearson sent a message of condolences to United States Ambassador W. Wallon Butterworth after hearing of the death Tuesday of former president Herbert Hoover.

Prime Minister's Wife Wants Home Atmosphere At 10 Downing Street

LONDON (AP)—Gladys Mary Wilson, wife of Britain's new prime minister, intends to bring the atmosphere of her suburban home to one of the most famous addresses in the world—10 Downing Street.

She has told friends that, even when statesmen and foreign dignitaries come to her door, she expects to keep the Wilson family life much as it has been for the last 18 years.

During that time, some for the Wilsons has been their four-bedroom, two - family house in London's Hampstead Garden Suburb. It is only a few miles from Downing Street but it might be in another world. There are trees on the side-walks and roses in the gardens.

Now there will be only the grim Portland stone facade of the foreign office across narrow Downing Street and a watchful bobby always at the door.

Even in the last few days of her husband's whirlwind election campaign, Mrs. Wilson managed to keep the curtains, color schemes or where to put favorite bits of furniture.

"We just haven't considered it," she told those who asked.

Mrs. Wilson, of the same age as her husband, once described herself at a press conference as "round - faced, snub - nosed, pear-shaped and a plain but enthusiastic cook."

She did herself less than justice. She has fair hair, corn-flower blue eyes, a peaches-and-cream complexion. She is gay, vivacious, gentle, gentle-voiced and intelligent.

Like her predecessor at No. 10, Lady Douglas-Home, Mrs. Wilson is a clergyman's daughter. Her father, a Congregational minister, now lives at Cambridge. As a girl, she attended a country boarding school for ministers' daughters.

Mary Baldwin, as she was then, was 18 and working as a secretary for a soap firm when she met a young Oxford graduate named Harold Wilson at their tennis club. They were married five years later when Wilson was an economics professor.

"He talked about 'going into politics when I'm old, around 35,'" she laughingly recalls. "It seemed so far ahead then."

"It was quite an upheaval," she said.

Mrs. Wilson writes poetry, but not for her husband to quote.

"When a poem is finished I show it to Harold. Then I put it away."

She is also a gardener, growing roses as a hobby. She finds arranging flowers is like poetry.

First of all Mrs. Wilson is a home body. Her first concern always is for her husband and their two sons—Robin 29, now reading mathematics at Balliol College, Oxford, and Giles, 16, who is at University College in Hampstead.

In addition to their Hampstead Garden Suburb home, the Wilsons have a seaside bungalow in the Scilly Isles off the southwestern tip of Britain.

Ann Landers

Silver Threads Among Gold Can Be Flattering

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I'm sneaking this letter into the mailbox because I don't want my wife to know I'm writing to you. Please don't double-cross me by printing the name of this city. I'd never hear the last of it.

When I married Hilda (not her real name) she was a stunner. She had a nice shape and her hair was like gold. I'm not complaining that she's gotten fleshy because the fact is I've put on a few pounds, myself. But I wish she'd quit trying to keep her hair the same color it was 40 years ago.

ANN LANDERS

Hilda doesn't realize that golden curls on a woman her age look brassy and artificial. When I suggested that she let nature take its course she said, "What—and look like your mother? Do you think I'm crazy?"

Maybe you can get to her, Ann. Please try. — IN COGNITO.

* * *

DEAR COG — It's surprising how many bright women don't know when to change the gold for silver.

Grey hair actually flatters a middle-aged face because it softens the lines. Some dolls would look years younger if they gave up already.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — I go with a real neat kid whose real name is not Bruce but I will call him that. Bruce plays football and is now a senior. The problem is that he goes to a rival high school. The feeling between our schools is very bad. The highlight of the season is the game when Bruce's school plays my school. The whole town goes wild.

Well, last year my school beat Bruce's school and he was so mad at me (like it was my fault) that he didn't call for nine days. When he finally decided to phone he was very nasty and we got into a big fight which resulted in another nine days of no speaking.

I'm afraid the same thing will happen this year. What can I do to keep peace? THROWN FOR A LOSS.

DEAR THROWN — Bench Bruce for the duration of the football season and go with basketball players. And tell the big baby that if he doesn't grow up he may never get back on your team.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS — Our 20-year-old son brought his girl home last night. She is pregnant and her parents threw her out. The girl will not be 18 until March. The baby will be born in January.

My husband is furious. He says the girl can't stay here. I know she has no place else to go. We have three children and no extra bedroom.

Our son has saved money so he can return to college next year semester but he now thinks he should marry the girl and use the money to pay her medical bills. The money is in my husband's name and he won't release it.

Can our son marry the girl even though he is not yet 18? Can she be married without her parent's consent? My head is swimming and I need someone to help steer this boy in the right direction. — OHIO HEARTACHE.

DEAR OHIO — A lawyer can answer your questions with respect to age and permission to marry. As for steering — I hope someone gets you started in the right direction, and soon.

What chance do you think this marriage would have? And what chance would the child have? I think the girl should go to the Florence Crittenton Home, put the baby up for adoption and make a new life for herself. Your son should go back to college and not let this one tragic mistake wreck his entire life.

Too many starry-eyed lovers do not know the difference. Do you? Send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Before You Marry — Is It Love Or Sex?", enclosing with your request 25c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Small Hats New Feature Of Showings

By PEGGY MASSIN

PARIS (Reuters)—Small hats and close-fitting hair styles are the most dramatic new feature of Paris winter fashions.

Neat, head-hugging millinery abolishes all height and volume at the top of the silhouette. The effect of the small head emerges as an integral part of the new look.

Kerchief and scarf hats are the dominant new trend, interpreted by every leading fashion house and specialized milliner in an individual manner. Kerchief hats have a casual do-it-yourself effect, though actually they demand skilful cutting and draping to avoid a bulky appearance.

Hubert de Givenchy featured kerchief hats throughout his entire collection, worked in everything from tie silk and wool jersey to mink. Fabric models were draped, like a Martinique turban. Many were made of Givenchy's own printed silk scarves.

Paulette draped scarf hats as deftly as her traditional turbans. She likewise endowed asymmetry with ends trailing down and across one shoulder.

Helmets and little caps that fit as snugly as a bathing cap shared top honors with scarf hats. They were the becoming answer to such flat-haired furs as mink or beaver, and generally hid every strand of the wearer's own hair, except the bangs.

Pierre Balmain showed snug beanies draped around the hairline. They were made of wool jersey to match the suit, blouse or dress, and had an optional muffler which passed through a slit at the nape of the neck and swathed the throat.

Lanvin featured supple skull caps and beanies ringed round the face with fur. All these hats, like the new dress silhouettes, were made without buckram or stiffening, and could be folded into a handbag or suitcase for travelling.

LADY BANK MANAGER — Gladys Marcellus is manager of a suburban Ottawa branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia. She became the bank's first woman accountant in Canada in 1958 and was promoted to her present managerial position in 1961. There are six women managers in Canada. Miss Marcellus started as a junior clerk in her home town of Chesterville, Ont., in 1942. (CP Photo)

Rose From Junior Clerk Woman Bank Manager

By BRENDA LARGE

OTTAWA (CP)—"I'd like to speak to the bank manager, please," said the businessman to the slender, blue-eyed blonde behind the wicket.

"But I am the bank manager," replied Gladys Marcellus with a smile.

This is typical of dozens of similar experiences the Chesterville, Ont., woman has encountered during three years as a bank manager.

"A few people still find it hard to believe that a woman can manage a bank, but by and most of my customers seem quite used to me," Miss Marcellus said.

Her employer, the Bank of Nova Scotia, was the first in Canada to promote women to the position, naming two in September, 1961. It appointed three more in 1962 and 1963.

"There are five of us altogether in the Bank of Nova Scotia and there is also one woman manager in the Bank of Montreal, for a total of six."

Miss Marcellus started in banking as a junior clerk in her hometown branch in Chesterville, 45 miles southeast of Ottawa, in 1942 and worked up through the ranks to become the bank's first woman accountant in Canada in 1958.

LIVES NEAR JOB

She was in Chesterville in 1961 when she got word from the head office that she was to become a manager in a suburban Ottawa branch.

Travelling to work in the morning is just a short ride down an elevator for Miss Marcellus, who lives in the same building in which she works, a big combination apartment-office building on busy Bronson Avenue.

She starts at 8:30 a.m. and usually stays till about 5 or 5:30. Besides administering the branch with its staff of 10, she talks to dozens of regular customers seeking advice on financial matters.

"I've never experienced any sort of prejudice against women in my work. The men keep coming back for advice, so I guess they must have confidence in me."

As for the women, they find it particularly easy to discuss complicated money matters with her.

Miss Marcellus admits she had no thought of staying on at the bank when she started. "In fact, I had been considering nursing, but I liked the work so much that I just stayed on."

Just as comfortable in front of a stove as behind a desk, Miss Marcellus loves to cook as well as ride herd on accounts. Her specialty — "chocolate cake; I have my own recipe."

Susanna's Family Fare

ON TAP

Dear Susanna: The other day my new neighbor thought she would demonstrate to me how bright she was by using a plastic ketchup squeeze bottle to fill her steam iron. Needless to say, it wasn't so brilliant at all, because she shouldn't have been using straight tap water in the first place!

Since then, I've conducted my own personal little survey (just like you do) and I'm simply amazed at the number of my acquaintances who accept the fact without thinking, that their steam iron keeps rusting; that it drips water when it shouldn't; that sometimes clothes are discolored from it; and that it generally acts in an ornery fashion.

None of them realized that all their troubles stem from the fact that they should be using a chemically treated water. It is an inexpensive colored liquid. You make it well in distribute the color and then fill your iron. After each time you use it you add tap water to the line until it is full. It lasts until the color disappears — which usually takes quite a few months.

So if many of your readers are experiencing problems with their irons from I'm sure my letter will be one of the most helpful items they have read today — and certainly should not be using straight tap water in their irons. — Mrs. O. O. Brady.

I bow to your great knowledge of esteemed colleague! — Susanna.

SPILLED NAIL POLISH

Dear Susanna: How can I remove nail polish from my bedroom rug? Please, please, the rewr scon as I'm trying to keep it covered with a scatter rug and I'm sure it's going to be discovered any day. I was tempted to try nail polish remover but am afraid of setting the stain in case it isn't the right thing to do. — Brida

Take heart my friendly, all is not lost. There is an easy-to-use drug store remedy called amyl acetate. It is to be applied to the stain a few drops at a time and, after several minutes, blotted up with clean white tissues or terry cloth.

And cheer up some more. Even the National Institute of Rug Cleaning says it's instinctive for women to reach for the remover if they spill polish, but that the use of nail polish remover on rugs and carpets can be disastrous to some of the new synthetic fibres now in use — SUSANNA

SAVE THAT WRAPPER!

Dear Susanna: I have a special container in my refrigerator for butter and margarine wrappers. When I remove one from a pound of spread I slip it in underneath the others. Then, when I need to grease a casserole dish or a pan for baking, etc., I use one or two of the top or however many are necessary for the job at hand. It's always surprising to me how much these penny-saving adventures mount up over the months. — Penny Saver.

Rest! Cheap and Neat! — SUSANNA

University Women's Club Hears Interesting Talk On Early Quinte History

Skulls and bones were a few of the rather startling examples of Reverend Bernard P. Squire's personal collection of 3,000 artifacts with which he illustrated his lecture on early Canadian history to the University Women's Club of Belleville and District at their October meeting. Mr. Squire of Consecon is a well known historical lecturer and archaeologist.

At the outset of his talk Mr. Squire regretted that preoccupation with United Empire Loyalist history in this area, which dates back a mere hundred and eight years, has in some ways been responsible for the apathy and indifference to our much earlier history and pre-history. Various peoples have been calling the shores of the Bay of Quinte "home" for more than 4,000 years. A 4,000 year old hammered copper adze unearthed in this district indicates an advanced culture at that time. A 2,000 year old skull in perfect condition differs noticeably in shape from one approximately 400 years olds, and testifies to the ebb of cultures throughout the centuries. Although absorbed in the stories of pre-history developed from his archaeological findings, Mr. Squire is thoroughly familiar with the habitations of the district in recorded times.

INACCURATE HISTORY

Mr. Squire conducted a swiftmoving tour through the long years of the comings and goings of Indian tribes, interspersed with the travels of Champlain, Radisson and Frontenac. All of these in their time were as familiar with the landmarks of our Quinte area as we are today. In passing, he suggested that the teaching of history to our children might be a little more historically accurate. For example the head-dresses of Plains Indians, teepees and birch-bark canoes are to be seen in Algonquin Park, where in fact the Algonquins were no headdress, used outdoors on boughs because hides were scarce, and used elm-bark, or in some cases, dug-out canoes.

NAME CHANGED

Names too have changed with the changing populations. The French were responsible for "Quinte" which denoted a fifth milestone of some kind from Fort Frontenac. The name did not derive as some think from the Indian Kente village on Weller's Bay, which was a lake until the advent of a hurricane in 1852.

Trenton was at one time known as Tanawate, and the Moira as Rivière de Barbu.

He concluded his talk by describing the trips he has taken on the various trails over which the Loyalists found their way to the Adolphstown area and other settlements along the Great Lakes. Having settled on Consecon Lake himself, he feels they could not have made a better choice of "home".

The Rev. Squire was introduced by Mrs. D. I. MacKinnon and thanked by Mrs. Pearl Hilton and the president, Mrs. R. E. Barrett.

SCHOLARSHIP WINNERS

During the business meeting which preceded the address, Mrs. R. G. Walsh announced the 1952-54 scholarship winners as follows: University Women's Club Scholarship, $300, Miss Sally Macdonald, B.C.I.V.S.; Manly Macdonald Scholarship, $300, Miss Elizabeth Corke, Moira Secondary School; Beverley Macdonald Scholarship, $300, Miss Beverly Muscher, Trenton High School; Ontario Intelligencer Scholarship, $200, Miss Barbara Quinn, Tweed - Hungerford District High School.

Three members of the club, Miss Muriel Gibson, Mrs. G. E. Boyce and Mrs. Gordon Kelley attended the C.F.U.W. Triennial Conference in Winnipeg in August. Mrs. Boyce has been appointed Regional Director for Ontario East.

It was announced that Mrs. A. S. Lewis, a past-president of the club has been appointed by City Council to the Board of the Corby Public Library.

READING GROUP

The opening meeting of the Reading Group will take place at the home of Mrs. J. H. Bateman on October 26, the theme being the "Sino-Soviet Split".

The bridge group has already conducted one refresher course at the home of Mrs. R. A. Pringle, with Mrs. J. E. Pugh instructing. The opening party will be held at the home of Mrs. H. W. Burns on October 22, and regular games are expected to commence by November 1st.

The membership approved the appointment of a Centenary committee to work in liaison with the C.F.U.W. on their centennial project on the editing of a book comprised of histories of ten outstanding Canadian women, written by Canadian women authors. The committee members are Mrs. John Haig, Mrs. D. L. Mackinnon, Mrs. G. E. Boyce and Mrs. R. L. Graham, chairman.

Refreshments were served by the social committee at the conclusion of the meeting.

The regular Women's Missionary Society meeting of the Wesleyan Methodist Church was held at the home of Mrs. Lyla Veteary, Bridge St. East, on Thursday evening.

The singing was led by Mrs. Doris Cummings, assisted by Mrs. Ann Bateman at the accordion. The president, Mrs. Jean Locklin, conducted the devotional period. Then the resignation was read of the treasurer, Mrs. Leila Hurst. Words of appreciation were expressed for the 22 years of faithful service with a life membership to the society. Mrs. Helen Spearman was elected to succeed her. Claims Girls Feel Unwanted In YWCA

TORONTO (P)—The Young Women's Christian Association was told Tuesday that girls with deep - seated problems avoid YWCA residences because they find the atmosphere cold and impersonal.

Speaking to the National YWCA Council's annual meeting here, Phyllis Haslam, executive director of the Elizabeth Fry Society, said these girls now feel totally unwanted in the residences.

She asked delegates attending the week - long meeting to supervise registration desk personnel more closely, urging them not to be too busy when a new girl comes into the residence.

Bringing Up Baby

HINTS COLLECTED BY MRS. DAN GURNEY, MOTHER OF 5

A nice doctor I know told me recently: "Of course baby care is a serious business, but sometimes mothers take it too seriously. As a consequence, they often develop a kind of nervousness which is easily transmitted to a baby and the baby may develop a corresponding nervousness. So mothers who laugh with their babies, and preserve composure, are the most successful ones."

Points to remember: Grim determination to see that baby "licks the plate clean" may turn a naturally eager eater into a mealtime rebel. Food served with a smile usually gets a good reception.

There'll be baby-smiles to spare when you feature a Cerbur Strained or Junior Meat Dinner. For these hearty dishes have 3 times as much succulent meat as our regular combination dinners. Add to this extra energy, garden-grown vegetables and noble seasoning and you have "casserole dishes" with exceptional flavour character.

P.S. Apart from the eating pleasure your baby will have, Gerber Meat Dinners are chock full of wholesome goodness . . . give a mighty "helping hand" to growth.

Super Sopper Plan
(A la Gerber)
Veal Meat Dinner
Sweet Potatoes
Vanilla Custard Pudding
Formula or Milk

Strengthening Influences. Overall sunlight will stay put longer if you sew them on with elastic thread. Sweater buttons will be more secure if you reinforce thread at center of button with clear nail polish.

Sent to Sickie. Don't forget that Gerber Baby Cereals provide special nutritional boosters right through the toddler stage. They are excellent sources of iron to help build good red blood . . . vitamins, riboflavin and niacin to aid appetite and growth. Calcium is also added. Five delightful varieties. Disclosure Of Credit Costs Urged

OTTAWA (CP) — Mandatory disclosure of credit costs in both dollars and simple annual interest was requested by the Consumers' Association of Canada Tuesday.

In a submission to the joint Commons - Senate committee on consumer credit, the association also asked that two other means of consumer protection be made law.

1. Maximum charges of two per cent a month on the first $300 and of one per cent on all balances from $300 to $5,000 should be established for small loans.

2. A "cooling off" period of three days to allow reviews of contracts for non - store instalment sales should be implemented.

Mrs. V. Wilson of Montreal, chairman of the association's committee on planning and organization, said these steps are necessary for the benefit of uninformed consumers acting on impulse under the influence of powerful advertising.

Mrs. King Thinks Things Will Be Much Better Now

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — "I wish we could remain on this mountaintop forever," Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. said of her reaction to her husband's winning the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize.

"For the past 10 years, we have lived with the threat of death always present, she said in an interview.

Since 1954, when King began preaching non-violence as a tactic in fighting segregation, he has been jailed 15 times, stabbed once, threatened often, has seen Negro churches in ashes and, while a resident of Montgomery, Ala., was in his own home with his wife and their first child when it was rocked by a bomb blast.

"I think things will be better now," said Mrs. King, a slender, attractive woman with long hair. "There are so many people of goodwill; this award will give them encouragement to accept what is the law of the land."

Since her childhood days in Perry County, Ala., where she was born, Mrs. King said she has been determined to do something worth while in the fight for civil rights.

SEEKS COMPASSION

"I want my children to grow up in a world full of compassion and concern," she said.

In 1947, Mrs. King—then Coretta Scott—left Alabama and entered Antioch College in Yellow Springs, Ohio. She was intent on a singing career. A few years later, while studying voice in Boston, she met the young Baptist minister who was to become her husband.

"A mutual friend phoned and said she wanted me to meet a very promising young minister from Atlanta," she recalled.

Eighteen months later they were married. Since then, Mrs. King, a former voice instructor, has sung at concerts for numerous civil rights organizations and when possible has accompanied her husband on his trips in behalf of civil rights.

"With four children, this isn't always easy to do," she said. The children are Yolanda, 8, Martin Luther III, 7, Dexter Scott, 5, and Bernice, 18 months.

HOUSES MENAGERIE

"A wife needs to be as committed as her husband to his cause," Mrs. King said. "But it has been hard on the children. I've tried to explain to them that their father is trying to help people and I think the children are beginning to understand.

"One day our daughter Yolanda heard a newscast that her father had been arrested in Albany, Ga. I tried to comfort her but she kept on sobbing.

"Then to my delighted amazement, Marty, who was then only about three, came to my rescue.

"'Don't cry, Yoki,' Marty told her. 'Daddy's gone to help more people. He's already helped some, but he has to help some more. When he finishes, he'll be back.'"

On Edge of Arctic Ocean Women's Institute Returns To Goals of Many Years

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—At Tuktoyaktuk on the edge of the Arctic Ocean, the Women's Institute is returning to the goals on which it was founded 57 years ago.

When what was to become an international organization was founded at Stoney Creek, Ont., in 1897, Adelaide Hoodless saw WI as an answer to the need for educating rural housewives and improving health standards.

Over the years the work of WI has broadened. But now, in the Far North, its original aims are being given new meaning.

At Tuktoyaktuk most of the WI members are Eskimos and their project for the dark winter months will be to learn how to use paper patterns in making clothes for their families.

There now are 11 Indian and Eskimo WIs in the Northwest Territories with 200 members and the institute sees the region as a fertile territory for expansion.

Florence Eadie, who became a WI field worker after retiring from a job as supervisor in the Ontario department of agriculture, spent three months this summer and one last summer hopping around the Mackenzie River district in both planes and cowboats.

FOUR YEARS OLD

The first WIs in the region were started four years ago by Mrs. William Hough, titas Eadie's mission was to find likely communities for new groups and to nourish those already operating.

"I was expected to assess and evaluate needs and interests in a community and make recommendations and programs for them," Miss Eadie said on her return to Toronto.

The work is underwritten by a UNESCO gift coupon program sponsored by the national WI.

Miss Eadie's first step at each place was to make contact with the community leaders — Indian, Eskimo, white, male, female—and ask their opinion on whether it was ready and needed WI. Not all the communities she visited were ready, especially since a new group won't survive unless it has a core of strong leadership.

Miss Eadie emphasized that WI is not trying to change the values of Indian and Eskimo women just for the sake of change.

"I think we should change these people to the extent that it improves their health and happiness at home. But, for instance, if they want to sit on the floor why should we change that?

"One project we talked about this year which some of the WIs are trying to feature is a campaign to have the children clean, rested and given breakfast before they go to school."

START WITH CRAFTS

Miss Eadie says an institute often begins as a sewing or craft group. If it stresses crafts and want to sell its work, the leaders concentrate on establishing standards to improve the workmanship.

A WI will also try to keep old crafts from disappearing. Miss Eadie has some samples of moose hair embroidery which one group is working on.

The branches also hear talks by the local nurse, sanitation officer and teacher.

Several of the northern units had adopted the WI's national centennial project to make Canada lovelier, with a pick-up, clean-up, tidy-up campaign.

One community has become an incorporated village and its WI members are being urged to keep alert to legislation and planning which affects homes.

WIs are at different stages of interest and development in the North. The group in Fort Smith, N.W.T., with four years of experience, has begun to organize planned programs — a garden club for young people or a luncheon for a girl celebrating her receipt of Canadian citizenship.

Friends Honor Couple on 35th Anniversary

THE GORE — The fine weather of Thanksgiving Sunday made an ideal setting for the anniversary gathering at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver to honor Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks of Stirling, R.R. 4, on the occasion of their 35th wedding anniversary.

Miss Sandra Green presented a corsage of baby pink tea roses to the "bride" and Mr. Ronald Green a carnation boutonnaire for the "bridegroom." These were pinned in place by Miss Linda Pulver.

Mrs. Morris Pulver invited the guests to the buffet dinner table which was covered with white linen and centred with a wedding cake, crimson carnations and pink tapers. Mr. Clifford Green, Indian River, who was groomsman at the wedding, shared the head table with the honored couple.

After dinner the guests enjoyed visiting and reminiscing and many snapshots were taken.

Mrs. Kenneth Green spoke briefly and the surprised couple were presented with a gold colored frieze swivel rocker for, which they expressed their thanks.

Master Kevin Brooks and John Pulver made the presentation of a white guest book from the grandchildren.

Guests present were: Mrs. Stanley Brooks, Melville; Mrs. Arnold Mastin, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Brooks and Leigh, Melville; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Green and Shirley, Indian River; Mrs. Kenneth Green, Centre; Mr. and Mrs. Glen Brooks, Keith and Kevin, River Valley; Mr. and Mrs. Morris Pulver and family.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH PARISH GUILD

The regular meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held on Tuesday afternoon with a fine attendance of members and several guests. Highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of moving pictures of Egypt by the Reverend H. Berry of Kingston. Village life in Egypt was well portrayed, showing types of homes, methods of agriculture, and family activities.

Although these pictures were taken some years ago, Reverend Berry explained that life in the villages is still most primitive and much help is needed.

Rev. Berry was introduced by Miss Sarah Berry and thanked by Mrs. Earl Hickey.

Members enjoyed meeting Canon R. B. deBlois Wright and Mrs. Wright, the new rec or of Christ Church and his wife.

Reports were given by all conveners; Mrs. Boyd for cent-a-meal, Mrs. Lazier for wedding receptions and Mrs. Noakes for remembrances. Reporting for the Church property committee, Mrs. Hickey said that the re-decorating of the outside of the church had been completed and that the inside work had begun, all to be finished in time for Christ Church's centennial.

The Guild will attend Corporate Communion together on Wednesday morning, November 11th at 10.15 o'clock.

Tea was served by the hostesses for the afternoon, Mr. Green and Mrs. Hinchey.

Made With Cheese It's Sure to Please

By MARY MOORE

Last July I outlined the dinner menu served on the occasion which celebrated the 100th year of cheese-making in Canada.

Merely seeing the menu made such fascinating reading that I promised to give you some of the recipes when they were reduced from 100-serving amounts to family size. Since the National Dairy Council and its affiliated agencies have designated that October is cheese month, the appropriate time has come for me to keep my promise.

Breast of Chicken Mornay is an epicurean dish which every cook who can read this column can make.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Ham Slice with Raisin Sauce; Squash Soufflé (see Tuesday); Green Limas; Cole Slaw with Seedless Green Grapes; Pumpkin Pie; Coffee.

BREAST OF CHICKEN MORNAY (6 servings):

3 whole chicken breasts (that is 6 halves), 4 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons finely chopped onion, 4 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon poultry seasoning, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 2 cups milk, 1 egg, ¼ cup light cream, 6 thin slices cooked ham, 6 slices Canadian processed Swiss cheese, ½ cup fine breadcrumbs, 3 tablespoons butter, melted.

Simmer chicken breasts, covered, in small amount of water until tender — about 30 minutes. Remove skin and bones and slice each breast in 3 even slices. Melt butter in heavy saucepan. Saute onion until lightly browned. Blend in flour, poultry seasoning, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in milk and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until smoothly thickened. Remove from heat. Beat egg with cream and stir into hot sauce and cook, stirring constantly, a few moments longer. In broad shallow buttered baking dish layer alternately chicken, ham and cheese. Cover with sauce. Combine breadcrumbs and melted butter and sprinkle over top of casserole. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes.

The above mouth-watering dish was served to over 100, of us, piping hot, and was a smash success.

TOURNEDOS FAVORITE (6 servings):

6 filets mignon (½" thick), 3 tablespoons butter, 6 slices of Tilsit cheese.

Saute filets in melted butter until cooked as desired — rare, medium or well-done. Cover each filet with a slice of cheese and broil until the cheese is melted and lightly browned. Serve at once.

The above recipe both call for cheese which is cooked. But often cheese is served as is, to taste its best, it should be served at room temperature, not directly from the refrigerator.

The Experts Say

How to Buy and Care For Fur Coat Outlined

By JEAN SHARP

TORONTO (CP)—Unless you have above-average knowledge of fur quality you should buy your coat from a furrier and one with a good reputation, says a Toronto manufacturer.

"You must have confidence in the individual you are buying a garment from," says Bernard Dorfman. "With that you will usually get good service and a coat with good wearability. If you buy a bargain you get what you pay for."

Lustre, silky texture, pliability of the leather and uniformity of color are all signs of good furs, but unless you're an expert you will need to compare them with other furs.

Buy the best quality in a fur you can afford rather than poor quality in a fur too expensive for your budget, Mr. Dorfman says. Then be sure to buy something you really like, not something that may be swish but does nothing for you.

"The basic things are that the fur should flatter the woman and that it should fit. A fur coat has a certain amount of weight. It must balance and fit well or it will not be comfortable. It should feel as if it is hers when she tries it on."

If you're tall you can wear just about any fur but if you are under five-foot-five you may look best in an Alaska seal, Persian lamb or broadtail, Mr. Dorfman says.

If you're a girl try something a bit flamboyant, but not too expensive or you might look as if you're wearing your mother's coat. Newly fashionable lynx, long-haired raccoon, mouton and dyed rabbit are possibilities.

MUST BE LABELLED

If you're not certain what a fur is, look at the label. Federal law requires that it be identified—the label that says mouton will also say dyed lamb. And a good furrier will take the time to explain a fur to you.

Once you get the fur home, Mr. Dorfman says, there are a few simple rules for caring for it.

Don't wear heavy jewelry that will rub the fur. And don't attach jewelry or flowers with pins that will puncture the skins or rub the top hairs.

Don't put perfume directly on furs; the alcohol in it will stiffen guard hairs.

Don't brush or comb furs; shake them out. If they're damp, hang them to dry in a cool place where air can get at them. If you leave a fur near heat, both fur and leather will become brittle. If your coat gets soaked through, take it to a reliable furrier for treatment.

Don't use sprays to mothproof furs; have them cleaned regularly by a fur specialist and stored during warm weather in storage vaults. Don't store in a plastic bag because air can't circulate and the leather will dry out.

Have rips or tears repaired immediately.

Use a broad shouldered hanger for furs in a closet, and give them enough room to keep them from getting creased or crushed.

SPEAKING of MANNERS

PATRICIA LEWIS

WEDDING MANNERS

"I've been invited to a wedding and reception. What do I do when I get to the church? Is transportation provided to the reception? Do I mingle with other guests and talk with them or must I wait for introduction?"

In answer to many letters, here are some tips on etiquette for wedding guests.

Guests should arrive at the church in plenty of time to be seated without causing a fuss up at the door and delaying the start of the ceremony. If ushers are pressed, they will show the way to the correct pew. A woman is escorted down the aisle by the usher, and her husband follows a step to the rear. If there are no ushers, guests attending for the bride sit on the left and those for the groom sit on the right.

After the ceremony, guests get to the reception on their own power. Transportation is provided only for the bridal party and possibly a few special friends and relatives. And there is no need to rush. Guests should allow the bridal party time to have pictures taken and to form the receiving line.

If guests should arrive ahead of schedule, it's permissible to take a glass of champagne if offered. The glass should be parked somewhere, though, before going through the receiving line. The receiving line is a "must," and failure to pay respects to the hosts and the bride and bridegroom is considered quite rude.

LIKE HOUSE PARTY

Generally, the reception is similar to any large house party and guests behave accordingly. It's permissible to speak to fellow guests without a formal introduction.

If refreshments are served buffet style, guests may sit anywhere they choose. If it's a sit-down luncheon or dinner and there are place cards, guests can find out their table number at the door and then take places assigned. If there are no place cards, then guests may choose their own tables.

It's a good idea for guests who may not know the families and their friends too well to linger until tables are almost filled and take seats remaining. Often a group of friends will decide to sit together and "fringe friends" might feel like intruders.

Guests should remain at the reception until the bride and bridegroom leave, and should not linger long afterward unless specifically invited to do so by the bride's parents. Before leaving, guests should say goodbye to their hosts. A note or a phone call to the bride's mother a day or two later is not considered essential, but it is a gracious way to wind up a wedding.

BACK TO THE SEA

OSLO (AP)—Norway is finished as a fishing nation unless means can be found to keep young men on the vessels, former fisheries minister Reidar Carlsen says. He says the average Norwegian fisherman is between 30 and 40 and about 3,000 men have dropped out without replacement by younger men.

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Did you put out their bread crumbs this morning?"

Speaking Personally

By Gladys Ward

WEEP NO MORE

Well, I see by the paper that that old bucket of tears, that hardy television perennial (to mix a few metaphors) Queen for a Day, has finally had the decency to draw its last sobbing breath and expire — and please omit flowers.

This is the program where winning depended on how much sympathy a contestant could drum up out of a stony hearted audience, certified through years of listening to soggy performances, and believe me, you had to be in pretty miserable circumstances to compete on that level.

As each one in turn came forward and told her sordid little story, Master of Ceremonies Jack Bailey capered around in a frantic and kinetic effort to whip up enthusiasm for the fun and games.

The lachrymose contestants waited their turn sitting teary-eyed and morose at what looked like the mourners' bench. In fact, Bailey's effort was like someone telling funny stories at a funeral.

Then pretty models paraded around wearing soms of the loot while the mourners gazed at them with covetous eyes.

Finally the judging took place on an "applause meter" with the audience cheering like crowds in the Coliseum at Rome when the Christians were thrown to the lions.

The lucky one who had had the best misfortune was led forward, a crown planted on her head, a robe draped around her shoulders, a bunch of roses thrust into her arms, and then she was told to "Smile! You're having your picture taken for the papers!"

And what of those left sobbing and deserted on the shore as the queen sailed away with a sea of goodies? Dunthecilly.

Just a minute until I wring out this soggy handkerchief, and then we'll weep no more today.

READING, ANYONE?

Anyone who has read this column will know that I have a strong bias towards Canadian authors. I feel that they rank with some of the best of other countries. Some of them are Canadian by adoption, and some were born here, but all have contributed to the literature of Canada and I have read them with pleasure.

They date away back to Suzanna Moody who wrote of the pioneer days in Belleville, through Ralph Connor (Rev. Charles Gordon), L. M. Montgomery, Stephen Leacock, Mazo de la Roche, Judith Robinson and many others.

Among contemporary writers I have enjoyed some names that come to mind are Morley Callaghan, Gabrial Roy, Bruce Hutchinson, Hugh MeLennan, Malcolm Lowery, J. R. McConchie, Farley Mowat, Pierre Berton, Kildare Dobbs, Eric Nicol, and now I add Margaret Laurence to this list.

She is the author of a book called "The Stone Angel" which I have just finished reading. The main character is a ninety-year-old woman. This is a warm human story told with wit and understanding.

The author gets right inside her heroine and looks out through ninety-year-old eyes, denying the feebleness of her years, trying to preserve her independence, yet wanting to be cared for, slipping back through the years as memories and sleep overtake her. Even though her world narrows until it encompasses only herself and her pills, her spirit shines through. It is a truly delightful story.

Imitation Has Always Been A Form of Flattery

DEAR DORIS — My younger sister copies me constantly. If I cut down an old dress to a new style she does exactly the same. If I get my hair cut so does she. She even tries to wear her hair in the same style as mine.

When we go out together she waits until I decide what to wear then wears the same thing. If ever I suggest that she wear something else equally as appropriate or suggest a new hair style that would be more flattering to her younger face, she just glares and tells me to mind my own business.

DORIS CLARK

Lately she has begun to flirt with my boy friend when he comes to see me. Tony discourages this but she still persists. What do I do about this? She is only 13 and has not gone on any dates with boys yet. — BIG SISTER.

DEAR BIG SISTER — Let her copy you. Haven't you heard that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery?

Confidential to MRS. A.B.C. — Sometimes a woman feels her doctor knows her better than her husband does. To her this is a unique experience; to him the human body is his stock in trade. Even when he adds to this a special kind of understanding, both patient and physician should know that too much is at stake to do anything but maintain a professional relationship.

Is it possible your doctor is leaving for post graduate studies to avoid trouble — with you? Did you really need those once-a-week visits? Now is your chance to turn your full attention to the "wonderful man" you chose for life. Thankfully!

DEAR DORIS — A few years ago I lent my son and his wife some money to buy a house. They said on the note for a while and then my daughter had to quit work as she was expecting. They have had two children and had some bad luck and never paid me anything.

He is now working and has a good job. I am not able to work and need the money so asked them to start paying me on the loan.

Now this is my problem: They say that they haven't paid me anything for seven years so the note is no longer valid. Is this true? Is this the law? — A WORRIED MOTHER.

DEAR WORRIED MOTHER—Simple contract debts are outlawed in six years. But these ungrateful — and dishonest — children of yours could get their come-uppance if the law were to get after them to help support a needy parent! Consult your legal aid resource.

DEAR DORIS — I am interested in trapeze. Would you please send me some information about trapeze and where you go to train. — GRADE NINE ATHLETE.

DEAR ATHLETE — You need training in gymnastics first. Trapeze work calls for a slim, agile body, and a lot of hard training to perfect rhythm, balance and total muscular co-ordination. Sources of help: your gym teacher, school coach, or local Y.M. or Y.W.C.A.

(Is it a choice of career that's troubling you? Write for Doris' leaflet, "Choosing a Career." Enclose ten cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope.)

In Tuesday's debate, the minister introduced several amendments at the request of opposition MPs and dropped a few that ran into stiff opposition.

The main provisions approved:

1. Each commission must hold at least one public hearing to receive submissions from any interested person or group, before recommending changes in the electoral map;

2. The commissions must give at least 30 days public notice before opening hearings; interested persons must notify the commissions seven days in advance of their intention to appear and of their views in brief;

3. Once a commission's report is tabled in the Commons, any 10 MPs who object to the contents can force a debate within 15 days;

4. Such debates would end without a vote and the Speaker would refer the report back to the commission for reconsideration;

2,000 Copies Globe and Mail Are Stolen

TORONTO (CP)—Police said more than 2,000 copies of The Globe and Mail were stolen from street corners here early Tuesday.

The thefts were discovered when carriers boys waited in vain for their bundles, they said. The wrapped bundles were taken from 36 street corners.

The Globe and Mail, a morning paper, is one of three Toronto daily papers affected by a strike of the International Typographical Union (CLC). The Globe and Mail, The Star, and The Telegram have continued to publish since the strike began July 8.

Many of the papers were later found strewn in ravines and creeks.

Soviet Relations, Nuclear Control Basic Issues in United States Election

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
AP Special Correspondent

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the foreign policy battle between Senator Barry Goldwater and President Johnson two sharply debated issues tower above the rest. One is the nature of U.S. relations with Russia. The other is control of nuclear weapons.

Primarily because of the involvement of these two issues the current campaign has generated one of the most searching and bitter election wrangles over foreign policy years ago. the United States became the leading world power 20 years ago.

Central to the dispute is the question whether Barry Goldwater or Lyndon B. Johnson would be more able as president in the next administration to lead the United States and its allies in curbing Communist power without triggering a nuclear war.

Defeating Communist aims while preserving peace is an avowed objective of both men. Their argument is over how to achieve it. Both their personal fitness to provide leadership and their policy ideas have been drawn into the debate.

Goldwater recently called the war in South Viet Nam "Lyndon Johnson's war" and said it was being lost because of weakness, indecision and indirection. Johnson has usually declined to discuss Goldwater by name, but he recently spoke out against any "trading, raving demagogue" and his partisans have attacked Goldwater as a man who shoots from the hip.

THE TWO-PRONGED POLICY

But the debate turns mainly on policy proposals. With respect to Russia and the Communist countries generally, Johnson has summed up his views in the statement that "our guard is up, but our hand is out." He aims at removing East-West differences and easing tensions by agreements where possible encouraging divisions within the Communist bloc.

Goldwater says communism is "the enemy" and he advocates much tougher U.S. policies toward Communist countries, including drinks "manship" and a threat to withdraw U.S. recognition from Russia.

He has dismissed divisions within the Communist camp as of little significance to the United States and says he doesn't "give a darn" who wins the historic struggle between Russia and China because "we are still going to have communism as our enemy."

In the field of atomic arms Goldwater has advocated stockpiling small "conventional" nuclear weapons for NATO forces in Europe and putting them under command of the NATO supreme commander, an American general.

Johnson flatly disagreed, insisting there are no "conventional nuclear weapons" and asserting no president can "divest himself of the responsibility" for the fateful decision on using nuclear weapons.

BLANKET CRITICISM

Goldwater's attacks on administration foreign policy sweep over the whole range of world problems. He has accused the Johnson administration of weakening the nation by "unilateral disarmament."

He called for an "effective economic-military blockade of Cuba" and once suggested sending U.S. marines to turn on the water for Guantanamo naval base when Fidel Castro had turned it off. Johnson's action was to make Guantanamo self-sufficient in water.

Goldwater has also denounced the limited nuclear test ban treaty concluded last year as assuring Russia certain advantages in the arms race. He has spoken out against foreign economic aid and questioned the usefulness of the United Nations unless it is changed substantially.

Johnson has discussed foreign affairs in the campaign less than Goldwater. His practice apparently results in part from a pre - campaign strategy decision and in part from the availability of others in the government to speak out on his behalf. The strategy decision reported to have been made early this year, was that his strongest foreign-policy appeal to voters would be "world peace." He makes that the main theme of every foreign-policy statement.

The lines of disagreement over nuclear weapons control have been clearly drawn in several public statements.

SEES LOOSE ALLIANCE

Goldwater has said NATO is in "disarray" and claimed "the administration has failed to provide for full allied participation in the planning of NATO strategy and the deployment of its forces, including appropriate nuclear weapons."

He branded the administration's proposal for a seaborne multilateral nuclear force as a sop rather than a solution." The force would be jointly owned and manned by several countries but use of the weapons would remain subject to a U.S. veto.

Goldwater called for training all NATO forces in Europe in the use of tactical nuclear weapons. The supreme commander of NATO, he said, should "have direct command over a NATO nuclear force, trained, ready and equipped on European soil."

In a speech at Cleveland Aug. 28 Goldwater renewed his proposal and described the weapons which he would place at NATO's command as "what may truly be called, and ultimately will be called, conventional weapons."

Johnson gave his reply in a speech at Detroit two weeks later.

"There is no such thing as a conventional nuclear weapon," he said.

"For 19 peril-filled years no nation has loosed the atom against another. To do so now is a political decision of the highest order, and it would lead us down an uncertain path of blows and counter-blows whose outcome none may know. No president of the United States of America can divest himself of the responsibility for such a decision."

The argument subsequently led into public discussion as to whether presidents had in fact delegated some authority to the NATO and perhaps other theatre commanders to employ tactical nuclear weapons under war conditions if they found it impossible to get a presidential decision.

Goldwater partisans contended the senator's position was close to the actual practice. Johnson administration aides argued there is a wide gap between providing for extreme contingencies and giving direct control over tactical nuclear weapons to the NATO commander.

tell statements claiming mishandling, and five others stated they had seen other reporters being pushed about.

"It is remarkable how one eye - witness could say whether there had been provocation."

His personal study made "widely, objectively and impartially, now that the hysteria has passed," and based on files and reports from police and journalists, indicated to him that three reporters had "a hostile and provocative bearing that led them, now to be martyred or bludgeoned, but to be pushed back with several light blows of a baton."

The batons were 24-inch-long hardwood sticks.

Mr. Wagner's report was made as a result of uproar over alleged police brutality during the royal visit.

13-Year-Old Mother Will Face Charge

CORNWALL (CP) — Police said the parents of a 13-year-old girl whose baby was found hidden in a barn eight hours after birth Monday have been charged with abandoning a child under 10 years.

They said the charge after finding the baby, a boy, wrapped in newspapers in a car in a barn on the parents' farm near Lancaster, a rural community 10 miles east of here.

The parents, whose names were not released, were expected to appear in court next Tuesday.

Going steady?

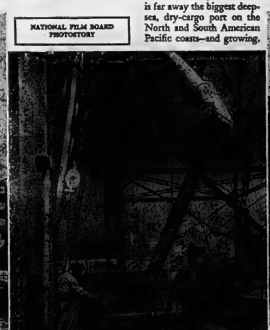
Port of Vancouver - Leader in Pacific Trade

Giant of Ocean Commerce

Firebot No. 2 of the Vancouver fire department has capacity to pump 15,000 gallons per minute — equivalent of 10 land pumpers. Harbor receives more than 20,000 vessels annually.

In Vancouver—busiest port on the eastern fifth of the Pacific—business is booming. The world's number one wheat port, Canada's western gateway to the Orient and far corners of the earth is also a broad funnel for a mighty stream of varied products for export. Potash from Saskatchewan, lumber from the home province, British Columbia, chemicals and coal from Alberta—even goods from faraway Ontario flood through her smoothly-running portals. The largest city of the province that does more business with the world at large than it does with the rest of Canada, Vancouver, British Columbia, is also the natural shipping centre for the trading products of half of Canada. With 17,000,000 tons of cargo passing annually through this vigorous ocean terminal, Vancouver is far away the biggest deep-sea, dry-cargo port on the North and South American Pacific coasts—and growing.



Control station, above, set fair and square in lofty central position on Lion's Gate Bridge across Burrard Inlet, has overall view of marine traffic.

Sawn lumber is loaded aboard freighter. Over a million tons of planks, boards, flooring and square timber is shipped from Vancouver annually.

Neutralism, Non-alignment Suspect Words in West, Have Mystic Appeal to the Reds

MOSCOW (CP) — Neutralism and non-alignment, suspect words in some Western circles, have a mystic appeal to Soviet Communists. To them the words have a tranquil, reassuring sound.

The conference of non-aligned powers in Cairo Oct. 5-11 strikingly underlined this feeling. Though Russia was not represented at the conference it was an enthusiastic supporter of all its deliberations.

The Soviet press went overboard with glowing accounts and lavish editorials, and Nikita Khrushchev sent a special message of greeting to the delegates.

Soviet leaders evidently see great possibilities for self-advancement in encouraging such conferences and in promoting non-alignment — bitter day-term for neutralism—as a political philosophy. They view the movement as a ready-made instrument for achieving their cold war aims.

In not-so-subtle ways they contrive, mainly for Afro-Asian consumption, to equate the interests and objectives of the uncommitted nations with those of the Soviet Union, and to place Western states in opposition to them.

"Their (non-aligned nations') positions are close to, and often coincide with, the foreign policy line of the Soviet Union and other Socialist countries," President Mikoyan said recently.

QUOTES GOLDWATER

The Soviet attitude toward neutralism is frequently contrasted with right-wing circles in the West. Communist party newspaper Pravda quotes the late U.S. secretary of state, John Foster Dulles, as describing neutralism as an "immoral and non alignment, suspect conception," and Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater as calling it "im moral."

"Washington has long been conducting an active policy against non - alignment," Pravda says.

Through much of the Soviet press commentary runs the suggestion that pro-peace and anti - colonialism are virtually the same thing.

"The essence of the foreign policy of the nonaligned states lies in the organic unity of struggle for peace and active opposition to colonialism," Pravda said in an editorial the day the Cairo conference opened.

At times Moscow's identification with the neutralist powers prompts such a feeling of confidence that it decides it can preach to them.

Thus Izvestia, the government newspaper, boldly told the Cairo conference delegates that "firm resolution and steady action" were required to solve international problems and cautioned lest "the desire not to offend" get the upper hand.

Obviously the Russians feel certain that in most showdowns they and the neutrals will be voting on the same side.

Newfoundland Govt. Assists Families in Remote Places To Move to Larger Centres

ST. JOHN'S Nfld. (CP)—Before 1830 the British government forebade settlement in Newfoundland.

To escape expulsion some settlers built homes in out-of-the-way places along the island's 6,000 miles of coastline.

A century and a half later many of their descendants are finally leaving — voluntarily.

The Newfoundland government's policy of centralizing population has in the last six years resulted in abandonment of 98 communities whose 1,345 families have shifted to larger centres.

Under the Evacuated Communities Act each family receives $600 from the government to help pay the cost of moving. However, every family in a community must agree to move before the government will approve assistance.

The aim is to bring residents of isolated settlements to larger centres where they can be more easily supplied with roads, electricity, medical facilities, education and employment opportunities.

GO BACK TO FISH

K. M. Harnum of the welfare department, which administers the act, says people who have moved may go back in summer to fish or for vacation but are not allowed to return permanently unless they refund the money.

The $600 frequently does not cover a family's entire moving expenses, he says, but the money is intended only as "assistance."

Latest census figures show 316,531 of Newfoundland's 457,853 live in centres of less than 5,000 population. In remote villages, mainly on the southwest and northeast coasts, populations of under 100 are common.

People were moving to larger centres on their own long before government assistance became available, Mr. Harnum says.

Many of the abandoned communities are on islands which during half the year are cut off from the mainland by storms and ice. There is no electricity, hospitals or doctors. Often there are no teachers available for the one and two-room schools.

Only way for seriously ill persons to reach medical aid is by aircraft.

SOME STAY

Other villages in isolated parts of the mainland were in almost as bad a position. It was not practical to extend electricity or roads to hamlets of a dozen or so families.

Some of the reasons advanced by people for wanting to remain in isolated nooks are purely sentimental. Mr. Harnum said it was typical to hear someone say "Poor old father is buried up there on the hill and I'm not going away and leave him."

When people leave their homes and move to another settlement they usually are welcomed by established residents Mr. Harnum said it's recognized that an addition to the population of a community will mean more and better public services.

He said the newcomers often prove to be a different type of people than those already there. They almost always are moving from a place where frugality and hard work was necessary to live.

Consequently they are likely to prove more industrious and independent and therefore give their adopted community a shot in the arm.

LBJ Regarded As Civil Rights Champion

By JOHN CHADWICK

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Lyndon Johnson and Barry Goldwater had been the Democratic and Republican presidential candidates 10 years ago. The Arizona senator could have expected to run away with the civil rights vote.

But now, in the topsy-turvy world of politics, President Johnson is regarded by civil rights advocates as their champion and his Republican challenger as their foe.

This is largely because Goldwater voted against the far-reaching 1964 Civil Rights Act, pushed through Congress with Johnson's strong support after a long and bitter struggle.

Adding to the irony of the situation is the striking parallel between the positions taken by Johnson and Goldwater on the 1957 and 1960 civil rights measures, the first passed by congress since reconstruction.

They voted then almost like twins.

Goldwater first entered the Senate in 1953, the year that Johnson became Democratic leader. Johnson had been a senator from Texas since 1949, after 12 years in the House, and had an unbroken record of opposition to civil rights measures.

Goldwater was regarded as an integrationist in Arizona, where he was credited with helping to eliminate segregation in the state national guard, in Phoenix public schools and restaurants, and in his family-owned department store.

Johnson, on the other hand, consistently supported the southern position in opposition to civil rights measures for 20 years beginning with his vote against an anti-lynching bill in 1937.

He voted against anti-lynching bills again in 1940 and 1956 and against federal anti-poll tax bills in 1945, 1949, 1945, 1947, and 1950. And in 1946 and 1950 he voted to block action on civil rights bills.

When a draft extension bill was before the Senate in 1950, Johnson cast two votes designed to limit the effect of President Harry S. Truman's executive order for the desegregation of the armed services.

In a speech in Austin, Tex., in 1948, Johnson said that "this civil rights program about which you have heard so much is a farce and a sham—an effort to set up a police state in the guise of liberty."

A turning point in Johnson's career came in 1957 when, for the first time, he voted for a civil rights bill—a cut down version of legislation recommended by President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

As the leader of the Democratic majority, Johnson played a key role in steering the bill to passage. It was largely a voting rights measure, although it also provided for establishment of the civil rights commission and a civil rights division in the justice department.

UNESCO Votes Nationalist China to Seat

PARIS (Reuters) — The UNESCO general conference voted Tuesday to keep Nationalist China seated in its assembly rather than admit Communist China.

The conference endorsed by 50 votes to 35 a credentials committee resolution introduced by the U.S. delegate, approving Nationalist China as the Chinese delegation.

France, which recognized Communist China last January, was among the 18 countries which abstained when the resolution was put to the plenary session.

Russia, which took the initiative during the credentials committee meeting in trying to seat a Chinese - Communist delegation, called on the general conference to expel the Formosan delegates and admit Peking representation instead.

Russia was supported by the Communist bloc, Arab nations and Cuba.

Premier Agrees to Withhold, Review Legislation Opposed By Mayors, Reeves Assoc.

TORONTO (CP) — Premier Robarts was reported Tuesday to have agreed to review a piece of government legislation after the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves objected to it.

The association asked the premier not to proclaim formally into law portions of a bill that would reduce the powers of municipal planning boards and enhance local committees of adjustments.

Mayor Gordon Stronach of London, president of the association, told reporters after a meeting with the provincial cabinet that the premier had agreed to withhold and review the legislation.

The mayors and reeves complained that committees of adjustment were not responsible to municipal councils for their decisions and should not be given the added powers as proposed by the bill. No elected representatives may sit on committees of adjustment.

By contrast, planning boards had to answer to their municipal councils, and a majority of the members of the planning boards could be councillors as well.

What the legislation proposed to do was remove from the planning boards the power to give subdividers consent to transfer parcels of land of less than 100 acres in size to subdividers at present must seek such consent before going ahead with subdivision projects in municipalities which have passed bylaws of subdivision control.

While the whole matter is highly technical to the layman, municipal councillors have been up in arms over the legislation ever since the municipal affairs department announced that it planned to transfer to the committees of adjustment the power of giving consent to subdividers.

The main function of committees of adjustment is to make minor alterations in zoning bylaws.

The mayors and reeves told Premier Robarts:

"In the association's view this particular piece of legislation adversely affects municipalities because it transfers certain power from the elected representatives of the people and places it in the hands of a committee which does not hold itself accountable to the people."

Municipal Affairs Minister Wilfrid Spooner said in the legislature in May the action was being taken for legal reasons and because the granting of consents fitted in with the work of committees on adjustment. On the other hand, the main function of planning boards was to prepare official plans.

However, he told reporters Tuesday his department was doing some rethinking on some sections of Bill 132 and there might be amendments to it.

The wide-ranging Bill amending the Planning Act was given third reading at the last session of the legislature, but sections of it dealing with the transference of power into committees of adjustment have not been proclaimed into law.

Saw Accused Fill Bottle With Coal Oil

TORONTO (CP) — Kenneth Witherow, 34, of West Lorne, Ont., claimed he would turn that community into a "ghost town" before he was finished with it, Deputy-Judge Harry Robertson testified Tuesday in Ontario Supreme Court.

Witherow has pleaded not guilty to a charge of non-capital murder in the fire death last Nov. 3 of Frank Welch of West Lorne, 25 miles southwest of St. Thomas.

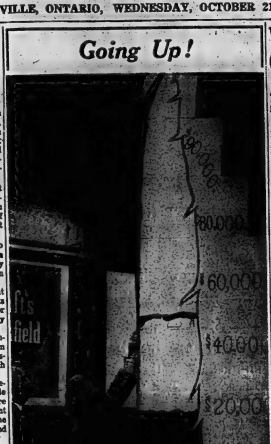
Robbins said Witherow also told him he could demolish a West Lorne flooring factory "with dynamite or burn it down with fuel oil."

Witherow also claimed that "you could do pulls he gets $500," and another $500 for every partner with him, the boy said.

The schoolboy testified Witherow made the claims to him shortly before a fire was discovered in a building in which Mr. Welch lived.

Robbins said he saw Witherow fill a green wine bottle with coal oil while they were visiting Jack Lay's apartment in West Lorne. The last time he saw the bottle it was behind Mr. Lay's stove.

As he was going home, he picked back and saw Witherow pick up a green wine bottle and put it in his shirt, he said.



Robbins, under eyeglasses in court, told Mr. Stafford he was farsighted.

Prosecutor Crown Attorney Peter Glois that he had not worn his glasses at the time of the fire.

"Before you got your eyeglasses, did you have trouble seeing objects close up or at a great distance?" asked Mr. Glois.

"At a great distance," the boy replied.

The trial continues.

PAINTING THE RED FEATHER to the $50,000 level yesterday were Mrs. Luzietta Stirland and Harold Cummings of Stewart-Warner. Together they managed Stewart-Warner's in-plant United Appeal campaign to a record total of more than $1,800, more than $200 over the target. The red feather, built on the Ben Sade property at Bridge St. and Jaycee project, indicates the progress of Belleville United Appeal campaign.

Reaction to China's Nuclear Blast May Give Clues to Possible UN Membership

OTTAWA (CP)—The external affairs department is scanning the world reaction to Communist China's nuclear detonation for clues as to what this may portend for possible Chinese membership in the United Nations.

The chief worry in Ottawa now, informants indicated Tuesday, is not so much the question of Red China winning a UN seat but how such a decision would affect the United States, traditionally opposed to Chinese admission.

In other words, little advantage is seen in Chinese membership in the UN if this widens the gulf between the U.S. and China and creates a new gulf between the U.S. and countries favoring Chinese membership.

Informed sources said Canada wants to help end the isolation of Red China but not at the expense of isolating the U.S.

For nearly a decade, long-term Canadian policy on this question has been aimed at timing a Canadian vote in favor of Chinese entry into the UN and Canadian recognition of China so as to assist in paving the way for similar U.S. action.

But the point now may have arrived where Canada can no longer wait for the U.S.

External Affairs Minister Martin said Friday the question of China's admission to the UN cannot long be postponed and that the Chinese nuclear explosion emphasizes the need for China being brought into discussions and discussions.

Mr. Martin said May 22 that the extent of any changes in Canada's policy will depend on not become apparent until the government sees what developments occur at the UN Assembly.

These developments now may be expected to lead on the reaction of UN members, especially the Asians and Africans, to the Chinese nuclear test, informants said.

The assembly is scheduled to open Nov. 10, though the start may be postponed to Nov. 24 to allow UN leaders in Moscow and Russia time to assess their international positions.

Father of Four Sentenced to Life Term

WELLAND (CP) — Ronald George Stewart, 25-year-old father of four, was sentenced Tuesday to life imprisonment after pleading guilty in Ontario Supreme Court to a reduced charge of non-capital murder in the shooting death Aug. 26 of Claude Barbara.

Stewart was originally charged with capital murder but the charge was reduced after two psychiatrists testified he was incapable of performing a planned or deliberate slaying.

Mrs. Stewart died in their east - end Welland apartment after two bullets from a .32-calibre pistol passed into her head.

A psychiatrist testified that Stewart had had an unstable childhood which caused him to react violently when spurned by a woman.

Evidence showed Mrs. Stewart had threatened to leave her husband a few days before the shooting.

Stewart told neighbors to call police immediately after the shooting.

Other witnesses said Stewart paced a 22-calibre rifle in for $10 two days before his wife was shot.

U.S. Promptly Extends Policy to Southeast Asia

By ARCH McKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The United States promptly has extended its policy of nuclear deterrence to Southeast Asia following China's first nuclear test.

This seems implicit in a pledge by President Johnson to non-nuclear nations of support against any "blackmail," it is being suggested.

Such support parallels the nuclear deterrence theory accepted by Russia in peaceful coexistence.

The pledge was one of four parts of a program, announced in a Sunday broadcast to the U.S. and the world, regarding what the president called the "lesson of Lop Nor." Lop Nor was the site of the Chinese test.

He said the lesson is the hard to the world from nuclear spread. But the U.S. pledge is also aimed at shoring up any fear on the U.S. allies in Southeast Asia.

Johnson said this: "The nations that do not seek national nuclear weapons can be sure that if they need our strong support against some threat of blackmail, they will have it."

Linked with that pledge, he said, is U.S. determination to continue support for the limited test-ban treaty signed by the U.S., Russia and Britain. He singled out China in a call for nations to join the treaty. Peking has given no indication of clear power outside it.

Also specified by the president were efforts to extend the ban to all nuclear tests including those underground. He is believed to have had about a dozen nations in mind to making his guarantee on support against blackmail, but particularly, India.

No country has been more apprehensive about Chinese nuclear growth in view of the uneasy peace existing on the northern frontier. As well, the Chinese test coincided with the removal of Nikita Khrushchev, who had aligned Russia on India's side against China, as a been a good friend in other ways.

The U.S. is anxious to head off any Indian decision to throw itself into the nucleay league too.

While the president has emphasized the dangers of nuclear spread—"What if there should come to be 10 nuclear powers or 20?"—some observers feel that the U.S. has been working hard and with some success to muffle the general impact of China's nuclear accomplishment.

For example, there have been numerous predictions that the first test wasn't far-away, as recently as Sept. 29 by State Secretary Dean Rusk.

That robbed the actual blast of a lot of its surprise element The president says there also have underlined the argument that a great gap exists between first testing and a nuclear weapon, not to mention building up stockpiles of such weapons or effective system for transporting them to targets.

In any event, it is stressed, U.S. nuclear capacity would continue to maintain its wide lead over China.

HEADS STATION

OTTAWA (CP)—Group Capt. Robert A. Ellis, 44, of Clairmont and Trenton, Ont., commanding officer of RCAF Station Downsview at Toronto for the last 2½ years, has been named commander of RCAF Station Uplands at Ottawa, defence headquarters said Tuesday. He replaces Group Capt. L. Gillespie, who retires next month.

Will Seek Public Funds for $228 Million Steel Mill

QUEBEC (CP)—Some details of the financing of Quebec's planned $225,000,000 steel mill now are known although the site of the $90,000-ton-a-year plant has not been picked.

Gerard Filion, managing director of the General Investment Corporation which will build and operate the plant, said Tuesday the firm will go to the public for funds late next year or in early 1966.

He told a Montreal press conference public participation will be sought through offering of bonds and debentures common stock packages in units. The corporation, set up by the Quebec government to stimulate industry, will control between 45 and 49 per cent of the common stock.

The corporation is organizing the integrated steel plant and financing its initial operation $25,000,000 invested by the Quebec government.

Mr. Filion and Rene Leveque, Quebec resources minister, have stated they favor Becancour as the mill site. It is on the main St. Lawrence navigation channel 90 miles northeast of Montreal and the corporation has taken options on land there.

However, consulting engineers have strongly recommended Contrecoeur, a heavily industrialized district just east of Montreal because it is closer to the major metropolitan market.

C. H. Drury, executive vice-president of the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, said in Toronto on Tuesday that Sydney, N.S., and other steel-producing centres in Canada will feel the effect of the Quebec steel mill.

"Another competitor in any market is sad will have an effect, but the announcement was worded in such general terms that we have been unable to assess exactly what it will mean" he said.

Mr. Filion said no discussions with iron ore producers were held because "there is certainly enough ore in Quebec to meet our needs."

COOK LOST SMELL

LONDON (Reuters)—A London court judge Tuesday awarded £1,600 ($4,800) damages to Mrs. Jeanette Marie Carmina Hensley, 41, an enthusiastic home cook, who lost her sense of smell and taste after a road accident. The court said: "For a lady with a skill for cooking this is a serious matter."

Says RC Church Must Study World Problems

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Speaker at the Vatican ecumenical council said today the Roman Catholic Church must pay more attention to the problems of the world—poverty, juvenile violence and commercialized sex.

The world-wide assembly of the church's leaders debated for a second day a session designed to find out if the council faithers who spoke recommended that the document—which centers questions ranging from birth control to nuclear warfare—be accepted as a basis for further discussion.

But bishop after bishop indicated that the document be revised to produce stronger and clearer statements on major issues.

Will Curtail Campaign to Attend Funeral

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

President Johnson and Republican vice - presidential nominee William E. Miller have curtailed their election campaign schedules to attend services for the late president Herbert Hoover.

Hoover died Tuesday in New York at the age of 90. His body will lie in state at the Capitol in Washington from Friday until Sunday.

Meanwhile, Republican presidential nominee Barry Goldwater is to be introduced tonight at a rally in Philadelphia by Pennsylvania Governor William W. Scranton, who battled him for the Republican nomination.

Also tonight Goldwater makes a televised speech over the ABC network on recent international developments.

Democratic vice - presidential candidate Hubert H. Humphrey stepped up his attack on Goldwater as he campaigned in Illinois and Indiana, saying that in no recent years did Republican views "more dangerous to the safety of all Americans than in Barry Goldwater."

In New York, officials of the NBC TV network were scrambled to confer on the election campaign film—scheduled for showing Thursday night—in which a Goldwater campaign aide said is designed "to depict the immoral acts which has occurred in this country."

Russell Walton, public relations director for the Goldwater film, acknowledged Tuesday night that scenes showing a girl in a bikini bathing suit and photographs of a man in a fig leaf had been cut from the film.

Democratic national chairman John M. Bailey called the film "the sickest political program to be conceived since television became a factor in American politics."

Certain Types Birth-Control Pills Can Be Used by Members of R. C. Church

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Roman Catholic spokesmen in Toronto and Montreal say use of certain types of birth-control pills by members of the church is permitted as a means of improving the church - approved rhythm method of family planning.

Rev. Frank Stone, director of the Catholic Information Centre in Toronto, said Catholic couples making a specific request for advice about family control have been told since a decision of last summer that they can use pills.

The pills, issued under various names by different manufacturers are designed to regulate better the menstrual cycle so the woman's fertile and infertile periods can be plotted more accurately, Father Stone said Tuesday.

He said Most Rev. Philip F. Pocock, coadjutor archbishop of Toronto, told clergy about the approval last summer but added no final decision had been made by the church.

"The whole issue is under discussion in Rome and the archbishop won't make any statement until it is settled as far as Rome is concerned," Father Stone said.

"An international group of Catholic laymen has petitioned the Pope and the Ecumenical Council to reappraise the church's teaching on birth control. The church now holds it is wrong to prevent conception by artificial means.

In Montreal, Tuesday, Rev. John McConnell, vice-president of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Montreal, said the pills are used as a means of making the menstrual cycle regular, not as a method of contraception.

"Theologians consider an irregular cycle as an illness in a certain way," Father McConnell said. "Nature provides that the cycle be regular and if it is irregular it is not according to the perfection of nature."

Therefore, he said, use of pills is seen as a method of curing an illness.

He compared the use of pills in a system in use among some Catholic couples here since 1959 in which they are instructed in a method of plotting the woman's cycle by recording her temperature daily. Sex is restricted to reinforce the rhythm method of control.

Dr. John Rock of Boston, a Roman Catholic who helped develop the contraceptive pill, told Canadian television viewers Sunday night he is convinced use of the pill by married women does not conflict with church doctrine.

Church spokesmen did not name any drugs that could be used.

Various combinations of drugs are issued to regulate the menstrual cycle or for postponement or for both purposes. Hormones produced by the animal ovary, estrogen and progesterone, taken in sufficient quantity will inhibit the production of eggs in the human ovary. They will also regulate the menstrual cycle.

Other combinations are designed to correct irregularities in the cycle. The ingredients of these drugs depend on the cause of the irregularity — boosting or inhibiting the action of the adrenal, thyroid, pituitary or ovarian glands as the case demands.

However, the drugs that prevent conception are also generally the most effective in making the menstrual cycle regular.

Some drugs supplied to regularize the menstrual cycle also act as contraceptives, pharmacists and doctors say.

British Drug Houses in Toronto, a supplier of stibestrol, says the question whether the drug is a contraceptive as well as regulatory is controversial at present.

Dr. Leighton Smith, a medical spokesman for Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison Limited of Montreal, makers of his firm's drug premarin:

"The drug premarin and other estrogens in the doses normally used for cycle regulation do not inhibit ovulation (fertility). However, high doses of premarin and other estrogens may inhibit ovulation. . . ."

HAMILTON (CP)—A birth control clinic operated by the Planned Parenthood Association of Hamilton is prepared to refer all married women from social service agencies for the first time in the city's history, a clinic spokesman said Tuesday.

Mrs. L. F. Merrik, an executive member of the clinic, declined to name the agencies sending women for advice because "they may get into difficulties."

The Criminal Code makes it illegal to disseminate information on birth control or anything designed to prevent conception.

City Welfare Commissioner James Attwood says his department does not provide birth control supplies but "if women inquire we tell them where it is."

Women Now Outnumbered By Men

OTTAWA (CP)—That old story about women outnumbering men in Canada is no more—at least not in Canada.

A bureau of statistics report on Canada's estimated population at June 1 this year according to sex and age groups places Canada's population at 18,238,000 with 9,089,200 men and 9,537,800 women.

These figures show a surplus of 161,400 men, mostly in the younger age bracket.

Men outnumber the women in all groups up to 34 years, and although women in the 25-29 group total 1,000,000 to 986,800 edge, the men lead again in the 30-39 and 45-65 age groups.

Women assert their superiority in longevity, outnumbering men in the age group over 65.

The figures also show that 9,469,100 persons in Canada—more than one-third of the population is under the working age of 15.

Almost three-fifths, or 11,-169,500, are in the working ages of 15-64, while 7.6 per cent, or 1,468,400, are in the retirement ages of 65 and over.

On the whole, Canada's population has increased by 5.5 per cent since the 1961 census. The population under the working age grew by six per cent and the retirement ages by 5.3 per cent.

The low birth rates of the 1930s now are affecting the 25-29 age group, the report says. Both these groups decreased by 2.5 per cent since 1961.

Amongst the provinces, Newfoundland has the highest proportion of children under 15—41 per cent. Quebec and Ontario have the highest proportion of the working ages—60 per cent.

Prince Edward Island has the highest proportion in the retirement group, over 10 per cent.

A total of 9,699,200 Canadians are masculine, while 9,537,800 are feminine.

Commons Flag Committee Goes Into Seclusion in Ottawa Area to Study Issue

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons flag committee plans to seclude itself among the bright autumn foliage of the Gatineau Hills north of the capital in a final effort to reach a decision on a flag design this week, a source not connected with the committee disclosed.

The spot picked for the crucial meeting of the 15 members, who have been considering for about committee proceedings, is the summer residence of Commons Speaker Alan Macnaughton near Kingsmere, where Mackenzie King once had a summer home.

The committee is reported to be still striving to reach near-unanimity on a design for the Falling selection of a design which would have the support of the 3 to 2 majority needed. But a majority is reported prepared to recommend the three-leaf design announced in 1959 by A. D. Jackson, 82-year-old member of the famous Group of Seven Canadian artists.

The Jackson design, explained to the committee by the artist himself, has three red maple leaves on a white background with a wide, wavy blue bar at top and bottom.

Reports that most committee members favor the Jackson design were discussed by the committee Tuesday. It is among 30 or 40 designs to which the committee has narrowed a field which at one time totalled nearly 4,000.

The committee has been instructed by the Commons to report by Dec. 28.

The committee's emphasis on finding a design acceptable to all or nearly all members arises from a determination to make th. recommended design a parliament-wide one rather than a flag identifiable as the choice of one or other of the political parties.

Because the Jackson flag h in some ways similar to the design proposed last spring by the government, it was thought likely to get backing from enough members to command a majority composed of Liberals, New Democrats, Social Credit and Creditistes.

However, Parliament said if it has not yet been rejected by the five Conservatives on the committee since the start of the effort still is aimed at a design on which virtual unanimity could be achieved.

The government's design, which the committee was told was produced after referen- to the Jackson design and some years later, was three red maple leaves on a white ground with a vertical blue bar at each side.

Newfoundland Sending Its Young Fishermen to School

By DAVE BUTLER

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Newfoundland College of Fisheries has no intention of trying to teach its students how to fish—only how to fish more efficiently and profitably than their forefathers.

Many of the 200 young men who donned the dark blue sweater with bright crest issued by the school have already been out in boats of their father's boats. Now the college wants to educate them to the degree where they can derive all the benefits from a life at sea.

With an initial grant of $1,000,000, the school opened here last year to an expected annual class of about 150. With seven departments, the school offers more than 50 courses, from net - mending to marine electronics and bacteriology.

This year's class of 200, which began studies Sept. 28, is using the most modern equipment and getting the benefit of knowledge of experts from half a dozen countries.

The only set qualification for admittance is that the candidate must be at least 16. The curriculum was made flexible so that whatever formal schooling a student has had he can start at his own level.

EXPENSES PAID

There is little if any cost to the student. Meals and lodging are provided and he receives $7 a week throughout the course. If he has been working he can forgo the expenses and draw unemployment insurance. Travel expenses to and from the college are paid by the school.

The cost is shared by the Newfoundland government and Ottawa through the Technical and Vocational Training Assistance Act.

The school's seven departments are: nautical science; naval architecture; fish process technology; marine engineering; physics, mathematics and electronics; English, and extension services.

It offers candidates the opportunity to take department of transport examinations leading to certificates of competency as masters, mates or engineers in the merchant marine or coast guard.

The academic year is broken up into four semesters of about three months each so that maximum use can be made of the facilities.

TALENT FROM ABROAD

The provincial government brought lecturers and instructors from Norway, England, Japan, France, Romania and schools in Newfoundland. The college now has five senior lecturers, nine lecturers, 27 instructors and three assistant instructors.

Cyril Rankbih, director of administration, says he sees a great future for Newfoundland fisheries but feels the fishermen will have to obtain further education to benefit from it.

The North American market for seafood products will increase 30 per cent over the next 20 years, he adds.

"These facts alone call for aggressive plugging and positive action. The college of fisheries is dedicated to capitalizing on this need and this opportunity."

The school's president is William F. Hampton of St. John's, who graduated from Dalhousie University, Halifax, and has a PhD from McGill University.

While acting as director of research development for General Seafoods in Boston, he directed the team that developed fish sticks. He later spent several years as chief of the fish processing section of the Food and Agriculture Organization in Rome.

On completion of required courses, students will receive either a diploma of technology or a vocational certificate, depending on level of training and length of time spent in school.

The technology diploma will require two or three years of study and is expected to provide engineers for industry. The vocational certificate, particularly aimed at inshore, fishery operations and those already employed in the industry will be given for shorter courses.

Uncertainty Clouds Outlook In U. S. for Farm Programs No Matter Who Is President

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Great uncertainty clouds the outlook in the United States for federal farm programs after the presidential inauguration next January—whether the chief executive is President Lyndon B. Johnson or Senator Barry M. Goldwater.

Both the Democrat and Republican parties have put forth rather vague farm planks in their platforms But the candidates of both parties have issued statements or made speeches indicating that they would approach the agricultural problems of low farm incomes and costly surpluses in a somewhat different manner than advocated by their parties in the past.

Since the 1930s, Democratic administrations have espoused strong farm policies—some employing rigid production controls—in order to meet these problems. Republicans, on the other hand, have pledged less control and greater reliance on what they call a free market system to stabilize agriculture.

Johnson and his vice presidential running mate, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey, are committed to the continuation of farm programs of one kind or another.

Goldwater is committed to elimination of these programs. In his case, the only question is when he would do this.

MODIFIED STAND

Before this news story, Gold water was on record favoring their repeal—and without qualifications. But since he was named by the Republican convention, the senator has said that he would not withdraw them immediately, but over a period of five to 10 years.

Certainly, while he was in Congress, John's supported legislation for strong farm aid programs. But Goldwater like many fellow Republicans, advocated their elimination.

The Republican nominee did vote for some of the farm proposals of former President Eisenhower, but his recommendations were in the direction of eventual repeal.

In drafting the party's platform, the Democratic conventions have given the candidates a relatively free hand to make changes from current farm plans. Unlike most previous platforms since the days of the Roosevelt New Deal, the 1964 versions did not go into details.

Four years ago, Senator Gruening, for instance, offered what turned out to be a controversial supply-management plan under which the government with producer approval, would have invoked tight controls to hold production of most farm commodities in line with demand

EMPHASIZES DISTRESS

But the supply - management approach ran into trouble in Congress and was never able to get off the ground. The Kennedy - Johnson administration has softer approaches, mainly the use of big subsidies to encourage farmers to down production voluntarily.

The Democratic farm plank offers this time commodity programs that would "increase farm income structure and reach the goal of parity in every aspect of American agriculture."

It offered also consumer programs — including the food stamp plan, school lunch and other surplus food programs, acceleration of research into new industrial uses of farm products and efforts to reduce food costs.

Goldwater, in a pre-convention book entitled The Conscience of a Conservative, called for "prompt and final termination of farm programs." He said they represent an unconstitutional intrusion of the federal government into agriculture that has failed dismally to solve the farm problem.

TOO MANY FARMERS

The book went on to say that there are too many farmers and that the only way to "persuade" them to enter other fields of endeavor is to stop paying inefficient farmers for produce that cannot be sold at free market prices."

"What has been lacking," Goldwater's book said, "is not an understanding of a problem that is really quite impossible not to understand, but the political courage to do something about it.

"Doing something about it means—and there can be no equivocation here—prompt and final termination of the farm-subsidy program."

Since his nomination, Goldwater has stated that he goes along with the Republican convention farm plank. In this, he said he favors government price supports or subsidies designed to achieve orderly marketing within the framework of the dynamic American market system.

"Price - support programs," he said, "should be voluntary and should be established for specific commodities, in order to widen markets, ease production controls and help achieve increased family incomes"

He also endorsed subsidies paid in surplus farm products and diversion programs and adequate government credit for farmers

Entomologist Defends Use Of Pesticides

VANCOUVER (CP) — An entomologist said Monday if farmers stopped using pesticides "we'd get a wide range of wormy fruits and rotten vegetables and some crops like carrots or onions might disappear."

But Dr. B. N. Smallman, head of the biological department of Queen's University in Kingston, said chemical pesticide must be replaced if possible.

Dr. Smallman is here for the annual three-day conference of the Entomological Society of Canada of which he is president-elect.

He said in an interview the "hottest thing" in entomology today is how to deal with the increasing number of insects able to survive insecticides and pesticides.

Cyprus Trouble Spot Belleville Guardsman Polices Kyrenia Gate

By RUSSELL PEDEN

NICOSIA (CP) — Bill Lewis and John Hunter can't see two Canadians doing similar jobs to help maintain the fragile peace in Cyprus, but they live and work in different worlds.

Both work and sleep in police stations, less than a mile apart, inside the walled city of Nicosia. There the similarity ends.

Capt. Lewis, 31, a Royal Canadian Artillery officer from Turner Valley, Alta. is a United Nations liaison officer to the Greek-Cypriots. From his tiny office in the station at Paphos Gate, he deals with anything ranging from a breach of the cease-fire to the problems of a poor Greek-Cypriot coppersmith who can't make a living because his shop, tools and materials are in the Turkish-Cypriot quarter of the city.

Capt. Hunter, 28, a Canadian Guards officer from Toronto and Belleville, faces a similar tangle of woe at his main Turkish police station inside Kyrenia gate, the city's northern entrance.

Both have been called upon in the past to quell outbursts of firing between Greek and Turk in the close confines of the "green line" area dividing warring factions.

TRANSFER PROPERTY

One of the most common problems has been the transfer of property for individuals caught on the wrong side when the battle lines were drawn.

From the UN's point of view Capt. Lewis said, this is both good and bad.

"In a way we are assisting the thing we are trying to avoid —the complete division of Greek- and Turkish-Cypriot into two separate states.

"But at the same time you can't refuse a man his property when he has no other way of making a living."

Frequent callers on Capt. Lewis, two or three times a week, are the family of a Greek - Cypriot arrested in the Turkish quarter with several pounds of ammunition in his pockets and purchased—on a charge of possessing explosive material.

"These are an emotional people," he said. "They used to follow my jeep all around the city. Whenever I stopped they would be all over me, weeping and wailing.

"At times, all I could do was put my arm around the mother and pat her hand until the storm of emotion blew over."

The liaison officer takes a harder line when he finds abusive and unnecessary searching going on at a roadblock.

"Usually this stops as soon as I put in an appearance. The police there know I will probably report them to Mr. Pantalides (Greek - Cypriot police chief) and they may be disciplined."

BRINGS NEWSPAPERS

Capt. Lewis is assisted in his job by two soldiers from Pembroke, Ont.—Cpl. Jim Burns, 23 - years - old jeep driver, and Sigmn. Fred Hitchcock, 21.

In the Turkish quarter, Capt. Hunter shares a cool, high-ceilinged room with Cpl Keith Carruthers, 23, of Edmonton, and Signmn. Ken McEwen 22, of London, Ont.

Capt. Hunter's liaison job is perhaps more vital to the surrounded Turkish-Cypriots than Capt. Lewis's is to his Greek-Cypriot side. He brings in the only outside newspapers, and mail from the Greek-held post office.

He goes to the Greek-Cypriot government offices to get vehicle licences for Turkish-Cypriots whose trucks otherwise would not be allowed to join food convoys on Greek-held roads.

Among his jobs has been to arrange daily safe conduct for three or four Greeks who still operate an ice - making plant just inside the Turkish quarter of Trakhonas, a northern sub urb.

There are few ice plants on the island, and the supply of 1,000 blocks a day from this one would be sorely missed.

"I've learned a lot about people in four months here," Capt Hunter said.

"The prime requirement in this job is patience. You make an arrangement and it falls through at the last minute because of some little detail that has nothing to do with the issue.

"To make any headway you have to think fast and talk slowly."

Divers on Bomb Mission In 1942 Halifax Wreck

By DON LeBLANC

PORTUGUESE COVE, N.S. (CP)—It was a cold March 22 in 1942. A strong easterly gale was whipping heavy snow into a blinding storm.

The Clare Lilley, a cargo ship of British registry, stood waiting off this tiny village at the mouth of Halifax Harbor. She and three other ships were to be escorted into the harbor and would later join an Atlantic convoy.

But, in the near zero visibility, the captain and crew of the Clare Lilley were unaware that she was being pushed by the gale towards this jagged coastline.

The 3,738-ton freighter was out of a United States port, loaded with bombs and other war supplies, presumably for Britain. She crashed against the shore, leaving her bow among the rocks and slipping back to the ocean's floor.

The remains of the Clare Lilley were left undisturbed until this year when navy divers from Dartmouth, N.S., began the task of removing the bombs.

The decision to remove the ammunition was prompted last year when sticks of dynamite were found along the shore by school children here. The cordite, a low velocity impulse explosive used for propelling bombs, had escaped from cracked casings on some of the smaller shells.

STILL DANGEROUS

Although difficult to ignite by impact, the cordite will respond quickly to heat.

"When dried out, it's as good as new," said a navy spokesman. "It could be dangerous in the hands of children."

The navy expects to remove nearly 1,000 bombs from the area. They are to be stockpiled underwater near the site until the clean-up job is completed and then transported to dumping grounds in the deep Atlantic.

The bombs, most of them 150-pound general purpose weapons, have no detonators attached but are still potentially dangerous if allowed to dry.

The wreckage of the Clare Lilley has scattered over a 200-foot area. Divers have found many of the bombs together in piles where they were left as the ship broke apart.

"Little of the ship is left intact," says Lieut. Roy V. Busby, officer in charge of the diving tender from which the operation is being carried out.

"The ship is all spread out," said leading seaman Kenneth Power, 23, of Sydney Mines, dive. "Some bombs are on top of portions of the ship while others are underneath."

On land, a few hundred feet from where the operation is being conducted, the weather-ravaged bow of the Clare Lilley juts out amid the rocks where it was left 23 years ago

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Years ago, an old hunting story goes, when the deer-hunting fraternity were a bit careless about their targets, a Dead-Eye Dick trained back to the log cabin, Royal York and silently counted his partners.

When he had finished he wiped a moist brow and heaved a sigh of relief. The boys dropped their carbs and asked what was the trouble.

"You're all here," said the nimrod. "That means I have just shot a deer."

Time was when hunting accidents were a lot more numerous than they are today. Hunters generally are exhibiting more care and common sense and their rifle accidents are a lot fewer. And this in a day when deer-seeking gun-toters are four times as numerous as they were a decade ago.

But they are still happening—and like other kinds of mishaps, will continue to do so. Dusk, a sudden movement, a case of wrong identity—and you have all the ingredients of a hunting accident, perhaps a fatality.

But hunting accidents are not something that came into being with the invention of the firearm. Every there is nothing new under the sun, although a lot of old stuff is being pulled off under the moon, they are found in legend, fiction and history.

D. N. Omond in Fish and Wildlife Review recalls a folk song that relates the sad fate of Polly Ven, who overshot herself with her spree and was arrowed to death by a swan while mistook her for a swan.

Marco Polo reveals that the Apostle St. Thomas met his death in a hunting accident. The holy man was engaged in a hunt surrounded by gally-plumaged peacocks in a city south of Madras.

A hunter failed to see the Apostle among his quarry and loosed an arrow in their general direction. He missed his mark and fatally wounded St. Thomas. The spot where he died became a centre of pilgrimage for Christians and Saracens alike.

William the Second of England, known to schoolboys as William Rufus, wasn't all that a king was supposed to be. He consistently plundered the lands of the church.

He was a brilliant administrator, a fine soldier and a man of his word, the historians agree. But, he smoked pot before he was bad guy, who took what he wanted—even his own income tax.

He was a keen hunter and one day one of his favorites, one Walter Tirel, loosed an arrow at a stag, missed and nailed Rufus plumb in the chest. Tirel fled to France where he protested his innocence. However, Rufe's brother Henry, who succeeded him, the church and an overtaxed country were the beneficiaries.

Greek mythology has it that Artemis, sister of Apollo, owned a certain hunter who turned people she did not like into game animals, bears, stags, etc. Then she took her silver bow and arrows, went hunting and bumped them off.

Peleus, son of Aeacus, accidentally shot the son of his best wife at a bear spear while wild pig hunting. This was not a fairly short range so Pely might have been knocking off a rival—or squaring a poker debt.

Hunting accidents may occur more frequently in these modern days but they did take place in the days of Robin Hood, Sir Galahad and William the Conqueror who sank an arrow in King Harold's eye when he was looking for wild ducks.

A careless moment, a shot at something not clearly seen, a ricochet—and the victim is just as dead, whether felled by a rock, club, spear, arrow or bullet.

Sweep Pair From Moira

Quinte Still Rolling

By ROBERT SNEYDELLA

Quinte Secondary School's Junior and Senior football sides swept their fourth straight twin bill of the season in Bay of Quinte COSSA play at Quinte yesterday afternoon. They defeated Moira, with the seniors winning 27-13 and the juniors 27-6.

The wins increased the possibility of both Quinte teams finishing on top in the league, as there are only two regular season games remaining.

The Senior Saints were sparked by a three touchdown performance by Grant Vandervoort and a staunch defence.

Moira took an early 6-0 lead when Carl Stephenson picked up his own punt and ran into the Quinte end zone for the major.

Vandervoort evened the score at 6-6 when he climaxed a 50-yard Quinte drive by scoring on a 20-yard end run.

Quinte scored a rouge to take a one point lead, but in the third quarter Moira tied the score with an identical play.

On the first play Mike Morton of Quinte ran 45 yards to the Moira 45, to set up a 45-yard run by Vandervoort for the T.D. The convert attempt by Jack Reppard ricohoted off the cross bar and through the uprights for the point.

The losers closed the gap

Schoendienst Named Cards Manager

By TOM PENDERGAST

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Popular Red Schoendienst, the National League's premier second baseman for more than a decade, was named manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals Tuesday, replacing Johnny Keane.

The move climaxed an amazing reorganization of the Cardinals, who only last Thursday won the World Series from New York Yankees of the American League. Keane resigned the following day and Tuesday replaced Yogi Berra as Yankee manager only two hours before Schoendienst was named manager of the Cards.

Terms of the managerial contract for Schoendienst were not announced immediately.

Club president August A. Busch Jr., said Schoendienst was the unanimous choice of his six-man administrative committee. Besides Busch, the committee includes former Cardinal superstar Stan Musial, now a club vice-president; and general manager Bob Howsam.

Howsam said Musial would work closely with the new manager.

SPECULATION ENDS

Speculation had been rampant for hours that Schoendienst would get the job. Other names under consideration were Leo Durocher and Charlie Metro, a scout with Chicago White Sox.

Albert (Red) Schoendienst—a slender, freckle-faced man, came up to the Cardinals in 1945 and was the league's outstanding second baseman until Frank Lane traded him to the old New York Giants in 1956.

The jump from the baseball world was stunned with the announcement that Schoendienst had succeeded Lane as GM of Milwaukee Braves at the time, but overcame the illness and replaced the Cardinals in 1961.

Schoendienst, 41, has been a Cardinal coach for three years. He had spent all but four of his 22 years in baseball in the Cardinal organization.

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—In hiring Johnny Keane as manager, the proud New York Yankees of the American League have gone outside their own family and turned to a seasoned pilot in the tradition of Joe McCarthy and Casey Stengel.

The new Yankee manager is a veteran of 15 years of baseball warfare who enjoyed a stint as manager of St. Louis Cardinals last Friday, the day after his National League club won the World Series. He combines the quiet but firm discipline of McCarthy and the patience and daring of Stengel.

Like McCarthy and Stengel, Keane enjoyed minor years of success in the minors before getting an opportunity to manage in the big time. Again like McCarthy and Stengel, Keane received his major league baptism elsewhere before being picked by the perennial American League champion Yankees.

SUCCEEDS BERRA

In agreeing to a one-year term Tuesday as Yankee manager, the 47-year-old Keane succeeded Yogi Berra, who had taken over the Yankee leadership last year with any previous managerial experience.

Berra was fired as manager of the Yankees the day after losing the World Series to the Cardinals in seven games.

"We really thought Yogi would make a good manager," general manager Ralph Houk said Tuesday.

"Lots of people thought it was purely for public relation purposes...That was part of it, naturally. But we thought he had been in baseball so long, being idled by everyone and knowing all the players, he would be O.K.

"Looking back now, I can see where we were wrong. I believe now that baseball is a game of which he played was a handicap to him. It made things a lot tougher for him. I honestly think Yogi is better suited in his present job (scouting). He has not been hurt financially. The Yankees have a warm spot in their hearts for him and we hope he will be with us for a long time."

HAD NO COMPLAINTS

Denying reports of lack of discipline on the part of the players which at times amounted almost to open rebellion, Houk contended that he was glad to succeed Berra but decided on Keane the minute he learned John was available.

"I managed against him in the American Association for three years," Houk said, "and he was the toughest manager I ever competed against."

Keane was a manager at Omaha when Houk directed the Denver team in 1955-56-57. Each won a league title. Houk came up to the Yankees as a coach in 1958, and was promoted to manager in the middle of 1960, advanced to the Cardinals as a coach in 1899 and succeeded Solly Hemus as manager in July of 1961.

Braves Meet To Decide Location

CHICAGO (AP) — Milwaukee Braves board of directors meets here today to decide whether to shift its National League baseball franchise to Atlanta.

Speculation that the board will vote to move the club was given impetus Tuesday when league president Warren Giles announced that a baseball meeting will be held in New York Thursday "to further discuss the Milwaukee and Atlanta situation and take action thereon."

If a franchise move is decided by the Braves, they will need six votes for approval from the nine other National League clubs.

Braves' officials claim Milwaukee's baseball attendance potential for a pennant - contending term is 1,000,000 people a year. They claim this is not enough.

However, the big factor in a move is broadcasting rights. In Milwaukee, the Braves are cut of. to the south by Chicago, to the east by Detroit and to the northwest by Minnesota.

Atlanta's geographic situation opens the entire southeast to radio and television rights, which could run into millions of dollars in revenue.

Riders 'Crack Down' On Players

OTTAWA (CP)—Head coach Frank Clair of the Ottawa Rough Riders probably regrets that his men pasted Calgary Stampeders here in their best offensive showing of the season.

This led Clair to announce that his team was "out" for the rest of the Canadian Football League season.

And this led in turn to some of the Riders thinking their jobs were as safe as those of civil servants (except in Saskatchewan).

The result was some late night partying by some members of the team and some less than brilliant performances on the field.

Clair said Tuesday: "Perhaps we've been too lenient. But in eight or nine years here we've never had any trouble. We respect the boys as being mature and aware of the opportunities in pro football.

"Once that privilege is abused, we have to crack down."

The cracking down started Monday with the firing of halfback Ernie White and the filing of three unidentified players for alcohol play.

ULMER ON SPOT

Clair indicated that defensive halfback and punter Ed Ulmer may get the axe, too.

"I've had it out with Ulmer," he said. "He'll either start playing football or he'll be gone. He knows his job is in jeopardy."

"We'll place more players on waivers in the next few days, three (fined) have been warned that a repeat violation of curfew or drinking will play such as we've seen the past two weeks will mean immediate suspension."

Riders have two games left —at Montreal Sunday and at Toronto the following Saturday —but are already assured of at least a second place finish.

Clair said his club's main job now is to get ready for the playoffs — likely a soldier-death semi-final against Montreal.

"I've reason to feel that what we've done in the way of talks with certain players and fines will pep up the whole morale. In the main, our morale is good."

MONTREAL (CP) — Both quarterbacks George Bork and Vernon Gray will be signal-calling duties at Montreal Alouettes practices this week, but coach Jim Trimble says Bork is still the top man.

Bork had a rough day at practice Monday and Sunday, but was operating under the influence of influenza and was running a high temperature. Trimble didn't use Cole because he felt the latter wasn't prepared.

Although Bork will start against Ottawa, Trimble wants Cole available in case of another emergency.

Top Rinks Enter Tournament

TORONTO (CP) — Four of Canada's top curling rinks have accepted invitations to compete in the eight-team tournament of champions at Maple Leaf Gardens Jan. 4-5, it was announced Tuesday.

A total of $5,000 in prize money will be at stake with the winners collecting $1,500 a man.

The Ontario Curling Association's code of ethics will not allow any curler, who falls under their jurisdiction, to collect more than $150. In the event a prize of more than $150 is won by members of the OCA, the difference will be donated to charity.

Competing in this year's tournament will be world champion Lyal Dagg of Vancouver, Ernie Richardson of Regina, four-time world champion, Doug Camron of Charlottetown and Bob Ash of Kirkland Lake, last year's Canadian schoolboy champion.

An Ontario rink and three others will be announced later.

Names Same, One Hired, One Fired

PITTSBURGH (CP)—It was a day of oddly-coincidental fate Tuesday for a couple of Hal Smiths, both baseball connected with National League baseball teams, one a catcher and the other a former catcher.

The Pittsburgh Pirates announced that the Hal Smith who used to catch for St. Louis Cardinals is the first coach appointed under new manager Harry (The Hat) Walker. He managed last season in the Card farm chain at Rock Hill, S.C., in the Western Carolina League.

Cincinnati Reds gave their Hal Smith his unconditional release. He caught batting practice last season, got into 32 games and batted .121.

Filly White, Brother Red White, Blue

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP)—"When you trying to kill? There ain't no such thing as a white thoroughbred," the veteran horseman said.

But there is. Her name is White Beauty.

Fortunately for the horseman's sanity, no one mentioned that the white filly has a half brother who is red, white and blue.

The filly, by Ky. Colonel out of Filly O'Mine, not only looks white, she is registered as such with The Jockey Club, official registrar in the horse business.

The colt, also by Ky. Colonel but out of Why Wander, is registered as a roan. But the chestnut splotches on his neck look red, his body is an off-white and there are definite spots of blue on his hind quarters.

When White Beauty answers the call of the post next April she will be the world's first thoroughbred to race.

TOKYO (CP)—Russia's Valery Brumel won the gold medal in the Olympic high jump today, out - jumping two Americans.

John Thomas of the U.S. won the silver medal and John Rambo of the U.S. the bronze.

Both Brumel and Thomas failed to clear seven feet 2¾ inches but Brumel won on the basis of fewer misses.

Both cleared an Olympic record height of seven feet 1¾ inches on their first attempt but at the previous height, seven feet one inch, Brumel went over the first time while it took Thomas two attempts.

Ethiopian Marathoner Sets Record

First To Win Twice

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Sports Editor

TOKYO (CP)—Abebe Bikila of Ethiopia, running through the streets of Tokyo to the thunderous applause of 500,000 people, became the first man to win the marathon twice, and Peter Snell of New Zealand captured his second gold medal in the metric mile as the track and field events ended at the Olympic Games today.

Only Bikila's victory Brumel gave Russia the high jump gold medal while world records were set in all three relay races, two of them won by the United States and the other by Poland.

Commonwealth countries took three of the five yachting gold medals. Canada's best showing was seventh place in the 5.5-metre class for the yacht skippered by Sandy MacDonald of Westmount, Que. Australia won the 5.5-metre class, Durward Knowles of the Bahamas grabbed the Star championship, New Zealand got the gold in the Flying Dutchman, Denmark finished first in the Dragon and Willi Kuhweide of Germany won the Finn.

Italy and Germany waged a tremendous fight in cycling to split two gold medals. Germany won the team pursuit championship by 7.100th of a second over Italy but the Italians took the tandem gold.

Japan, aiming for a sweep of all four judo wrestling gold medals, added the middleweight class to its earlier triumph in the lightweight division when Isao Okano won the middleweight gold award.

Hungary won its fourth gold medal in fencing, taking the epee team title.

IN CANOE FINAL

Canada placed two entries in the finals of the canoeing Thursday, all from Montreal. Paul Stahl won his semi-final heat in the Canadian singles and Andor Elbert and Fred Hesse qualified with a second placing in the Canadian pairs.

Bikila, the high-spirited 32-year-old bodyguard for Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie, easily stole the show today, this time wearing shoes. He ran the fastest marathon ever to win in two hours, 12 minutes, 11.2 seconds.

The iron - limbed Ethiopian led the field of 68 runners from three miles after the start until he finished the 26-mile, 385-yard grind in the National Stadium by more than four minutes over his closest rival, Britain's Ben Heatley. Kokichi Tsuburaya of Japan was third.

Snell, the world's greatest middle - distance runner with world marks in the half-mile, 800 metres and mile, shared the limelight with Bikila when he became the first person in 44 years to win gold medals in both the 800- and 1,500-metre events.

Snell, a 25-year-old tobacco salesman, easily won the metric mile in 3:38.1, finishing 1.5 seconds ahead of Joseph Odlozil of Czechoslovakia and John Davies of New Zealand. The Czech got the silver medal by a scant margin over Davies. Both the second- and third-place finishers had identical 3:39.6 clockings.

SWEDE EVENLY

Alan Simpson of Britain finished fourth, making it a Commonwealth sweep of three of the first four placings in the blue-ribbon event. Dyrol Burleson of the United States was a flagging fifth in 3:40.0

The U.S. won gold medals in the men's 400-metre and 1,600 metre relay races, bringing its total of gold medals in track and field to 14—two better than the showing at Rome four years ago.

American men got an even dozen and the women a pair. At Rome, the men won nine and the women three.

As for the Russians, only the famous Press sisters, Tamara and Irina, and Brumel saved them from a complete trounc ing in track and field. The trio accounted for four of the five gold medals Russia won in the main phase of the Olympic Games.

In Rome, Russia won 11 gold medals in track and field alone.

Today, Brumel won the high jump with a leap of seven feet, 1¾ inches, the same height reached by John Thomas of the U.S., but Brumel was awarded the gold medal because he had fewer misses.

Gold medal winners Bob Hayes and Henry Carr anchored the victorious American relay teams.

RACES TO RECORD

Hayes, the burley Floridian who solidified his claim to the title world's fastest human with a gold medal in the 100-metre dash, took the baton some three yards behind on the final leg and won the 400 relay by two yards in the world record time of 39 seconds flat.

Poland and France had the same 39.3 clockings, but Poland grabbed the silver while France got the bronze.

Paul Drayton was the leadoff man for the Americans, Gerry Ashworth No. 2 and Dick Stebbins No. 3. The quartet breached the world mark of 39.1 set by the U.S. in 1961 and reclaimed the Olympic title the Americans lost on an illegal baton pass in 1960.

And Carr, the 200-metre gold medal winner, ran the last leg of the 1,600 metres to help set a world mark of 3:00.7 and defeat Britain's team by some five yards. The previous world mark of 3:02.2 was set by the Americans at the Rome Olympics.

Britain's time of 3:01.6 also was under the world mark as was the third - place quartet from Trinidad - Tobago which did 3:01.7.

With sprint gold medal winners Tyrus Cobb and Edith McGuire running in key roles, the U.S. was a heavy favorite to duplicate its triumph of 1960 in the women's 400 relay.

But a mediocre performance by Poland in 47.6 produced an upset. The U.S. finished second, some three yards back in 43.9. Britain was third with 44.0. The previous world standard of 44.3 was held by the Americans who established it in 1963.

BY 15 YARDS

Snell, the five-foot-10½, 170-pound New Zealander with the killing kick, won the metric mile by some 15 yards when he finished just 2.5 seconds off the world mark of 3:36.5 set by Australia's Herb Elliott when he won the race in 1960.

Native Mark Set By Gairdner

TOKYO (CP)—Bill Gairdner of Toronto set a Canadian native record of 7,147 points while finishing 11th in the decathlon won by Willi Holdorf of Germany Tuesday at the Olympic Games. Holdorf scored a total of 7,887 points.

Gairdner, 23-year-old native of Oakville, Ont., finished strongly in the two-day, 10-event contest, regarded as the most gruelling athletic competition of all.

He ranked fifth in the javelin and fourth in the 1,500-metre head-times after blowing his chances of catching the top six with a disastrous showing in the pole vault. No Canadian has ever finished in the first six in the event in Olympic competition.

Gairdner set the previous Canadian native mark of 7,031 points, which also stood as a Commonwealth record, at the Olympic trials in Toronto last August.

Jerry Moro of Trail, B.C., placed 18th with a total of 6,716 points.

100 - metres dash—Gairdner, 11.2 seconds, 756 points; (Thomas Hector, Venezuela and Holdorf, 10.7, 879 points).

Broad jump — Gairdner, 21 feet, 886 points; (Kein Aan and Mihail Storchenko, Russia, 23-5¾, 985 points).

Shot put—Gairdner, 43 feet, 10¾ inches, 689 points; (Storchenko, 53-5¾, 868 points).

High jump—Gairdner, 5-7, 598 points (Klaus-Joachim Walde, Germany, 6-6, 820 points).

400 metres — Gairdner, 49.3 seconds, 816 points (fifth best time); (Holdorf, 48.2, 889 points).

120-metre hurdles — Gairdner, 15.4, 807 points; (Holdorf, 14.6, 881 points).

Discus—Gairdner, 140-6¾, 763 points; (Franco Sar, Italy, 185-8, 987 points).

Pole vault—Moro and C. K. Yang, Formosa, tied for first with 15 feet, one inch, 870 points each; Gairdner, 14 1¾, 644 points.

Javelin — Gairdner, 195-11¾, 788 points (fifth best); (Yang, 220-7, 938 points).

1,500 metres — Gairdner, 4:34.5, 628 points (fourth best time); (Richard Emberger, United States, 4:18.2, 800 points).

Canadian Canoeists In Finals

TOKYO (CP) — Canada got into two canoeing finals today at the Olympic Games when its Canadian pairs entry qualified, following a victory by Paul Stahl of Montreal in a semi-final heat of the Canadian singles.

The pairs entry, Andor Elbert and Fred Hesse of Montreal, took second place in a semi - final heat behind Hungary.

The German - born Stahl, chalking up the first victory by a Canadian in a canoe race here, had a margin of nearly three seconds over runner-up Jan Zbran of Czechoslovakia.

For awhile the first Canadian pairs boat promised to be a tight battle among the Canadians, Hungary and Czechoslovakia. However, the Hungarian tandem of Antal Hajba and Arpad Soltesz pulled away at the finish, leaving Elbert and Hesse to squeeze into second place ahead of Czechoslovakia.

First three finishers in all semi-final heats qualified for the finals in the various events. The canoeing finals are scheduled for Thursday.

PITCHER HURT

MARTON, Wash. (AP)—Mel Stottlemyre, rookie New York Yankee pitcher who won one World Series game after a 9-3 season's record, sprained and possibly fractured his right ankle Tuesday in a hunting accident on his first full day home. The injury was a bad sprain with a possible hairline fracture of a small bone on the outer prat of the ankle. The 22-year-old righthander said he apparently tripped on a rock and his leg twisted beneath him.

Hawks Meet Habs Tonight

'Scooter Line' Intact Again

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chicago's potent Scooter Line has returned to full strength.

Kenny Wharram, who suffered a skull fracture during an exhibition game a month ago will rejoin teammates Stan Mikita and Doug Robinson tonight when the Black Hawks meet the Canadiens in Montreal

Wharram, the little left winger who scored 39 goals last season, has recovered from his injury much sooner than expected and coach Bill Reay intends to play him regularly. It had been feared earlier that he might be out until mid-season.

"It looks like Kenny will go full shifts," Reay said Tuesday after the Hawks worked out at Montreal Forum. "He played a few turns at Detroit and half the game at home during the weekend."

JOINS FELLOW SCOOTERS

The 1963-64 All-Star and Lady Byng Trophy winner will take over from John McKenzie on the line with fellow Scooters Mikita and Robinson, one of five new faces in this season's Chicago lineup.

The other newcomers are rookies Dennis Hull, Bobby's 19-year-old brother, Fred Stanfield, John Brenneman and veteran Doug Mohns, acquired from Boston in a trade that sent Murray Balfour, Ab McDonald and Reggie Fleming to Boston.

The Canadiens confirmed that centre Henri Richard is still on the injured list with a groin allment and the only unanswered question is who will play goal for Chicago—regular Glenn Hall or alternate Denis DeJordy.

Reay is undecided.

Hall played the first two games as Chicago beat Boston 3-0 and Detroit 4-2. DeJordy was in nets for the 3-2 loss to the Red Wings Sunday.

"We are planning to use DeJordy a lot more this year," Reay said. "We didn't play him enough last season.

"We feel that he'll be sharper this way and so will Glenn Hall who likes the setup."

Umpires Elect New Officers

A new slate of officers for the 1965 season was announced following a recent meeting of the Belleville and District Umpires' Association.

Secretary - treasurer Herb Pointer, the only umpire returned to, the same executive post, released the list of officers.

Al Kelleher was elected president, Mike Whalen was named vice-president and Les Reay added, out-going president, was named as an executive member.

Harold Bawden got the nod as umpire-in-chief, replacing Jim Tebworth.

Buchanan Scores Three Again
Generals Dump Marlies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oshawa Generals have moved into second place with seven points in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series but with a goal scorer like Ron Buchanan, it's a wonder they aren't in first.

Buchanan paced the Generals with his second three - goal performance in as many games as they dumped Toronto Marlboros 5-3 Tuesday night. He has accounted for half the Generals' 14 goals in five games this season and leads the league in scoring. Oshawa now trails Niagara Falls Flyers by one point.

In other league action Tuesday night, St. Catharines Black Hawks took a 4-3 win over Kitchener Rangers.

Adding to Buchanan's three goals were Bill Bannerman and Wayne Cashman. Mike Byers and Brit Selby scored for Toronto.

Gerry MacMillan netted two goals for St. Catharines, with one each from Bob McAlpine and Kenny Hodge. Randy Legge and Sandy Fitzpatrick were the Ranger marksmen.

Thursday night Toronto meets Hamilton in Hamilton while Peterborough plays host to Niagara Falls.

The Tracks

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Punters gave Rudy Dillon little chance of success after a fall spent campaigning at the smaller fair circuits but the five-year-old gelding proved the upset winner of the night at the Western Fair Raceway Tuesday, paying $32.20 and helping post an exacta of $257.40.

Rudy Dillon paced the mile in 2:14 in the fourth race to manufacture the biggest exacta of the fall meeting when coupled with Goodwill Jonnie.

Another big payoff came in the ninth—the featured Preferred Pace for a purse of $1,000—when Brother Ry went the mile in 2:06 4-5 and paid $20.10.

The daily double of $48.40 was posted when Marjean Barr won the opener at $9.70 and Bernie's Pride took the second at $7.60.

Has Two Gold Medals
Snell Seeks 3.50 Mile

TOKYO (AP) — Peter Snell, the New Zealand track ace who today added the blue ribbon 1,500 metres to his Olympic gold in the 800, says he wants to run a 3:50 mile and then quit.

He hopes to do it within the next year.

"Now I want to concentrate on the mile," Snell told a post-race press conference. "I think I can do it."

"I'll take part in some races at home, where we are entering our summer, then I would like to make a tour of Europe next spring. After that, I think I'll call it a day . . ."

Snell, 25, is a surveyor. He said he has joined a golf club at home and "I'm ready to chase that little ball a while."

The New Zealander won the 1,500 metres in three minutes, 38.1 seconds, well off Australian Herb Elliott's world record of 3:35.6 set at Rome four years ago —in a rough - and - tumble race that threatened to turn into a melee.

Michel Bernard of France, the early pace setter who finished seventh, complained that Snell and Witold Baran of Poland almost shoved him off the track.

"There was plenty of shoving and kicking out there," Bernard said. "I got a big gash on my shin."
